ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

"East Side, West Side," the Allan Dwan Fox production from the novel by Felix Riesenberg, will conclude a four day showing at the Breed theater tomorrow night. George O'Brien and Virginia Valli have the principal roles in this striking picture of a boy's struggle for success in the heart of a great city. A competent cast consisting of many well known stage players lends them admirable support. The picture has been playing to capacity houses since it opened last Sunday night, indicating its popular appeal here to enthusiastic audiences.

Polo at Olympic Rink

Tonight will be Valentine surprise night at the rink, and will be a good time for all who attend. Thursday night the first game of the City Roller Polo league will take place. The first game of the contest will be between the Thunderbolts and West Sides. Manager Hendrick states that if the practice games are any criterion this game will be a hard fought battle from start to finish. The same rules used by the American Hockey league which is playing Hartford, New Britain, Meriden, Waterbury and Bristol will be used. Norwich not having polo for years the games should bring out some of the old timers. The lineup for Thursday night will be:

Thunderbolts		West Sides
Savage	First Rush	Pierce
McGregor	Second Rush	Pavey
Lewis	Center	Guelaqdusk
Staub	Halfback	Daigle
Chenette	Goal	Edwards

Game called 9 p. m. and consists of two fifteen minute periods. Skating before and after the game.

GALES FERRY

PASTOR AND HIS WIFE ARE GIVEN A SHOWER

A large gathering of friends in the parish of Rev. and Mrs. Jerome Greer met at the M. E. vestry Saturday evening to give them a surprise miscellaneous shower, after their removal to the new parsonage recently completed. The gifts were for them personally. Miss Helen L. Colver was delegated to go to the parsonage and invite Rev. and Mrs. Greer to meet some friends. Rev. Mr. Greer was somewhat ill with a cold but Mrs. Greer responded tothe invitation and found many friends seated near a long table, piled high with packages of all descriptions. Nelson Parker, as chairman, welcomed Mrs. Greer in a happy manner and seated her at the table. A brief informal program followed: Piano selection, Alumni Reunion, by Mrs. Robert Miller; reading, How a Farmer Got His Breakfast, Dudley C. Perkins; reading, Chad's Story of the Goose, (F. Hopkinson Smith), Mrs. C. E. Colver, John Harold was named to assist Mrs. Greer in opening the packages which disclosed linen, china, glass, pyrex dishes, rugs, sofa pillow, flower bowl, towels, candle sticks, window draperies, book ends, kitchen implements, cookers, roasters and other articles. Mrs. Greer expressed her thanks for the gifts and the love that prompted them. She invited all to call on them at the new parsonage, saying they had planned to be at home to all their friends Thursdays in February. Sandwiches, cake and cocoa were served.

True Greatness, Psalm 85:11, illustrated by the lives of Washington and Lincoln was the theme of Rev. Jerome Greer at Sunday morning worship in the M. E. church. My Task was the offertory solo sung by D. R. Povey; God Send Us Men, was the closing hymn.

At the church school at noon continuing the observance of Lincoln Sunday, Supt. C. E. Colver conducted a special responsive reading with prayer, by Mrs. Jerome Greer and a selection on the Life of Lincoln by Rev. George H. Wright. The awards for attendance for adults went to D. E. Perkins' class and offering to the Men's class. To the Juniors attendance Mrs. Andrew P. Miller's class, and offering Mrs. J. Edmund Norman's class.

The church calendar included rehearsal at the vestry Monday evening for "Anybody Family," of the Epworth League and a meeting of the Home Missionary society Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. R. Irving Hurlbutt.

The Thursday afternoon meeting of the Ladies' Aid society was held in the vestry. A surprise feature being the presentation of a birthday cake to Mrs. Eugene La Fontaine by Miss Mabel Smith, as the date was Mrs. La Fontaine's birthday. Miss Smith, as hostess, with Mrs. Avery Main, Mrs. Elmer E. Tubbs, Mrs. Amos Main, Mrs. Billings F. S. Crandall and Mrs. Bertha Hoyt, furnished and served dainty sandwiches, cake and tea

Property holders in the proposed fire district for Gales Ferry have received the following notice: The organization meeting for the fire district of Gales Ferry will be held at the club house Wednesday evening, February 23. Chester E. Dimick, secretary.

The beautiful lily amadyllis in bloom at the home of Mrs. Harmon L. Perkins is being greatly admired.

Leonard Smith of New London spent the week end with his grandmother, Mrs. Latham E. Smith at Rose Lawn farm.

MAKES DOMINATION LINCOLN DAY LESSON

mother rears a child, flesh of her flesh, and heart of her heart; she loves him so that separation from him cuts her like a knife, her natural affections cry out to him, they tell him not to let a thing arise between them, she can count on him in later days when other affections have been taken from her, she can depend on him for shelter to shield her from the world—and what does she do?—she cuts herself away, she gives that son to God a priest. Lincoln then has been taken from us, he is no longer a mere national hero, he is enshrined in the heart of the world and all humanity considers him her own. We are not sorry either for we still possess him in the sense that we too form part of this humanity and we are proud that one of us has scaled the heights and penetrated that stoutest of all opposition, racial hate and national prejudice.

What Made Him Great

What was it then that makes Lincoln the personage and influence that he is? We all know him of course as the leader of our people at a crisis in the nation's history; we all know him as a man of genius, of intellect and energy; we pity him as our martyred president but these are only contributing influence to his greatest asset—the great big heart of Lincoln. The period of our history called the Civil war Americans never tell of with any show of pride or joy. It is a chapter of our history which shame makes us want to forget but truth forces us to remember. But out of it all, above it all like the star above the crib of Bethlehem the figure of Lincoln that remains transfixed and glorified forever. It was the hand of Lincoln that sent the Blue against the Gray; it was the hand of Lincoln that drenched the fields of Gettysburg, Antietam and the wilderness in poppy red but it was the heart of Lincoln that shrank before it all, that opposed it all, that looked upon it as a tragedy but whom the sacredness of the cause, the oath of office and the conviction he was right forced him on. The hearts of men are deep even when the mind is shallow, the hearts of men are hard when their minds are most impressed but there is a thing the heart or mind of man cannot resist and that is kindness. There are well-springs in the heart of man that are never touched unless by acts of kindness so when the heart of Lincoln, suffering for other human beings, different as to color but whose souls perhaps were just as bright and lovely as his own was well nigh bursting and could stand the thing no longer he was led to that great act of emancipation which wiped forever from our national life a stumbling block and stain and won for himself an everlasting niche in the greatest of all halls of fame—the heart of humanity. We all know now the kindness that was Lincoln's; we all know now what kindness really is; the human beings created free and independent by their God chained and fettered by their masters knew what kindness was but all this kindness we know so well the world was quite a stranger to till there came one who showed what kindness really was. Out of the kindness of His heart Christ, too, wept bitterly for men. The 'man of sorrows' had nothing in His face but love and tenderness for us and when the blood streamed down His face on Calvary and the heat brought on by pain parched His throat and caked His tongue His kindness pierced the bloody mist before His eyes and moistened the dried-up lids to see us there and say, "Father, forgive them for they know not what they do." And just as it is the love of Christ that surpassed all His other qualities, the love along side which His miracles suffer by comparison, the love whose "Father forgive them for they know not what they do," far outshines the power of His "Peace be still" or "Lazarus, come forth" so too is it that the heart of Lincoln, simple, open, unspoiled, rough, like the trees he left behind him as a railsplitter surpasses all his other qualities and leaves him high, lonesome, solitary in that circle of the world's celebrities but graced by few Americans.

It is the heart of Lincoln then which raises him aloft and enshrines him in our memory, the heart which was exposed to the eye of the world when he made that history-making speech at Gettysburg. You are all familiar with that speech and the principles that it contained. "Four score and seven years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent a new nation conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men were created equal," it is like a poem or a prayer breathed from the heart of a saint to its God, an act of faith from an American heart. No wonder that it elicited the famous "perfect tribute." The story goes that Lincoln, invited to speak at the dedication of a cemetery at Gettysburg, was embarrassed as he shared the platform with the leading orator of the time. With no time for preparation, discouraged by his limitations as an orator dejectedly he scribbled a few lines on a piece of wrapping paper as the presidential train brought him down from Washington. The oration of Edward Everett who preceded him was received with a vigorous outburst of applause. The speech of Lincoln was received with silence and hushed attention. Lincoln left the cemetery immediately, downhearted and discouraged his noble heart had caught the spirit of the occasion but he could not reveal it to his listeners. Next day in the capacity of a lawyer he was assisting a dying man to make his will. He was unknown to the dying client. The business over, Lincoln turned to go but not before he had a word of sympathy for the sufferer. "There is one thing," the man said in response to Lincoln's question, "I would most desire before I die. It is to shake hands with the one who made the Gettysburg address." Embarrassed once again Lincoln revealed that it was he but he told the man what a failure it had been, how he left the platform, without a murmur of appreciation being heard. "Ah," said the dying man, "but you would not hear applause at the recitation of the Father." And so tongues were stilled and voices checked, hands were tied as if in a holy place, the heart of Lincoln stood stripped and naked before those people and a hush fell on them as if in church.

Such a heart as Lincoln had could not endure the situation present in America at the time. Thousands of human beings made by God to be free and independent had been denied that God-given grant and this is a country whose cornerstone bore the stamp of liberty. It was inevitable then that if ever a man of Lincoln's type still mindful of the principles which gave birth to this democracy should reach the presidency and the position where he could right so grievous a wrong he would do so, so come war, come bloodshed, come ruin. And so he did. He declared the slaves of the southern states free; the south rebelled with much talk of states' rights; war was declared; the rest is history. The slaves were free; freedom was established and Lincoln became the great emancipator.

Strove for Freedom

Freedom it was that Lincoln strove for; freedom it was that he thought precious enough to plunge this country into a bitter strife that it should live. The Lincoln highway stretches across a land of freedom you may say. The Lincoln memorial at Washington is a constant reminder that we enjoy that priceless gift but in this land of Lincoln freedom's dowry, the fairest daughter of the Goddess of Liberty which receives her immigrants with the torch of liberty, is liberty holding undisputed sway? No less a person than our president seems to have his doubts. In a speech last year President Coolidge said "The mind of America must be forever free." Was he hinting, was he warning, has he from his high place found cause to rebuke Americans? And if this is really true, if freedom in its entirety does not abide here then we have a task before us which would make the task of Lincoln dwarf to insignificance. Of course we are not another Mexico where freedom is a mockery and liberty held in ridicule. It is true that shackles no longer rattle round the bodies of Americans, but is freedom, true and real and unrestricted, holding sway among Americans?

What Freedom Means

To answer this you must grasp what freedom means. Freedom is a gift of God but a gift that He gives to man and man is no machine, no more automaton; he is a creature composed of body and soul and each of these rejoices in that gift. Lincoln purified America when he released the bodies of the slaves from servitude but Lincoln or no one else has claimed to free the American soul from slavery. There is a slavery of intellect, a slavery of will and this is found in any country where its people are cramped by luxury, fettered by wealth and chained by dissipation and blinded by bigotry or prejudice. Freedom in its strictest sense is the ability of man unhampered to pursue the end for which he finds himself on earth. To be deprived of this is to lose your liberty, to take it away from others is to infringe on something precious that God has given them. A mind that is steeped in ignorance and a prey to bigotry, a will that has been weakened by constant dissipation and has become mere tissue paper against the rush of passions beneath a pleasing exterior is cringing more beneath the whip of his master than did the galley slaves beneath the lash of their Roman owners. Glance around and see the multitudes toiling, slaves sweating for whom? Not a cotton grower, not a brickmaker in Egypt but for a thing they make a god of—pleasure. Are their wills free? No. They are like a little puppy when the trainer snaps his finger he jumps through the hoop. And then the intellect; that faculty which no one can touch, which even in the midst of the most degrading slavery can still be free, glance around and see the people who are slaves in this. Narrowed by custom and social cast, warped by misinformation and lies, content to hear one side and not the other, brought up in prejudice, living in it and dying in it—why they are the most abject slaves of all.

It may seem strange to you to hear this claim, it may have all the earmarks of a startling accusation but wherever these conditions are true, in America or elsewhere, slavery exists and freedom, that priceless, that flitting, that century-longed-for object of man's desire has winged herself away.

Slavery to Lower Self

All this may sound very doubtful, the more so in these days when you hear so much of freedom, when men according to our optimists were never more free and when as for women they have reached the heaven that freedom brings. This may be true but freedom, theirs and ours, do not agree. Freedom is not the power to do or not to do, to sin or not to sin, to break a law or not to break it. It is as I have said, the ability of a man unhampered to pursue the end for which he is here on earth. An artist who breaks the laws of design and harmony will never produce a masterpiece. Michael Angelo, immortal that he is in the world of art, if he ever broke one of its laws would never have produced a Madonna. Henry Ford could not ignore the laws of mechanics if he wished to perfect his machine. To break a law would not have made them free, it would have brought on their ruin. Who is more utterly without freedom than the dope fiend or the drunkard, yet they rejoice in the power to do or not do. There is an element in us all that is not meant to be free, that must be kept in check and we are free as long as this is held in check—it is our lower self. To let that master us means groveling revolting slavery. It means the noblest faculties that we have, the will and intellect, are in the clutches of that which is animal in us.

Second Emancipator Needed

There is such slavery in America and this we cannot deny. Some other one, a second emancipator, must rise to make us free. Indeed it is too great a task for any man. Lincoln faced with his task must have felt himself unequal to it all, big and clever and farsighted as he was. A Lincoln must rise to toss off this yoke that weighs so heavily on the souls of men, a greater than he, yes, a Christ. Not Christ come down to earth but the principles by which the humble Galilean conquered the forces of mighty Rome and then the world. These principles in the hearts of men today will keep them free and save them from the slavery which license, unrestraint and lack of self-control—freedom as the world sees it—is rapidly plunging the souls of men.

True Liberty and Freedom

Like ointment on an irritated spot these words should sooth your minds. Your order is founded on the principles of Christ. It remains then that you put them in your lives to have your order ride smoothly over the troubled sea of national life as smoothly as ever the ship that bore your patron to the shores of the new world. And just as Columbus in the face of fanatical opposition set out on a troubled sea cleaving his way through wave and foam, buffeted here and buffeted there to arrive at last at his destination so too should your movement be as a ship through rough and troubled waters blocked by bigotry, driven from your course by irreligion, blown about by every form of opposition that hell itself can arouse but at last with your principles and your teaching, with your spotless lives and Catholic character to weather it all and bring to America more even than Columbus brought, more even than Lincoln or any other individual, you will have brought true freedom, liberty of intellect and liberty of soul, a soul in the state of grace, a friend of God—that is Liberty—that is Freedom.

KLINCK BUILDING FIRE, NEW LONDON, MAY MEAN TOTAL DAMAGE OF $10,000

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 13—The New London fire department had another serious blaze to cope with today when the Klinck building, corner of State and Bank street, the home of the United Cigar company and the United Drug company, was attacked by flames of unknown origin, but believed to have started from a defective flue. The fire was a most stubborn one for volumes of smoke interferred greatly with the firemen combatting it and a large quantity of water was emptied into the cellar of the building, where the fire originated and where it was confined, before the blaze was extinguished. The loss will amount to a large sum for much stock was destroyed or damaged, while the building itself also suffered damage. Just what the amount of damage to the stock will be has not been estimated, but it is believed that it will reach several thousands of dollars because of the large amount of cigars, cigarettes and tobacco, to say nothing of the premiums stored there, while much of the stock of the drug company was also destroyed, either by fire or water. It is believed, however that $10,000 will fully cover the loss.

The fire was discovered about 6:30 o'clock when police officers standing on the opposite corner of the building observed clouds of smoke issuing from the cellar. An alarm was sent in from Box 23, corner of State and North Bank streets. Deputy Chief Calvin Edmunds and the Konomoc aerial truck, the Nameaug Engine company and the Thomas and Northwest Hose companies responded. When the firemen reached the burning building, a three story brick structure, smoke was pouring into the street in clouds, while the main store was rapidly filling with the dense smoke. Entrance to the cellar was quickly gained and there a vigorous blaze was in progress, well to the rear of the cellar. The smoke was so dense that firemen could not enter except by wearing masks. With lines of hose being stretched from a hydrant in front of the building and from another at State and North Bank streets, the nozzlemen groped through the cellar and played streams on the burning mass, much of which was boxes, excelsior and the like inflammable material. The great quantity of tobacco stored there caused the density of the smoke, which was black and resembled that which results from soft coal burning. Tons of water were emptied upon the flames and after an hour of the hardest kind of work the blaze was extinguished without making its way to the main store, although the interior of the store and its stock was coated with soot.

With the subduing of the fire an investigation revealed that the blaze started in the stock room of the drug company, which part of the cellar is located close to the furnace. Whether the fire originated from a defective flue or the overheating of the furnace, is not definitely known, but it is believed that the imperfect flue was the cause for it is known that considerable difficulty has been experienced this winter in keeping the flue in proper working order. The amount of water emptied into the cellar was so great that an electric pumper was brought into service and through the greater part of the day was pumping water into the street. Firemen were continued on duty in the building so that in the event of the fire breaking out afresh it would be discovered at once. The building is owned by the estate of Charles H. Klinck and is leased to the cigar and drug company, but only the main floor, that which is occupied by the two stores is tenanted, the upper floors not having been occupied since they were vacated by the former Canton restaurant over a year ago.

L. D. Manierre, R. F. D. No. 1, Groton, was in the police court today charged with reckless driving and was fined $25 and costs. Manierre was driving his automobile on Douglass street Sunday night and in attempting to turn the car around, backed it upon the sidewalk. Frank Wilson, who was standing near the corner of Main street, was struck and knocked down, sustaining severe bumps and bruises, which were treated at the office of a physician.

Lloyd Kearfoot, United States Submarine Base, was charged with refusing to pay a restaurant bill and the theft of a quantity of canned goods. The charge was nolled. Kearfoot went to the restaurant of Samuel Fern, State street, Friday night and after ordering a meal that cost $1.50, refused to pay. He was also detected in the act of carrying away a quantity of canned foods by John Schwarts, a waiter, who notified Patrolman Albert Iverson. Kearfoot's arrest followed. In the police court Saturday, the case was continued to today.

Two cases of breach of the peace were disposed of, one by suspension of judgment and the other by continuance when on the latter date final disposition will be made. Hugh Shannon, 18, of 98 Connecticut avenue, employed at the Thames club, was the lucky young man in being given a suspension of judgment. He engaged in a quarrel Saturday night with William Hendel and the latter caused Shannon's arrest. In the other case, Bronie Stamion, 324 Jefferson avenue, will again be presented in court the 20th inst., for a continuance to that date was ordered. Stamion was arrested early Sunday morning at his residence, when the police were summoned there by his wife.

Eight cases of intoxication were disposed of, all receiving jail sentences or fines, which carried an execution of judgment, two of them for a year, while one case was discharged. Those receiving suspended jail sentences have been presented in court frequently the past few months.

Carl Brooks of New Haven, stockholder of the former Robertson paper mill at Quaker Hill, who suffered the amputation of a part of his right arm two weeks ago at Lawrence Memorial hospital after that member had been crushed in a paper-making machine with which Brooks was experimenting, was discharged at the hospital today and returned to his home. Other patients discharged today and Sunday were Miss Myrtle Miner, Niantic; Mrs. William Allen, 409 Ocean avenue; Robert Burnett, 471 Ocean avenue; William Regan, 21 Linden street; Stephen Harris, Quaker Hill; Denton Brown, United States Coast Guard, and Mrs. Arthur Everard and infant daughter of Groton.

The funeral of Georgs C. Bolton, of Waterford, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at 12 Ocean avenue, the service being conducted by Rev. Charles E. Spaulding, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church. The bearers were Thomas P. Bindloss, Joseph J. Green, Nelson Avery and George C. Raines. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

The funeral services for Daniel M. Foley, who died Saturday at Odd Fellows' home, Groton, were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home. The services were conducted by Rev. George R. Atha, pastor of Groton Heights Baptist church. Burial was in the home cemetery.

Francis P., four-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Geagione, 116 Bilnman street, died this morning after having been a patient at the Mitchell ward of Lawrence Memorial hospital but a few days for diphtheria. The death is the first from this contagious malady to occur in several weeks.

The police again Sunday night discovered entrances to places of business unsafe because of their not having been locked by proprietors or employes. In each instance the officer was able to secure the door.

COM. FRANK HARTLEY COMING TO INSPECT HARBOR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 13.—In a furtherance of the movement to obtain for New London the terminus of the proposed four-day line of the trans-Atlantic corporation between this country and Europe, a group of New London citizens has arranged a banquet to Commodore Frank Hartley, of the Trans-Atlantic corporation and former master of the giant ocean liner Leviathan. He will come to New London Thursday next and inspect the harbor and its approaches together with the state pier. The banquet will be served at the Hotel Mohican and at noon when members of the chamber of commerce, Lions, Rotarians and Groton and Niantic business men will be present. Commodore Hartley will address the meeting and it is among the possibilities that Governor Trumbull, who is at present in Washington for the purpose of securing the terminus for New London, will be in attendance. If he can get away from his appointments at Washington the state's chief executive will be here. The visit of Commodore Hartley to New London is for the sole purpose of seeing for himself the exact advantages New London possesses for the possible location of the terminal at this port. The New Londoners interested in the proposed line believe that they can point out to Commodore Hartley the advantages to be obtained by locating the terminus at New London and which is the only part that is being considered for such purpose that its facilities can assure the trip between the two continents being made by the liners in four days. However, Commodore Hartley will visit other places seeking the terminal in New England, including Providence and Boston.

Mrs. Mary Octavia Baskin, 72, widow of James W. Baskin, died Sunday at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. George F. Reed, 43 Washington street, death ending a lingering illness due to hardening of the arteries. Mrs. Baskin, who had resided with her daughter for three years was born in Wilmington, N. C., where three sisters survive her.

POST OFFICE INSPECTOR TAKES UP BLACKMAIL CASE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 13.—Post Office Inspector James Mulvey was in New London Sunday in conference with Detective Sergeants John Cavanaugh and Nelson Smith. He came in connection with the receipt by Philip Butleman, Bank street merchant, of two blackmail letters in which demands were made of Butleman to deposit $100 in an outhouse on the Graham S. Hislop property, Williams street. Inspector Mulvey was called into the case after the police had abandoned their work in attempting to apprehend the blackmailer because of lack of evidence. The letters Butleman received, together with the samples of hand writing of the suspect, have been turned over to Inspector Mulvey, together with all the information Sergeants Smith and Cavanaugh obtained. One of the most peculiar features connected with the demands upon Butleman, who after being threatened with death, with threats of the death of his wife and children and the destruction of his business, is that the blackmailer did not go to the outhouse where $10 in marked bills of $1 denomination had been placed. The police kept a constant watch for the blackmailer to go to the outhouse for 10 days after Butleman received his last letter, but no one attempted to obtain it.

About 150 invitations have been sent out for the banquet, in celebration of the 25th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gentilella of 848 Bank street, to be served in the Mohican hotel ballroom Wednesday night at 8 o'clock. Guests will be present from New York, Boston, Brooklyn, Bayonne and this city. Joseph William Russo and his orchestra will furnish music.

Lincoln's birthday was not specially observed in New London as is usually the case, for none of the stores closed. Schools suspended sessions at noon and, of course, the banking institutions and municipal building were closed to business. Yesterday flags were displayed on but a few streets and today outside of a small scattering of the Stars and Stripes on State, Bank and Main streets, there were but few banners in the national colors flown to the breeze.

Mrs. Max Goldstein of 26 Montauk avenue; Mrs. Herman Dembroff, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Mrs. Ralph Harris and infant son, 463 Bank street; Mrs. Albert Frachette, Groton; Mrs. Matilda Goldstein, 56 Jefferson avenue, and Mrs. Oliver Brooks and infant daughter, Waterford, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Clarence Edward King of this city and Miss Theresa Perrino, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Perrino, Washington avenue, Niantic, will be married at the chapel of St. Anthony's church, Niantic, Thursday morning at 9 o'clock.

Minor Bruce, Jr., United States Coast Guard, and Mrs. Mary E. Boston, this city, were married at the parsonage of the Methodist Episcopal church Saturday night by Rev. Charles E. Spaulding.

The Connecticut Power company's poles in various parts of the city that have become decayed through weather conditions or are becoming such as to make them dangerous because of the weight of wires or transformers attached to them, are being replaced with new ones. Workmen are performing the task daily of installing the new poles and the work will occupy many weeks before all of the decayed poles have been removed and new ones set in their places.

Three cases of intoxication are all that await the session of the police court tomorrow, for that number of prisoners comprised the occupants of cells. One drunk was arrested on North Bank street by Patrolmen William Corcoran, Henry Sylvia and Arthur Feeley. Another was arrested on Atlantic street by Sergeant Samuel Hick and the third was arrested on Main street, corner of Douglass street, by Patrolman Elwood Bailey.

The annual banquet of Seaside council, Knights of Columbus, was held in the rooms of the organization, Huntington street, this evening and was attended by a representative number of members and several guests. A turkey dinner was served. The exercises following proved interesting, all the speakers being in a happy vein and dealing with topics of concern to the members of the organization.

Two youths, minors, were in Groton juvenile court today, both being charged with the theft of accessories from automobiles that were parked in the highway. One of the boys was placed on probation for a year and during that time he will be compelled to make designated reports to Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield. The other boy was given to the charge of the Child Welfare bureau, awaiting the disposition of his case. Both boys were arrested by State Police Officer Frank Webber after numerous complaints had been made that equipment of autos had been stolen.

Mrs. Louis King and daughter, Mary, of Central Village, are being entertained by Mrs. H. J. Archer, 11 Thompson court.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Conn. College Concert.

"To come into personal touch with Percy Grainger, to hear him in recital or with orchestra, is to be conscious of an entirely new series of experiences. Personally you feel here is a particular kind of mentality, one which is care-free, untrammeled; of most gentle spirit, yet bold and heaven-storming when bent on carrying out a purpose. There is no flagging of energy, no amount of langour, all is vital and alive. To hear him deliver the opening of the Tschaikowsky B minor concerto is the most exciting experience; something that carries you off your feet like a whirlwind. Grainger appears in New London, Monday, Feb. 20.

Palace Theatre

Flirting with a whole university was Norma Shearer's interesting task for several weeks, during the filming of "The Student Prince," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's massive super production which will be shown at the Palace theatre for the last time today.

The famous play, directed by Ernest Lubitsch, and with Ramon Novarro in the role of Karl Heinrich, the character immortalized on the stage by Richard Mansfield, features Miss Shearer in the role of Kathie, the charmer of the student's inn, with whom the young prince falls in love.

In this role she had nearly a thousand students of Heidelberg, enacted by students from the University of Southern California, Stanford, and other colleges, to flirt with in the student festival scenes, among the most spectacular and picturesque in the big production.

The new picture is a massive filmization of the famous story which inspired the stage play and its recent revival as "The Student Prince."

On Wednesday a double feature program will be presented. "The Wilful Youth" with Kenneth Harlan and Edna Murphy in a stirring tale of the big wonder region of California. The co-feature "Galloping Thunder" with Bob Custer is a western crammed with pulsating drama and packed with intense thrills.

Wednesday night is gift night and twenty-five dollars in gold and ten valuable presents will be given away free.

Strand Theatre

The vivid blizzard scene in the Tiffany production "Snowbound," showing for the last time tonight at the Strand, was photographed in the mountains of northern California. The story is one of many complications that beset the path of a boy and girl who to get an inheritance, embroil themselves into very embarrassing situations and it is with the unraveling of these incidents that the excruciating funny situations develop. The scenes take place in an isolated Adirondack Lodge during the height of a blizzard and when the several couples who were involved in the complications are all brought to-gether under teh same roof, the comedy gains in momentum.

The beautiful Betty Blythe plays the part of the siren who is anxious to become the wife of the young heir, played by Bobby Agnew, who tries hard to rid himself from the clutches of the vamp. Lillian Rich is the sweet ingenue and the other roles are ably portrayed by Geo. Fawcett as the Uncle, Guinn Williams as the motorcycle cop, Martha Mattox as the Aunt, Pat Harmon as the automobile salesman and Wm. Carroll as the Judge.

"Heavy Fullbacks" is a comedy played by a cast of fat men.

"Fighting Hearts" is the last of the series stories.

Houston, Texas, will be the meeting place today of the annual convention of the International Association of Painters and Decorators.

PARABLE OF THE SOWER FATHER REILLY'S THEME

Yesterday was Sexigesima Sunday, the gospel read in every mass throughout the world being the parable of the sower, Luke 8, 4-15. Preaching at the third mass of the day in St. Patrick's church Rev. John J. Reilly commented on the fact that Christ, with His divine knowledge of all things, should have grouped, through this similitude, the classes of mankind as good, bad and indifferent. This classifying, cataloging, grouping of men in the mind of Christ the preacher held significant. Were socialists to have their way and reduce all men to a level, within twenty-five years they would be found again in classes and kinds, for the reason that man is an animal that will not rest; it is in the nature of some to build up and of others to tear down and caste and social strata will always result from the differences among people.

But why there must be groups in adherence to or rejecting Christ was what the preacher wondered at. The personality of Christ would seem to be all-compelling; He has made the greatest impression on the world—yet some remain indifferent to Him. Even to know Christ a little should draw mankind to His service, while constant and careful study of Him cannot fail to have the effect of deepening love and reverence for Him. In His grouping of mankind Christ must love the good because they are good, for the bad even He must have a yearning to regenerate them to goodness—but the indifferent renew the pains of the heart of Christ on Calvary. Eloquently the speaker scored those Catholics who are neither hot nor cold. Grouping his hearers, he adjured those who felt that they might have some element of goodness to endeavor to deepen that quality, the bad he asked to make the effort to come back to Christ, but the indifferent, those Catholics who knowing their obligation ignore it—for them the preacher had but one adjective—impossible!

Rev. Father Reilly read the low mass and in giving holy communion to a very large number of penitents had the assistance of the rector, Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May who returned Friday from his vacation in the South. Organist Henry J. LaFontaine directed the Junior choir in singing among other hymns the parish "Hymn to St. Patrick," with its appealing melody and inspiring words, grown familiar to the congregations since the sixteenth anniversary of the consecration of the church September 24th, last, when 4,000 cards bearing the three stanzas were supplied for distribution at the four masses with the compliments of The Norwich Morning Bulletin.

POETRY

My Valentine.

A pot of golden daffodils,
All fragrant, fresh and sweet,
To tell the news, that o'er the hills
With dainty, tripping feet,
Spring comes to drive from us away
The gloom of this sad winter day.

A pot of golden daffodils;
Though I may shrewdly guess
The sender's name who kindly fills
My heart with happiness;
The only message was this line
Of writing: "For a Valentine."

A pot of golden daffodils;
It tells a story long
Of loving thought that some heart thrills
For me; I may be wrong
About the sender's name, but know
The story of the thought is so.

A pot of golden daffodils;
For them most gratefully
I thanks return; the sender wills
Anonymous to be;
Yet may they reach—these thanks of mine—
The sender of my Valentine.

Calendars.

Appealing study of pretty girl,
Or a forest scene where dark woods call;
An ocean cliff where eddies whirl,
Or a village church with its spire tall;
An antique coach with Lady and Earl,
Or a modern auto, chauffeur and all;
These are the pictures we oft unfurl
When we hang the calendar on the wall.

But always, below the picture gay,
Is the record of Time, that heartless thief;
The hours illusively slip away,
Some filled with joy and others with grief;
Some filled with work and some given to play;
Some too lengthy, others too brief;
Twenty-four hours in every day
Are pilfered by Time for his golden sheaf.

Whether the picture be laughing lass
Or village church, or rock-clad shore;
Whether of cattle, knee-deep in grass
Or of some god in mystical lore;
The hours and the days and the weeks all pass
In brave array through Eternity's door;
Sands sifting gently in slender glass;
Time's accomplice keeps perfect score!
—Alice McGouldrick in Boston Globe.

The economic value of the tourist and the effect of the itinerant population upon communities are being studied by the United States chamber of commerce through a survey now under way. Many communities have spent large amounts for such "tourist bait" as automobile camps, parks and roads, but while it is believed they make a profit, it never has been determined.

Small individual store owners manufacturing for their own trade make up a large proportion of the Belgian glove industry, which has its center in Brussels. Of sixty glove factories in that city only eight are in a position to fill large orders, the others being managed by storekeepers. Most of the gloves exported, many of which are hand-made, are bought by the United States and England.

One Japanese factory has broken away from the custom which required that girl factory workers remain within the confines of the plant, or its dormitories, except on occasional holidays. In the past these restrictions on the liberty of the operatives were enforced to prevent their going to other shops or to safeguard the girls themselves. Efforts to extend this new freedom to girls in other factories now are being made.

SAYS NORWICH FACES NECESSITY OF MAKING RE-VALUATION OF PROPERTY

It seems that something drastic is likely to be done in Norwich unless Norwich, itself, does something about property revaluation before 1929, said H. D. Larrabee, president of the Norwich chamber of commerce, in a talk on taxation which he gave Monday evening at the monthly meeting of the Brotherhood of the United Congregational church. A. O. Lamb, an expert on methods of appraisals, who was to have addressed the meeting, was unable to be present, owing to a conflict in appointments.

The usual supper preceeded the meeting and was served at 6:30 o'clock under the direction of Clarence A. Spear, chairman of the February supper committee. The menu was as follows:

Fruit Cocktail
Roast Pork — Gravy
Mashed Potatoes — Turnip
Pie — Coffee

At the conclusion of the menu President Harold T. Robbins called the meeting to order. He announced that the new curtain for the home-time movie meetings had arrived and been installed. President Robbins introduced President Larrabee as the speaker. Mr. Larrabee gave a very enlightening talk on the tax situation in Norwich as it is today. The tax matter has been in the minds of the Norwich people quite a while he said. The chamber of commerce has been connected with it for four or five years. It is a chamber of commerce matter if it affects the welfare of the community. Mr. Larrabee told of the several committees appointed by the chamber of commerce during the past few years and of what the committees have accomplished. He spoke of the tax map as one of the results of the committee's activities and said that the map is practically completed with the exception of a few outlying districts in the town.

"In 1925 a committee of the chamber expanded into a citizens' committee," he continued. "This committee held a number of meetings and as the result of those meetings they went to a town meeting and the assessors were instructed to revalue the property in the town. Their pay was increased and they were authorized to secure another clerk. The assessors felt that the job was of such magnitude that it should be done by outside professional help.

"In two and a half years the assessors have placed valuations against five out of 104 tax maps. At that rate it would take years to complete a revaluation. The assessors still feel that outside professional help should be secured to assist in the work.

"The trouble is," Mr. Larrabee said, "that there is not an equalization of taxes. We know some property is not in the list for what it ought to be. A new house is assessed for perhaps 75 per cent of its value. Somebody else who has an old house is in the list for a great deal less than 75 per cent. It is just plain absolutely unfair.

"The law requires a reassessment every ten years. I understand that the last revaluation in Norwich was made in 1860. The law says the assessors shall do the work of revaluation. The assessors are elected to office by the goodwill of the voters and are not likely to be enthusiastic about assuming the entire responsibility of adjustment in values.

"Then there is the question as to whether they can do the work of revaluation. They say they can't, and they probably know better than anybody else. It is probable that the state tax commissioner has authority to do something more or less drastic in regard to a re-valuation in Norwich. It seems that something drastic is likely to be done in Norwich, unless Norwich does something about a revaluation before 1929.

"The chamber of commerce members approve of hiring outside help to do the work as indicated by the report made Monday to the directors. There will be criticisms of the chamber of commerce if it takes any action on this matter and there will be criticism if it doesn't act.

"There doesn't seem to be much argument as to whether there should be revaluation or not. The argument is as to who is going to make it. I don't believe you can find any ten men in Norwich who can go out and place fair values on such diversified properties as we have in Norwich and back them up. It looks like a job that requires expert help. The indications are that something is going to be done and that it will cost about $22,000. Do we want to go out and appropriate the necessary $22,000 and hire somebody to do the work or are we going to wait until somebody else hires somebody to do the work at a cost greater than $22,000. Norwich will have to foot the bill anyway."

Mr. Larrabee answered a number of questions in regard to the taxation problem. He was given a rising vote of thanks by the Brotherhood members. The meeting adjourned shortly before 8 o'clock.

The supper committee for March comprises R. H. Montgomery, Archibald Mitchell, 4th, W. S. Williams, Philip Roberts, Charles T. Bard, Charles Coit, E. W. Higgins, H. W. Lanz.

LEVIATHAN'S FORMER CAPTAIN TO INSPECT DOCK SITES

Herbert Hartley, former commander of the Leviathan, will go to Montauk Point, L. I., on Wednesday to look over Fort Pond bay, with a view to its use for docking of the proposed four-day liners sponsored by the American Brown-Boveri company, it has been announced in New York.

The project calls for fast boat trains to rush passengers from Montauk to New York, thus saving endless delays in New York harbor, especially in fog, when small shipping blocks the way for passenger vessels. It also calls for an airplane landing field at Montauk which would be the base for pony express planes skipping from one four-day ship to the next across the Atlantic in 85 hours.

Captain Hartley will consider the Montauk port project from the point of view of a ship's navigator. On account of his experience in handling the largest ship in the world, it is expected that Lawrence R. Wilder and the other backers of the four-day ship project will be largely influenced by what he says on the practicability of Fort Pond bay as a terminal for fast vessels.

New London, which is competing with Montauk to get the four-day liners, will send a boat over to Montauk to pick up Captain Hartford and show him the advantages of New London, after he has seen Montauk. From New London Captain Hartley will go to Providence to look over Narragansett bay as a possible docking place for the vessels.

GET $287.50 JUDGMENT FOR DAMAGE TO AUTOMOBILE

Judgement for George C. Maynard of Bozrah for $287.50 in his suit against Pete Sablowski of this city was given by Judge C. B. Waller in the common pleas court here Monday morning after hearing trial of Maynard's suit for damage to his automobile and loss of use of the car for ten days.

Maynard, who is a farmer in Bozrah, testified that his Dodge sedan sustained damage, which it cost $62.40 to repair, when it was struck on Dec. 4, 1926 at Washington square by a machine belonging to Sablowski. Arthur H. Cook, foreman at a Norwich garage, testified to the amount of damage and the repairs required, and Maynard also told the court that he would have to get a new radiator and give the car a coat of paint. He also testified that because of the damage to his machine he had to transport his children to and from school for ten days with a horse drawn vehicle, which deprived him of the earnings of his team of horses which were worth $8 per day.

There was no defense testimony offered. Attorney C. V. James appeared for the plaintiff and Attorney John T. Barry for the defendant.

NORWICH TOWN HOME CHAPTER PREPARES FOR 31ST ANNIVERSARY

The leader, Mrs. William E. Manning, presided at the February meeting of Home chapter of the King's Daughters, held Monday afternoon at the Johnson Home, with a good attendance. After Scripture reading and prayer, the reports of the secretary and treasurer were read and approved, as were other reports. Continuing the lesson in the Study of Acts, those in charge were Mrs. Roswell J. P. Brown and Mrs. Charles Burke. For the March lesson, Mrs. David M. Dean and Mrs. John Olsen will have charge.

Several letters of acknowledgement were read for flowers sent to shut-ins by Home chapter, also for floral tributes sent to the funeral of Mrs. Susan Kampf, and that of Mrs. Clarice Ayer, both beloved members. Announcement was made of the next meeting of Home chapter sewing society, to be held at the home of Mrs. Edward Briggs, corner of Pearl and Ann streets, Wednesday, February 15.

Concerning the International Convention of King's Daughters, from June 13 to the 18th, inclusive, at Ottawa, Ontario, the leader explained many points of interest, as to special rates for traveling, hotel prices, etc.

A special program for the 31st anniversary of Home chapter, which falls due in March, is being prepared, to be carried out at the next meeting, at which time a silver collection will be taken.

While Mrs. Manning read a paper entitled "Home Sweet Home," Mrs. John Olsen accompanied her at the piano, playing softly, Home Sweet Home, with variations.

The meeting closed with all repeating Home Chapter Motto in unison. A social hour followed, when Mrs. Alvery-Jarvis Baker and assistants served cake and coffee. This was Mrs. Baker's first time to act as chairman of the entertainment committee, to which she was elected at the January meeting of the chapter.

Rev. Charles E. Reeves conducted the Sunday morning worship at the First Congregational church. His sermon theme was "The Service of Humble People." The text chosen was II Kings 5:2. And the Syrians had gone out by companies, and had brought away captive out of the land of Israel a little maid; and she waited on Naaman's wife.

The Junior Christian Endeavor society of the Congregational church held its first business session at its meeting Sunday afternoon, with the president, Bruce Ladd, in charge. The leaders of the devotional part of the meeting were Esther O'Mara and Ethel Pierce. "How to Become Great" was the topic. Of interest to those present was the Lincoln and Washington debate — "Which Was the Greater Man in His Service to the Country?"

I am glad to give this unsolicited testimony so that others may try Rabalm and be benefited."

STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS

Swift & Company's Cattle Dollar

A thousand pound beef steer will yield on an average of 550 pounds of beef and 150 pounds of hide and other finished by-products.

Swift & Company, at its various packing plants, buys thousands of cattle each week, transforms them into beef and by-products, sells the beef to retail dealers and the by-products to various kinds of manufacturers to be worked up into forms which the consumer desires.

From every dollar which Swift & Company received in 1927 from sales of beef and by-products an average of 85 cents was paid to the producer of live stock for his animal; 14 cents was required to pay manufacturing, freight and selling costs, and one cent remained as earnings. Out of his 85 cents the farmer has to pay the cost of the animal and the expense of feeding and marketing before he makes any profit.

The story of beef is an interesting one. Something of this, as well as many other details of the packing industry, are told in the new Swift & Company Year Book for 1928.

A copy is yours free, for the asking. Just fill out the coupon below and mail.

CHARGE SENATE COMMITTEE WITH PLAYING POLITICS

Commerce Committee Votes to Call Secretary Hoover Before It to Testify Relative to the Administration's Plan of Flood Control—Senator Willis of Ohio, Hoover's Opponent in the Presidential Primaries in Ohio, Disclaims Any Political Motives in the Call—Willis Has Volunteered to Withdraw From the Committee Room When Hoover Appears.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4—(AP)—In the face of a charge of playing politics, the senate commerce committee today voted, 7 to 6, to call Secretary Hoover before it to testify relative to the administration's plan of flood control.

The decision was reached after a two hour battle behind closed doors, in which the votes of two republicans, Johnson of California and Willis of Ohio, are understood to have settled the issue against the other republicans opposing the calling of Mr. Hoover.

Senator Stephens of Mississippi, one of the two democrats of the committee who voted against the motion of Senator Hawes, democrat, Missouri, to call the commerce secretary, complained of possible delay this action might cause in drafting a flood control bill and charged that "it looks like politics to me." Senator Ransdell, democrat, Louisiana, also voted against the motion.

Senator Willis, who is battling Hoover in the republican presidential primaries in Ohio, first asked for the appearance of Hoover several weeks ago when intimations were made in the committee that the commerce secretary who was the personal representative of President Coolidge in the flood district, differed with the administration program as submitted by Major General Jadwin, chief of army engineers.

Disclaiming, however, any political motives, Senator Willis insisted that it was the duty of the committee to obtain the views of the secretary. He volunteered to withdraw from the committee room when Mr. Hoover appeared, if his presence would cause any embarrassment to his political enemy.

Senator Johnson said that he supported the Hawes motion because he is of the opinion that Secretary Hoover should be given an opportunity to express his views.

HOOVER FORCES IN OHIO ARE GAINING STRENGTH

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Feb. 14—(AP)—The fight between Senator Frank B. Willis and Secretary Herbert Hoover for Ohio's support in their presidential aspirations was intensified today by the alignment of National Committeeman Maurice Maschke of Cleveland with the Hoover forces.

This new threat at Senator Willis' prestige in his home state was promptly met by his campaign manager, Carmi A. Thompson, with the announcement that a full contingent of Willis delegates will be entered at the April primary. Thad H. Brown, manager of the Hoover campaign, previously had announced that a full slate of Hoover delegates would be put into the field.

Decision of both factions to enter full slates of delegates presages a contest for every inch of ground and one of the most spirited political fights waged in the state for years. Alignment of many of the state leaders with Mr. Hoover also bears out Senator Willis' declaration that it will be no "kid glove or powder puff affair."

Mr. Maschke said he personally believed the commerce secretary's nomination "would most likely carry the party to victory in Ohio next fall."

Maschke made it plain however, that he was not speaking for the state organization which has endorsed Senator Willis' candidacy. He is the first national committeeman to express his views on the Hoover-Willis fight.

Mr. Thompson said he was "not surprised but regretted" that Maschke had "seen fit to join forces in support of Secretary Hoover." He said Mr. Maschke "will learn as the campaign progresses that the real sentiment in Ohio is against Hoover and for Senator Willis."

Mr. Thompson also took occasion to deny reports from Washington, that in conference there last week with Congressman Burton, he had offered to divide the Ohio delegation with Mr. Hoover, giving him 22 votes of the total delegation of 51. He said Mr. Burton knew no such offer ever had been made and he felt sure Burton would repudiate it if it were brought to his attention.

SECRETARY HOOVER WILL BE GLAD TO APPEAR

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Feb. 14—(AP)—Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover "will be glad to appear before the senate commerce committee," and present his views on the administration flood control plan, he said here today. Mr. Hoover paused briefly here on his way to Key West for a short holiday.

The commerce secretary declined further comment on the committee's announcement that he would be called before it, except to say that it was "the duty of any cabinet officer, called before the committee, to give the committee all the assistance possible."

PLAYWRIGHT GIBSON HELD BY PROVINCIAL POLICE

VANCOUVER, B. C., Feb. 14—(AP)—Pending further instructions from Deputy Attorney General W. D. Carter, M. C., at Victoria, provincial police continued today to hold William Preston Gibson, playwright, of Washington, D. C., who was arrested here yesterday while en route from Shanghai to Boston.

Dispatches from Shanghai Saturday said Gibson was accused there of having defrauded Shanghai merchants out of $7,000 by issuing worthless checks. United States authorities requested Gibson's detention on his arrival here and Col. J. H. McMullin, superintendent of the provincial police, said the British consul general in Shanghai cabled the attorney general for British Columbia to have Gibson returned to Shanghai.

"The whole affair is ridiculous," Mrs. Gibson said before leaving for Boston. "The charges against my husband are absolutely false. Beyond that I can say nothing. You will have to see my husband."

Authorities said Gibson would be held until a warrant is received. The attorney general's department said particulars of the charge would be available February 27, indicating that information is being forwarded from Shanghai by mail.

Walter Owen, assistant superintendent of provincial police, said Gibson would be permitted to be at liberty while accompanied by a police constable.

EARL ASQUITH IS SLOWLY BUT GRADUALLY SINKING

SUTTON COURTENAY, England, Feb. 14—(AP)—Those who are gathered around the bedside of the Earl of Oxford and Asquith are waiting for the going out of his life. He did not rally today, and has recognized none of his family since yesterday afternoon. The latest reports from the attending physicians say that he is slowly but gradually sinking.

The man who was prime minister early in the world war lies in a comatose condition, surprising the members of his family and the doctors by the resistance of his constitution which had always been strong. His wife, the Countess of Oxford—known to all as Margot Asquith—has been greatly worn by her long watching; she leaves the sick room only to snatch a hurried meal or get a breath of fresh air.

Twice or thrice today the family had a glimmer of hope, when the patient seemed to show signs of rallying, but each time the hope was disappointed. The physicians, who have taken every measure possible, realize that the condition of their patient is hopeless.

Lord Oxford is so weak that it has been impossible to administer nourishment in any form since yesterday.

FIGHT FOLLOWED SARCASTIC REMARK ABOUT DERBY HAT

BRIDGEPORT, Feb. 14—(AP)—A sarcastic remark about a derby hat is blamed for a fight early today which may result in one of the participants being disfigured for life, the man's nose having been cut almost completely off his face when he crashed through a plate glass window in the front of a store on Stratford avenue.

James Kiley, 27, is the man whose nose suffered injury. Stanley Miller, 30, is held in bond of $1,000 as Kiley's assailant.

TO INVESTIGATE DEATH OF COUPLE IN NEW BEDFORD

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Feb. 14—(AP)—The bodies of Mrs. Helen Kenyon, 23, proprietress of beauty parlors in both this city and Fall River, and Charles Simone, 38, of 73 Wainwright street, Providence, a member of the firm of A. Simone & Sons company, of that city, were found in an apartment in the Cobb block at Lunds corner early this evening under circumstances that have started a rigid investigation both by the police and medical examiners.

Mrs. Kenyon, a beautiful blonde, was found in a bedroom partitioned off from an office used by Simone as a sort of a shower room for barber and beauty parlor or supplies. She was lying on a bed clothed only in a bath robe.

Simone was on a couch in the outer office. The woman had been dead but a short time when they were found but medical authorities fixed the death of the man at several hours before.

On a table were several bottles of wine. These were taken by the police for an analysis at the request of Medical Examiner D. P. O'Brien and his assistant, Dr. Charles Shanks. An autopsy will be performed on the bodies tomorrow.

Mrs. Kenyon, the police said, had not been living with her husband for some time. The Providence man, who also maintained an apartment here, is believed to be married.

TESTIMONY AGAINST ALLEGED MURDERERS

SALEM, Mass., Feb. 14—(AP)—John A. Burnett, 18 year old witness who testified in superior court here today that he saw James Kamanis and George Metaxatos in the company of Hassan Abrams, of Peabody, the man they are charged with having murdered, on the night he disappeared remained unshaken during a gruelling cross examination this afternoon.

Burnett had testified that he saw Abrams talking with the two defendants in Kamanis variety store in Peabody on February 7, 1927. The body was found buried in the cellar of the store on March 26, 1927.

Inspector James F. Murphy, of the Peabody police described the unearthing of the body of city laborers. He said he did not see on the body a money belt Abrams was supposed to have worn.

Assistant Medical Examiner S. Chase Tucker of Peabody and Dr. George H. Burgess Magrath, of Boston described their post-mortem findings. Dr. Magrath wil continue his testimony tomorrow.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14—(AP)—Governor Trumbull of Connecticut, with Mrs. Trumbull and their daughter, Florence, came to the white house today to be overnight guests of President Coolidge with whom they have been close friends for a number of years.

They were greeted at the white house by the president alone since Mrs. Coolidge was still confined to her room with a cold. Before going to the white house Governor and Mrs. Trumbull have been the guests of Senator Bingham of Connecticut, and tonight they were among the guests invited to the dinner of Secretary Work for the president.

ELECTED GOVERNOR OF PENOBSCOT INDIANS

OLD TOWN, Me., Feb. 14—(AP)—Louis Nicolar, a member of the new party, was today elected governor of the Penobscot tribe of Indians, whose reservation is on an island in the river opposite this city. The election was to fill the vacancy created by the death on February 6 of Governor Newell Tomar.

Formerly the two factions of the tribe, designated as the old or Neptune party, and the new, or Sookbesin Swashain party, participated in every election. The rivalry at times resulted in noisy disturbances and fist fights and the state, as guardian of the tribe, instituted an arrangement whereby the old and new parties alternate in the privilege of choosing the governor, the candidates being selected from the party having its turn.

The new governor is an elderly man highly respected and noted for his industry. In the matter of speech he is said to be as sparing as President Coolidge. He is an expert canoe builder and paddle maker and works steadily in an Old Town factory.

Soon the election will be celebrated with a big festival, or inaugural ball, at which the Penobscot braves and squaws will appear in tribal costumes and reproduce the ancient dances and ceremonies of their ancestry, the lordly Tarratines.

LABOR TO CONTINUE NON-PARTISAN POLITICALLY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14—(AP)—A prediction that labor "will continue to follow a non-partisan political policy" was made tonight by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, in a radio address broadcast from Washington under the auspices of the National League of Women's Voters.

Discussing legislative proposals in which he said labor was interested particularly, Mr. Green renewed his appeal for enactment of a bill "which will afford labor relief from the writ of injunction."

He said also that "organized labor favors legislation for the protection of women and children in industry, legislation prohibiting the manufacture and sale of convict-made goods in competition with free labor, legislation which would provide for adequate compensation for government employes and adequate scientific retirement legislation which will be reasonably satisfactory to the workers employed by the federal government.

RESOLUTIONS FOR REPEAL OF THE 19TH AMENDMENT

NEW YORK, Feb. 14—(AP)—Resolutions advocating the repeal of the 18th amendment to the constitution of the United States, the Volstead act and all orders and resolutions for their enforcement were adopted tonight by the Association of the Bar of the City of New York at a closed meeting.

The resolutions, made public after the meeting by Charles H. Strong, executive secretary, proposed the delegation of prohibition problems to the individual states, on the grounds that federal legislation of this nature is in conflict with the bill of rights and "inconsistent with the spirit and purpose of the constitution of the United States."

Reference was made to resolutions adopted by the Law Association of Philadelphia a year ago "calling the attention of the bar associations of our country to the evils resulting from the 18th amendment and nation prohibition."

(The date for the opening of the diaries was given in these reports as 1940).

The will says: "I have written certain diaries in connection with the recent great war and I hereby authorize my trustees to publish the same and any other writings or papers which I may leave, and that at such time or times and on such terms and conditions as they in their uncontrolled discretion may think fit. And until such publication such diaries and other writings and papers shall remain in the custody of my wife."

LISBON, Ohio., Feb. 14—(AP)—Floyd E. Streitenberger, former policeman serving a life sentence in Ohio penitentiary, again will be used by the state in its second attempt to convict Seramus A. Lengel, former Canton police chief, of complicity in the Don R. Mellett murder.

Streitenberger heads the list of state witnesses upon whom subpoenas were served today after a jury of 10 men and two women had been selected.

Trial Judge William F. Lones dismissed the jurors tonight. They will convene tomorrow morning for a trip to the Melett home at Canton where the vice crusading editor was shot down by underworld assassins July 16, 1926.

TWO YOUTHS WERE KILLED WHEN TRUCK OVERTURNED

The bombings are reported to have provoked panics among the mountain population.

Lindbergh Thrills Home Town Folks

More Than 60,000 School Children and [illegible] Cheered Exhibition [illegible].

ST. LOUIS, [illegible] (AP)—More than 60,000 sch[illegible] and adults, filing th[illegible] ten city blocks, cheer[illegible]harles A. Lindbergh, who [illegible]7-minute flying exhibition [illegible] Mississippi river front this afternoon.

The famous aviator in his ocean-spanning "Spirit of St. Louis," in which he had just returned from Central and South America, acknowledged the shouts and flag-waving of the levee throng by low and sidewise flying until the crowd felt its acquaintance with him had been thoroughly established.

Then he circled East St. Louis and the downtown and residence sections the downtow nand residence sections starting point, Lambert-St. Louis field.

Colonel Lindbergh made three circuits of the area between the Eads and Municipal bridges, descending once to within 50 feet of water.

The crowd got its thrills from the nonchalant way in which he tipped his plane to one side, his usual manner of acknowledging a crowd's attentions, and from the way he stalled, holding his plane almost motionless against the west wind 30 or 40 seconds at a time.

For an hour before the colonel's appearance, the levee was in carnival trim. Fife and drum corps of a dozen schools kept up a racket, venders were everywhere and flags were in most of the mittened little hands. Policemen and 300 regular soldiers formed a guard to keep the children from falling or being pushed into the river.

On a visit to Lambert-St. Louis field this morning, Lindbergh shook hands with attaches, chatted with the hot dog vender and other friends of his air mail flying days and conferred with air mail managers about the special flight he is to make with the mail to Chicago and back, next Monday and Tuesday.

Much more mail than one flyer can carry is now assured and two of Lindbergh's buddies, Phil Love and Thomas P. Nelson, are to help him with the load. Lindbergh will carry all of the mail part of the way, however, as the flyers will change planes at Springfield and Peoria. If a fourth and fifth plane have to be put in service, he will fly them about the local field before the start.

More than 600 reservations have been made for the luncheon to be given in Lindbergh's honor tomorrow by the Chamber of Commerce and the air board.

MAYOR WALKER RECEIVED FRENCH GOOD WILL FLIERS

NEW YORK, Feb. 14—(AP)—Admiring crowds stood outside the city hall today to get a glimpse of the French good-will aviators, Joseph LeBrix and Dieudonne Costes, who were received by Mayor Walker in the aldermanic chamber.

Among the distinguished guests, on hand to greet the two aviators who flew to the United States from Paris by way of Africa and South America, were Maxime Mongendre, French consul general; and five prominent airmen—Commander Richard E. Byrd, Bert Acosta, Clarence Chamberlin, Charles A. Levine and Rene Fonck.

In welcoming the good will fliers to New York, Mayor Walker expressed regret that Costes and Lebrix were unable to bring with them "those other two great French heroes, Nungesser and Coli," adding "We waited patiently for them, and we still persist in waiting for them and refuse to give up hope. So do we welcome you the more today, because with you have come their spirits; because I am sure, wheresoever they are, they were cheering you on, and they were guiding you with an influence that now, if they are not to return, is greater than they would have had had they been here in the flesh."

M. Mongendre thanked the mayor for extending the welcome to two of his compatriots and then Captain Costes spoke, in French, for himself and his comrade.

ANTAGONISTIC FARMERS DELAYING LEGISLATION

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14—(AP)—With the prospect of favorable action on the McNary-Haugen bill by the senate agriculture committee soon after that measure is brought up there tomorrow, the even tenor which has marked recent farm relief hearings of the house agriculture committee was blasted today by charges that political machinations and antagonism between farmers organizations were delaying legislation.

Two members of the committee—Andresen, republican, Minnesota and Kincheloe, democrat, Kentucky, joined in assailing the American farm bureau federation and the national grange for not uniting behind a farm relief program. At the time, Louis J. Taber, master of the national grange, was testifying in behalf of the Ketcham export debenture plan; and he agreed that these farmers' organizations were partially to blame for the present deadlock because of their failure to get together.

ABOUT 200,000 PERSONS ARE OUT OF WORK IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Feb. 14—(AP)—Approximately 200,000 persons are out of work in New York, Director E. B. Patton, of the bureau of statistics of the state labor department said today, adding that the present winter is turning out to be the worst since 1894 so far as employment conditions are concerned.

Part of the excessive unemployment, he said, is one to the mild winter, which has interfered seriously with the manufacture and sale of heavy garments, and has not afforded the usual employment to snow shovelers. There has also been a falling off in manufacturing in general, he said.

Stalemate Confronts Havana Conference

Argentina and Salvador Have Already Created a Deadlock on Intervention.

HAVANA, Feb. 14—(AP)—Frank admission that problems confront the sixth Pan-American conference which are beyond its powers to settle was openly made today by some of the most influential delegates. Therefore, they contended, it was useless to continue indefinitely to discuss them.

All the delegates, with the exception of Argentina and Colombia voted to maintain the date fixed for the closing of the conference, February 20, although the committee on public international law is hardly half-way through its agenda. They took this stand when a suggestion was made before the committee by Jesus Yeppes, Colombia, that the conference be prolonged for a week beyond that date.

Opposition to prolongment of the conference was explained by the Brazilian and Peruvian delegates as being determined by the conviction that it was an "illusion" to hope for concrete results from debates on subjects where not the slightest suspicion of an agreement had been as yet displayed by the delegates. Although it was not mentioned, the delegates understood that the reference was to the discussions in the sub-committee on the definition of national independence, with the allied question of intervention of one state in the internal affairs of another.

What is considered an actual deadlock has already been reached on this question between Argentina and Salvador, which are insistent that all intervention, no matter of what nature, shall be prohibited, and the other countries, led by the United States, which favor a formula emphasizing respect for the rights of other nations as a prerequisite to the independence of any state.

Charles Evans Hughes, head of the American delegation, has arranged to leave Havana by steamer on February 22 for New York. The date for the departure of the other delegates from the United States has not yet been decided.

In the end it was determined that the conference should continue until next Monday, when questions, the consideration of which had not yet been completed would be referred to some future conference.

The delegates saw in this precedure the only way to prevent the disagreement regarding the intervention issue from emerging from the sub-committee, where it is now being studied behind closed doors, to the full committee, or even the plenary session of the conference, with scenes similar to those in the committee session when the matter of intervention was first brought up.

ARGUMENT TO RESTRICT INJUNCTION BY COURTS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14—(AP)—Carrying on the fight of organized labor for enactment of the Shipstead bill to restrict the injunction powers of the courts, Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, declared today at a senate hearing that the wage workers of the country "are subject to the moods and economic viewpoints of judges, who are responsible only to their conscience."

"Other groups of citizens," he told a judiciary subcommittee, "are unhampered in the employment of rights that are clearly defined in the constitution and statutory enactments."

Morrison contended that "this is an intolerable situation," which not only is unjust, but "weakens our governmental structure that must depend on the loyal support and faith by citizens that their rights will be protected, regardless of their station in life."

"We submit," he continued, "that present conditions exalt property at the cost of human rights and human values. We ask that property be protected, that it be given every right under the law. Property is entitled to this protection, but courts should not be so eager to protect property that they annul workers' rights that were inherent in man long before our government was established."

TESTIMONY AT TRIAL OF GOVERNOR JACKSON

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 14—(AP)—The story of the alleged effort to bribe Governor Warren T. McCray in 1923 to name James E. McDonald as Marion county (Indianapolis) prosecutor, was told the jury in the trial of Governor Ed Jackson here today. The indictment on which Governor Jackson was brought into court charges him with having had a part in the alleged bribery attempt.

Introduction of testimony followed a sensational flareup by D. C. Stephenson, former grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan, brought from prison where he is serving a life sentence for murder to be the state's first witness. He suddenly took a notion not to testify until he talked with attorneys. He will be given another chance tomorrow.

Facts relating to the alleged attempt by Jackson, George V. Coffin, Marion county republican chairman and others to bring about the McDonald appointment by using $10,000 as the bait and a promise of immunity from conviction on embezzlement charges then pending against McCray were told by Fred Robinson, Indianapolis. Robinson was MacCray's political campaign manager and later became state purchasing agent.

ACTORS' EQUITY TO TAKE UP CASE OF MISS ALDEN GAY

NEW YORK, Feb. 14—(AP)—The Actors' Equity association today took up the case of Miss Alden Gay, American actress prohibited by the British ministry of labor from appearing in a new play in London, by asking the American consul general in London to obtain an official ruling on British immigration policies as applied to actors.

Miss Gay had been prohibited from appearing in "Married Bachelors" in London on the ground that she is an alien admitted to England only on the condition that she would not appear professionally.

HOUSE VOTES $12,790,000 FOR PROHIBITION BUREAU

"Wet" Members Were Unsuccessful in Their Efforts to Restrict the Expenditure—The House Also Approved an Appropriation of $28,640,000 For the Coast Guard, a Part of Which is to Be Used to Break Up Rum Smuggling Activities—All Amendments Offered Were Defeated by Substantial Majorities.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14—(AP)—After a series of unsuccessful efforts by "wet" members to restrict prohibition enforcement, the house today approved its appropriations committee's recommendation of a $12,790,000 allotment for the prohibition bureau's activities, during the fiscal year beginning next July 1.

Approval, without change, was given also to an appropriation of $28,640,000 for the Coast Guard, part of it to be used in carrying on that service's warfare against rum runners.

Among the amendments rejected by the house was one by Representative Linthicum, democrat, Maryland, which sought to prevent use of prohibition bureau funds in supervising the withdrawal of industrial alcohol from warehouses. It was defeated, 157 to 39.

Representative LaGuardia, republican, New York, who assailed the diplomatic immunity which enables foreign diplomats to bring liquor into the United States, failed in two attempts to raise the amount for the prohibition bureau, once to $25,000,000 and again to $75,000,000. LaGuardia contends that prohibition cannot be enforced and has asked dry leaders whether they favored appropriating as much as $200,000,000 a year for enforcement activities.

During an hour's debate on his amendment, Linthicum, who is chairman of the unofficial house committee on the modification of the Volstead act, claimed that denatured alcohol was "poisoning American citiens" and constituted a menace to human life.

LaGuardia, despite his views on prohibition, joined with Representatives Cramton, republican, Michigan, and Black and Blanton, two Texas democrats, however, in upholding adulteration by the bureau as a proper method of enforcement.

Chairman Madden of the appropriations committee, who was in charge of the treasury supply bill in which the prohibition bureau and Coast Guard funds were included, also opposed the Linthicum amendment, characterizing it as a "subterfuge." He added that although he was a "wet" the prohibition law "is here and will be enforced regardless of what Maryland may think."

Cramton said that the amendment was not only being supported by Maryland but by Tammany and could be taken to show what law enforcement would be if Governor Smith were elected president. Blanton declared that the Tammany organization was purely local in character and never would be a national influence.

DROP IN PRICES AT NEW YORK RUBBER EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, Feb. 15—(AP)—Prices dropped to the lowest level in the history of the New York Rubber Exchange today when meagre support stem a wave of selling. December constem a wave of selling. December contracts closed nearly 4 cents a pound lower, September closed about 3 1-2 cents lower and July was down almost as much.

Selling pressure came upon the market from both domestic and foreign interests, all evidently influenced by a feeling of uncertainty regarding the immediate future and weakness of the London market.

Closing prices showed March, which had closed previously at 34.20 cents a pound, down to 31.40-31.60 cents; November, which had closed at 35.80 down to 32.30-32.50 cents, and December, which had closed at 36 cents, down to 32.80-32.50.

No word had been received by the naval authorities here from three men who put out in a small boat when the Mohave ran aground on the ledge.

SENATE DEBATES PUBLIC UTILITIES INVESTIGATION

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14—(AP)—For more than four hours today the tide of battle over the Walsh public utilities investigation resolution ebbed and flowed in the senate with its supporters still unwilling to fix a definite hour for a final test of strength.

Debate appeared to be rapidly drawing to an end, however, and leaders hoped to reach a vote early in tomorrow's session. This will come not on the Walsh resolution itself, but on the amendment of Senator George, democrat, Georgia, to have an inquiry conducted by the federal trade commission instead of by a special committee to be elected by the senate.

LEGAL BATTLE OPENS OVER NICKEL FARE IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Feb. 14—(AP)—The long threatened legal war over the nickel of millions of patrons of the New York transit system broke today, and the city came off victor in the first skirmish.

Five separate actions, four of them instituted in the courts, were started between Mayor Walker's administration, champions of the five cent fare, and the Interborough Rapid Transit company, seeking to collect seven cents for each ride on its 115 miles of tracks in four of the five boroughs of the city.

Out of the tangle the city emerged with three injunction orders forbidding, at least for a time, the abolition of the Interborough's jitney turnstiles in the subway catacombs and network of elevated lines. The injunctions were all obtained from Supreme Court Justice Glennon a few hours after the Interborough company had asked the federal court in a suit against the city for permission to make two pennies accompany every nickel that goes into new turnstiles already prepared for installation.

The battle affects the entire Interborough system, a company with a book value of $337,000,000, and a carrier of 1,174,000,000 passengers last year.

MEDICAL TESTIMONY IN BUCKLEY MURDER TRIAL

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 14—(AP)—Medical testimony was called in by the state today to refute the claim of Joseph P. Buckley, on trial for murder, that he killed Grace Mills of Waltham, his sweetheart, at her own request to end her suffering from self-inflicted wounds.

Dr. Thomas M. Gallagher, medical examiner for the seventh Middlesex district, who performed an autopsy on the girl's body, said that two bullets had passed through the body, one on the right side, traversing the heart, and the other on the left side. Either wound would have been fatal, the physician said. The bullet passing through the heart would have caused instant death, and the other immediate unconsciousness with death following very soon.

Dr. Gallagher testified that, in his opinion, Miss Mills would have been unable to speak after her first wound, and so would have been incapable of making the request alleged by Buckley.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 14—(AP)—A criminal career, starting with petty robberies after graduation from high school, brought William Edward Hickman into the shadow of the gallows today for the kidnaping and slaying of Marian Parker, Los Angeles school girl.

Tomorrow, the youth who graduated from Central High school in Kansas City in 1926 with a brilliant scholastic record, is scheduled to go to trial for another murder, the slaying of Coffy Thoma, druggist, in the state's effort to make doubly sure he will not escape the noose.

An appeal which counsel for Hickman have announced will be filed is expected to delay carrying out of the death sentence pronounced today. Attorneys said it might be six months before a decision is handed down by the state supreme court.

The proclamation is pursuant to a recommendation of Governor John H. Trumbull and a petition of A. C. Tyler camp, Spanish-American War Veterans. In part the proclamation reads: "On this day, 30 years ago, the battleship Maine was sunk in the harbor of Havana, plunging to destruction hundreds of brave men wearing the uniform of the American Navy and dedicating their lives to the defense of the American flag. Terrible as this disaster was, carrying as it did a shock throughout the country, as we look back to that event we see that great results have followed, all making for human liberty.

"And I trust that our entire community will pause to reflect on the event we are commemorating and the consequences which flowed from it, with a full measure of gratitude and appreciation for the sacrifice made by those who gave their lives on that fateful night.

"I urge the citizens of Willimantic to assist in commemorating the historical event by displaying the Flag of Our Country." Signed: Charles A. Gates, mayor.

CANTERBURY

Rev. T. Edward Davies who died at Westminster, Feb. 1, was born in Wales. At the age of 10 he came to America with his parents. After passing through the public schools he entered Whiteborough academy, Marietta college, Ohio. After his graduation he studied for the ministry at the Auburn Theological seminary and was ordained in 1860. During the war he served under the sanitary commission in Washington, D. C. After the war he went to Racine, Wis., as pastor in the Congregational church. Later he served in Mechanicsville, N. Y. In 1869 he came to Connecticut, where he has since labored. Twelve years ago he came as pastor to the Congregational church in Westminster. Several years ago the parsonage was destroyed by fire during the night and Rev. and Mrs. Davies barely escaped with their lives losing everything they possessed. Rev. Davis suffered a nervous attack at that time from which he never fully recovered. His devoted wife has cared for him, helping him in his work and making it possible that he could continue active church work. Several years ago Mrs. Davies was ordained and made associate pastor with Rev. Davies. She has courageously carried on the church work.

When the infirmities of age made it necessary for Rev. Davies to lay down one duty after the other in his work she has cheerfully taken them up and during the past year when a further breakdown made it certain that the end was near she has nursed him tenderly. With the passing of Rev. Davies the ministry has lost a devoted and earnest worker. Over 60 years ago Rev. Davies began his chosen work which continued until his death. He was steadfast in his purpose of ministry to the spiritual needs of his fellow men, and his interest for them did not end there. His was a sympathetic nature, ever ready to help in time of need, giving generously to every cause for the welfare of his community. A cheerful disposition and a keen sense of humor did much to endear him to those who knew him. Rev. Davies was 93 years of age and had often expressed the wish that he might remain physically able to continue in active service in the ministry until the end and the wonderful courage which never left him carried him to the fulfillment of his desire. During the years Rev. Davies served as pastor in Westminster he made a host of friends who will cherish his memory.

The funeral held in the Congregational church in Westminster where he had been pastor was largely attended by relatives and many friends from Hartford, New York, Willimantic, Boston, Norwich, Putnam and the surrounding towns and villages who came to pay a last tribute to the man they had known and loved. The service was conducted by Rev. John Scott King of Little Britain, N. Y., a friend of many years, assisted by Rev. Mr. Roberts. A quartette including Arthur Tracy, Christopher Krauss, Sydney Mathewson and Charles McFarlan sang several selections including Rock of Ages and Jesus Pilot Me. Mrs. Augusta Nolan of Plainfield was organist. The music was beautifully rendered. The floral tributes were many and very choice.

Interment was in Cedar Hill cemetery in Hartford. Rev. R. H. Potter conducted the committal service and read the tribute from the Bulletin. There were 12 ministers present. Mrs. Goddard president of the W. C. T. U. and the executive secretary of the W. C. T. U. were among those present at the cemetery. The benediction was given by the Rev. R. H. Potter of the Centre church, Hartford. Rev. Davies is survived by his wife the former Maura Nutting of Boston and a sister, Mrs. Roberts of Rome, N. Y., and numerous nephews and nieces in the west.

HOW CAN WOMEN KEEP WELL ENOUGH TO GET UP SINGING?

MRS. BELLE THOMPSON
3101 E. 44TH ST., EAST LAKE, TENN.

Springtime streamed in through the open windows. The green fields of Georgia were basking in the sunshine. Somewhere a bird was trilling. It was a day to be happy.

But the pale woman at the table sighed and pushed away her plate. Nothing tasted right. She couldn't eat much. She couldn't sleep well, either. She was so weak, it was hard to do her work. When the baby cried, she wanted to cry, too.

She had not been well for four years. Her husband watched her with a man's helpless expression. But his mother knew a remedy.

"My mother-in-law," says Mrs. Belle Thompson, 3101 E. 44th St., East Lake, Tenn., "told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. I took six bottles of the Vegetable Compound. I could sleep and would get up in the morning singing and feeling fine. I am the mother of three children, and always after the babie came had to take treatments, but I can truly say that this last time I have only used the Sanative Wash. does more good than the treatments. It keeps me on my feet to care for my children and do most of my work. I feel it my duty to let you know how both of the medicines have helped me."

Another Happy Woman

"I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the little books you give away and began to take the medicine. After the first few bottles I began to feel better and could eat better and had fewer headaches. I feel like a different person. At anytime that I don't feel good I take the Vegetable Compound again, as I always keep a bottle on hand. You may use this letter for every word is true. I will answer any letters sent to me."—Mrs. Jennie Bollerman, 611-11th St., Union City, N. J.

"She looks like a million on $20 a week"

"When I was living at home I always washed my precious chiffon stockings with Lux to make them last as long as possible, but my service weight stockings were done in the regular wash with cake soap. But it seemed to me that they soon lost their lustre and looked faded, so I began to wash them all with Lux.

"Shortly after that I came to New York to work. My whole wardrobe was on a very meager scale. For instance, I rarely had more than 3 pairs of stockings at a time.

"Yet several times I have heard comments on my wonderful-looking stockings, and only the other day one of the girls asked me how I managed to look 'like a million' on $20 a week!

"The chief reason is that I never take chances when washing my clothes. Dresses, even the $9.45 kind, as well as stockings, wear twice as long, washed in Lux, and always look nicer, too."—Dorothy Ranson, 99 Joralemon St., Brooklyn.

New York theatrical producers find that stockings washed in Lux wear twice as long! Now every musical show in New York uses Lux for washing silk stockings.

"Her 'surprise' spoiled my dress"

"A year ago I bought a pink cotton print for a dress for my little six-year-old Julia as well as one for myself. I wore mine all winter as a housedress and it stayed so fresh, washed in Lux, that I took it with me this summer on a visit. It was so pretty that I enjoyed wearing it just as much as my printed silks.

"When washday came around it was quite soiled, and to surprise me the friend I was visiting washed it with the soap chips she ordinarily uses.

"And I was surprised! My dress came out so faded looking. Little Julia's dress didn't get the surprise washing and it's still fresh and bright . . . thanks to Lux! I realize now more than ever how much I save in using Lux for colored cottons as well as for silks and woolens."—Mrs. Anna Wakefield, 907 Bryn Mawr Road, Pittsburgh, Pa.

DANIELSON

R. R. JAMES REACHES HIS 90TH BIRTHDAY THURSDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Feb. 14—Rowland R. James, Oak street, enters the select class of Danielson's nonagenarians when he reaches his 90th birthday on Thursday of this week. He is just a week younger than his neighbor, Edward S. Carpenter, who reached the age of four score and ten last week.

Like Mr. Carpenter, Mr. James has lived here a great many years, more years than Mr. Carpenter in fact. Sitting in his comfortable home this morning Mr. James talked entertainingly of his experiences and the changes and developments in Danielson since he first came into this town in March, 1856.

The story of his first visitation to Danielson is amusing in the light of the years that have since elapsed, but there was nothing particularly funny about it at the time. On a bleak day of about mid-March of that year he set out with his brother from White Rock, nearly Westerly, to lead a cow to a farm that his father had purchased between Dayville and what is now Goodyear. The trip, now easily possible with an automobile in two hours, required two days. The first night was spent with an uncle of the boys at Voluntown.

At dusk on the evening of the second day they arrived in Danielson. Near where the Congregational church now stands they paused to take account of things. They had been on the road since 7 o'clock in the morning, and without a morsel of food meanwhile. Their entire and joint capital was nine cents, which they purposed to use for food, and drew lots to see which would go down to Waldo Bros. store to do the buying. Mr. James' brother drew the assignment and in due time returned with nine cents worth of crackers and cheese. Having stayed their hunger, they set out in the darkness to cover the final weary miles to Dayville.

Much water has gone over the dams hereabouts since that distant day, when Mr. James was a youth of 17. Meanwhile, Mr. James was continuously in business here for 47 years, retiring in 1912. For nearly half a century he was one of the best known grocers hereabouts, and successful.

There was no Main street in Danielson when Mr. James first came to town. A large railroad station, to which reference was made in this column yesterday, stood on the site of the present freight house of the New Haven road. The freight station of those days was where the passenger station now is. When fire destroyed the original passenger station, which included a restaurant, Union hall and business places, the freight station was moved over on the site and the passenger station located on the site it now occupies.

One gets a vivid mental picture of Danielson in days prior to the Civil war listening to Mr. James' descriptions of it. Construction of the Westfield Congregational church had just been completed. He witnessed the building of the Attawaugan hotel, the Shumway building, the Winkelman building. He recalls the destruction by fire of buildings that stood where the Exchange block and the Puritan restaurant properties of this day are, and of the plan of Sylvanus Gleason to sell lottery tickets to buy the sites and preserve them for a little park. The plan failed because too few tickets could be sold. Mr. James still has some of the tickets. Dozens of such incidents were recalled by Mr. James this morning out of an undimmed and highly retentive memory. Listening to him is as fascinating as reading written records of those by-gone days.

Mr. James is one of three survivors of Company K, 18th Connecticut Volunteers. He went through the war with no more serious wound than a mere scratch he received in Hunter's raid at Piedmont, Va., in June, 1864, when a bullet struck against the hard-visored cap he was wearing, was deflected and merely brushed his forehead. Mr. James is proud of the fact that it was his privilege to twice vote for Lincoln.

At 90 Mr. James is so active, so interesting, so possessed of his faculties and so alive to present day topics that he must be a rated a marvel of a man. "I am not going to have another birthday until I am 100", he jokingly remarked this morning. That he will round out a full century of life appears to be well within the realm of possibilities. Danielson numbers him among its exalted citizens and congratulates him on his good health and his happy surroundings.

On Thursday, his birthday, with Mrs. James and his daughter, Mrs. O. F. Bellows of Brooklyn, N. Y., he will be a dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred L. Reed of Hawkins street. His son, Albert, who is in business in Santa Monica, Cal., will be unable to be present.

At the fourth quarterly conference of the Methodist Episcopal church held at the church last evening with the district superintendent, Rev. Myron E. Genter, of Norwich, presiding, there was a large representation of the membership in attendance. Reports were received from the various departments of the church and the organizations thereof, and were evidence of earnest activity during the past year. The conference invited Rev. Albert Abbott, the pastor, to return for another year.

The board of stewards elected for the ensuing year is made up of: Sidney S. Stone, Sidney H. Perry, Nathan D. Prince, David King, Henry A. McEwen, Luther Pilling, Arnold Wild, Harold Holehouse, A. P. Burns, W. E. Parker, Miss Emma F. Pilling, Miss Myra Codding, Miss Hattie Codding, Miss Mabel Warren, Miss Ruth Fiske, Mrs. J. H. Briggs, Mrs. S. S. Stone, Mrs. Harold Holehouse, Ernest Dyson, Clifford Smith, Harold Bigelow, Mrs. Harold Bigelow, Joseph Dyson, Mrs. David King, Mrs. A. P. Burns, Mrs. Jennie Martin, Mrs. J. E. Potter, Mrs. W. J. Young, Miss Viola Long, Miss Mildred Coddling.

The board of trustees elected is made up of S. S. Stone, S. H. Perry, Nathan D. Prince, David King, Henry A. McEwen, Luther Pilling, A. F. Wood, F. E. Colvin and Dr. W. H. Judson.

Superintendents in various departments of the Sunday school named are: Young People's department, Mrs. Edward Olsson; junior, Mrs. Harold Holehouse; primary, Miss Viola Long; cradle roll, Mrs. David King; beginners, Mrs. Harold Bigelow.

Luther Pilling was named as delegate to the Southern New England conference to be held at the Union church, Fall River, in the closing days of March, and Harold Holehouse was named as alternate.

Mrs. Sophronie LaPrise, 61, wife of Nisiford LaPrise, is dead at their home in Elmville, after a long illness. Mrs. LaPrise was a daughter of Jeremiah Bourgeois, who died at her home at the age of 90 a few weeks ago. Mrs. LaPrise, a native of Canada, is survived by her husband.

Miss Charlotte Palmer, 74, died today at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam where she was taken from her home in Brooklyn Sunday when she became so seriously ill as to advise that action. The body was returned to Brooklyn today in charge of Undertaker A. F. Wood.

Miss Palmer was a native of Brooklyn and had spent her life there. She was a daughter of John and Frances Davison Palmer and was born March 18, 1859. Her parents were among the prominent residents of Brooklyn. During her life Miss Palmer has been numbered among those who have helped make Brooklyn such an attractive place in which to live. She was a member of Trinity Episcopal church and deeply interested in its welfare. She leaves one sister, Miss Helen Palmer, of Brooklyn.

FINDS HIS GOOD SAMARITAN AFTER 30 YEARS SEARCH

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Feb. 14—Two men looked at each other in a store up at Attawaugan some time since and one of them wondered where and under what circumstances he had seen the other one before, if ever. One of them was Henry J. Kosmaler, owner of the store, the other a traveling salesman, specializing in coffee. Mr. Kosmaler was the curious one of the pair, and especially curious. His mind was harking back over a period of nearly 30 years to a day in 1898, when he sat in the railroad station at Worcester, a stripling youth clad in the raiment of an American soldier of the Spanish war, and nigh sick unto death. He was waiting there for a train to take him to his mother's home in Webster. He was among the thousands of young men who became so desperately ill while in the service during those hectic days.

So pitiable was his state, sitting there alone and palpably in very serious condition that another soldier, on furlough from his regiment and loitering about the station, came to offer him such aid as he might. Mr. Kosmaler told him he was awaiting a train for Webster and the unknown offered to wait with him, though it was a matter of hours, and escort him home, which he did. Mr. Kosmaler's arrival in such a serious state of illness so upset the members of the household that the escorting soldier managed to slip away before he could be asked about himself—and since that day Mr. Kosmaler's mind has so many times been plagued because he did not know his identity or whence he came.

Something about the appearance of the coffee salesman haunted Mr. Kosmaler with memories of his unknown soldier friend until on his last trip he asked him if he remembered during the Spanish war days of taking a sick soldier from the Worcester station to a home in Webster, and the answer was "Yes". One may well imagine the rest, the explanations, the showing of a photograph of Mr. Kosmaler taken just after he recovered from the illness, et al. The unknown proves to be George McKenna of Worcester. His hair is gray now and there are other changes in his general appearance, but there is that about him that allowed Mr. Kosmaler to identify him after all the years.

This Wednesday at the meeting of the Killingly Woman's club at the Westfield Congregational church Burford Perry will speak on the subject, Welsh Fairy Tales.

NEW YORK MURDERER WAS MARRIED IN PUTNAM

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Feb. 14—Reporters and photographers from a metropolitan newspaper in New York were in Putnam today looking up the marriage records of Cecil Clyde Campbell, who is being held for murder of his wife in New York. Campbell was married in Putnam to Miss Mary L. MacLean of Boston on May 18, 1922, by the Rev. John C. Stoddard of the Baptist church formerly of Putnam.

The records on file in the town clerk's office show that the man registered as a widower but according to his confessions he is a divorced man, his marriage to Miss MacLean being his second attempt at matrimony. At the time of his marriage in Putnam, he was residing in Wayland, Massachusetts. Other town records fail to show that Campbell resided at any time in Putnam.

The D. A. R., Parent-Teachers association and the Y. M. C. A. minstrel show was presented to a capacity house at the Bradley theatre on Monday evening. The acts were well presented and were pleasing to all who attended. The curtain rose at 8:15, with a selection by the augmented orchestra. The second act of Part 1, was Danseuse. The third act was The Happiness Boys, acted by Kenneth Sharpe and L. Edwin Hill. The two joymakers appeared upon the stage with a complete surprise for their audience. Kenneth was mounted on the handlebars of Mr. Whitteemore's famous old tricycle (with the two wheels in front and the one in the rear) with Ed Hill perched on the seat. The two boys tickled the audience with their local wise cracks, they also made many blush and slouch down in their chairs. The fourth was a well chosen quartet and their "Mammy Songs" pleased. Part 1 closed with a saxophone trio composed of three boys from Killingly high school. Their selections brought them out to play an encore.

The next number was the minstrels, the cast included the following: The madam, Gertrude Warner; maids, Ruby Paine, Dorothy Prince; customer, Myra Frink; Farina gang, Dorothy Prince, Ruby Paine, Jessie Macdonald, Marion E. Standen, Louisia Hill; dancer, Edmaer Guy. The interlocutor was Sidney P. Marland of Danielson. This act was pleasing in every respect, and the array of colors in the costumes was highly elaborate. The second act of part two was the songs rendered by the minstrel quartette, which was composed of David Breault, Lionel Larocque, Thomas Duquette, and Henry Vadnais. "Models" was next. The young women taking part in this number were, Swad Sherriffs, Marion Mansfield, Geraldine Frost, and Dorothy Cross. The end men were highly applauded for their rib-tickling jokes. Henry Bodo, Kenneth Sharpe, Ralph Shoals, Herbert (Hub) Owens, and Burdette Hopkins and L. Edwin Hill were the jesters. The last number on the program of part two was a tableau. The characters in the cast were, Uncle Sam, Howard Sherriffs; a southern maid, Ruth Nelson; her northern cousin, Dorcas Bartlett.

The last number presented was a group of selections rendered by the women's chorus, Naomi Daigle, Alice Stevens, Ruth Nelson, Marion Mansfield, Geraldine Frost, Dorothy Cross, Leonie Daigle, Mary Medbury, Dorcas Bartlett, Sward Sheriffs.

The musical selections were under the personal supervision of Mrs. E. L. Robinson of Church street. Mrs. Robinson deserves much credit for the excellent musical numbers that were presented. The committee in charge of the arrangements was: Ralph C. Jenkins chairman; decorations and costumes, Mrs. W. E. Wheaton and Mrs. J. D. Potter; property manager, W. E. Wheaton; advertising, John M. Dean and Herbert Owen; treasurer, S. C. Morse; director, Sidney P. Marland; production manager, L. Edw'n Hill. The minstrel was well enjoyed and seats for the show were all sold out last week.

After an operation he remains in a very critical condition. Mr. Miour is the secretary of the Church Clothing company in this city.

The condition of Sergeant Thomas Freels was reported by the officials of the Day Kimball hospital as unchanged. The army officer has been a patient at the Day Kimball hospital now nearly a month. He is suffering from a fracture of the skull.

Miss Mary Wilson of Walnut street who sustained a fracture of the arm as the result of a fall a few weeks ago, is recovering from her accident. As Mrs. Wilson is an elderly lady she suffered more from the fall than a younger person.

A four stroke alarm brought the Hook and Ladder company from the central fire station this morning at 7:45 o'clock, to answer a call for a chimney fire in a dwelling on Battey street. With the aid of chemicals the members of the fire department quickly extinguished the blaze. No damage to the property resulted.

Frank Champeau of Smith street, had an arm amputated at the Soldiers hospital in Brooklyn, N. Y., Monday. During the war Mr. Champeau received a wound in the arm and has been going to the Brooklyn hospital for treatment since he was discharged from the service. A form of gangrene poison developed in his limb, making amputation necessary to save his life.

LINDBERGH'S RETURN

There used to be a song "When Johnnie Comes Marching Home Again, Hurrah, Hurrah". With only a slight change it is possible to sing today "When Charlie Comes Flying Home Again, Hurrah, Hurrah," for the whole country, and more too, has been interested in and talking about the magnificent success which Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh has made of his flight down through the Latin American and island republics and home to St. Louis.

Couldn't others have done it? Well, probably so, but we hesitate to say that they would have done it as well, that they would have made the same excellent impression, or that they would succeed in creating the same fine impression which always accompanies the lone eagle.

Lindbergh has a hold upon his own country and it was inevitable that he would succeed in his mission of spreading good will through the republics to the south of the United States. Our diplomat of the air has encountered some stiff problems in his recent flight but he has surmounted them all and in that same even, persistent manner he has completed a tour that is bound to have far reaching effects in not only bringing the nations visited closer together but in the promotion of aviation to and among those republics.

Such a courageous, cool and yet daring flier could not fail to create admiration. He devotes himself wholeheartedly to his task. He gives careful consideration to details, looking closely after the condition of his machine and there is that rare combination of skill both as a flier and a navigator that commands the utmost respect, especially when displayed in so frank and unostentatious manner.

Central and South America applauded him, but no more than do his own people. His value as an aviator is superlative. But because he now has no definite plans for the future, barring a much needed rest after his long period of flying and feting, doesn't mean that he isn't going to be heard from. It will no more be possible for Lindbergh to sink into forgetfulness than it would be to abandon aviation. There will be nation-wide gratification that he has completed his tour in behalf of international friendship without accident or unfavorable incident.

FIGHTING THE CRIMINAL

Crime has to be fought from many angles. It is not solely the fellow who actually commits it that is the only one to blame. There are times when the responsibility is solely his, but there are too many other instances when he is acting for someone else. He is the tool through whom others are operating and taking the major part of the profits. He cannot be ignored, but as great, if not greater, attention should be given to those higher up.

In this connection it is interesting to note that Newton D. Baker, chairman of the national crime commission, makes the assertion that fully a half billion dollars worth of goods are stolen from the rightful owners and turned into cash through dealers who make a specialty of catering to this business. Because those who are willing to commit crime know that they can dispose of their loot, they are prepared to take the chance, and it is easily conceivable that those who are depending upon such loot to swell their business activities are alert with suggestions to the working criminals as to when, where and how it can be obtained.

It has always been maintained that it is the master mind behind much of the crime that needs to be located and punished before the desired reduction can be expected. In pursuance of that idea it is the contention of Chairman Baker of the crime commission that there should be a federal law dealing with these master minds, these fences. There are state laws which cover the situation in various ways, but in these state laws there is a lack of uniformity. It has been found that there is no difficulty in circumventing them, and if the law in one state is too stiff under strict enforcement those who are making a business of crime know how and where to cross into other states where there are no laws to bother them or where it is easier to hoodwink the law.

If it were so that each state had laws with which the fences as well as the working criminals could be adequately reached and dealt with there would be slight ground for seeking any federal legislation concerning such a matter.

SETTLING WITH GREECE

Probably it was inevitable that the point would be raised in connection with the idea of reaching an adjustment of the debt situation with Greece, that inasmuch as Greece has not come to terms in regard to the payment of what has already been loaned it there ought to be no more funds advanced to that country.

Under ordinary circumstances that might be looked upon as a wise position to take. It is in keeping with the policy of refusing to send good money after bad. But there are conditions surrounding the Greek loan which need to be taken into consideration.

In the first place this country, along with others, had agreed to lend Greece much more than it has done. It advanced $15,000,000 to be used as a fund for the support of a war programme. This was ten years ago. When the war ended so did the payments. We have not carried out our agreement and Greece has not paid what has been loaned to it.

Greece has gone through varied experiences since that time and now it is burdened with the huge task of taking care of the large number of refugees thrown back upon it. It is getting assistance and making good progress in this work. It is a humanitarian service of a high order, and the proposition that has been made to this country in connection with the debt settlement is that the United States advance Greece $12,000,000 more in place of the completion of the loan that was previously promised. If this is done Greece promises to pay back this sum with interest in a period of 20 years and it will also agree to pay the previous loan on the same basis that other countries are paying their war debts. That means that it would be wiped out over a period of 62 years.

As it stands now Greece has not arranged to pay. Still it hasn't repudiated the debt but claims that we have not carried out our promise to make the full loan. The compromise arrangement doesn't involve as much as the remainder of the original promise but it opens the avenue by which repayment can be obtained. It rests with the senate as to whether anything is really done.

HIGHWAYS THAT SKIRT CITIES

When the president of the regional planning federation of the Philadelphia district advocates the building of super highways for the purpose of getting traffic around that and other large centers, he is giving support to a plan which has not only been advocated but which has been considered in many places, and put into operation in some.

The idea of having traffic, which is going through a large city to some point beyond, diverted so that it will avoid the delays incident to much used streets and at the same time eliminate some of the congestion that prevails is an outcome of the great development in automobiles. There were the days when it was figured that every auto ought to be encouraged to pass through the center of a town or a city, but that opinion has changed. The idea was that it would mean a certain amount of advertising for that community and perhaps some business. But the fact is that it has brought about crowded streets. Such traffic for the most part does not linger any longer than is actually necessary unless it happens to be around meal or sleeping time. Then it seeks its wants and can continue to do so even if there are highways which are intended to divert through traffic around such cities.

The bigger the city the bigger becomes its problem concerning street congestion and the greater the demand for wider streets and less parking. Give the through traffic a chance to avoid the congested centers and there are reasons to believe it will welcome the advantage. Those who expect to stop, look and visit will in no way be turned from their course. The motorist with a definite destination in mind wants to get there with the fewest handicaps possible.

STILL BEING STUDIED

No one ever expected that the plan of developing the St. Lawrence as an international waterway would ever go through with a whoop. There are those who are not quite convinced that it would be a good thing and there are those who favor different development for accomplishing similar results. There are those who are enthusiastic about doing something and there are those who are indifferent.

That the project has not been given up or entirely sidetracked is indicated by the discussions which are going on in Canada as well as in this country. There isn't anything that would please the states surrounding the lakes and in that immediate vicinity much more than the putting through of this development. In Canada it has been represented that Montreal was much opposed to the idea for fear that it would decrease its prominence as a shipping point, but when it is pointed out that the probabilities are that shipping now in use on the lakes would probably be retained to a considerable degree in getting grain cargoes to Montreal, as is the case now, that fear is somewhat modified, since that would encourage more business for that port and that is what is greatly desired. However Montreal will probably need much assurance before it is convinced.

Till there is a sufficient desire on both sides of the border to get favorable action upon the project definite steps will not be taken. That doesn't overcome the desirability or the advantage of it but it indicates that through persistent but possibly slow degrees will there be brought about the necessary recognition of the merits of the proposition.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Did the Valentines all suit, or fit?

Sandino is reported to be fleeing into Honduras. Wonder what he is afraid of.

Even if winter is a bit backward it doesn't seem to have any detrimental effect upon the political campaign.

Now that the first half of February has gone, there's nothing to be feared from the remainder if it's no worse.

The man on the corner says: The only trouble with the well dressed men is that they cannot wear all their five overcoats at the same time.

Secretary Kellogg's statement regarding submarines has never been taken to mean that he thought the outlawing of such war craft was possible now. Nevertheless this government has gone on record as to what it is willing to do with proper cooperation from others.

YOU'RE IT

"It's absurd, I tell you, absurd!" boomed the obviously worried man, who looked as though he clipped coupons all day long. "I won't have it!"

"Well, well!" soothed the other prosperous gentleman, who had enjoyed his luncheon and was temporarily at peace with the world. "You seem upset! There is simply nothing on this green earth worth worrying about, Henry. All things straighten out——"

"Umppph!" exclaimed the first gentleman sourly. "You don't seem to know what I'm talking about—my daughter says she's going to get married! And of all the idiotic, impossible, absurd, ridiculous ideas it is the limit and I told her flatly that——"

"Now, now!" the other prosperous gentleman crooned, laying a temporizing hand on the other's arm, "just calm down, Henry! I think you are looking at this in entirely the wrong way! Young people always have got married, and always will, and there's no sense acting as though your child were committing a crime! Of course, you wish to keep her with you as long as poss——"

"I'll say so!" stormed the first man. "Do you realize how old Geraldine is? How young, I mean? She's just a trifle over 17! Sev—en—teen! With all her good times ahead of her and she wants to take on housekeeping and worries and troubles and probably a divorce and, believe me, I'm going to stop her if I can!"

"My grandmother married at 16 and stayed married," offered the second gentleman. "And when my wife and I married she was 18! It just seems young to you now, but you must try to put yourself in her place——"

"Bah!" snorted his friend. "Boys nowadays can't earn their cigarette money or pay for their gasoline and yet they rush into matrimony and trust to dad to pay the bills! No sense of responsibility——"

"Tut, tut!" reproved the second prosperous man, beaming at his cigar. "I think, Henry, that you are unjust to the youth of today! Both boys and girls! Often the wildest flapper becomes the best little housekeeper on earth and nothing so steadies and sobers a young fellow as knowing that the little wife is waiting for him at home in the flat for which he's paying the rent! I'm in favor of early marriages and working up the ladder of life together——"

"Grrrrrr——" growled the harassed father, getting up and beginning to walk back and forth in the deserted clubroom. "I expected a little intelligent comprehension from you, George, circumstances being what they are! Geraldine's got to wait five years before she even thinks of getting engaged, let alone married, and——"

"If she's got the right man," soothed the other, "she'll be just as happy now as five years from now! Do you want to be responsible for wrecking all her future life, as so frequently happens when parents interfere? I tell you, Henry, the more I see of life the more I tremble at the idea of any one human being trying to decide the affairs of any other! It's too risky, too dangerous! I think we parents should attempt to adjust ourselves to the wishes of our children after they reach years of discretion!"

The harassed parent stopped and stared at his friend. "You certainly surprise me!" he got out. "I asked you here to lunch to talk this over, and you arrive cheerful and gay and as full of platitudes as an aquarium is of fish! Your calmness amazes me! Of course, if you actually feel this way and do mean what you say, I suppose that is a financial argument on the young man's side of this asinine——"

"Hey!" interrupted the other prosperous gentleman, sitting forward in his chair. "I don't get you! What've I got to do with it?"

"Oh, cheese and crackers!" groaned the other, sitting down with a thump. "Don't you know it's your boy Albert who is to be the happy bridegroom at this child wedding?"

"Albert!" exploded the second man turning a violent purple. "Why, I never—great guns! He's only 19! Nineteen! The young idiot! Hardly old enough to wash behind his ears unless he's watched! He never earned 10 cents in his life! He's a child! Just let me get my hands on him——"

"Now," said the first gentleman with a sigh of satisfaction. "You're it, old top!"—Chicago News.

YOUR HEALTH

Waiting

By L. L. McCoy, M. D., Seattle, Wash., Member Gorgas Memorial.

If every individual would eliminate the one characteristic—waiting—from his life so far as his health is concerned, the human family would take a great step forward in blotting out one of its worst enemies—disease. To wait for further developments, to hesitate about seeing a physician, to put off obtaining relief immediately—this very detrimental attribute of most human beings is a factor that requires educational forces to counteract. It is a problem that requires the earnest endeavor of everyone to solve. To wait when symptoms and signs of disease appear spells spread of disease, increased suffering, invalidism, and death.

What a vast amount of suffering, time, money and sorrow could be saved if, at the first indication of disease, each and every one of us should hie himself to the family physician for advice, and then follow it explicitly. Too often the tendency is to wait, the excuse being lack of time or money or courage. In most things we are determined and hasty, but when we are not hitting on all six, so to speak, we rake up every excuse possible to avoid consulting our physician. If our car shows the first sign of disorder, we seek a service station immediately. We are much more prone to summon help quickly for a sick cow or dog than for ourselves. "Wait a while, I'll be all right," is a common expression. Only when we begin to realize the value of attacking disease in its incipiency and understand what periodic health examinations mean relative to the general well-being of all, can we appreciate the importance of early diagnosis and treatment. Waiting for a disease to get well established and then becoming impatient when relief or cure requires time seems to be the attitude of most of us. Instead of wait and then hasten, we should hasten and then wait. In other words, see your physician early and then give him time to help you. A great mistake often made is that of consulting one physician after another in rapid succession without giving any of them time to observe carefully, diagnose and treat. The best procedure is to consult, confide and continue with a reputable physician.

A slight cough, a mild headache, a darting pain, a loss of weight, and many other symptoms that cause us little concern are often the warning signals of a serious condition that is just beginning. These symptoms should not be ignored, as they are the prods that tell us some part of our system is out of order. And we should use good common sense in caring for our own bodies. We are constantly putting our various bodily systems to tests that we would never think of doing with a horse, a cow or a car. If we misused any of our domestic animals the way we do ourselves, the humane societies would quickly take us to task. What the human family needs is a humane society to watch and care for it, and it seems that such is to be found, in a very meagre way, to be sure, in the efforts of the Gorgas Memorial in promoting periodic health examinations.

If periodic health examinations become an established factor in our social order, and I believe there is no question but that they will eventually, the science of medicine will have gone a long way toward establishing a human health Utopia. It will be one of the greatest advances in civilization when man learns the value of periodic health examinations and that physical fitness and mental well-being spell efficiency, health, happiness, wealth and longevity. No human mind can now estimate the financial loss, suffering, energy waste and retardation of mental ability as a result of disease. It is a much greater enemy to mankind than war, the elements or famine, and it can be largely controlled and eliminated by simply heeding the danger signals which always appear. We must learn to observe these signals and then refuse to wait and take a chance with death's most ardent helper—disease.

D isease is our worst enemy.
O ur health is our wealth.

N othing is so wasteful as ill health.
O bserve the danger signals of disfunction.
T ake a thorough inventory of your mind and body.

W ell-being insures happiness and longevity.
A periodic health examination is good sense.
I lliness makes for inefficiency and indifference.
T omorrow may be too late.

Stories That Recall Others

The Screaming Radiator.

The other night, Mrs. O. was awakened from a sound sleep and she sat up and listened intently. Agonizing screams, faint but unmistakable, reached her ears. Dire thoughts of "automobile accident—someone attacked" raced through her mind. Slipping on her bathrobe and slippers she went into the living room and peered out the window. It was bright as day outside but although she stood there quite a while she saw and heard nothing. However, as soon as her bedroom was reached the screams were repeated and she hastened back to the living room with the same result; nothing to be seen or heard.

By this time, Mr. O. was awake and sleeplily demanded, "What's the matter?" "Can't you hear those dreadful screams?" But her unfeeling spouse turned on his other side and muttered, "For Pete's sake, go to bed, that's only the radiator!"

Wasted Effort

Helen, age seven, was taking music lessons. One afternoon she was invited to attend a junior matinee musicale. A friend of hers, who was a few years older, was to play a selection on the piano.

When she returned home after the musicale her mother said: "How did Ruth get along? Did she play well?"

"Well, it sounded to me as if she made lots of mistakes—lots of them! I don't believe she had practiced very long on the piece she had played," said Helen seriously. "But," she added, "I do not know whether she played the piece right. The audience clapped just as if she had. What's the use of practicing so much if they do not know the difference?"

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Mr. Ringland's Critique.

Editor: When "A Bulletin Reader," in his excellent letter, used the first stanza of Milton's Paradise Lost, he had no intention that it should be taken for a sentiment of his own. Nevertheless, we endorse the quotation as properly orthodox as well as biblical, and expressive of the point we desired to make at that time.

Mr. Ringland's corrections of the Fitchville letter are very necessary and worthily presented; and in the interest of facts deserves the thanks of all Bible readers, as well as

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Rear Admiral Charles P. Plunkett, who will be placed on the retired list of the United States navy today because of having reached the age limit of 64 years, has recently been commandant of the Third naval district, with headquarters in Brooklyn. During his long and active career since graduation from the Annapolis academy he has seen service in many parts of the world and has filled numerous important assignments ashore. During the World war he was in command of the famous railroad batteries in France, and he has the distinction of having fought big naval guns farther from navigable waters than any other sailor in the world's history. Under his command a formidable battery of 16-inch guns was put ashore in France, mounted on especially designed railroad cars and carried to the front and put into action.

Former Norwich Leaders

Col. William C. Mowry

(From Norwich Bulletin, July 4, 1893)

The news of the death of Col. William C. Mowry, which occurred at Watkins, N. Y., Friday night, was received by his relatives here on Saturday morning. Colonel Mowry had been in poor health for several years past, and for the past six months has been seriously ill. He made several trips south in hope of benefiting his condition but grew rapidly worse. He went to Watkins a number of weeks ago, and his death had been expected for several days.

William Carey Mowry was born in Norwich June 26, 1850, and was the son of James D. Mowry and Emily Louise Smith. He was educated in the public schools and entered the Free Academy, graduating in 1868. He prepared to enter the Sheffield Scientific school but serious trouble with his eyes prevented and he went at once into active business.

He entered the works of the Mowry Axle and Machine company in Greeneville and remained there until 1876. About this time he became interested in the Page Steam Heating company, of which afterwards he became secretary and manager. He was at the time of his death auditor and managing director of Hopkins & Allen Manufacturing company, director of the First National bank, Norwich Savings society, Norwich Gas and Electric company and Norwich Water Power company.

In 1885 he was appointed aide-de-camp of the staff of Governor B. Harrison and held the position during the term of two years. He was elected to the legislature from Norwich in 1889 and again in 1893. In 1896 he was the republican candidate for secretary of state on the ticket with Gov. O. Vincent Coffin, and was elected, running far ahead of his ticket.

Colonel Mowry was prominent in Masonic circles and was a member of Somerset lodge, No. 34, F. and A. M., Franklin chapter, No. 4, R. A. M., Franklin council, No. 3, R. and S. M., Columbian Commandery, No. 4, K. T., and all the Scottish Rite bodies up to the 32d degree. He held many important offices and was first lieutenant commander of the consistory and a member of the finance committee of Somerset lodge.

He was an important factor in the organization of the Masonic Temple corporation, serving as first chairman of the building committee although in time ill health compelled him to give up the position. He has been vice president of the Masonic Temple corporation since its inception. He was also a member of the Sphinx temple of the Mystic Shrine.

He was particularly active in the Arcanum club at the time that organization acquired its present property and shortly after was elected its president. He was also prominent in organizing the Masonic club, being one of the original corporators. He was a member of Park Congregational church.

Colonel Mowry was a man of strong likes and dislikes, but was warm-hearted, of generous disposition, and his genial cheery manner won him friends everywhere. He had a wide acquaintance among public men of the state and was highly regarded.

For many years he had been an active member of the republican party and was loyal in his devotion to its principles an disinterested in its welfare.

He is survived by one sister, Mrs. Frederic T. Mason, of this city.

The body arrived here Sunday morning, accompanied by a member of Elmira Commandery, Knights Templar.

What Doctors Think of the Laxative Habit

What do YOU do when the bowels need a little assistance? If you clear up the condition with some laxative made with CASCARA, there is nothing better for the system—for the blood.

But if you don't KNOW the laxative you have learned to depend on is of harmless cascara, here's some truly valuable advice:

The bark of a tree called cascara is the most marvelous conditioner mankind has yet found. It stimulates the bowel's muscular action, but does NOT weaken. A violent laxative forms the laxative HABIT. You always need more on the morrow. With cascara, you don't. Its gentle influence carries on sometimes for days. With less and less need of any aid, as time goes on.

So, the very next time you feel sluggish, take only a candy cascaret. Delightful to the taste, sweet and acceptable to any stomach, and just as efficient as the powerful purges that fairly paralyze the peristaltic walls of one's intestines. The only habit you'll get from cascarets is the one of going weeks and months without ANY help of the kind. And when you do invoke their aid again, the same small dose suffices. Any doctor can tell you about cascara; and any druggist has the candy cascarets.

Bulgaria has had six governments since the armistice.

The mean height of the earth's land is estimated at 2,440 feet.

Many shows, nowadays, are advertised as "cabarets," yet, strictly speaking, most of them have no claim to the title at all. A "cabaret" means a small room—a private room as opposed to a hall. So the first cabaret shows were the performances of entertainers hired specially for some private party.

When a favorable report is made upon the nomination at the next executive session of the senate, it is believed that body will confirm the nomination and there will then be nothing further to delay his taking his place upon the bench. Senator Burrows will then be actively associated with Judge Edwin S. Thomas of South Norwalk in cleaning up the long docket of criminal and civil business now before the federal court.

At present, Senator Burrows is on a hunting trip in South Carolina, from which he is expected back in Groton by the end of this week.

CHECK RAISING CHARGE AGAINST JUSTICE'S NEPHEW

William Preston Gibson, of Washington, D. C., a nephew of the late Chief Justice White, formerly a summer resident in New London, is under arrest in the state of Washington, at the request of American officials, who say he is wanted in Shanghai on charges of obtaining $7,000 fraudulently. Gibson was arrested when he landed from the Empress of Asia late Sunday night. Gibson was in New London off and on when the chief justice lived in Ocean avenue.

Gibson on Tuesday retained a Vancouver attorney, R. L. Maitland, and the lawyer said he would begin habeas corpus proceedings, claiming the Canadian authorities have no jurisdiction and cannot legally hold Gibson. In Washington it was said the American officials anticipate little difficulty in sending Gibson back to Shanghai.

Gibson was allowed some liberty under police escort Tuesday so he could make arrangements for his wife, who is in poor health, to leave for the east. He spent Monday night in the detention shed while Mrs. Gibson went to a hotel.

The arrest of Gibson was at the request of the American state department, acting on another request from the department of justice. One of the specific charges in Shanghai against Gibson is that he raised a draft for $200 to $3,200. The draft was on Mrs. L. M. White, widow of the late supreme court justice.

Col. Henry C. Davis of the Marine Corps in Shanghai indorsed the draft and says that it then called for $200. It read $3,200 when it got to the bank which protested it. It is also charged in Shanghai that Gibson cashed several unpaid checks there and left numerous unpaid bills, the total of all his transactions reaching $7,000.

FORMER NORWICH MAN GIVEN FEDERAL APPOINTMENT

In the Christian Science Monitor of February 10, there appeared an article some two columns in length, entitled "Yale's Steps to Make Responsible Lawyers." Allusion is made in the article to Thomas W. Swan, who has held the position of dean of Yale Law school since 1915, but has been lately been appointed by President Coolidge to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, of the second district.

Dean Swan has done a wonderful work at Yale, having brought up the school from the reduced condition that the war brought upon the law schools, to a standard that demands "highly selected students" which fact has doubled the numbers of applicants

R. M. Hutchins was made on last Thursday, dean of the Yale Law school, as successor to Dean Swan, and the good work started by the latter, it is expected will be carried on by the new dean, who is considered in Yale circles as "the brightest Yale graduate of the last 25 years."

Norwich has occasion to take especial interest in Dan Swan, as he is one of her distinguished sons of whom she may justly be proud. Born on Broadway in this city in the late seventies, the son of Thomas Walter Swan, then a prominent lawyer, he graduated from Yale in 1900, received the degree of L. L. B. from Harvard in 1903, and from Yale that of A. M. in 1906. He began the practice of law in Chicago in 1903, was lecturer of law school, University of Chicago, from 1903-1908, and dean and professor at Yale since 1915.

Austin F. Perkins of West Thames street is his uncle by marriage, and there are many friends of the family who recall him with most pleasant memories.

With reference to Dean Swan, Who's Who in America, Vol 12, says in part; "He began practice in Chicago in 1903; member firm Bentley, Burling & Swan, 1907-16; lecturer law school University of Chicago, 1908-4, 1908; dean and Prof. law, school of law Yale; trustee Williston Sem. Mem. Phi Beta Kappa, Phi Delta Phi, Alpha Delta Phi, Elihu club (Yale). Rpublican, Conglist. Clubs, City, University (Chicago) Graduate, New Haven; Yale (New York)."

The declaration in the suit alleges that the required warnings in the nature of flags or lanterns were not used.

BACKING PRES. MARSHALL, STUDENT COUNCIL RESIGNS

At Connecticut college at New London at a meeting of the student body in chapel Monday, President Benjamin T. Marshall made an appeal for the young women to continue their college work, spirit and morale, after he had officially told them that his resignation had been tendered to the board of trustees following some differences between the president and the board of trustees and between the president and some members of the faculty.

The response came in chapel Tuesday morning, when the resignation of the members of the student government association was presented.

The resolution, drawn up at a special meeting of the student body Monday night, was read by Miss Dorothy Bayley, president of the Student Government association as follows:

"We the members of the student government association of Connecticut college, feeling that the resignation of President Benjamin T. Marshall will prove of serious consequence to us as students, to the future policy of this college, and to the principles of intelligence and liberality in education upon which it was founded, hereby tender our resignations as members of this association, to become effective immediately.

"Convinced that we can in no way honorably support any purpose so completely at variance with his own that it must result in such a decision on his part, the student body of this college hereby places its principles and purposes entirely at his disposal, to be directed in such manner as he may see fit.

"It is the definite feeling of the student body that the policy upon which President Marshall has consistently based his effort and accomplishment is of deep significance to the welfare and best interests of this college as an educational institution, and the action of the body is an expression of faith and confidence in him rather than of partiality of feeling towards misunderstandings unknown to us out of which his decision has arisen.

"We honor him for his dignity and integrity, for his steadfastness of purpose, and for his achievement in making this a college of progressive worth and distinction."

INDIGESTION SPOILS YOUR LIFE

How to End Stomach Troubles

Although indigestion may not be chronic with many people, it is surprising how even slight pains or feelings of fullness after eating steal much of life's sparkle and happiness. Perhaps you scarcely notice it in the early stages, but remember indigestion never cures itself and usually gets worse. Be on your guard then.

The safest, surest and easiest way to end indigestion, heartburn or flatulence is to take a little "Pape's Diapepsin" after meals or whenever pain is felt. This quickly stops your discomfort by neutralizing excess stomach acid and preventing fermentation, and at the same time soothes, heals and strengthens your delicate stomach lining.

Get a 60-cent package of "Pape's Diapepsin" today — every druggist sells and recommends it, as a sure remedy for stomach troubles. Don't let indigestion spoil your life—you can't have stomach troubles and "Pape's Diapepsin" too!

KEEP YOUR STOMACH YOUNG AND SWEET

Every bite of food you eat MUST be digested, and the waste matter eliminated. That's sure. If your stomach is sluggish and old, from the excessive acids which keep eating away the gastric juices, you must dissolve them, or you never will be free from indigestion, sour risings, bloating and drowsiness after you eat.

Get a package of Pape's Diapepsin from your nearest drug store and chew one of the tablets after meals. Instantly the distress is relieved, it dissolves the acids, sweetens the stomach and you will have an appetite again like you had when a child.

All drug stores have Pape's Diapepsin. More than 5 million packages are used a year.

ACADEMY LOSES TO CHAPMAN TECH IN CLOSING MINUTES BY 35 TO 29

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 14—Norwich Free Academy lost to Chapman Tech, in the final three minutes in as hard fought a basketball game as has ever been seen in this city tonight, 35 to 29. After battling the locals on even terms and even heading them at times the Red and White faltered slightly and dropped the decision.

N. F. A. led at the conclusion of the third quarter and going into the final period things seemed rosy for them. However, after both teams had fought up and down the court like young demons for nearly three quarters, Jim Kelly, the Rose City captain, committed his fourth personal foul and was put out of the game. It was then that Tech threw in the deciding points, three field baskets. Weakened by the loss of Pingree it was too much when Kelly went out but to the Academy goes much credit for their game battle.

Tech Wins Title

By this victory Chapman gains the Eastern Connecticut-Western Rhode Island interscholastic league title. It was her seventh court title in this loop in the past eight years, Norwich winning in 1927 after the locals had gained the top for the six previous years.

KILLINGLY LOSES CLOSE GAME TO PLAINFIELD

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, Feb. 14.—Killingly met defeat at the hands of Plainfield here tonight by a 23 to 20 score. Both teams played a fast and interesting game with the locals having a slight edge. The score at half time was 11 to 9 in favor of Plainfield, who, incidentally led all the way, with the exception of a period in the third quarter when the visitors tied them at 18-all. This happened with a few minutes to play, Spencer breaking the ice with a field goal, followed closely by Royle with a field goal, Davignon, a foul, and another field goal to make the score 23 to 20. The visitors displayed remarkable floorwork and their dribbling was excellent. In the preliminary game the Plainfield seconds beat the Killingly, 15 to 8.

The feature of the game was the playing of Lang, at left forward, who is four feet tall and weighs 50 pounds, but with these disadvantages he played rings around the opposition and helped the locals to boost their score with a foul. Plainfield is to play Killingly at Danielson next Tuesday evening in a return game. Summary:

GOLDBERG CHALLENGES ANY AMATEUR MIDDLEWEIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 14.—Considerable impetus has been given interest in the amateur boxing card to be given at the Al-Pierre Taberin here Friday night by the Willimantic A. C. with the issuance of a sweeping challenge by Ruby Goldberg of this city to meet any amateur boxer of his weight, 155 pounds. Goldberg, who expressed a special desire of meeting Kid Carpenter, will enter the ring under the colors of the Y. I. club, of which he is a member. Mickey Casey, another member of the Y. I. club is tuning up for a return match with Mush Moriarty of Norwich. Henry Rothblat and Daniel Connell, promoters of the card which will be under the sanction of the A. A. U., are meeting with fine luck in their search for a good string of amateurs. One of the exhibitions is to bring together a pair of fast steppers, Young Fedus of Storrs and Young Vertefeuille, both of whom weigh up at 165 pounds.

A preliminary race was held recently which proved very successful.

The following are entered: Edward Forsemore, captain; Leo Bilodeau, John Cox, John Pepperelli, Francis Sullivan, Thomas Roche, Thomas Foley, William Connell, John McCaffery, Harry Pavey, Oliver Johndrow, Raymond Morgan and Michael Cannette.

Cubs Trade Dean.

CHICAGO, Feb. 14—(AP)—Wayland Dean, Chicago Cubs pitcher, has been traded to Louisville of the American association for Ed Holley, Louisville hurler.

Dean was traded to the Cubs last season by the Philadelphia Nationals, but refused to play, leaving the club during an eastern tour. He was reinstated recently by Baseball Commissioner Landis.

'BOUT SPORTS

Chet Nichols is off to the southland with the advance squad of the New York Giants. This is Chet's second turn on the big wheel, his stay with the Pittsburgh Pirates last year being filled mostly with pitching for batting practice, etc. However, Chet went from Jersey City and stuck over a month with the Corsairs. A picture of him leaving Grand Central shows Chet to have taken on much weight and it may be that this is his time and that he will come through.

Co-incidental with the migration of major and minor clubs to their training camps will come, in the next week or so, the calls for diamond candidates at colleges and universities. They, however, will stay right on the premises for the sheltering walls of a gymnasium are the collegiates' Catalina Islands, Orlandos, etc. Norwich ought to be fairly well represented among the collegiates this year for the recent fine teams at the Academy are beginning to unload their grads onto the campuses of higher learning.

The Academy still has her thre old standbys, Lloyd Jarvis, Johnny Greene and Mace Goldblatt, who have done wonders for the Red and White during the past three years and who threaten to close their high school careers with just as brilliant performances this spring. Among those who have gone are Pheno Tombari, to Conn. Aggies, where he was freshman captain last year, Hymie Sadinsky, to Columbia, and Ray Yerrington to Springfield Y. M. C. A. college.

BASEBALL NEWS

WILCY MOORE'S BROTHER SIGNE WITH YANKEES

NEW YORK, Feb. 14—(AP)—The New York Yankees added two more youngsters to their roster today—for 1928 delivery. The newcomers are Bill Eisemann, star catcher of the Syracuse university team last year, and Nick brother of the renowned Wilcy Moore. Moore, right-handed pitcher and a Both will report at St. Petersburg with the first squad.

Signed on the recommendation of his brother, Nick Moore has been twirling semi-pro ball in Texas and Oklahoma, where he is said to have been performing as sensationally as Wilcy did in the obscurity of the "Sally" league in 1926.

Eisenmann has been one of the outstanding college catchers for several years, and nearly every club in both major leagues has been reported as bidding for him. He is the second of last year's Syracuse aggregation to join the Yankees and the third to sign a major league contract.

Vic Hanson, captain and star second baseman of the team, signed with the Yankees some time ago, and will report after the basketball season is over. Jonah Goldman, the shortstop, was also reported to have been sought by the Yankees but signed with Cleveland.

Braves Get Slugger.

IRVINE, Ky., Feb. 14—(AP)—John "Rasty" Wright, left-handed pitcher, has been signed by the Boston Braves, it was learned at his home here today. He played last year in the Texas league, finishing the season with a batting average of .479 and previously had had a tryout with Pittsburgh.

Attreau Goes to Harrisburg

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 14—(AP)—Oran O'Neal, pitcher, for three years with the Philadelphia Nationals, has been sent to the Bridgeport club of the Eastern league, it was announced today.

Dick Attreau, first baseman, has been sent to the Harrisburg club of the New York-Pennsylvania league.

Warhop With Portland.

FREEPORT, Ill., Feb. 14—(AP)—Jack Warhop, Freeport, former pitcher for the New York Yankees, and last year with Bridgeport in the Eastern league, has signed with Portland of the Pacific Coast league as a coach of pitchers and will take a turn on the mound.

N. Y. MOGULS REINSTATE ROSENBERG; DROP GENARO

NEW YORK, Feb. 14—(AP)—Charley Phil Rosenberg, bantamweight champion of the world until increasing poundage and a set of double contracts for a title bout incurred the displeasure of the New York state athletic commission, was placed back in circulation today by the boxing fathers—but as a featherweight.

Along with him, Bushey Graham, once the dancing master of Utica, N. Y., and co-conspirator with Rosenberg in juggling percentages for their match over a year ago, was reinstated but there was no pardon for Bill Parr, manager of the bushey-haired phantom. Graham must make his own matches in the future. He too will fight as a featherweight.

Reinstatement of the pair after a year of discipline roused fresh interest in the featherweight ranks, where only four days ago Tony Canzoneri defeated Benny Bass for the championship, long in dispute. Rosenberg was well on the way toward the 126 pound class when he relinquished his title on the scales a few hours before his match with Graham, advertised at 118 pounds.

The commission placed Phil Glassman, manager of Bass, and his boxing stable back in good standing after suspension of several weeks, due to the Philadelphian's failure to meet Canzoneri on the date originally scheduled for the match. Glassman was suspended indefinitely as a second, however, for coaching Benny from the sidelines.

Adding further fuelto the controversy over the Canzoneri-Bass duel and the verdict that made Tony champion, the commission revealed that Referee Arthur Donovan voted Bass the winner while Judges George Partrick and George Kelley gave the fight to Canzoneri. The officials agreed on eleven of the 15 rounds, but Donovan's total card gave Bass nine rounds and Canzoneri six. Partrick gave Canzoneri eight, Bass five with two even. Kelley thought Tony won eight rounds and Bass seven.

Frankie Genaro, National Boxing association flyweight champion, was placed on the ineligible list, due to illness, until he meets Frisco Grande in Buffalo, N. Y. An infected toe will prevent Genaro fighting the Filipino there Friday night as scheduled. Archie Bell, Brooklyn bantamweight, was similarly disciplined for failure to go through with a match against Kid Francis, Italian champion, at the Broadway arena here.

JAFFEE IS CROWNED FIRST U. S. OLYMPIC CHAMPION AT ST. MORITZ

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland, Feb. 14.—(AP)—A day of bickering and dispute ended tonight with the crowning of the United States' first champion of the 1928 Olympic games.

That honor fell to Irving Jaffee, of New York, who was officially recognized as 10,000 metres speed skating champion by the executive commission of the international Olympic committee.

The commission's action came after Augustus T. Kirby, official representative of the United States, had protested cancellation of the race because of the soggy condition of the ice at a time when six of the contestants already had completed their heats.

Thunberg 1500 Metres Winner.

The furore over the 10,000 metres event came after Clas Thunberg, of Finland, had captured the 1,500 metres race, the only other event on the skating program today.

Jaffee, by covering the long distance in 18 minutes, 36 5-10 seconds, was leading the field and was considered an almost certain winner when the race was called off by an official of the international skating federation.

Kirby and P. J. Mulqueen, Canadian representative immediately protested. Kirby pointed out that Eddie Murphy, of Chicago, had been forced to compete in the 500 metres event yesterday in a blinding snowstorm. Both Kirby and Mulqueen were agreeable to a postponement but vigorously complained against cancellation.

Failing to obtain a reconsideration from the federation official, Kirby took his case to the international committee.

"We don't want to raise a row," said Kirby. "We prefer to win the races on the ice, not in committees, but this action does not seem fair to us."

After due consideration, the executive commission approved a proposal, advanced by the Marquair De Polignac, of France, that Jaffee be recognized as champion in the event but that another competition should be held before the close of the winter sports program.

Beats Evensen.

Jaffee, competing in the first heat, was favored by the fact that he drew as a competitor the crack Norwegian, Bernt Evensen. The Norwegian extended Jaffee to the limit and finished only one-tenth of a second behind the flying American who broke the tape by virtue of a sensational last minute spurt.

Trailing Jaffee and Evensen were Otto Polacsek, Austrian, Rudolf Riedl, Austria, Armand Carlsen, Norway, and Valentine Bialis, of Lake Placid, N. Y.

Thunberg's time in winning the 1,500 metres was two minutes, 21 1-10 seconds. Trailing him in order were three Norwegians and then the four members of the American team. Their times: Bernt Evensen, Norway, 2:21 9-10; Ivar Ballengrud, Norway, 2:22 6-16; Raol Larsen, Norway, 2:25 6-10; Eddie Murphy, United States, 2:25 7-10; Valentine Bialis, United States, 2:26 3-110; Irving Jaffee, United States, 2:26 7-10; O'Neil Farrell, United States, 2:26 8-10; Charley Gorman, Canadian ace, was 12th.

The only other event on the day's program—the skiing marathon was a walkaway for Sweden. Swedes took the first three playes and Norway fourth and fifth. The United States was not entered.

FITCHVILLE NOSES OUT SMOKE SHOP FIVE

The Smoke Shop five lost an exciting but rough game with the Fitchville Rovers at Fitchville Tuesday evening by a 25 to 21 score. In the first quarter the locals had the Rovers 9 to 2 and at half time were tied at 13-all. Yankowitz led in scoring for the Rovers with 10 points and McCrum was high man with the same amount for the losers. Summary:

MAJORS GIVE SUPPORT TO A. LEGION PROGRAM

CHICAGO, Feb. 14—(AP)—Support of the American Legion's nation-wide junior baseball program by the major leagues was assured today when the advisory council guaranteed $50,000 toward its development.

The program of the Legion will bring 100,000 boys into baseball competition each year, culminating in a Little World's series between representatives of the east and west.

The plan as presented to Commissioner K. M. Landis, President John A. Heydler of the National league and President E. S. Barnard of the American league by Dan Sowers, national director of the Americanism movement of the Legion, is comprehensive. It calls for the division of each state into sections, the several winners playing off for the state championship. The state champions will clash in regional tournaments late in July. Then the regional titleholders will meet to decide the two teams to compete in the finals.

PINGREE LOSES POSITION IN E. C. SCORING RACE

Les Pingree has been passed by Burnham, Stonington center and now stands in fifth place among the scorers in eastern Connecticut's four leading high schools. Pingree's 66 points were more than matched with a big week by Burnham and he landed in fourth position with 73 points. Joe Viau is the second Academy player, being in sixteenth position with 25 points.

Nield, Chapman Tech captain, still leads with 158 points on 67 field goals and 24 fouls with McKelvie, also of Chapman, second with 133 points and Saba of Windham third with 99 points. Nichols of Windham is right behind Pingree with 62 points.

Windham still has the best team record with 9 wins and 2 losses while she also boasts the best defensive and offensive mark, having allowed but 19.1 points per game and having scored 29.3 herself. Windham dropped her first scholastic tilt last week to Bulkeley of Hartford but righted herself to beat Chapman Friday.

MANCHESTER RECS AT DANIELSON THURSDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Feb. 14.—The Danielson town team will play the South Manchester Recs Thursday at the town hall and a great game is expected.

South Manchester is bringing Norris at center, and Madden, at left guard. The former played with Plainfield for two or three seasons while Madden is still with the Pros. The remainder of the team will be composed of Mantelli and Faulkner at the forwards with Farr playing right guard. This team is making a very good record in Connecticut at the present time, having defeated Meriden, Hartford Yankees and several other fast teams. They have split even with the Taftville Crescents to date.

Danielson will have a strong lineup on the floor as they are planning on reinforcing their team, occasioned by the loss through injuries of Bill Armington, center.

WALKER AND MANDELL BOOKED FOR CHICAGO BOUTS

CHICAGO, Feb. 14—(AP)—Two boxing champions—Mickey Walker and Sammy Mandell, facing suspension by the National Boxing association because of refusal to fight outstanding challengers, today decided to risk their titles in Chicago during the summer season.

After signing Mandell to defend his world's lightweight championship against Jimmy McLarnin, Promoter Jim Mullen announced he had come to terms with Walker, the middleweight titleholder, for a championship contest in July.

Mullen set June 21 as the date for the Mandell-McLarnin fight. It will be 10 rounds at the lightweight limit of 135 pounds. It will be held in the White Sox ball park, scene of Mandell's triumph over Rocky Kansas for the title a year ago last July.

Jack Kearns, Walker's manager, agreed to have the middleweight ruler meet Ace Hudkins, Joe Anderson or any other outstanding challenger in a title contest in White Sox park, July 26.

The Illinois state athletic commission, meeting today, approved the Mandell-McLarnin battle.

The commission also granted a referee's license to Eddie Purdy, a former Chicago Indian, who for several years officiated in New York, refereeing more than 20 world championship matches.

MARTINS AND CONN. CO. WIN IN NEW DUSTY LEAGUE

A new Industrial league opened at the Aetna alleys Tuesday with four teams rolling. J. B. Martin triumphed over the Gas & Electric Dept. and the Connecticut Co. nosed out a win over Werman Shoers. Both were interesting matches. The teams in this league appear evenly matched and some exciting moments ought to come before the curtain rings down. There is a strong possibility of two more teams entering next week.

BASKETBALL BRIEFS

The Plainfield Pros slip back into the spotlight tonight with the Philadelphia Giant's game.

Danielson has a rugged bunch Thursday night in the Manchester Recs. In their last start this team had the game end up in a riot with the Hartford Yankees. Manchester was given the decision over the state leaguers, however.

The Y Emps will play the Noank Juniors Saturday night in a preliminary to the Academy-Deep River game at the "Y".

The C. F. C. also may appear on that program, which finds the Red and White back on the home court for the first time in four games.

The Bulkeley Independents (or whatever, they call them down in New London), are still warming-up, as it were, for another game with the Academy.

PROS MEET COLORED GIANTS TONIGHT

Plainfield	Giants
Normandin, lf	lf, Beckhard
Dissinger, rf	rf, Chambers
Stavinitsky, c	c, Cooper
Bernot, lg	lg, Yancy
Madden, rg	rg, Jackman

Tonight at the Plainfield Community house the Plainfield Pros meet the Philadelphia Royal Colored Giants for the second time this season. Two weeks ago this team nosed out a win over the Pros by 24 to 18 in one of the best games seen in the community this year.

The Giants come to Plainfield with even a more imposing record than in their other visit for, in the meantime, they have been up through northern New England, cleaning up the opposition and to date they have 33 wins and 8 losses on this tour of the eastern states.

They carry a bunch of boys well known in the sport world. At right guard will be Jackman, regarded as a corker court performer and also the best baseball player of the colored race. Billy Yancey, the captain and left guard is named as the fastest colored basketball player and that is going some considering there is the Renaissance Five with its players also around to battle for this honor. Cooper, the center is 6 feet, 3 inches tall and is regarded as a real rival for Stretch Saunders, the pivot man of the Renaissance outfit. The two forwards, Beckard and Chambers are regarded as eagle eyes on the shooting end while their floorwork has baffled the best of the guards that they have faced.

Plainfield will use their strongest lineup with Mondi Normandin and Roy Dissinger at the forwards, Steffy Stavinitsky at center and Hap Madden and Capt. Whitey Bernot at the guards. Brusso and Benson will be held in reserve.

A fast preliminary will start at 8 o'clock with the main game an hour later. Dancing will follow the game.

CRESCENTS WIN IN THRILLING GAME

Taftville never witnessed a more thrilling basketball game than was staged there last night at Parish hall when the St. Joseph's Y. M. A. of Webster played their return engagement with the Taftville Crescents, Taftville won 28 to 26. St. Joseph's came down intent upon repeating their win last week in Webster when they defeated the Taftville boys by a big score. They came onto the floor and played the game with the same grim determination, and for about three quarters of the game it looked like they were going to have their hopes realized.

Brezniak the sharp shooting right guard for the Y. M. A. started the ball rolling with a field goal while the rest of the players were at the other end of the floor and he had no opposition. Kujaw followed closely with another and then shot a foul while the Crescents were beginning to get warmed up. And then the Taftville boys knockled down with a vengeance. The game from then on was great to watch. The Webster boys proceeded to increase their score to eight points while the Crescents missed several shots. However, they were equally determined that St. Joseph would not win the game, and the playing was so fast and furious that each team was guilty of quite a few fouls.

Leonard Scores

Leonard broke the ice for Taftville with a foul goal. They continued to creep up with their score when Normandin got a field and a foul goal, and Harris dropped one in on a beautiful fast play. Harris got another field while Leonard made a foul and a field goal. The first half ended with Webster leading 18 to 12 after outplaying and outshooting the Crescents, while the rooters from home were trying to outyell and outhoot the rabid Webster followers who came down with the team.

But that second half is never to be forgotten. How those Taftville boys played basketball. Each played went into the remainder of the game with that never-say-die spirit. They played their man tenaciously and refused to give an inch. And in making that statement any fan that has seen the St. Joseph team in action will know how hard it is to keep up with them in floor playing. Harris shot a foul, followed by a foul goal by Normandin while Bezniak made a field for Webster. Normandin came through with a great running shot. Leonard helped the cause along with another foul. Each team managed to increase their score. Taftville gradually creeping up by making foul goals. Harris shot a foul and Brown made a field goal to bring the score 21 to 19 in favor of the Webster boys, Brown came through with one more field goal to tie the score and then the excitement began. The next and last five minutes of play gave the fans some real basketball. Brown continued to keep the lead for the Crescents with his baskets, and the individual fierce playing of every man on both teams had the crowd in an uproar. The Crescents kept the lead until the end, Harris making the last point on a foul goal. Ivazan got a foul just before the final bell to bring the game to 28 to 26 ending in favor of Taftville.

Whirlwinds Win.

Each individual player played a great game and much credit can be given the Crescents for trimming a team of the caliber of St. Joseph's Y. M. A.. The Whirlwinds beat Norwich Boys' club 30 to 19, in the preliminary game.

The Sardine club members held a valentine party in their rooms on East Main street Monday evening. Twenty members attended. Red hearts decorated the room. A large valentine box was well filled and the sport was to see who got the funny ones. The one who made the best valentine by leaving the room and putting on a rig, also the worst one, were promised prizes. Three judges were chosen to give out the prizes, James Steele, Harry Johnson and Wilfred Lamphere. The first one to come in was Albany Camerey, dressed like a cupid, with a bow and arrow; next was Billie Fitzgerald, president of the club, as a cook in his Cream of Wheat suit, carrying a sign, "Two Hamberger's, well done." In walked Treasurer Stretch Morrison as Father Time, with his long, white hair and snowy whiskers. Miss Marion McDonald had a pretty rig and a big red heart with red ribbons along the sides and a valentine on her hat. Rollin Rathbun had a suit that brought the house in an uproar. He was a tramp of the year 1876, all patched up with 19 different colored cloth. He was smoking a corn cob pipe and carried a red handkerchief on a stick over his shoulder. Miss Nellie Swan was the old lady in the shoe, with a hoop skirt and circus hat like a flower garden. When the prizes were given out a large box of candy went to Miss Marion McDonald as the best valentine. Rollin Rathbun for having the funniest got a smoking set and Nellie Swan won second prize for the worst valentine shown. She received a pocketbook. A supper was served by the new steward, John Bracci, a real sardine dish, with jello, rolls, cakes and cocoa. George Grant who was working with him, let a heavy cake drop on Long's right foot, smashing two toes badly. This held up the rush 25 minutes, for his shoe had to be cut from the foot. He was given first aid by Eddie Ellis until a doctor arrived and dressed his foot. Later he was taken to his home. He will be laid up for a few weeks. He gave an exhibition so snappy that the crowd almost made the shingles do the Back Bottom cheering him. When Floor Manager Uncle Jack Ellis called for "Tucker Wants a Wife," every one was trying to win a leap year bride. It grew so noisy that Carl Ashcraft called it off. When the words came, "Tucker Wants a Wife," the fellows would get a girl and it was a hard job to find one. One woman lost her husband in the rush and got so mad that she took the auto and left him in the hall to get home the best way he could, so the midnight trolley brought him to Mystic where their home is. Nanny Meadow Mouse Has a Terrible Fright.

Fear for others, you'll agree,
Worse than fear for self may be.
—Nanny Meadow Mouse.

"He's gone," said Danny Meadow Mouse.

"Are you sure?" squeaked Nanny Meadow Mouse.

"Look for yourself," retorted Danny. "He isn't on his perch in that tree and he isn't flying. Anyway, if he is, he's so far away that it doesn't matter."

"I guess you are right, Danny," squeaked Nanny, as she sat up and looked all around. "He's an awful nuisance. I don't see why he has to come down here, anyway. If he would stay away up north where he belongs we would be saved a lot of worry. Goodness knows, we have enemies enough without Roughleg the Hawk!"

"I know it," squealed Danny. "All day long we have to watch for him and all night long we have to watch for Hooty the Owl and his relatives. Well, anyway, Roughleg has gone now and we can enjoy a little exercise up here without worrying. Do you know, Nanny, I rather like the snow. I wouldn't mind if we had snow all the time. When it is as deep as it is now it is easy to gather the grass and weed seeds, for most of them are within reach without any climbing. Yes, sir, I love the snow. We can always dive down under it and be hidden, and it is a great thing to be hidden when there are so many sharp eyes about looking for us. I am going to run over to that big weed-top over there. It looks as if it might be full of seeds."

"Don't you think you'd better stay nearer these holes, so that if danger should come unexpectedly you would be safe?" asked Nanny.

"Pooh, what are you afraid of?" cried Danny. "There is no one but Roughleg to worry about this time of day and just now Roughleg isn't here. If you're afraid to come with me you can stay right here." With that Danny scampered away.

It was quite a distance over to that weed-top, and it so happens that it was directly toward the post on which Roughleg the Hawk was sitting. Roughleg almost chuckled aloud. "Come on, Mr. Meadow Mouse," said he under his breath, "come on! If you will just keep on coming you will save me the trouble of going after you."

Of course, Danny knew nothing about this. He was so sure that there was no danger near that he wasn't as watchful as usual. He reached the weed-top and he found it just as he had hoped it would be—full of seeds. In two minutes Danny had forgotten everything but those seeds. Haven't you noticed that people who are hungry are very likely to forget everything but the meal before them? That is just how it was with Danny.

"Pooh! What are you afraid of?" cried Danny.

But Nanny Meadow Mouse was a little more nervous. She was running about picking up seeds, but she was taking great care never to get very far from one of those little holes in the snow. And she was worried about Danny. "I wish," she said to herself, "that Danny wouldn't be so bold. Yes, sir, I do so! He is careless. He may say it isn't dangerous to go way off over there, but I know it is."

So every now and then Nanny would anxiously look over to see if Danny was all right. It was when she was doing this that at last she saw something terrible She got the worst fright she had had for many, many days. There, sailing out from a certain fence post, was Roughleg the Hawk, and he was flying straight toward Danny. It seemed to Nanny that her heart stopped beating. She wasn't afraid for herself. She was right close to one of those holes in the snow, but Danny never could get back—never in the world. She squeaked right out with fear.

Now, it was very still and that squeak of fright carried a long way. Danny heard it and he acted promptly. It was a squeak of warning and Danny knew that it was meant for him. He didn't even stop to find out what it was all about. He dived down a little hole in the snow beside the stalk of that weed under which he was sitting. Nanny didn't know there was a hole there. So, when she saw Roughleg swoop down, she was sure that Danny was caught.

Old Folks Say Doctor Caldwell was Right

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice, known to druggists and the public since 1892, as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Then, the treatment of constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions that result from constipation was entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a combination of senna and other mild laxative herbs, with pepsin.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you, and the better for the general health of all. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs?

A bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will last a family several months, and all can use it. It is good for the baby because pleasant to the taste, gentle in action, and free from narcotics. In the proper dose, given in the directions, it is equally effective at all ages. Elderly people will find it especially ideal. All drug stores have the generous bottles.

STOCK MARKET TURNED REACTIONARY AFTER EARLY OUTBURST OF STRENGTH

NEW YORK, Feb. 14—(AP)—Marking up of the call money rate from 4 1-4 to 4 1-2 per cent following the calling of about $20,000,000 in bank loans today, started a selling movement in the stock market which turned the course of prices reactionary after an early outburst of strength. Final quotations were irregularly lower, with some of the losses running as large as 3 1-2 points, but with a number of independent strong spots scattered throughout the list.

Little business news of importance developed over the holiday. Outside the stock market, chief interest centered in a further break of 3 cents a pound in rubber prices, which was immediately reflected in the heaviness of the rubber shares. Characterization of the special dividend of $1 on New Haven common the first since 1913, as a "special dividend" with no assurance that payments would be continued, caused it to fall flat as a market influence.

Speculative uneasiness over the large volume of brokers' loans was reflected in pessimistic commission house comment and heavy liquidation of some of the recent pool specialities. Rumors were in circulation that the banks were tightening up on their collateral requirements. The fact that New York banks had effected a sharp reduction in their loans while borrowings on out-of-town funds sent here for temporary investment had substantially increased, also was construed as an indication that local bankers were in favor of a reduction in the huge total of brokers' borrowings.

Montana Power, the sensational advance of which was the feature of the market last month, broke nearly 10 points to 147 7-8 and then rallied to 150 1-4. Radio slumped from 95 1-2 to 90 3-4 and rebounded to 92, off 3 3-8 points net. American Express, American Zinc & Lead preferred, Bayuk Cigars, A. M. Byers, International Business Machines, International Nickel, Johns Manville, and Wilson Co. preferred were among the active issues to show net declines of 2 points or more. U. S. Steel common closed 1-4 net lower at 144 3-8 after touching 146 5-8 and General Motors showed a net loss of 1 1-4 at 136 1-2 after selling above 138.

Tobacco Products issues each advanced more than 3 points to new high records on buying influenced by the appointment of a committee, headed by Thomas Fortune Ryan, to devise a plan to dissolve the company. American Snuff soared more than 8 points to 155 1-4, the highest price in two years.

Heavy buying of Electric Refrigeration, which advanced more than 2 points to a new top at 14 1-2, was influenced by the approach of the peak selling season and the recent addition of large financial interests to the directorate. Other outstanding strong spots included Canada Dry Ginger Ale, Case Threshing, City States B, Electric Boat, Rossia Insurance and the Virginia Carolina Chemical preferred issues.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges were slightly reactionary, Sterling Cables being quoted around $4.87 7-16.

Commodity markets were mixed. Wheat prices showed little change but corn advanced more than a dollar a bushel. Cotton rallied 13 to 21 points net after an early period of weakness on the publication of the January consumption figures disclosing that recent reports of mill curtailment had been exaggerated. Coffee futures also advanced and sugar prices were unchanged.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14—(AP)—Frank A. Vanderlip, former president of the National City bank, now associated with a stock exchange firm, said on his departure for Europe that business conditions were good and he saw no cause for anxiety. There is no tight money and I do not think bank rates will go above their present level." Mr. Vanderlip saw no cause for alarm on the present upward trend in brokers' loans, but the situation should be given attention, he said, and some way devised to regulate them properly. He also did not think there was any pressing call for readjustment of bank deposit interest rates.

McKeesport Tin Plate Co. earned $5.29 a share on the common stock in 1927 against $4.61 a share in 1926. Net profit rose to $1,589,352 from $1,384,927. The year's sales were $15,563,105 against $14,741,065 in 1926. Working capital at the end of the year was $4,724,043. Cash was $1,071,392.

Officials of Freeport Texas company announce that an engineers' report estimating reserves in the company's mines showed recoverable sulphur sufficient to take care of its present volume of business for twenty years or more.

Net income of Photomaton, Inc., maker of automatic photographic machines, at the end of its first year of operation was $107,088. The company now has 68 separate installations in 53 cities.

January shipments of Gardner Motor company were 170 per cent ahead of January, 1927, reports Russell E. Gardiner, Jr., president.

Simmons company earned $3.86 a share on the common in the thirteen months ended December 31, after preferred dividends, against $2.37 a share on the common for 12 months ended November 30, 1926. Net income was $4,253,104 against $2,786,937 for the shorter period.

Sidney Blumenthal & Co., Inc., operating the Shelton Looms and subsidiary companies, with plants at Shelton and Uncasville, Conn., and New Brunswick, N. J., report net sales for 1927 amounting to $15,583,843, an increase of approximately 50 per cent over 1926, and net income of $1,056,104 as compared with a deficit in 1926 of $75,687. The net income was equal to $8.72 earned on each share of no par value common stock, after allowing for dividends on the outstanding 7 per cent preferred stock.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Feb. 14—(AP)—Soaring prices in the corn market today went as high as $1 a bushel. No. 2 yellow corn for immediate delivery touched that quotation, the topmost established since last September. Widespread wet weather interfering with the movement of corn brought about buying on a big scale today and the consequent jump in values.

Corn closed unsettled, 1c to 1 1-2c net higher with wheat 1-8c off to 1-8c up, oats at a shade decline to 1-8c advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 22c.

Houses with eastern and western connections were especially conspicuous today in the general rush to buy corn. The ensuing upward swing of the market carried May delivery prices far above the minimum prices current last week, and lifted the July corn delivery to the highest level yet this season. Aside from wet weather, an advance of 1-2c to 1 1-2c in the cash corn trading basis here was abullish influence, and so too was the fact that corn receipts in Chicago today were only 411 cars, a total far below what was looked for.

Reports were at hand that excessive moisture in parts of the corn belt had put rural wagon roads into the worst condition witnessed in years. It was asserted that under such circumstances farmers were unable to deliver much corn, even if willing to sell at existing prices. On the other hand, upturns in the corn market led to heavy profit-taking sales on the part of holders of future delivery contracts, and a material reaction from the day's best prices ensued. Nevertheless the market undertone remained firm from start to finish despite announcement of 5,683,000 bu. increase of corn visibly supply.

Wheat was inclined to weakness, except for strength borrowed from corn. Rain and snow where needed for domestic winter wheat tended to ease down wheat values, and so too did 6,778,000 bu increase of the amount of wheat ocean passage. Oats sympathized with corn most of the time, but receded toward the last.

Provisions reflected the action of corn as well as improvement of consumer demand for lard.

MONTVILLE

Miss Lillian M. Ritchie was the leader of the meeting of the Christian Endeavor society held at 6.30 Sunday evening at the Union Baptist church. The regular services of the church were held throughout the day with the morning sermon by the pastor, the Rev. Edward L. Nield followed immediately by the Sunday school. Under the leadership of its superintendent, Herbert E. Rogers, the school has a large weekly attendance. Following the C. E. meeting in the evening, the evening service was held. The Thursday evening prayer meeting will be held as usual.

Charles Radley of Palmertown was pleasantly surprised at his home recently when several friends called in honor of his birthday anniversary. A merry evening was spent with radio selections and games. Refreshments were served during the evening by Mrs. Radley.

Mrs. Arthur E. Blaisdell entertained the members of the Pinochle club at her home in Uncasville Tuesday evening. The club met with Mr. and Mrs. James Bingham at their home last week at which time five tables of pinochle were in play. High honors were taken by Mrs. Bingham and Mark Furber, low scores going to Everett Chapman and Roscoe Dart. Mrs. Bingham served refreshments.

The blowing of one of the whistles of one of the local mills about 5.30 Sunday afternoon caused a general stir throughout Palmertown. The thought of a fire at once entered the minds of all and it was but a short time before the men and boys had gathered in a considerable number. Although several were unable to locate any fire, a chimney fire at the home of Andrew Stepanack which was quickly extinguished, was reported.

Pine Cone Troop No. 6, Girl Scouts of America, held its regular weekly meeting in the Palmer Memorial school building Saturday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock when the usual business meeting was held followed by a social good time. The troop learned at this time that two of its members have been honored for attendance during the scout year just closed. Their captain, Mrs. Robert Paton, received a silver star for a 90 per cent attendance throughout the year and Mrs. Edna Paton received a gold star for one hundred percent attendance for the year.

Miss Gertrude E. Olsen spent Friday with friends in New London.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Hope are in Hartford visiting relatives for a few days.

Members of the Pinochle club attended the card party given at Quaker Hill Friday evening by the Sunshine society and the Parent-Teachers' association of that village.

Miss Caroline Parker of Montville Center spent the week in New London as the guest of Dr. and Mrs. H. A. Henkle.

Edward P. Smith is at work erecting cabins at Oxoboxo lake.

Mrs. R. S. Austin of Waterford visited relatives in Palmertown Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Olson and children of Watertown, Conn., were Sunday visitors in the village.

The children in the local schools observed St. Valentine's day Tuesday.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Conn. College Concert

As a concert pianist Grainger has always been a pioneer, introducing works by unknown or little known writers and playing them until they became household words in many countries. Thus between 1901 and 1905 he introduced the piano works of Debussy, Ravel, Cyril Scott, and Albeniz, into Australia, Scandinavia, Great Britain, Holland, etc. Later he introduced into America the piano Concerto of Frederick Delius and the Concertino by the American composer John Alden Carpenter. In 1924 he conducted the initial American performances of two of the largest and most important works of Frederick Delius, the great English composer.

Grainger is a great believer in "Musical reciprocity" urging that the various peoples of the English-speaking world should know and support each other's music, as the various German-speaking peoples supported each other's music and formed a cultural unit. As part of this belief in Anglo-Saxon musical reciprocity, Grainger has introduced many American composers (notably Nathaniel Dett, John Alden Carpenter, Fannie Dillon, Daniel Gregory Mason, Howard Brockway) to European audiences, while on the other hand he has familiarized American audiences with works of such British composers as Cyril Scott, Frederick Delius, Balfour Gardiner, Roger Quilter.

Connecticut College presents Grainger at Bulkeley Auditorium Monday, Feb. 20.

PLAINFIELD

Tuesday evening the Woman's Guild held a Valentine social in the vestry of the Congregational church. An enteresting program had been provided. Mrs. Lotta Dodge was chairman of the committee, Mrs. Winifred Gardner and Mrs. Percy Wilcox were in charge of the cafeteria lunch, Mrs. Cecil Butler of the grab bag and Mrs. John Kingsley of the candy table.

The supper and party given Wednesday by the Ladies' Aid Society after the regular meeting was such a success that another one will be arranged for March.

NORWICH TOWN

When the work committee of the League of Service of the First Congregational church met recently at the home of Mrs. Frank E. Sterry of Lee avenue, about 30 were present. Sewing on aprons and patchwork comprised the work of the afternoon under the direction of Mrs. Herbert L. Yerrington, chairman of that committee. The meeting of the work committee for this week will be at the home of Mrs. Frederick Ross, 156 Sturtevant street.

Miss Dorothea Buckley returned Sunday evening to Willimantic Normal school, where she is a first year student, after passing the week end at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Buckley.

Fred Fuller of Washington street, district manager of a large fruit house in Watertown, N. Y., has returned from a business trip to Hartford, where he was in conference with officials representing the same house.

Theodore Sterry, violinist, of Norwich Town, attended the banquet Sunday evening at Hotel Mohican, New London, given under the auspices of the Musicians' Local of that city. Others from Norwich in attendance were Louis Dupont, Frank Monroe and Frank Benson. Mr. Sterry filled an engagement in Mystic Monday and Tuesday evenings.

Dr. Charles H. Lamb, a member of the Veterans' association, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, is in receipt of notification of the yearly get-together of the association to be held in Danbury, Wednesday, Feb. 22, in observance of Washington's birthday. Following a business period Echo Rebekah lodge, No. 30, is to serve a turkey dinner at the hall of Progressive lodge, No. 18. Only veterans and brothers eligible to membership will be privileged to attend this gathering, which it is hoped by H. H. Squire chief vateran, will prove the most successful ever held. The letters were sent out by William S. Hutchinson, secretary, of New Haven. Dr. Lamb is a member of Fairview lodge, No. 101, of Groton, where he formerly resided, never having transfered his membership since locating in Norwich, about 20 years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lavarge and son, Charles, Jr., also their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Lavarge, for the past 12 years residents on the Judson Miner property, Town street, are moving this week to the lower apartment in Dr. Lamb's home situated on the same street.

Millions kept safe by this purifying toilet soap

How distressing to meet people with body odor! You'd certainly hate to feel you ever offended like that.

Yet no one is entirely safe from body odor. To live, we must perspire. Even on cold days, our pores continually give off invisible perspiration—often as much as a quart of waste each 24 hours.

This body moisture, whether visible or invisible, is always odorous. And it spares no one. Men or women—rich or poor—all may offend if they neglect precautions.

And the pity of it is that we may be guilty—and not know it!

Yet it's easy to avoid embarrassment. Just wash and bathe frequently with the most delightful toilet soap in the world—Lifebuoy—it deodorizes.

The same blandly antiseptic lather that helps protect health by removing germs—prevents body odor by purifying pores. And how clear and fresh Lifebuoy keeps complexions! No wonder millions favor it for all toilet purposes.

A Lump of Coal Gets Back Its Self-Respect

It was a woman who gave back to coal its lost self-respect:

"I don't know why I shouldn't like coal. It's my best friend and companion all day. It keeps the children warm and well. And you may think I'm silly, but I see a lot of romance in a lump of shiny black coal—its hidden heat and power, and the ages it took to produce it.

"Oh, my husband is different. He groans at the bills and grumbles at the ashes. I guess it takes a woman to see more than that in coal."

Dodge Brothers Victory Six is not only a new car but an entirely new and better kind of a car. For the first time in history, body and chassis are a single, integral unit.

The wide, deep Victory chassis frame, flush with the body lines, eliminates the body sill and the customary body OVERHANG.

Major body parts are reduced from 367 to 8! 175 pounds of useless weight are cast off!

The gravity center is radically lowered—with head-room and road clearance unaffected.

The results cannot be expressed—they must be experienced.

No skidding or sidesway. No back-wheel "chatter" when the Lockheed Hydraulic brakes are quickly applied.

A smoothness over cobble roads that you have never imagined possible.

A swift car that is safe—a moderate-priced car unsurpassed in smartness and individuality.

E. H. CAULKINS, FORMER MERCHANT, DIES AT NEW LONDON IN 81ST YEAR

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 14—Edward H. Caulkins, 81, one of this city's widely known residents, died this morning at his home, 61 Franklin street, after a lingering illness. He is survived by his widow, two sons, James Caulkins, of Norwich and Harold Caulkins of this city, and by two daughters, Mrs. Charles Starr, of Urbana, Ill., and Mrs. Joseph Osborne, of Middletown, N. Y. Mr. Caulkins' health started to fail several months ago, during which time he remained almost constantly at his home. Last Saturday he suffered a shock and his death followed at 7:30 o'clock this morning. Mr. Caulkins was the proprietor of a grain store on State street many years, occupying a building which several years ago was replaced by the Crown theater. He was born in Troy, N. Y., Sept. 21, 1847, but had resided in this city since a young man.

TEXAS BROTHER SEEKS MISSING EDWARD V. HOUGH!

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 14—H. C. Hough, Palestine, Tex., has communicated with the New London police in an endeavor to ascertain the whereabouts of his brother, Edward V. Hough, from whom the former has not heard for about a year. The missing man was formerly a member of the United States Coast Guard, this port. After his discharge from the federal service he went to Willimantic where he was employed by the American Thread company. He resigned in January, 1927. Prior to that time, Hough always was punctual in writing to his brother and because of not having heard from the former for nearly a year it is believed that he has died. Hough is not known in New London, nor does his name appear in the city directory.

Lieut. Bushey of Centerbrook state police barracks, informed the New London police last night that two men, who had stolen an automobile abandoned the car in Saybrook and when last seen were headed towards New London. The police here maintained a lookout for the men, but they were not found.

Newton Speedwell, colored, was in the police court today charged with breach of the peace. The case was continued to April 14. Speedwell went to his home, 69 Hempstead street, late last night and at 12:30 o'clock he engaged in such a quarrel with his wife that the latter summoned the police, Acting Sergeant William Graham and Patrolman Frank Philopena arresting the husband.

Robert J. Parker, United States Coast Guard, state pier, was charged with violation of the state motor vehicle law in driving while under the influence of liquor and was given the minimum amount, $100 and costs. Parker was driving on State street at 1:30 o'clock this morning and his car took such a course as to attract the attention of Acting Sergeant William Graham and Patrolman Frank Philopena. The officers caused Parker to stop his car and when he did so it was evident that he was intoxicated, so he was arrested.

The only other cases presented were on charges of intoxication. One man arrested on Main street yesterday was fined $5 and costs. Another, who was found on Atlantic street, was sent to jail for 10 days and the third case drew a continuance until tomorrow.

The funeral of Francis P. Geagione, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Geagione, of 116 Blinman street, was held this morning at 10 o'clock from the residence of the child's parents. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

COMMODORE HARTLEY'S VISIT OF TREMENDOUS IMPORTANCE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 14—Elaborate preparations are being made for the entertainment of Commodore Herbert Hartley ex-commander of the Leviathan, when he arrives here Thursday. The purpose of his visit is to inspect the New London harbor with the view of making it the western terminal of the proposed Trans-Atlantic Steamboat line.

The commodore is coming here from Montauk Point, another port being considered by the officials of the line. And as accommodations in that place are not as satisfactory as here, it may be that he will arrive tomorrow night.

A reception is to be tendered Commodore Hartley while here, but as yet no definite plans for it have been made known. He will be given a dinner, however, at noon Thursday, to which a large crowd is expected. The dinner will be held at the Hotel Mohican. The opinion that Commodore Hartley forms on the New London harbor will in all probability determine just how favorably officials of the proposed Trans-Atlantic Steamboat Line will look upon it as their western terminal. Owing to his wide experience in commanding liners the commodore was selected as the most capable man to pass on the advantages of the different ports under consideration.

A coast guard vessel has been offered for the use of the commodore and his party while inspecting the harbor. The offer was made through Commander G. E. Wilcox, acting Commandant of the Coast Guard destroyer fleet stationed here.

At the annual New London Automobile show, all profits of the exhibit will be turned over to the national guard units stationed here, under whose auspices the show is being run. Every dealer in the city will have cars on exhibit. Altogether there will be thirty-eight different models shown.

New London ice men are discouraged over the shortage of natural ice this winter. During the cold days a few weeks ago ice formed in many ponds to a depth of 11 inches but as the cold snap was immediately followed by a rainy period the ice shrank to less than four inches. As a result there is less ice than has been seen for over 20 years.

Cole Camp No. 7, Spanish War veterans together with the auxiliary of that body, held impressive memorial services tonight at the state armory, commemorating the blowing up of the battleship Maine. After the meeting light refreshments were served by the auxiliary.

Frank Philopena, local patrolman, was unable to report for duty tonight, owing to the fact that he is ill at his home on Henry street.

Tonight four inebriates were scheduled to be presented in the police court tomorrow before Judge Victor Prince. One of them is a continued case and three new ones resulted from arrests made this afternoon. One was found drunk at the corner of Main and Federal streets by Patrolman John Courtney, a second was picked up on Main street by Patrolman George Perkins and the third was arrested on Main street, corner of Federal street by Patrolmen Henry Hick and Cornelius Moriarty.

MRS. MOON, ONCE OF NORWICH, FIGURES IN STRANGE SUIT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 14—Mrs. Nellie Moon, formerly Miss Nellie O'Brien, of Norwich, is the center of a strange will case, now up before the superior court. Her late husband's father left a trust fund in the custody of the National Bank of Commerce of this city, which was to be divided between his two sons, Willard Moon, husband of the plaintiff in the case however, was to receive his share only on condition that he separate from or divorce his wife. Mrs. Moon in her attempt to secure the funds alleged due her late husband, contends that prior to his death he did separate from her and accordingly the terms of the will were complied with. And she being the heir at law of the late Willard Moon, should receive his share now in the hands of the trustee. The kink in the case comes, however, from the heirs of Willard Moon's brother. They claim that there was never any separation and that Mrs. Moon was living with her husband at the time of his death. So, they reason, all the funds now held in trust should be theirs. Just what the outcome of the case will be is hard to guess. Another pertinent point arises. Is a will valid that contains a clause forcing a legatee to commit a wrong act before he or she can derive benefit from the instrument? The judge will decide within a few weeks.

AUTO SALESROOM READY FOR VISIT OF BURGLAR

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 14—Patrolman Walter O'Neill, in making his rounds on Montauk avenue last night, discovered the side door of the entrance to the automobile sales station of T. N. M. Lathrop, representative of the Studebaker automobile unlocked. For a few moments he was of the opinion that a thief had entered the building, due to the numerous breaks into automobile salesrooms of late. The officer gave the building a close inspection and did not find any trace of a thief having been there. He was able to secure the building for the balance of the night.

Members of the Paquot Hose company enjoyed several hours of sociability at their quarters, Lower Boulevard last night. A typical New England clam chowder was served and an entertainment was provided. Music was furnished by the United States Coast Guard orchestra and Guy Susi and Allie Harvey, Charles McPartland, Thomas Lewis and William Nordenhold, Hilliard Esterbrook, Arthur Lewis, George Hackett and Herman Stalb contributed to the entertainment.

The guardian of the estate of Maurice Spottswood has filed with the probate court written application for permission to mortgage realty belonging to the estate.

Elsie Harrison Stockford has sold to Archibald S. MacFarland the three dwelling houses, 17, 19 and 23 and rear of 21 Chappell street.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary O. Baskin was held this afternoon at 48 Shapley street, with services conducted by Rev. Chester H. Howe, pastor of the First Baptist church. Relatives acted as bearers. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

The brick building on Water street, owned by the estate of Arthur H. Gager, of Waterford, which was gutted by fire several weeks ago when seven busses of the New London Coach company were either destroyed or damaged, will be repaired shortly. The repairs will include the erection of a modern business front.

During the first part of this winter the Colt Street school was almost destroyed by an early morning fire. Since that time it has remained as an eyesore to the city. This morning the first steps were taken to have the ruins removed when bids for the working of tearing it down and carting away the timbers were opened by the city purchasing agent.

The condition of John Stanners of Ocean avenue, former chief of the New London fire department, who is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, is constantly improving. Mr. Stanners, who was taken to the hospital several weeks ago for observation, underwent a serious operation about a fortnight ago.

The funeral of John Stack, formerly of New London, who died at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Frances Young, Richmond Hill, N. Y., Saturday, was held yesterday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Young. Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery, Jamaica. Daniel H. Troland, 125 Bank street, an intimate acquaintance of Mr. Stack returned to New London today after having attended the funeral.

William Preston Gibson, of Washington, playwright, author of several stage successes, who was arrested at Vancouver, B. C., yesterday charged with fraudulently obtaining $7,000 in Shanghai, was known in New London. Gibson, who is a nephew of the late Chief Justice E. E. White, a former resident of New London, visited the White residence during the summers prior to the death of Mr. White. One of the charges against Gibson is that he raised a draft from $200 to $8,200 on Mrs. White. Col. Henry C. Davis, marine corps, indorsed the draft, which called for $200 and when it reached the bank it read $8,200.

Breed Theater.

"East Side, West Side," the Fox Films adaptation of Felix Riesenberg's novel, concludes a four days' showing at the Breed theater tonight. George O'Brien, Virginia Valli and a remarkable cast have produced a picture which equalled the novel.

"The Gay Retreat" is the happy title of Fox Films war comedy coming to the Breed theater for a three day run beginning tomorrow.

And the story is just what the title suggests—a hilarious picturization of the adventures of three chaps who start out with the wrong outfit—"A. W. O. L."—and who go through the entire war in the same condition. The plot is unique, the situations novel and the cast exceptional.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Norwich Radio club meeting tonight at 7:30 at W. H. Nelson's store, 352 Franklin street, open to the public. Anyone interested in electrifying his set should hear speaker on ABC eliminators.

Chrysler Auto.

Greater public interest in Chrysler cars than ever before at this season of any year has followed the lowering of prices, effective January 10, for its New "52" and Great New "62," according to reports received by J. W. Frazer, Chrysler sales manager. The savings to the public range from $50 to$100 on various body styles.

In the "52" line three body styles, two of them closed cars, are now priced at $670 at the factory. They are the coupe, two-door sedan and roadster. In the "62" line the business coupe is factory priced at $1065, the roadster at $1075 and the two-door sedan at $1095.

Distributors and dealers throughout the country are reporting greater attendance at their showrooms and larger buying volume, with many orders being booked for future delivery, according to factory checkings. Among the largest cities to report definite sales increases are New York, Chicago, Detroit, Philadelphia, Boston, Cleveland, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Atlanta, Baltimore, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle and Dallas. Smaller market centers from every part of the country have also felt the greater Chrysler buying.

Chicago reports a greater attendance at Chrysler salesrooms during the week following the announcement of lower prices than during any previous entire month of January. Both in New York and Detroit more retail orders for "52" and "62" cars were written during the week following the announcement of the savings than during all of January.

Mr. Frazer points out that greater public demand, which has resulted in Chrysler achieving for 1928, third place among all motor car manufacturers in the sales records of the National Automobile chamber of commerce, has made these substantial savings in cost to the general public possible.

Distinguished Woman Speaker

Never, perhaps, in recent years has a Norwich audience listened to a more distinguished woman speaker than is Mrs. Ella Alexander Boole, national president of The Woman's Christian Temperance union, who will speak here next Sunday evening at the Central Baptist church at the community meeting under the auspices of the Woman's Crusade of the W. C. T. U.

MRS. ELLA ALEXANDER BOOLE

Born and educated in Ohio, she has a Ph. D. degree from Wooster college and was elected to Phi Beta Kappa. Later she became a New Yorker. Probably no one is better known in the New York legislature today because of skill in debate and legislative strategy in that difficult state. In 1920 she was a candidate for United States senator from New York, running against Senator Wadsworth and polling the largest vote ever received by a woman running for national office.

In 1925 she was made president of the national W. C. T. U., a body numbering some 600,000 women. She is one of the seven prominent women on the advisory board of the world W. C. T. U. and is World's Superintendent of Peace. Her acquaintance with the people of Europe and the British Isles makes her especially valuable as an officer and advisor in international work. She is a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and of the Federation of Women's clubs and was for several years a trustee of Wooster college. As a member of the general committee for immigrant aid at Ellis island, Mrs. Boole has given much aid to programmes for welfare work among immigrants. During the World war she was vice chairman of the Woman's National Defense committee in New York.

One of the foremost women in America today, Mrs. Boole is leading one of the largest woman's organizations in the world in its all-important law observance and law enforcement programme.

Palace Theatre.

The photoplay, Wilful Youth, is adapted from the popular novel "Whispering Pines" by Edith Sessions Tupper and directed by Dallas M. FitzGerald, featuring Kenneth Harlan and Edna Murphy, supported by Jack Richardson, Wallace Perry, Barbara Luddy, James Aubrey, James Florey, Arthur Morrison, Eugenie Forde and other well known artists of the screen.

The scenes are laid in the big timber lands of California, and fashionable tourists resorts, and portrays intense drama emotional sequences, lightened by humor providing perfect entertainment.

"Wilful Youth" will be seen at the Palace theatre today only.

A death-defying leap from the top of a runaway mail car to the surging waters of a river below is a vivid feature of the co-feature "Galloping Thunder," thrilling western starring Bob Custer. It's a smashing action story with the sensational Custer in the finest role of his career—thrilling in its dramatic intensity—wholesomely satisfying in theme—vitally appealing in love interest.

Tonight is gift night at the Palace. Twenty-five dollars in gold and ten valuable presents will be given away free.

For Thursday, Friday and Saturday Richard Dix will be starred in his latest Paramount success "Sporting Goods" and there will be five acts of selected vaudeville.

Strand Theatre.

Remember your "kid days" when the circus was such a big event in your life, that you would even make the sacrifice of washing your face for the privilege of seeing the big show. The circus wields a lure that does not wane with the passing of the years. Which explains in a measure the great success achieved by "The Live Wire" starring Johnny Hines now showing at the Strand. Mildred Ryan is the leading lady and others in the cast are J. Barney Sherry, Edmund Breese and Flora Frinch.

"A Lost Trail," starring that hard riding and upright young fellow, Al Hoxie opens a two nights' engagement at the Strand tonight. And a right entertaining western melodrama it is too. A tale of romance and adventure, of gold fields and desperados, of an intrepid hero who risks life and limb for the sake of honor and a girl, "A Lost Trail" breathes the very spirit of life as it is lived far beyond the maddening crowd. Young Hoxie does capable work as Jack Padgett, a famous "bandit buster." Alma Rayford is the girl for whom he dares everything and Leon Kent is effectively the black hearted villain.

"Aesop's Fables" completes the evening's program.

Hupmobile Sales At Record Level

Hupmobile production and retail sales since the announcement of its new "Six of the Century" and, later, its two "Century Eights," has been greater than ever before at this time of year in the company's history. According to R. S. Cole, general sales manager, production during November, December and January was 104 per cent greater than for the corresponding months of 1926-27. During the last quarter of 1927 the company enjoyed an 87 per cent increased volume over the corresponding period of 1926.

"When it is remembered that during January we announced and introduced the brand new "Century Eight" and the new model of the "Century 125 Eight," and that our distributors and dealers naturally needed a considerable part of that month's entire production of these two cars for showroom and demonstration purposes, the record becomes even more remarkable. It is the first time, within my knowledge, that such an accomplishment has been made in the motor car industry. The answer is that public demand for Hupmobiles is so great that dealers are compelled to deliver them as rapidly as they are received.

"Our February output will materially surpass that for January. We anticipate that March will be the greatest single month in our entire history.

"All three of our new "Century" cars are enjoying a splendid demand in every section of the country. For instance, in Detroit, generally considered the most critical market in the world, except possibly New York city, Hupmobile retail deliveries during November, December and January were exceeded only by six manufacturers—all producing cars of lower price than Hupmobile. During December our deliveries in Detroit were exceeded only by three companies—two of them the lowest priced producers in the industry.

"During those three months Detroiters bought nearly four times as many Hupmobiles as during the corresponding months of 1926-27."

"All 7 of our family voted New Hupmobile first in secret ballot"

Oklahoma banker tells how his household selected the Six of the Century

"Our family of seven went shopping for a new car," reports a prominent Oklahoma banker. "We inspected all the well known makes before attempting a decision. That evening we decided to take a secret ballot on first, second and third choice. When the votes were counted the Hupmobile had received 7 for first choice—a unanimous decision."

When a new car makes such an impression it is no wonder that people stand in line to buy, offer premiums for immediate delivery and do other strange things that have not happened since the automobile was a baby and the century had just been born.

As a matter of recorded fact, this creation of new beauty and advanced mechanical excellence has so startled and delighted the motor world that it has been aptly christened the Six of the Century.

You'll find it a deceiving car as well as a beautiful car; for you will assume, as soon as you see it, that it is well above the $2000 price. But it is well below and that is one of its pleasantest surprises.

TAFTVILLE

The members of the Thimble club met with Mrs. George Helmboldt at her home in Blissville Tuesday evening. After the sewing hour, supper was served by the hostess in the dining room, the table being gaily decorated with valentine favors.

One of the textile journals published at Boston, has a detailed account of the mock trial entertainment furnished by the Taftville members of the Eastern Connecticut Mills association at Ponemah hall on the occasion of their last meeting. The journal calls the meeting "one of the most successful social gatherings ever enjoyed by the association. It was a jolly crowd, one of those sorts of crowds that every committee hopes to assemble. The crowd was an entertainment program in itself. It was good to watch them mix and introductions were entirely out of order." Accompanying the article is a cut of Alfred Linderson, vice president and local executive of the association.

A letter is being held at the local postoffice for A. J. Adlins, unknown to the postmaster.

The next meeting of the Occum Thimble club is to be held at the home of Miss Gertrude Filliger.

The A. D. Tripp Co. Coal Adv. appearing in this column Tuesday was misplaced, having been given for the Jewett City column.

A party was held at the home of Wilfred Pepin on North A street Saturday evening in observance of his eighteenth birthday. Entertainment was furnished in the form of vocal selections of popular songs by the famous local quartette, S. Finn, L. R. Dugas, W. W. Peltier and "Doctor" Lamoreux. Led by "Duke" and his uke, these songbirds quickly won the approval of the many guests. This was followed by a black bottom dance by "I Don't Wanna" Carlson. Mr. Pepin was presented with a gold wrist watch and a sum of money by the guests who before departing wished him many happy returns of the day.

WEDDINGS

Chapman-Goyette

In the presence of 100 relatives and friends, Miss Osita Mary Goyette, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Goyette of lower Norwich avenue became the bride of Raymond A. Chapman, son of Leonard Chapman of Union street, Norwich, Tuesday morning at a nuptial high mass celebrated at 8:30 at Sacred Heart church by the assistant pastor, Rev. Henri F. Chagnon. Prior to the ceremony, Miss Zena Cormier and Miss Mary Cyr acting as delegates for the Children of Mary society removed the insignia of membership in society from the bride's neck while she knelt before the altar of the Blessed Virgin Mary.

Gowned in white satin trimmed with pearls, and with her bridal veil of tulle caught up in coronet fashion, the bride was most charming. She carried a bouquet of bride's roses and white carnations with a shower of white sweet peas. She was attended by her sister, Miss Victorine Goyette as maid of honor, who wore pale yellow georgette with hat to match and carried yellow rosebuds and sweet peas. Raymond Goyette was best man.

At the home of the bride's parents, a reception was given at the home of the bride's parents which was attended by many guests, a number having been invited to the wedding breakfast. During the day the happy couple left on a wedding trip which will take them to New York and Philadelphia and upon their return they will reside in Norwich.

The groom is employed at the Norwich plant of the Thermos Bottle Co., and the bride has been with the J. B. Martin Co. Both have many friends who extend to them their best wishes for a happy and prosperous married life.

Sullivan-Adams

Patrick Sullivan, son of Mrs. Patrick Sullivan of South B street, and Miss Celena Ettabel Adams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Adams of 20 North Third avenue, were married Tuesday evening at 6:30 by Rev. Omer T. Mandler, at the rectory of Sacred Heart church. They were attended by Miss Mary Sullivan sister of the bridegroom and Walter Juzwic. The bride wore an attractive gown of old rose crepe de chine with hat to match and her maid was attired in blue crepe de chine with hat to match. EXHIBITING THIMBLE COLLECTION PRESENTED TO SLATER MUSEUM

A collection of thimbles, the latest addition to the many objects of interest at Slater museum, and now open for the public to see, is exciting an unusual amount of attention. The collection was made by Mrs. Charles Ostrander of New York city, who has been 35 years in accumulating it and who has now most generously given it to Slater museum.

Some one at once says: "Why collect thimbles? Are they not all alike?" The exhibit at the museum is the answer. A short examination soon convinces the visitor that the thimble has a long history and that even today, it is so different, in shape, type and material, in different parts of the world, as to make a most varied display.

The earliest variation of the tool here shown, are the two casts of stones found near the site of ancient Babylon and believed to be "palm-stone." They have the performations by which thongs held them in place. They were the ancestors of the present day "sailmaker's palm," a specimen of which is in the collection, and which was also seen in the ship model exhibition last fall.

Egyptians seem not to have used thimbles to any extent in sewing, although something of the kind was used in stringing the bow, but their textiles were neither thick or heavy—their linen was like muslin—and all heavy sewing was done by slaves.

The present form of thimble is at least two thousand years old. It is found in Herculaneum, which was buried in 79 A. D. and both the "tailor's thimble" and the sugar loaf shape are plentiful in excavations of Roman dwellings in England. The material was bronze or brass.

The common employment of a leather thimble during the Middle Ages, explains why one is so rarely found older than the sixteenth century. The leather type is in the collection, the most primitive kind being a circular strip of rawhide still used in Alaska. There is also a leather finger-cap, which is used by certain tribes of American Indians, although many simply punch a hole with an awl and draw through the animal tendons or root fibres.

Highly civilized variations of such thimbles are the exquisite ones shown by the Korean ladies today. They are made of richly embroidered silk with stiffened lining. These again, do not suggest heavy sewing. Three are in the collection.

The modern thimble was brought to England from Holland in 1595. In Holland it was called the "finger-hat." In England it was first worn on the thumb, and called "thumb-bell." A specimen of this variety is shown.

The Tudor practice of inscribing a motto on the encircling band, "From A Friend," "Forgotten," etc., was followed during the 13th century. Such types are shown.

Blois, in France, was renowned for gold and silver smiths. It's thimbles were famous. Several from Blois are here.

The small size of the old thimbles is frequently commented upon, and we find that in the stern days of old, many a young girl went to sleep with each finger securely fixed in a tightly fitting thimble of gold or silver to secure its tapering.

The modern Norwegian varieties are very colorful, being enameled, and often with amethysts or cornellan tops.

The Italian have bands studded with coral, lapis-lazuli, or turquoise. There is a beautiful specimen of Russian enamel, the Spanish are of Toledo steel and gold.

Three from Algiers, Cairo and India are silver, heavy and bold in design. The Japanese are brass or silver bands, worn on the second point. There is a lovely old Chinese one of ivory, as well as ivory from Spain.

Particularly interesting also are bits of Sevres, Dresden and Royal Worcester china.

A number have historic associations. One is a copy of the thimble made for Queen Wilhelmina of Holland as a wedding present from Kruger, president of the Transvaal in South Africa.

FREIGHT HITS AUTOMOBILE ON ROSE ALLEY TRACKS

As Dr. J. A. Reynolds of the W. W. Backus hospital was turning a new Dodge sedan around in Rose alley about 10.30 o'clock Tuesday night the machine was hit by a freight car which was being pushed over the railroad freight crossing in the alley. The right side of the sedan was badly damaged. No one was hurt.

The machine stalled on the tracks as the doctor was turning it around while a switching engine was pushing a string of freight cars down to the freight shed. A brakeman on top of the train signalled the engineer in time so that the train was coming to a stop when it hit the sedan in the right rear mudguard and side of the body, both of which were badly crushed.

OVER 19,000 BOY SCOUTS LEARN SWIMMING AT CAMP

More than 19,500 Boy Scouts learned to swim in Boy Scout camps last summer, according to the report of Fred C. Mills, national director of swimming and water safety, made public by the Boy Scouts of America. Captain Mills is well known locally in Boy Scout and Red Cross circles, he having been here on several occasions to promote swimming and life saving with the Boy Scout and Red Cross organizations.

The report shows that 996 boys received certificates and emblems as competent Scout life guards and that more than 485 camps made practical use of the "Buddy system" which was originated by the scout movement as a safety first measure.

The report of Capt. Mills is based on a survey of 528 Scout camps and does not include the Scouts who learned to swim at troop or Lone Scout camps. The statistics show that 4,918 more boys learned to swim at Scout camps this year than did last year, although the record of 14,649 new swimmers made in 1926, was thought to be an unbeatable record by swimming instruction authorities.

Strict supervision is maintained over water activities at all Scout camps by qualified Red Cross life guards, many of whom are Scouts. The buddy system, which pairs off all boys in camp and makes each one responsible for his buddy while they are in the water has done much to decrease the number of drownings and water accidents at Scout camps. The buddy system was originated and put into practice by Captain Mills.

STATE SPENT $3,191,182 FOR EDUCATION PURPOSES

Connecticut, through its state board of education, spent over $3,000,000 in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1927, to do its share in educating the public school children of its 169 towns and municipalities.

This sum does not include the schooling of feeble-minded and other backward children committed to institutions such as the state training school at Mansfield, nor does it include the $1,000,000 expenditures for the agricultural college, but went entirely for the administration of the board and its activities as concerned the conduct of trade schools and normal schools and the co-operative work with local school committees and officials in the various communities to effect better courses of instruction and better conditions in the educational field.

Figures from the office of the comptroller show that the total expenditures of the board during the last fiscal year amounted to $3,191,182. It represents the state's interest in one year in the development of the average boy and girl and the advancement of foreign-born adults.

Some of the items of expense included in this sum are as follows: School, libraries and apparatus, $17,370; public libraries, $14,110; teachers' meetings, $3,775; special agents, $55,573; physical education of children, $9,738; special education of children, $9,153.

The state spent $72,004 for vocational education during the year. It expended $15,851 to conduct classes of non-English speaking people, and put $23,419 into Americanization work. The four normal schools, at Danbury, New Britain, New Haven and Willimantic, cost the state well over $500,000; normal summer schools cost $22,641, and the new dormitory for the Danbury normal school cost $131,815.

The 11 trade schools, salaries, travel and equipment, cost the state approximately $550,000. The school in Bridgeport called for the largest individual expenditure—$103,427. The sum of $84,971 was expended for the New Britain state trade school, and $53,095 for the Putnam school.

The common schools enumeration grant for the 169 towns amounted to $838,477, of which Hartford received $78,212; New Britain, $42,678; Bridgeport, $78,799; Bristol, $14,602; Danbury, $13,448; East Hartford, $8,430; Farmington, $2,407; Meriden, $20,502; Middletown, $12,406; New Haven, $88,215; New London, $13,709; Plainville, $3,222; Simsbury, $2,193; Stamford, $28,534; West Hartford, $8,356; Wethersfield, $2,963; Windsor, $5,024; Windsor Locks, $2,342.

The state allowed the evening schools $13,527, the one in Hartford receiving $2,844, that in New Haven $2,493, and that in Waterbury $2,802.

For tuition of high school pupils in various towns the state paid $129,609, and for transportation of high school students paid $59,843.

URGES MORE FREQUENT MARKETING OF EGGS

More frequent marketing of eggs as a means of aiding both Connecticut producers and consumers is urged in a statement issued by the state department of agriculture. It is explained that the present plan which many poultrymen follow of marketing but once a week causes a surplus on the day they go to market and tends to weaken prices.

Merchants are also handicapped for oftentimes they are unable to supply their trade with native eggs during the day or two before the poultrymen market their product. This necessitates the buying of western eggs and the public is forced to take the shipped-in product whether they want to or not.

Department records show that during the month of March in 1927 more than seven and a half million eggs were shipped into the city of Hartford alone. Although Hartford's imports are but a small portion of the whole state's, they give an idea of the enormous amount of eggs brought into Connecticut each year. While Connecticut will probably continue for some time to be a large egg importing state the department believes that these imports can be materially checked through careful marketing of the native fresh product.

EXPLODING OIL STOVE FIRES HOUSE IN OCCUM

An exploding oil stove set fire to the house occupied by Felix Belisle in Occum Tuesday morning. Miss May Lyons, employed by Mr. Belisle as housekeeper, was filling the stove at the time and was slightly burned.

Michael Coffey and Frank Filligar who were working in the vicinity of the house sent in a telephone call for the Taftville fire department which responded. The fire was quickly extinguished and the loss kept within several hundred dollars. Miss Lyons ran upstairs to secure valuables, including insurance papers and on the way down was overcome by fumes and smoke. She was revived shortly afterwards. The fire started in the pantry and was confined to the rear part of the house.

What You Can Do Today

(No. 1 of a series)

EVERYONE realizes the great social advantage in being able to play the piano. What a joy it is to be able to sit down and play over some of the lovely old melodies, college songs and the popular music of the day. Surely this would add to your popularity and the joy of your friends. You say, "Yes, this is perfectly fine but who can spend the time to travel through literally miles of scale work before they can reach the stage of actually playing for one's friends.

THE SHEFTE COURSE, a modern system of musical education, has devised a way so you need not feel the least bit sensitive regarding your lack of early musical training. In fact in a few months time you will be able to entertain your friends at the piano and will find yourself becoming the centre of a large circle of admiring friends. Not only will you be actually able to read popular music as written but will at the same time be laying a foundation for a firm musical education.

All popular music is not necessarily jazz music, neither is all jazz music necessarily popular music. This at first seems to be a paradox but you can be assured that Gershwin's "Rhapsodie in Blue," Stravinsky's "Rag Time," Debussy's "Golliwog's Cake-Walk" or John Alden Carpenter's "Sky-Scrapers" is ultra-jazz, yet it is not popular music and would demand the most sophisticated musician to appreciate it. On the other hand Stephen Foster's "Old Folks at Home," Rubinstein's "Melody in F" or Mendelssohn's "Songs Without Words" are not jazz yet very popular music.

After all, popular music is familiar music and that is the kind most of us long to play. The sooner you begin with the Shefte Course in Modern Piano Playing the sooner will you experience the joy of playing the piano.

POETRY

The Spinner.

The spinner twisted her slender thread
As she sat and spun:
"The earth and the heavens are mine," she said,
"And the moon and the sun;
Into my web the sunlight goes,
And the breath of May,
And the crimson life of the new-blown rose
That was born today."

The spinner sang in the hush of noon
And her song was low:
"Ah, morning, you pass away too soon,
You are swift to go.
My heart o'erflows like a brimming cup
With its hopes and fears,
Love, come and drink the sweetness up
Ere it turn to tears!"

The spinner looked at the falling sun:
"Is it time to rest?
My hands are weary—my work is done;
I have wrought my best;
I have spun and woven with patient eyes
And with fingers fleet,
Lo, where the foil of a lifetime lies
In a winding sheet!"

—Mary Ainge De Vere.

Sleep.

When to soft Sleep we give ourselves away,
And in a dream, as in a fairy bark,
Drift on and on through the enchanted dark
To purple daybreak—little thought we pay
To that sweet, bitter world we know by day.
We are clean quit of it, as is a lark
So high in heaven no human eye can mark
The thin swift pinion cleaving through the gray.
Till we awake ill-fate can do no ill.
The resting heart shall not take up again
The heavy load that yet must make it bleed;
For this brief space the loud world's voice is still,
No faintest echo of it brings us pain.
How will it be when we shall sleep indeed?

The American mountain lion is powerful enough to be dangerous to man, but is really extremely timid.

Mrs. Louisa Scudder Wheeler of Freehold, N. J., although she has just turned 101, attends to her duties about her house, which include stoking the furnace.

A protest that no man had entered her home for twenty years was made from behind a locked door by Mrs. F. A. Hamilton, wealthy and elderly resident of Ontario, Cal., when firemen came to rescue her from her burning home. They broke down the door and carried the woman to safety.

Two dirigibles now being built in England will be taken on trial flights in 1928 on the proposed Australia-London air route under present plans of the British air ministry. It is believed that the air route to Australia will reduce the time of making the journey to ten days. If operation of the route is successful it is expected airways to other parts of the British empire will be established.

The motor truck gradually is replacing the high two-wheel mule cart in hauling nitrate ores from the mines to plants in northern Chile. Business depression during the last two years has demonstrated to operators that a truck has little overhead when idle whereas mules have to be fed and drivers paid. It is estimated that within the year the number of trucks and tractors used has increased 75 per cent.

That gooseberry plants in Norway must acquire resistance to an American fungus or die is the conclusion of Dr. Ivar Jorstad of Oslo. The fungus in the case is the one that causes gooseberry mildew. Until a quarter of a century ago it was unknown outside of America. Then it was introduced into Europe and has now spread to most European gooseberry regions. The fungus has long been known in America, but has never done much harm to American berries. Evidently they had acquired a certain amount of resistance to it.

The flaxen-haired dolls that used to enchant the hearts of little girls around Christmas time have somehow lost that attractive quality. Less than one doll in five sold nowadays is a blond, according to a careful counting of doll heads by the toy industry. And long curls are about as rare on bisque and composition babies as on the children who mother them. Fashions influence the doll world to a surprising extent. A few years ago chubbiness was a sign of beauty in dolls, but now that slenderness is the rule dolls above the age of baby clothes are noticeably thinner. Wider use of cosmetics is being practiced by doll flappers, too, judging from the vividness of lips and cheeks on those displayed.

FORMER PREMIER ASQUITH TO BE BURIED PRIVATELY

Memorial Services Will Be Held in Westminster Abbey at Noon February 21—The Earl of Oxford and Asquith Died Early Yesterday Morning at Sutton Courtenay, Eng.—Britons Generally Are Praising His Life of Service and Mourning His Death.

SUTTON COURTENAY, England, Feb. 15—(AP)—While eminent men and the press of Great Britain praised the Earl of Oxford's life of service and mourned his death, the body of the aged statesman, who died at his home here early today, was carried tonight to the parish church of Sutton Courtenay, where it will rest until plans for its interment are finally settled.

Praise of the Earl of Oxford and Asquith as a great parliamentarian, a forceful, gracious debater and an unselfish servant of the nation's welfare, is contained in thousands of messages of condolence published and received by his widow. All recall his activities in the early days of the war, when, as prime minister, he breathed the British spirit of confident courage.

In the face of Germany's seemingly irresistible advance when he said:

"We shall never sheathe the sword which we have not lightly drawn until Belgium recovers in full measure all, and more than all, she has sacrificed; until France is adequately secured against the menace of aggression; until the rights of the smaller nationalities of Europe are placed upon an unassailable foundation, and until the military domination of Prussia is wholly and finally destroyed."

FAMILY HAS DECIDED ON PRIVATE BURIAL

LONDON, Feb. 15—(AP)—The Earl of Oxford and Asquith will be buried privately, and not in Westminster Abbey. This announcement was made tonight by the family and the decision was in accordance with the special wish expressed by Lord Oxford some time ago.

Memorial service for the former premier, however, will be held in the abbey at noon, February 21.

PLANE WITH 19 PERSONS PLUNGED INTO FLA. BAY

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 15—(AP)—A Cuba-American Air Lines seaplane, carrying 19 persons, plunged into Biscayne bay, two miles from shore late today, seriously injuring Ray Jackson, 38, of Miami. Members of the crew, a government inspector and 12 other passengers, suffered only minor bruises and shock when the plane fell to the water from an altitude of 200 feet.

The crash came when one of the plane's two motors stopped without warning while the machine was tilted into a turn and the power of the second motor was not sufficient to straighten the craft out in the air.

Charles A. Rowe, pilot, leveled the machine just before it struck the water, but the force of the impact ripped the bottom out of the cabin and cockpit. The plane sank.

Jackson's right hand was severed when he attempted to save himself by grasping the still revolving propeller of the second motor.

Some the plane's passengers, among whom were five women, were thrown into the water through the bottom and others crawled out the cabin door. The pilot and mechanics climbed to safety from the cockpit.

A. B. Chalk, piloting a plane of the Causeways Airways, saw the crash from the air and landed his plane near a ship dock and enlisted aid of a speedboat which proceeded to the scene of the accident and picked up the passengers and crew of the wrecked ship.

The plane was making a test flight for carrying capacity and the passengers had been selected at random from a group of spectators at the Municipal Seaplane base.

Leo C. Wilson, United States district aviation inspector, who was in the party, exonerated the pilot of blame.

TILSON IN CONFERENCE ON NAVAL CONSTRUCTION

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15—(AP)—Three republican house leaders, Speaker Longworth, Tilson, the majority floor leader, and Madden, chairman of the important appropriations committee, conferred today over the advisability of congress authorizing an increase in naval construction.

While no definite conclusion was reached Tilson said that the three felt that a reasonable increase in ships should be authorized, funds to be appropriated as the condition of the treasury might warrant.

Tilson said that it was felt that the need for additional cruisers was of first importance and that while it might not be advisable to provide for 15, the number proposed in the administration's program, some at least should be authorized.

In regard to aircraft carriers, both Tilson and Madden emphasized that a proposal by Lawrence Wilder for establishment of a line of fast merchant ships that would supplement their service with airplanes at both sides of the Atlantic, had been discussed at considerable length. Both said they were impressed with the Wilder proposal, and Tilson added that in view of the possibility of such ships being built that it might be best to provide for only one small aircraft carrier instead of the five suggested in the program.

The belief of Longworth, Tilson and Madden that it probably would be unwise to set a definite completion date for any construction authorized is in line with the views of President Coolidge.

MRS. COOLIDGE REPORTED IN IMPROVED CONDITION

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15—(AP)—White house physicians said today they were considerably encouraged over the improved condition of Mrs. Coolidge who has been ill for a week with a severe cold.

She spent the most restful night since she was taken ill, they reported and the plain in her side is giving her less trouble. The plain is believed to have been caused bya local irritation from the cold. There is no concern felt by her doctors over her condition except for the discomfort to which she has been subjected.

Mrs. Coolidge was unable to participate in the entertainment of Governor and Mrs. Trumbull of Connecticut and their daughter, Florence, who were overnight white house guests while here to attend several social functions. The governor and his family left this evening for home.

HELENE COSTELLO HAS FILED SUIT FOR DIVORCE

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 15—(AP)—Helene Costello, film actress, filed suit in superior court today for a divorce from John W. Regan. The screen star is the youngest daughter of Maurice Costello, veteran movie actor.

Miss Costello alleged her husband drank to an excess, used harsh language and that he has worked only about four weeks during their married life of six months.

Regan is the son of a wealthy New York family. The marriage was said to be the result of a childhood romance.

GIRL KIDNAPED FROM STREET IN WATERBURY

WATERBURY, Feb. 15—(AP)—Emily Radvilas, 9, of 52 Poplar street, was seized from behind by a man, thrust into a car and spirited away as she was returning home from school at 4:15 o'clock this afternoon. Mrs. Antanas Radvilas, step-mother of the girl who had alighted from a trolley a block away witnessed the kidnaping and secured the car markers through which police traced the machine to a rental agency and learned the name of the man who rented it. A watch is being kept on the garage by police for the return of the man.

From stories told to police by the girl's father and step-mother, it is believed that Mrs. Charles Olinauskas, until recently of South Leonard street, mother of Emily, caused her to be kidnaped. Antanas Radvilas had secured a divorce from his first wife three years ago and was given custody of Emily, the only child. Since that time both parents have married again. Mrs. Olinauskas is said by the Radvilas family to have once before attempted to kidnap the child. Two weeks ago, it is said the mother went to the school Emily attends and told Emily she was going away soon and asked the little girl if she wanted to go with her. The child refused. The mother has since moved from Waterbury.

"RED" SAVAGE IDENTIFIED BY P. O. NIGHT WATCHMAN

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Feb. 15—(AP)—While George "Red" Savage shook his head from side to side saying "No, no," Peter E. Rafferty, night watchman at the Pawtucket post office, in the federal district court here today identified Savage as the man who used the acetylene torch which cut away the vault in the post office when it was looted of $250,000 in stamps February 1, 1926.

"Pawtucket Johnny" Conley, on trial with Savage for the theft, was also identified by Rafferty as the man who led the gang which committed the robbery.

Rafferty said Conley was masked during the robbery, in which Rafferty and George Sullivan, a mail clerk, were overpowered and bound. The witness declared, however, that he recognized Conley by his low, well-modulated voice and his height and general build.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Feb. 15—(AP)—Arriving here from Montauk, L. I., tonight on the coast guard destroyer Marion, Herbert Hartley, former commodore of the United States lines and captain of the Leviathan, began his inspection of facilities at this point for the accommodation of proposed four-day trans-Atlantic liners.

Hartley, accompanied by Joseph Sheedy, formerly with the United States shipping board, will remain here until tomorrow afternoon. They had inspected at Montauk Point and proceeded here in the interests of the Tarns-Oceanic corporation which proposes to establish fast ship and airplane feeder transportation between this country and Europe.

FAVORABLE REPORT ON McNARY-HAUGEN BILL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15—(AP)—The farm relief issue was catapulted into the senate today when its agriculture committee ordered a favorable report of the revised McNary-Haugen bill after only two hours consideration.

Still carrying the equalization fee provision opposed by President Coolidge in vetoing the McNary-Haugen measure last year, the new bill does meet many of the objections of the president, in the opinion of Senator McNary, republican, Oregon, its co-author.

It was shot into the senate while the house agricultural committee was wrangling along on its fifth week of hearings over an almost identical measure sponsored by Representative Haugen, republican, Iowa, but there was no indication from Chairman McNary of the agriculture committee or from senate leaders as to how early it would be pressed to a vote.

Senate farm leaders had hoped the house committee would act first on farm relief but the McNary-Haugen opposition there resisted stubbornly. Turning to the senate committee, advocates of the bill won a quick battle. Without previous hearings, time was taken only to permit authors of other farm measures to explain their bills. Members of the committee present voted unanimously to put the new McNary measure up to the senate.

Informed of this action, Chairman Haugen of the house committee promised early definite action by his committee on his companion bill and senate leaders are still hopeful of having the house make the first move on the floor.

NEGOTIATING MERGER OF THREE NEW YORK BANKS

NEW YORK, Feb. 15—(AP)—Consolation of three New York banks into a billion dollar financial institution may result from negotiations now being carried on by A. P. Giannini, head of the Bancitaly corporation and officials of the Manufacturers Trust company, it was learned today. The merger, which would rival in size the National City and Chase National banks, would comprise the Bank of Italy, Manufacturers Trust and the Bank of America.

Although no official confirmation of the proposed combination has been given, it is known that Mr. Giannini has been in New York for two weeks, conferring with Nathan Jonas, president of the Manufacturers Trust company, and Ralph Jonas, president of the Industrial Securities corporation, which is said to control the Bank of America. The Bancitaly corporation already holds large interests in both Bankers Trust and Bank of America.

A final decision on the plan to merge the three banks is believed to have been brought nearer by a decision by the court of appeals of New York state invalidating the voting trust which for three years has controlled the Bank of America.

Argentine Delegate At Havana Obdurate

Pueyrredon Will Resign if Ordered [illegible] His Government to [illegible] Convention Which [illegible] Approved.

HAVANA, Feb. 15—(AP)—Reports that Honorio Pueyrredon, irreconcilable Argentine leader, had tendered his resignation to the Buenos Aires government, did not deter the Pan-American conference from completing the first reading of the Pan-American union convention today by approving the last article. This was designed especially to save the unanimous desires of all the other American republics from being frustrated by one country.

Rumors that Dr. Pueyrredon had resigned dominated the conference buildings when it was noted that the Argentine delegation was absent from the meeting of the committee on Pan-American union affairs this morning, at which a proposition bearing vitally upon Pueyrredon's attitude came up for discussion.

The rumors were greatly strengthened a few hours later when, after being unavailable all morning, even to members of his own delegation, Dr. Pueyrredon said he could not discuss whether he had or had not tendered his resignation. At his headquarters it was learned, however, that his stand was firmly established in favor of resigning both from his position here and from the ambassadorship at Washington, if ordered by his government to sign a convention of which he disapproved.

The Pan-American union committee met in the morning determined to put an end to the crisis which was precipitated more than a month ago by Argentine insistence that the proposed convention to regulate the activities of the union should include specifically the necessity of reducing excessive tariffs and removing other obstacles to the free flow of inter-American commerce.

Spurred by reports that the Argentine government doubted the advisability of standing alone in this demand, the committee considered and approved a proposal submitted by Jacobo Varela, of Uruguay, that the convention be open for later signature and ratification to the governments whose delegates failed to affix their names here.

The article approved empowers the president of this conference to transmit to such governments certified copies of the agreement for their consideration and possible ratification and signature. The convention would not become effective until all countries present at this conference ratified it.

The delegates hoped that this provision would prevent Dr. Pueyrredon from killing off the convention by refusing to sign it, as he announced, since opportunity would be offered Argentina to repudiate the attitude of its representative at the conference.

NEW ARTIFICIAL RADIUM RADIATION DEVELOPMENT

NEW YORK, Feb. 15—(AP)—Development of a 900,000 volt cathode ray tube, regarded as an important step toward the production of artificial radium radiation, was announced tonight by Dr. W. D. Coolidge, assistant director of the General Electric company's research laboratory at Schenectady.

The announcement was made before the American Institute of Electric Engineers, which gave Dr. Coolidge the Edison medal for his "contributions to the incandescent electric lighting and X-ray arts." John J. Carty, vice president of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, received the John Fritz medal for "pioneer achievement in telephone engineering and in the development of research in the telephone art."

The new Coolidge tube is a three-in-one arrangement of its 300,000 volt predecessor which the scientist developed two years ago. Electrons are expelled from the gigantic glass container at a rate of 175,000 miles a second, nearly the speed of light rays.

Dr. Coolidge is faced with the problem of what to do with these high speed particles.

"We will experiment with them," he said. "They should eventually help us to further knowledge of radiation laws and the nature of the atom's nucleus. It is not unlikely that therapeutic, bactericidal, chemical and other practical uses will develop."

Senate Evades Probe of Public Utilities

Votes That the Investigation Be Conducted by the Federal Trade Commission—Walsh Defeated.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15—(AP)—By a margin of 15 votes the senate tonight referred to the federal trade commission the investigation of the financing of public utilities power corporations. The vote was 46 to 31 with party lines obliterated.

The showdown came on an amendment by Senator George, democrat, Georgia, to the original proposal of Senator Walsh, Montana, that the senate itself conduct the inquiry through a special committee of five to be elected by the membership.

The vote was reached shortly after 9 p. m., after the senate had been in session for more than nine hours and after proponents of the Walsh plan had made three separate attempts to force the final vote over until tomorrow or later.

Taking up the last hour of the debate, Senator Walsh sketched some of the evidence he had intended to present to the investigating committee. He told the senate that it showed millions in "excessive and inordinate profits" to organizers of holding companies for public utilities, profits which he contended the consumers were obliged to pay for in the form of rates.

The Montanan supplemented his remarks as he went along with documentary evidence inserted in the Congressional Record.

FORMER HARTFORD WOMAN MURDERED IN ALBANY

HARTFORD, Feb. 15—(AP)—Mrs. Henrietta Champion, 33, known in Albany where she was murdered tonight as Marie Williams, was the daughter of Mrs. Patrick P. O'Reilly of 54 Village street, Hartford.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Reilly, when seen at their home were deeply shocked to hear of the young woman's death. They professed to know little of her life in Albany, and the only address of Mrs. Champion which they had was general delivery. She left Hartford a year ago to work in an Albany hotel and they believed her to be still engaged in that work.

Last Sunday, they expected her home on a visit but instead they got a telegram reading "Mother, can't come home this week. Other waitress sick." Mrs. O'Reilly said she corresponded with her daughter at intervals but indicated that the girl kept much of her life hidden.

Mrs. Champion was divorced six years ago from her husband, who is now believed to be in Deep River. She had stored her furniture with the Charter Oak Trucking company, according to H. G. Alling, president of the company, and two or three times had taken it out of storage, living at various times on Walnut street, Bedford street and Market street, here.

Her assailant, whose name was withheld by police, escaped. Mrs. Williams managed to gasp out the name and description of the man to police and to declare that jealousy prompted the attack. Mrs. Williams came here about two years ago from Hartford, Conn., after she had separated from her husband police said they learned.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15—(AP)—While the seante now has under way only two major investigations, those into the oil scandal and the Vare-Wilson senatorial election in Pennsylvania—several others are in prospect and many others have been proposed.

Senator Bruce, democrat, Maryland, in debate on the proposed public utilities investigation, accused the senate today of having an "investigation mania" and said it now had 18 inquiries either under way or proposed. Afterwards he agreed that number fell slightly short of the mark.

A new one was authorized during the day, that into whether there has been manipulation of the cotton market, and another was made imminent by the approval of the Johnson coal strike investigation resolution by the interstate commerce committee.

Here are some of the other subjects into which it has been proposed investigations shall be made:

COURT DECISION UPHOLDS CLAIMS OF A. F. OF L. LEADERS

Leaders of Organized Labor Win Fight Against "Company Unions"—New York State Supreme Court Finds Invalid the Contracts Between the I. R. T. Co. and Its Employes Binding the Latter Not to Join Any But the Company Union—Refuses to Enjoin the A. F. of L. From Pressing Its Efforts to Organize the Transit Forces.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15—(AP)—A court decision hailed by leaders of organized labor as a far reaching precedent in their wide fight against "company unions" was handed down today by the New York state supreme court.

Contracts between the Interborough Rapid Transit company and its employes binding the latter not to join any but the company union are invalid, the court held, and it refused to enjoin the American Federation of Labor from pressing its efforts to organize the transit forces.

The company announced an appeal to the higher courts. The fight over unionization between organized labor and the I. R. T. which has its own "company union," has attracted more than ordinary attention. Last July it was about to cause a strike on lines used by more than 4,000,000 people when Mayor Walker intervened and succeeded in his advocation of more peaceable methods.

The I. R. T. asked in supreme court for injunctions prohibiting the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes of America, an A. F. of L., from organizing the subway and "L" men. This was refused today as was another motion to punish officials of the Amalgamated and others for contempt of court.

Justice Wasservogel held that organized labor had not used subversive methods in its organizing work among the I. R. T. men and that an agreement entered into by I. R. T. employes not to join any but the company union was not binding.

The supreme court ruling was hailed as a signal victory by organized labor and it was announced that unionization of the I. R. T. men would go forward immediately. Close on this announcement came a statement from counsel for the I. R. T. that an appeal would be taken.

In Washington, William Green, president of the A. F. of L., said today's court action demonstrated that the court recognized modern conditions "and is unwilling to strain legal authority to prevent workers exercising their human rights."

United States Senator Wagner, of New York, of counsel for labor in the dispute, said the ruling makes New York one of the most liberal jurisdictions in the country so far as labor is concerned. He anticipated that an appeal would be taken but said that meanwhile the unionization would proceed.

M'CRAY TESTIFIED IN TRIAL OF GOVERNOR ED. JACKSON

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 15.—(AP)—Warren T. McCray, former governor of Indiana, who recently was paroled from federal prison, today was called upon by the state to help convict the present governor, Ed Jackson, on a charge of bribery. McCray testified that Jackson offered him $10,000 to bring about the appointment of a prosecuting attorney for Marion county, of which Indianapolis is the county seat, but that he refused.

McCray, the last witness of the day, appeared feeble for his 63 years and was helped to the witness sand by a court attache. After testifying that Fred B. Robinson, his former political campaign manager, had presented a proposition as agent for a group of men in which $10,000 was offered for the prosecutorship, the former governor launched into a description of the visit made him by Jackson, a short time after Robinson had been turned down.

McCray was convicted in federal court for using the mails to defraud. He was released late last summer after serving a little more than three years of his sentence.

D. C. Stephenson, once the "law" in Indiana, and now serving a life term at the state prison, told on the witness stand how he furnished the $10,000 which was offered to McCray.

HICKMAN TO FIGHT AGAINST SECOND DEATH SENTENCE

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 15.—(AP)—A stubborn fight to save William Edward Hickman from a second death sentence was begun by defense attorneys in superior court here today with the selection of a jury to try the youth and his former pal, Welby Hunt, 16, for the murder of Ivy Thoms, druggist, in an attempted holdup.

Hickman went to trial 24 hours after he had been sentenced to death for the kidnaping and slaying of Marian Parker.

Determination of Hickman's counsel, headed by Jerome Walsh, young Kansas City attorney, to contest every step of the way, which District Attorney Ass Keyes declares will lead Hickman to the gallows, was evidenced in the examination of prospective jurors and an attempt expressed by several talesmen caused their dismissal.

Richard Cantillon, associate of Walsh declared a jury would not be accepted by the defense until all that side's peremptory challenges had been exhausted.

OPPOSED TO EXPANSION OF THE AMERICAN NAVY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15—(AP)—Spokesmen for organizations opposed to expansion of the American navy today registered an emphatic protest before the house naval committee against the administration's plans for the construction of 71 new warships.

Two witnesses, William I. Hull, representing the World Alliance for International Friendship and the Church Peace union, and the Rev. Arthur J. Brown, secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, both opposed the program, but their testimony did not run along parallel lines.

Hull, after reading a prepared statement, was subjected to close questioning by upwards of a dozen committee members, two of whom accused him of evading the issue and giving indirect answers.

On the other hand, Brown, who stressed that he was in favor of an army and navy for defense and opposed only to the prospective increase, was complimented by several members, who declared his views coincided largely with their own.

"There could be no more inappropriate moment than this to talk about enlarging our naval forces," Brown declared.

Representative Britten, republican, Illinois, interrupted to say that President Coolidge regarded the program, which contemplates the construction of 25 cruisers, five aircraft carriers, nine destroyer leaders and 52 submarines, largely as a replacement program.

If that is the case, Brown replied, the program has been misrepresented and misunderstood throughout the world.

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 15—Maine day, celebrated as the 30th anniversary of the sinking of the battleship Maine in the harbor of Havana with the loss of many brave American sailors, was fittingly observed here today. In response to a proclamation of Mayor Charles A. Gates made upon a recommendation of Governor John H. Trumbull and a petition of Augustus C. Tyler camp No. 8, United Spanish War veterans, there was a generous display of flags in the business and residential sections of the city. On the staffs of the public buildings in the city Old Glory was at half mast. Every school in the town and city devoted a half hour to the commemoration of the event and in eulogy of those who gave up their lives that liberty might endure. The teachers of the grades read copies of the proclamation issued by Governor Trumbull, the copies having been furnished by the veteran camp. The history of the sinking of the Maine was then related and in some of the grades the pupils gave recitations on the event. In several of the exercises Colonel Lindbergh, idol of the American youth, was given a part in the program.

There was considerable local interest in the wedding of Rene L. Liegeot and Miss Elizabeth Simpson of St. Joseph's cathedral in Hartford Tuesday. The bride is the daughter of Joseph F. A severe rainstorm swept over this section Tuesday night and returned in intervals until early this morning. The storm left in its wake a mass of debris that had been washed down the gutters from the hill section and accumulated near the drains and on the road on Valley, Jackson and Main streets. The waters of the Willimantic, Natchaug and Shetucket rivers were swelled and the ice was broken up and swept away. On the Willimantic river cove near the ice plant of Louis N. Ayer, work of harvesting ice had to be abandoned today. The river was open west of the upper dam at the former Quidnick-Windham company plant. Despite a few inches of water which covered the ice at the municipal pond in Mansfield, work was continued today cutting and harvesting the crop. The houses are now two-thirds full and it is hoped to finish the harvesting by Friday. While men, equipped with boots, cut ice on the pond, inches of water was pouring over the dam, a few hundred yards below.

Mayor Charles A. Gates and Alderman O. L. Leonard and William E. Jackson of the street committee were called to visit Whittemore park, near what is known as Park spring on upper Jackson street, this morning where they found that two of the temporary streets in the park had been completely washed. The water from the heavy overnight rain had washed out holes in the dirt streets to a depth of several feet. In some places the water pipes were exposed by the washouts. An investigation disclosed that most of the damage was caused by the blocking up of a drain near the home of one of the residents of the section. The streets through the park have not as yet been taken over as city thoroughfares but an effort has been made to keep them passable. While inspecting the damage done on the Whittemore park streets by the water, the city officials received a complaint that a number of the stately oak trees in the park had been chopped down and cut up into cord wood. Inquiries revealed that the trees had been chopped by members of the water department, according to the officials, and an order has been issued to put a stop to this practice as the trees are considered valuable assets to the municipal park. It is understood that the wood was taken to the city yard and used there for heating purposes.

"For years I have watched The American Tobacco Company's buyers purchase for their brand of LUCKY STRIKE. They buy 'The Cream of the Crop' in the fine Tobacco Districts. They use it in LUCKY STRIKE. I have no hesitation in testifying to this fact which is known throughout the Southland by every Farmer growing Tobacco." C. W. Payne

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT BATTERY ROSE BALL

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Feb. 15—This evening the state armory was transformed into a huge rose bower for the Rose ball sponsored jointly by the Service battery and members of the Danielson Girls' club, the last event of the kind, except some informal dances, scheduled before the beginning of the lenten season.

Thousands of paper roses in flesh pink shade had been fashioned by the members of the Girls' club for use in the decorative scheme, which also involved the employment of a large amount of crepe paper, prettily and artistically arranged. The decorating was effectively planned and executed by Ralph Shoales, with a staff of assistants.

The ball attracted attendance from many sections of eastern Connecticut. Miss Annie Gates, chairman of the committee representing the Girls' club in the committee of arrangements, and Emil Meunier, chairman of the Service battery committee on arrangements, led the grand march, in which a large number of couples participated. Flower girls distributed artificial rose buds to the couples during the march. Music was by Bob McDonald's orchestra. At intermission refreshments were served.

ICEMEN DISPAIR OF HARVESTING ICE CROP

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Feb. 15—Today hope of getting ice sufficient for the needs of Danielson for the remainder of the year tumbled to about zero, and there began to loom the spectre of an ice shortage throughout next summer and the high prices that would go with it.

Heavy rain with a south wind and high temperature throughout last night, followed by thawing weather this morning and rain again this afternoon just about wiped out the prospect of any worth-while ice this season.

That is the pessimistic view. Ice at Quinebaug lake had shrunk to a thickness of about five inches by this afternoon and continued to shrink under the thawing weather and rain. At least a week of steadily cold, freezing weather would be necessary to build the ice up to harvesting thickness again. March is only two weeks away. All of these things considered, the prospect of a harvest looks bad. Not in a score of years has a situation like this prevailed here, and it is worrying consumers of ice as well as dealers in the product. There is this to be said about the situation. At no time this winter has an occasion to get ice slipped by unimproved. Every time the ice has approached cutting thickness a break in the weather has thinned it out. That thing has just happened again, and the last chance may now be gone.

There is a cheering note, however, in the fact that ice has been harvested at Quinebaug lake and elsewhere for use in Danielson in March; not often, but it has been done.

Of course, Danielson will have ice in any event next summer, but if it is not cut here and has to be shipped in from the north, it is going to cost plenty and add a summer price penalty to compensate for the unusual mildness of the present winter.

Misses Beatrice Ableman of Norwich and Margaret Torrey of Central Village, members of the senior class at the Connecticut Agricultural college, are for a month to be with the teaching staff in the domestic science department at Killingly High school, preparing themselves by actual experience with classes for the teaching they are to take up the coming fall. They are to be followed by other members of their class, assisting the domestic science teachers with classes at Killingly high school.

Mrs. Susie G. Williams, Brooklyn, secretary of Quinebaug Pomona grange, has prepared announcements for the February meeting of the organization to be held on Saturday, Feb. 25, with Putnam grange in Elks' hall in that city. At the morning session general business is to be transacted and reports given by the treasurer, secretary and executive committee. Dinner is to be served by Putnam grange.

The afternoon session, open to all grangers, is to be featured by an interesting program. What is announced as an inspirational address is to be given by State Senator Alice Pattison Merritt of Hartford. Another address on Opportunities for 4-H club work will be by Miss Marion Standen, the Windham county club agent. Musical features of the program include numbers by instrumental quartet made up of Mrs. Dorothy Prince, violinist, Mrs. Helen Torrey, violinist, Miss Gertrude C. Warner, cellist, and Mrs. Katherine S. Lown; vocal solos by Miss Louise Pike, director of music in rural schools.

Mrs. Williams announces that the April meeting of Quinebaug Pomona grange is to be held with Brooklyn grange, and the May meeting at Mansfield Center with Echo grange. Wolf Den grange of Pomfret gets the October meeting, and Canterbury grange the meeting scheduled for next December. This year the annual field meeting is to be held in Thompson, on a date in August.

Announcement has been received here the death at the Palmer Memorial hospital in Boston of Rev. Edwin A. Blake, D. D., formerly a resident of Brooklyn. Following the death of Mrs. Blake in Brooklyn, some eight or nine years ago, Rev. Dr. Blake sold his property there and went into Massachusetts to make his home. He has been in failing health for a number of years and a hospital patient for a long time. He was 81 years of age. While a resident of Brooklyn, to which community he came to live after having retired from the active ministry, he served the church in Canterbury for a year and later was for three or four years acting pastor of the Union Baptist church at East Killingly. Dr. Blake was of an especially kindly disposition and possessed of a faculty of making and holding a great many friends. His broad culture and experience of life made him highly interesting as a speaker. He had traveled extensively, spending much time in the Holy land, and in addition to his ministry had lectured on Chautauqua circuits and independently with great success. He leaves three daughters, one of them adopted. Dr. Blake died on Monday of this week.

An entertainment that pleased and one that was financially successful was the minstrel show presented last evening in the auditorium of the high school building by a cast of Putnam and Danielson people under the auspices of the County Y. M. C. A. organization and the Killingly Woman's club. The personnel of the cast was the same as presented the old-time minstrel show, for such it was, with numbers of added features, at the Bradley theatre the previous evening.

This evening a special motor coach of the New England line left Danielson conveying 36 women and girls who are members of the Social club to Providence on a theatre party, which is followed by a dinner. The club meets weekly throughout the fall and winter season for whist, and each year brings its social activities to a close just prior to the beginning of the lenten season. In other years it has been customary to have a banquet as a closing event, but this year the visit to Providence was scheduled instead.

Della Norten of South Killingly has a nice saddle horse to let.—adv.

Today Deputy Game Warden Gurdon E. Withey removed from the Quinebaug river at the Dyer dam the carcass of a deer that had drowned after someone had shot the animal in the shoulder.

Miss Martha Davis, after an illness with pneumonia, is able to be out again and Betty, another little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irving W. Davis of Broad street is recovering from an illness.

In addition to the Washington's birthday holiday of next week pupils in the schools of Killingly are to have the week of February 27 as a vacation period, it being at the end of an eight week term. Two more terms of eight weeks and one of six weeks will round out the school year.

Wings was the subject of the address by Rev. Charles A. Downs at the services at the Goodyear church on Sunday, his text being Isa. 40:31. Special music by the choir included a solo by William Norton and a duet by Mrs. Joseph Green and Miss Nancy Whittaker.

Charles Bragg of the Central Worsted company has been confined by illness to his home in Central Village.

To date this season Ell J. Dagenais and John Harrington have a record of 19 foxes killed in territory not distant from Danielson.

On Thursday evening Rev. James F. English, pastor of the Second Congregational church at Putnam is to be the speaker at the ladies' night meeting of the Danielson Rotary club.

Sessions of the evening school, although the attendance has dwindled somewhat, continue regularly and will into the latter part of April. The sessions are held in the high school building three nights each week.

Some excavating that was being done here today revealed that there is comparatively little frost in the ground for this time of year.

Friday of this week brings the big meeting of Windham County dairymen at Grange hall in Brooklyn. There are to be morning and afternoon sessions.

Officers of the special troops of the 43rd division are coming here Thursday evening of next week at the invitation of Major E. L. Darbie, and will meet at the state armory.

Mrs. Laura Thyng of Attawaugan is away on a visit with her sons and their families at Chester, Pa., and Wilmington, Del.

A special meeting of the standing committee of the Westfield Congregational church was held in the Jacobs library this evening.

Street surfaces, subjected to hard wear and little protection by coverings of snow are showing very considerable wear in Danielson at this period of the winter.

Members of Killingly's board of relief have only four more meetings scheduled for hearings of any matter that it is proper for citizens to bring before them.

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT PAST EXALTED RULERS NIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Feb. 15—Past exalted rulers night was observed by the Putnam lodge of Elks in their lodge rooms Tuesday evening. At 7 o'clock there was a banquet for all the past rulers with the present officers of the lodge. Every past exalted ruler living was present except three, who were out of town and could not possibly attend. The deceased officers were remembered by a large basket of flowers on the table. There names were read by the secretary at 11 p. m. They are, Henry L. Hammond, William F. Rafferty, Michael R. Joy, Richard R. Gorman, Walter J. Bartlett and A. Newton Vaughn.

During the course of the meal, Exalted Ruler John H. Buliger was surprised with a large birthday cake, it being his 46th birthday. After the banquet there was a regular session of the lodge, with the following past rulers taking over the offices: Exalted ruler, James E. Murray; esteemed leading knight, A. Graydon Sharpe; esteemed loyal knight, Archibald Macdonald, Jr.; esteemed lecturing knight, John J. McGarry; esquire, Lucius P. Merriam; secretary, George Lewis, Jr.; treasurer, Andrew V. Frost; chaplain, Edward W. Mullan; inner guard, Prosper Vegiard; organist, Ralph Thurston.

At the closing of the business meeting the lodge went on to a social session and entertainment by a group of high class entertainers from Provi- selections played on various musical dence. The first number was a group of instruments by Miss Brewer a very talented musician. She was accompanied by Chester Miller, baritone who sang many pleasing selections. Mr. Miller is widely known for his singing, he being one of the singers at the Elks memorial day exercises last fall. The second number was a group of old time songs by Miss Ruth Role of Providence, she was accompanied at the piano by Jack Clark, of radio station WEAN fame. Mr. Clark also rendered solo selections on the piano. The last number was a variety of funny stories and anecdotes and songs by Tom Mulgrew, well known in Providence theatrical circles. The evening was well attended by many Elks from Putnam, Danielson, and other surrounding towns.

COUNCIL VOTES TO HOLD SPECIAL CITY MEETING

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Feb. 15—The adjourned meeting of the common council was held last evening at the council chamber. Every councilman was in his place at roll call excepting Alderman Carroll. The much discussed water situation was brought up before the governing body of the city. The board of water commissioners were present and they were asked numerous questions by the aldermen as to the conditions of the city water works and the work done so far on the new plans. Chairman of the board, Alex Gilman, stated that no work had been done outside of the engaging of hydraulic engineers to submit plans for the present needs of the system.

The idea of how the city could afford to issue bonds to pay for the $135,000 dollar addition to the water system was fought out by many heated debates by Attorney Irving H. Miron, ex-Alderman E. C. Rogers and Mayor Richard. Attorney Miron represented the signers of the petition, while Mr. Rogers spoke of the interests of the taxpayers, and users of water.

After many debates showing clearly both sides of the question, the council voted unanimously in favor of granting the special city meeting to see if the citizens favor the building of a reservoir containing not less than a 2,000,000 gallon capacity of water. The date set for the meeting is February 27. The polls will be open from 9 a. m. in the forenoon until 5 p. m. in the afternoon.

A discussion over the paying of the bill of Engineer Saville, who was engaged to survey the system and submit plans of construction for the water system was finally decided to be referred to the finance committee for payment. The total amount of the engineer's bill for services amounted to $916.67.

The city budget for the year 1928 was read and accepted. The amounts allowed the various city departments for the year were: Fire department, $9,500; police department, $12,500; city court, $2,500; highway expenses, $11,500; sewer upkeep, $450; general expense, $3,500; street lights, $900; city clerk $450; city treasurer, $450; interest, $5,500; janitor $480; light for city building, $320; making a total of $55,050. After the reading of the budget, Mayor Charles A. Richard adjourned the council meeting until the regular monthly meeting of the body in March.

Many Putnam people were interested in the story and the photographs contained in one of the New York papers, concerning Cecil C. Campbell who is being held for the murder of his wife in Philadelphia, by police authorities in that city. Campbell was married in Putnam to the girl he married on May 18, 1922, by a Putnam minister.

Tuesday reporters and photographers were in Putnam gathering up notes and taking photographs of the town records for their paper. A photograph of the marriage certificate on file in the town clerks office was printed in the New York daily.

The funeral of Mrs. Verangina Tetreault, wife of Dr. Philias E. Tetreault was held from St. Mary's church, Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock, with a solemn high mass of requiem sung by Rev. Fr. Menard, of Lynn, Mass., as celebrant, Rev. Fr. Breoulet, of Woonsocket, deacon, Rev. Fr. Joseph D. Casey of Putnam, sub deacon, Rev. Fr. U. O. Bellerose of Putnam acted as master of ceremonies, with Rev. Fr. Marion of St. Ann's Fall River in the sanctuary. The mass was sung from Dion's funeral mass. A quartet from St. Ann's church in Fall River sang in the choir. There were many floral tributes at the church. She is survived by her husband Dr. P. E. Tetreault and by two sons, John and Paul. Burial was in the Notre Dame cemetery in Pawtucket, R. I.

Putnam people learned of the marriage of Miss Constance Lucile Russell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank F. Russell of Grove street to Thomas Burke Bowman, son of Mrs. George T. Bowman of East Orange, N. J., this week.

The ceremony took place on February 5, at the Trinity church in Daytona Beach, Florida and was performed by Rev. Frank W. Gee, pastor, assisted by Rev. R. D. Hatch formerly pastor of St. Phillip's church of this city.

The bride wore a simple afternoon gown of white georgette, trimmed with a fichu of rare old lace inherited from a great grandmother.

Mrs. Bowman is a graduate of Putnam high school and a student of Vassar college. She was forced to retire from this school owing to her ill health, in her senior year. After a short reception Mr. and Mrs. Bowman left on a wedding trip, with an unannounced destination.

In the city court this morning Aimee Basinet pleaded guilty to a charge of violation of the game laws. Basinet was arrested by Captain Jarvis of the Putnam police and County Game Warden J. Fred Ash upon a complaint from residents of Woodstock avenue. The youthful offender was fined $1.00 and costs of $4.00.

In memory of the 30th anniversary of the sinking of the battleship Maine, Rev. U. O. Bellerose, pastor of St. Mary's school gave the students of St. Mary's parochial school a half holiday Wednesday afternoon by closing the school at noon.

The Israel Putnam lodge of Odd Fellows worked the first degree at their hall on Pomfret street, Tuesday evening. The affair was largely attended by members of lodges from Willimantic, Danielson, Central Village, Webster Pascoag and Providence. After the degree, the grill committee served their guests a buffet lunch.

In memory of her husband, the late Walter J. Bartlett, Mrs. Dorothy J. Bartlett has presente dthe Putnam lodge of Elks a beautiful black oak gavel. The head of the gavel was bound with two silver bands bearing an inscription, "In memory of Walter J. Bartlett."

Wednesday was the thirtieth anniversary of the sinking of the battleship "Maine," a disaster that carried two hundred and sixty-four officers and crew of the ship to the bottom of the ocean when it was blown up off the coast of Havana. The day was generally observed in Putnam, in the schools and by the patriotic societies of the city. In Putnam high school the pupils were addressed by Charles Richardson, patriotic instructor of the A. Wilder Marriam camp of the United Spanish War veterans. Mayor Charles A. Richard issued a problamation that the day be observed by the flying of the national colors. Flags were flying in front of all the business houses in commemoration of the sinking of the famous battleship that was one of the causes of the war with Spain. The local Boy Scouts assisted in carrying out the proclamation of the mayor by raising flags on public buildings and private homes throughout the city.

EXPENDITURES AND TAX CUTTING

Much has been put forth in the way of advice concerning tax reduction as planned during the present session of congress. There has been talk about debt cutting, a big surplus and big appropriations and during it all the importance of sticking to the budget has been pointed out.

The older the session gets the greater is the realization of the wisdom that prompted the postponement of the tax reduction bill until the middle of next month that time might be allowed to learn what was going to be done, what the revenue was likely to be and what bearing they would have upon tax cutting.

Had the house plan been followed there would have been rushed through a bill for a bigger cut in taxes than conditions warranted in the view of the president and the treasury department. From the way in which appropriations are being sought and expenditures are being made there will be slight chance for any tax cut unless heed is given to warnings which are being issued. Instead of a surplus for the year there promises to be a deficit if there is no curb.

From this congress it was expected that large expenditures would be asked. These have not as yet been acted upon and it is possible that all that is asked will not be granted. But the tendency proves the justification for the delay in the tax reduction measure which Senator Smoot sought and got in the senate. Tax cutting must depend upon what is available for that purpose. If the congress appropriates more money than it should for various projects it will whittle down the surplus that is expected at the end of the year. If the surplus is whittled down it will kill the possibility of tax cutting to the extent which the whittling is done. If there is disregard for the limit of expenditures or the extent of the tax reduction it means plunging the treasury into a deficit.

The situation is approaching the point where some regard for the facts must be shown, if that isn't expecting too much of the federal law makers.

ADDITIONAL PROTECTION

From time to time railroads point with justifiable pride to the fact that the year has shown a decrease in the number of accidents on their lines. This may be in regard to the number of persons killed by its trains, the number injured in accidents or the number of employes who have been killed or injured in the operation of trains.

While this is being done there are times when railroads furnish appalling disasters. Trains crash into each other in rear end or head on collisions and it is invariably the case that this is because there has been a failure on the part of someone responsible for the safe guidance of such trains failing to obey orders or to heed signals.

Reliance is placed upon the human agent at the throttle of the locomotive to carry out orders and to see and obey signals. There are times when death intervenes and renders such a duty impossible. There are times when sleep gets the better of the engineer and there have been those instances when those in the cab have neglected their responsibility, disregarded signals and brought about their own deaths as well as the deaths of others.

Thus it has become necessary to reinforce the human agent. If he is at his post and on his job there is no need for the automatic train stops which railroads have been ordered to install. If he does not respect warnings and danger the electric train control, set in accord with orders given the engineer, is there to do the trick. It isn't expected that engineers will be any the less mindful of their responsibilities because there is this safeguard established. They should be all the more alert to see that it isn't required, but every new stretch of road which is so equipped furnishes additional protection to the traveling public.

Thus when it is announced that the New York Central has completed the installation of this device on its lines and that the Chicago & Northwestern has equipped 500 miles of its lines with it, a reduction of the possibilities of distressing railroad accidents can be anticipated over important stretches of the country's steam lines. Each additional bit of protection helps.

THE MOHAVE'S CASE

The piling up of the navy tug Mohave on Harding ledge off the Massachusetts coast furnishes cause for another investigation. In view of the fact that it happened under fairly favorable weather conditions there will be interest in such explanation as is gained of the cause for going onto the rocks when there were so much deep water to be had all about.

But while the reason for the striking the reef is being sought there is an equally good reason for learning why those three men who in all probability lost their lives by drowning were permitted to leave the tug as they did.

The Mohave was on the rocks. It could not sink much further and there was no immediate danger that it would go to pieces. The tug was able to send out signals of distress and tell of its location and trouble. This it did, but from a distance it would appear that the greater safety was to be obtained by remaining aboard and awaiting the arrival of help instead of putting out in a small craft. It wasn't necessary for the three to set out in search of assistance, but they left and from all indications were soon involved in worse trouble and practically helpless. Even those who were sent to their assistance from the tug could not locate them and had uncomfortable experiences before they reached shore.

The tug's officers should have been perfectly familiar with the locality where it struck inasmuch as they have been operating between Boston and Provincetown ever since the sinking of the S-4, having in fact just taken two pontoons to the scene of the disaster.

Evidently the terror created by the striking and perhaps the sudden arousal from sleep by such an accident so unnerved the three men who set out in a dory that they misjudged where the greater safety was to be found. The arrival of assistance and the taking off of those who remained aboard indicates that there would have been no loss of life had all stuck by the ship.

MAKING BAD MATTERS WORSE

Pennsylvania may have its political troubles but it appears to have been bothered and handicapped enough by former Governor Pinchot without having him inject himself into another senatorial campaign.

Report has it that he has not decided as yet whether he will seek the nomination again. If the people of that state have any influence, any chance to keep him from getting into such a campaign, they must realize that now is the time to exert it for they know the state has only one senator at Washington now because of Pinchot's insistance upon running when he never had a ghost of a chance of winning.

Having succeeded in depriving the Keystone state of the services of Senator Pepper, through his ambitions to get the impossible, rumor now has it that he contemplates entering the primaries against Senator Reed. There is no more favorable opportunity for the former governor now than there was when he tried to crowd out Pepper. When he so divided the vote that Pepper lost and Vare won in the three cornered contest the result was directly against the Pinchot desires. Nevertheless he was warned of it in advance. Therefore his threat to run against Senator Reed and possibly be the means of putting in another of the Vare type cannot be anticipated with any great amount of pleasure by the voters of Pennsylvania. His previous conduct should be sufficient to sour the voters of Pennsylvania upon him forever. He has made such a bad mess he ought to be desirous of trying to redeem his blunder instead of making it worse.

EARL OF ASQUITH

By the death of the earl of Oxford and Asquith, England loses a man who has risen to the highest political standing, who has gone to the top in party leadership and government control, yet who has dropped from both because his policies did not meet the situation.

Coming from a poor family and working his way to and through Oxford he was recognized for his intellectual attainments. This helped him to gain prominence in political activities. He was able to gain and maintain the leadership of the liberal party for a considerable time. It was through such that he was carried to the premiership of England and it was in that post that he was located at the time of the World war.

Then and there he was put to a test which was greater than he could stand. He was not able to meet the demands which the war placed upon the British government. He had not shown the disposition or the ability to meet the great problem that was faced. He hesitated when such questions as conscription was up. He opposed it. He was credited with being too slow in view of the critical situation that existed and whether he was directly responsible for it or not he was blamed for many failures. He was a great thinker and a great speaker but he was not such a great doer, especially during the great emergency.

The result was that he resigned the premiership and with that went the liberal party. It meant his gradual disappearance from political influence. He had gone up the ladder and down again. He had been obliged to face a gruelling test. Under different conditions the outcome might have been different. History will nevertheless record him as a prominent British figure.

INCORRIGIBLE HENRY

The gentleman in the old golf suit and disreputable cap slid out of the back door and down one step before the light of his life halted him with a particularly sweet mention of his name.

"I—er," he began instantly without looking back, "I am just going——"

"So I see!" she informed him, abandoning the cooing tones and coming right on out after him so that there was not the slightest chance of his pretending not to hear her. "And you always are, Henry Paramount! From the moment you leave the breakfast table Sunday morning you are always just going to run over to Louie's to watch him wash his automobile or over to Frank's to inspect his method of wedding onions and petunias or somewhere else to see that something is done as it should be done—and when you get back it is too late to do all the odd jobs around home that are waiting for you!

"You are so regretful that you haven't time to start cleaning the basement because dinner is just ready to go on the table. You are overcome with distress that the screen painting will have to be postponed because just as sure as you get in the middle of such a job it you do it afternoons all those Lake Forest people are dead sure to drive up in their Applesauce Twelves to call on us and you would die rather than embarrass me so!"

"I——" began the criminal.

"I've been meaning to have it out with you for some time," the lady proceeded, beginning to look sad and noble. "It just shows how little you think of your home or of me. Why, Sally Whemple came running down into our basement the other day before I could get up the stairs and I thought I should die of mortification!"

"Perfectly good basement!" grumbled the criminal with a show of spirit.

"Ten tons of old papers and magazines slithering over the floor, sixteen bushels of unremoved ashes, dried up paint cans and rags, your carpenter's shavings and a complete storeful of tools everywhere but in the tool box!

"But I have given up hope! If ever I saw you straightening up that basement, Henry Paramount, I should know that you were in the last stages of delirium and send for the ambulance! If you had been manly enough this spring to come right out and say that you wouldn't clean up that basement and didn't care who knew it I would have gone ahead and paid a dollar an hour and hired it done.

"And our screens! Every one else on the street has jade green edges on their screens or Venetian blue or geranium red, but ours aren't even painted. They look as though they were the original screens Noah tacked up in the ark and the flies and mosquitoes just laugh their heads off when they view them! They have field day exercises in and out of the holes, and I shouldn't be surprised to have one of the Bingham's chickens come walking right in after them any day!

"Another sore point, while I am at it, is the way you have not tied up the gladioli as you said you would. Some day a heavy windstorm is going to plaster all those plants so flat and tight against the ground that you will be unable to pry them loose, and no flower flourishes growing horizontally!

"It isn't as though these things were hard and horrible tasks, either, and you ought to enjoy doing them, because they help make the home what it should be! I am not half so mad about your not doing them as about your luring me on with the expectation that any minute you are going to come to your senses and get at 'em. You are perfectly happy washing the wheels of some one else's car and don't care a hoot if yours is six inches deep in dried mud."

"Listen, Elmira," the criminal broke in, desperately. "You have given me no chance at all to tell you what I started out to say. What I was trying to tell you was that I was just going out to tie up those flowers——" He hauled and hauled at his pockets, but no ball of twine emerged. There were, however, three matches. "But first," he rallied firmly, "I was about to burn up all the kitchen rubbish and waste paper and things out in the rubbish burner for you——"

"All of which," she informed the atmosphere as she turned her back on him, "are still in the house waiting hopelessly to be carried out! Say, if ever you are on trial for your life, don't attempt to give 'em an alibi or they'll hang you as one man! Now you just have time to tackle that basement before I want you to turn the ice cream freezer. Henry! Come back in!"

The gentleman finished the steps in one leap. "Honest," he called back, "I'll be right in, Elmira. I just wanta tell Louie sumpin' Honest, I'm coming right back!"—Chicago News.

INCOME TAX TIPS

Forms for filing returns of individual incomes now are available. Copies will be sent to taxpayers by collectors of internal revenue. Failure to receive a form, however, does not relieve the taxpayer of his obligation to file a return and pay the tax within the period prescribed. Forms may be obtained at offices of the collectors of internal revenue and deputy collectors and will be forwarded upon request.

Persons whose net income for 1927 was derived chiefly from salaries or wages and was not in excess of $5,000 should make their income-tax returns on Form 1040A.

Persons whose net income was derived from a profession or business, including farming, or from the sale of property or rent, though the amount was less than $5,000, are required to use the larger form, 1040. The use of Form 1040 is required also in cases where the net income was in excess of $5,000, regardless of whether from salary, business, profession, or other taxable sources.

Income-tax returns are required of every single person whose net income for the taxable year 1927 was $1,500 or more; every married person, living with husband or wife, whose net income was $2,500 or more, and every person, single or married, whose gross income was $5,000 or more, regardless of net income.

Gross income, as defined by treasury regulations, "includes in general, compensation for personal and professional services, profits from sales and dealings in property, interest, rent, dividends, and gains, profits and income derived from any source whatever, unless exempt from tax by law."

Net income, upon which the tax is assessed, is gross income less certain specified deductions for business expenses, losses, bad debts, taxes, contributions, etc.

The normal tax rate is 1 1-2 per cent on the first $4,000 in excess of the personal exemption, credit for dependents, etc., 2 per cent. on the next $4,000, and 5 per cent. on the balance.

The surtax rates apply to net income in excess of $10,000. The maximum rate is 20 per cent., which applies to net income in excess of $100,000.

The exemption is $1,500 for single persons and $3,500 for married persons living together and heads of families. In addition, a taxpayer is entitled to a credit of $400 for each person dependent upon him for chief support if such person is under 18 years of age or incapable of self-support because mentally or physically defective. Such dependent need not be a relative of the taxpayer nor a member of his household.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Divine Record Safer

Mr. Editor: A Bulletin Reader in this morning's Bulletin, who is balked apparently in the effort to refute this writer's statements, falls back on John Milton as the author of the phrase "the fruit of that forbidden tree whose mortal taste brought death into the world and all our woe." Bulletin Reader is unable to find any authority in scripture to sustain his argument, hence his recourse to Milton's Paradise Lost. This writer freely accords honor, and immortal fame to the author of the world's greatest epic, and a deep sense of gratitude for his devotion to the cause of the reformers. It is unsafe to accept the poets as infallible teachers or guides at times in secular or religious affairs. It is a commonly accepted tradition that Napoleon Bonaparte planned Waterloo after Milton's Paradise Lost and Regained and the world knows that he made a botch of Waterloo. Milton was an epicurean poet, and it is reasonable and fair to assume, or even believe that in his pursuit of the muse he lost his sense of taste, figuratively, so to speak when he used the word "mortal" in writing of Adam's partaking of forbidden fruit. This writer has Milton's Paradise Lost and Paradise Regained and in Paradise Lost, Milton pictures Eve as "Pausing awhile, thus to herself she mused

Great are thy virtues, doubtless best of fruits
Whose taste too long forborne, at first assay
Gave elocution to the mute and taught
The tongue not made for speech to sing thy praise."

It is safer to accept the divine record of man's fall through disobedience, than it is to accept, the surmisings of even the most gifted poets.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Today is the 55th birthday anniversary of James A. Farrell, the man who is responsible for the actual operation of the largest industrial concern in the world. Mr. Farrell holds the title of chief executive officer of the United States Steel corporation. For many years, under the late Judge Gary, he held the office of president and was the actual driving power behind the vast $2,500,000,000 industrial kingdom. Under the reorganization scheme, following the death of Judge Gary, his duties remain practically the same. Mr. Farrell started his career as a puddler and consequently knows the steel business from the ground up. To his friends he is known as a hard worker, with no interests outside his work and family. He is wealthy but has no great fortune.

Stories That Recall Others

Peeling Rabbits

Bobby, age five, received a toy gun for his birthday, also a promise to visit his uncle, who lives in the country where rabbits are plentiful.

"If we do kill a rabbit," said Bobby," who will peel it?"

Legal Tender

An attorney alighting from the street car near his home one evening, saw a neighbor traveling salesman, black bag in hand, waiting for the car.

"Where away this time?" queried the man of the bar.

"Oh, just a trip up into Vermont and back," said he of the grip.

"By the way, Tom, you can do me a favor," said friend lawyer, fishing in his pocket. "Here are several Canadian coins. I've been carrying around for six months. They are not legal tender here, but you can probably use them up in Vermont."

"Sure. Wish I had a bushel of them," said he, swinging on to the car bag in one hand and the troublesome coins in the other.

Some days later they met on the same corner. "Back home again, I see. God rid of the Canadian money, I suppose?" asked the lawyer.

"Oh, yes, easy enough. No trouble at all. Just bought tokens with one of them as I got on the car right here and the rest went for magazines on the train. Got any more you can't use?" And friend lawyer is still wondering whether the sly twinkle in his eye was a poke at the ponderous profession in general or a mild jab at his own innocence.

YOUR HEALTH

Smoke Abatement and Air Pollution.

By Alice G. Bryant, M. D., Boston. Member Gorgas Memorial.

It is common knowledge that smoke and ashes are a nuisance and a menace. Our civilized endeavors to keep comfortably warm in our winter quarters in cities add to the smoke and air-pollution problem. Domestic, factory, public building, and locomotive fires are the natural offenders. Fuels are many, but coal is widely used. It is costly though abundant. It is valuable for its ever-increasing by-products. They contribute to the progress, health, wealth, and protection of civilization. So-called dense smoke we see, but there is an invisible smoke with accompanying gases and acids. All are wasteful, harmful, and destructive. Smoke interferes with the sun's health-giving rays. Human beings, material structures both public and private, fabrics, and plant life are more or less affected by smoke.

Our financial losses from smoke are stupendous. In the last analysis, it means a waste of human effort. We want to know the heat value and the percentage of ash in our coal. Non-combustible material is useless and time-consuming. Leave it in the coal mine, but not in our coal bins. Let the ashes drop in the ash pit and not escape up the chimney.

Smoke is due to imperfect combustion; it means inefficiency. We want the right kind of coal, equipment, and chimney. We want sufficient air and air control. We want proper draughts and damper control. We want correct stoking and efficient operation. How many thousands of tons of soot and ashes per square mile every year are deposited in our large cities? Known wind velocities and prevailing winds may make the smoke more or less noticeable over certain areas in our cities.

Smoke abatement departments with commissioners of smoke inspection are productively serving in many cities, and smoke abatement ordinances are also operating in limited ways throughout the country. We prefer not to waste coal. We prefer not to be oblivious, irresponsive, indifferent, and non-constructive in our sporadic, inefficient, and unorganized attempts to correct the smoke and ash problem. We know improved smoke abatement methods can be instituted and carried out. We could function more efficiently, more productively, less expensively, and economize man-power if we use scientific methods and equipment.

The engineer, architect, owner, and smoke abatement department should have closer relations and interchange of views. Smoke abatement and air pollution concerns the individual and civic and national life. Smoke abatement and air pollution appeal to us from a health and sanitary viewpoint. We need to attack these problems as we have met the milk, water, sewer, and garbage problems.

CHILD TRAINING

NO, YOU TELL ME A STORY

Nora Trew

"O, see how it is snowing! Mother, tell me a story about little Mr. Ground Squirrel who lives in the mountains and hides away lots and lots of nuts for the time when snow comes," began Angela aged four, looking out of the nursery windows at the falling flakes amid whose maze the great pine trees of our glorious West lifted dark boughs to the sullen sky. "Tell me about the little Ground Squirrel family and the babies with stripes down their backs and their dear little cheeks full of pinion nuts," wheedled Angela to whom the story of the little ground squirrels, as well as stories of many other animals abounding in our locality had been told and retold from her babyhood, when her brown eyes had grown wide at the "Doings of Doctor Jack Rabbit", compiled for her special benefit, up to the time of which I write when the demand for stories about other animals also had become almost continuous.

"O, Angela," I protested, "that same old tale! I've told it at least three times today, do let's have something different."

"But I like the tiny brown ground squirrels," insisted the child, "the cunning babies that live under the rocks."

"Listen, Angela," I said, "let's play a new game. Come sit here on Mother's lap where you can see the snowflakes and the big pine trees and the dark mountains over there where the tiny ground squirrels hide, and you tell me a story."

If I expected a protest, I was mistaken. The joy of creative power seized the child. She was to make the story herself. Her eyes shone. All the abundant material she had at her tongue's end regarding the life and habits of the dear little animals so beloved by her baby heart she wove into a little narrative about Mamma and Daddy Ground Squirrel and Billy Blinkers, their son, favorite characters in our household tales.

The story was a curious intermingling of what we had told her with several surprising touches of her own, which I am bound to call original. Characters familiar in other stories were brought in also, notably "Gray Eagle" and "Old Coy-o-te" pronounced deliciously by the young narrator with the original Spanish accent. The introduction of these characters was a departure from the various forms in which our ground squirrel folk had yet appeared. Angela's romance made a decided "hit" with her family and from that time on we often called upon her to be the story teller.

Within the last two years I have noticed a decided improvment in her language as she lets her imagination wander into these delightful fields. Frequent questions regarding her story as she tells it help her continually and awaken her ideas.

The plan, happened upon as I have told you, has certainly proved worth while.

While out fishing in the Gulf stream she hooked and successfully landed a 120 pound tuna. This is the first captured in a number of years as far north as Miami Beach, where Mr. and Mrs. Reggio are at their winter home.

Three years ago Mrs. Reggio caught a 90 pound mastin in the same waters. The fishing is done from a power boat, six or seven miles off shore.

Cigars, cigarettes, candies and fountain pens to the value of $250 were stolen from the general store maintained on Main street, Niantic, by Rogers & Sons, sometime during Tuesday night. PUSHES BAGGAGE TRUCK OFF TRACK TO SAVE WRECK AT C. V. STATION

A heave of his shoulder which Officer Patrick Shahan gave with the strength of desperation against a baggage truck at the Central Vermont station about 2:30 o'clock Wednesday morning was just enough to push the truck clear of the tracks as a northbound freight train slid past the station with the brakes grinding as the engineer tried to bring it to a stop after being flagged with a red lantern by Officer Joseph Gendron farther down the tracks.

Only a margin of seconds separated the engine from piling up on the truck and causing a wreck of which the consequences can only be guessed.

During the high wind of early Wednesday morning the truck was blown from the station platform across the tracks where it was discovered by Officer Gendron in making his rounds. The truck lodged in such a position that it was stuck fast and he found he could not move it. Knowing that a north-bound freight was due about that time, Officer Gendron hurried to the police signal box on Thames square and telephone for help. Capt. Thomas Murphy at once ordered Officer Shahan to get over to the station with all speed in the motor patrol wagon. As the officer shot through West Main street on the way to the station, he caught sight of the train coming up near the stove foundry, and know there was no time to lose. He stepped on the gas and hit nothing but the high spots as he made the turn at Falls avenue and dashed up to the station. Leaving the engine running, as he brought the wagon to a halt, he jumped for the platform and shouted for Officer Gendron whom he could not see anywhere, but there was a red lantern waving farther down the track in the path of the oncoming train.

By that time the freight was nearly up to the West Main street bridge and Officer Shahan jumped for the baggage truck, got behind it, gave a heave with all his strength, shoving it back onto the station platform and up against the building where he held it from running back again as the train slid past.

When the train came to a stop, ten or a dozen cars had gone past the station and the engineer came running back to see what he was being stopped for here at that time in the morning when he was getting up speed to make the grade with his heavy train. He was cordial in his thanks to the two Norwich officers when he found how they had saved him from piling into the baggage truck and wrecking the train.

When Officer Gendron heard the train coming before the help he needed arrived, he did his part by grabbing a red lantern from a switch stand and using it to flag the train in the hope that it could be stopped before it hit the baggage truck.

MRS. E. W. JOHNSON DIES ON TRAIN BOUND FOR CUBA

Alice Isabel Thomas, 79, widow of Edward Whiting Johnson, of Norwich, died suddenly Wednesday morning at Miami, on board a train bound for Key West. Mrs. Johnson and her son, Frank Edward Johnson, of the United States Legation, Havana, were to leave Key West Wednesday afternoon for Cuba.

For a number of years Mrs. Johnson has had a serious heart affection, which prevented her from going to Nantucket in the summer or to Georgia in the winter, as in former years. She had left Norwich to pass the winter at Windham inn, where her health seemed to improve. A month ago her son arrived from Havana and preparations were made for Mrs. Johnson to accompany him back, to make her home in Cuba. They left Windham Sunday and boarded the Havana Special from New York Monday morning.

While messages to Norwich friends Wednesday gave no definite idea as to Mr. Johnson's plans, it is expected that his mother's body will be taken to Hartford for burial.

Mrs. Johnson was a native of Hartford, but for over fifty years had been identified with the social life of Norwich. Her husband was the elder son of Frank Johnson, Norwich banker, whose handsome home was the fine residence 171 Broadway. Mr. and Mrs. Edward Whiting Johnson lived at Norwich Town and for a time were with Mrs. Johnson's aunt, the late Miss Carrie Thomas, whose home was the present "Elm Hill," now the sightly residence of Mrs. William H. Palmer. After her husband's death, Feb. 28, 1878, Mrs. Johnson, her mother, the late Mrs. Isabella Thomas and Mrs. Johnson's son spent much time abroad, the family having crossed the ocean over thirty times. They resided in France, Spain and Switzerland and on returning to Norwich made their home for several years at the Wauregan hotel going from there to the Fuller house on North Washington street, spending their summers at a camp in Maine.

Her son's artistic talent influenced Mrs. Johnson's plans in later years and while he was studying abroad she was his sympathetic and inspiring companion. Shortly before the breaking out of the World War Mr. Johnson left for Northern Africa on a most important mission for the National Geographic society, to explore the country of the troglodytes, also to note conditions for the agricultural department of the United States government. While he was thus engaged, his mother and grandmother resided in Southern Europe, and had many unusual experiences until near the close of the war, when the family was able to return to Norwich.

Mrs. Johnson was gifted with rare charm, was most engaging in conversation, was generous and of wide vision, one whose friends were of many countries and many localities. She had a beautiful singing voice and after coming to Norwich as a bride she used her vocal gift for the pleasure of her acquaintances with characteristic generosity. The sweetness of her nature remained unchanged to the last, and her cheerfulness always proved superior to the trials of failing health, the reverses of fortune and the altered conditions of the years. She began what was to be her last journey with happiness and confidence—and it is in this spirit of mind and heart that her friends will always recall her.

Mrs. Johnson's mother, Mrs. Isabella Thomas, a remarkable woman in her time and generation, died in Norwich a few years ago. Frank Edward Johnson, Mrs. Johnson's only child, married the granddaughter of Abraham Lincoln, Mrs. Jessie Beckwith of Washington, D. C., and Manchester, Vt., who was the daughter of Robert T. Lincoln, and is now living in Washington.

WM. RICKER INTRODUCES ICE-BOATING SPORT

Ice-boating, a sport of which little is known, has been taken up by William Ricker at Gardner's lake during the past winter and has provided many Norwich people with sensations never before enjoyed. Mr. Ricker's boat, which was constructed by himself and one or two of the cottagers at the lake, is a neat little craft capable of great speed and has been clocked at 40 miles an hour in the short three mile run. Sunday several New York people were at the lake and Mr. Ricker's boat was photographed in motion pictures.

SPOKE ON LINCOLN BEFORE ROTARY CLUB

Norwich Rotary club observed Lincoln's birthday Wednesday noon with a very entertaining address by John J. O'Rourke on Lincoln. Mr. O'Rourke, in his brief sketch of Lincoln, laid special emphasis on the antipathy and hatred with which Lincoln had to contend when he was president. Perhaps no president has had to undergo such scathing criticism as was heaped upon Lincoln, not only by the American press of his day but by the English papers. He was one of the most caricatured presidents and the caricatures were far from complimentary. He carried on through all this criticism and finally won the respect of the world at large. Evidence of this is in the poem which was written by the editor of Punch, an English periodical that had been exceptionally bitter against Lincoln. The editor, just before his death, penned a very touching poem in which he most heartily and humbly apologized for the bitter things he had said and written.

Following Mr. O'Rourke's talk there was shown a motion picture, "Health Regained," a film that showed the benefits of yeast as a medicinal food. The picture was followed by a brief talk by C. A. Gove, district representative of the Fleischman Yeast Co. Mr. Gove was assisted by Mrs. Carl Small of New London who played a pleasing accompaniment for the film. The picture machine was operated by R. W. Whitcomb of New London.

At the business session President Clarence Speer presided and Glenn Merithew was the song leader. Only matters of a routine nature were before the meeting.

PLANNING FOR FOURTH BOOSTER CLUB BANQUET

Plans are already well underway for the fourth annual boosters club banquet which is to be held by the boys division of the local Y. M. C. A. on Tuesday, Feb. 21.

This is one event that is held each year at the association that admission must be earned and not bought. In order for a new member to venture into the mystic confines of the Boosters club he must secure a new member for the boys' division. Then, and then only will the candidate to the club be privileged to partake of the bountiful repast that will be provided and enjoy the splendid program of entertainment that will be furnished.

Some 50 odd members have already qualified and several more will meet the requirements before the date for the banquet arrives. This gives the boys an incentive to line prospective members and be in on this banner time of the year.

1928 SPRING TRAINING UNDERWAY AS 16 GIANTS REACH HOT SPRINGS

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Feb. 15—(AP)—Baseball's spring training season, when hopes fall or rise for rookie aspirants for major league berths, began here today for 16 young pitchers and catchers of the New York Giants.

Roger Bresnahan, veteran Giant coach, led the squad of youngsters from which John J. McGraw expects to draw for material during the approaching season.

They comprise the first group of "hopefuls" or regulars of the majors here to prepare themselves for the grind of the spring training camps.

A light workout at McKee field, followed by a "boiling out" in the Spa's thermal waters, inaugurated the conditioning. Beginning tomorrow, a mountain hike will be added to the daily routine.

McGraw will be here Saturday to look over the youthful aspirants, according to J. J. Tierney, secretary of the club, who accompanied the players.

Chet Nichols Among List.

The players who arrived today included Ben Cantrell, Leo Mangum, Bill Clarkson, Jess Doyle, Jack Levy, Chester Nichols, Fred Fitzsimmons, Jimmy Faulkner, Arthur Johnson, Bill Walker, Frank Henry, all pitchers, the latter four being "southpaws," and John Cummings, Francis J. Hogan, W. V. "Jumbo" Barrett, Alfred Spohrer and James Taylor, catchers.

"Lefty" Walker hails from the Denver club of the Western league, which he led in strikeouts last year. Hogan came to the Giants in the famous Rogers Hornsby trade.

ATTEMPT AT AUTO SPEED MARK TODAY

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Feb. 15—(AP)—A series of stock car and special races today inaugurated the Daytona Beach Speedway carnival, being the 25th anniversary of automobile racing in America, which will reach its climax before next Wednesday in an attempt by three powerful speedsters to break the world's record of 203.7 miles per hour.

Brisk winds, overcast skies and a rough beach that rendered the natural speedway bumpy somewhat hindered the events and prevented the scheduled tryout by Malcolm Campbell, British entry, of his giant machine, with which he hopes to retain for England the record made here last year by Major H. O. D. Segrave in his British "Sunbeam Special."

The freakish-looking racers of the American entrants in the speed classic, Frank Lockhart of Indianapolis and J. M. White of Philadelphia, also remained in their garages as mechanics tuned all three for their preliminary tests.

Prospects were that if weather and beach conditions were more favorable tomorrow, at least one and possibly all three machines would get into trial action.

The first of today's events, for stock cars, costing $1,000 and under, was won by Harold Harden, Palatka, Fla., in a Pontiac Six at an average speed of 68.11 miles an hour, over a two-mile course.

Edwin Omts of Daytona Beach, driving a Chrysler "70" roadster, captured the second race, for machines selling for $1,000 to $2,000, with an average of 73.11 miles per hour.

In an extra event for unofficial time trials, Gil Anderson of Indianapolis drove his Stutz "Blackhawk" over the mile straightway in 34.78 seconds for an average of 103.5 miles per hour, heading three other entries, confined to Stutz and Auburn models, by a wide margin.

FINAL RACE BETWEEN FACULTY AND SOPHS

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Feb. 15—That the final race for championship honors in the Interclass Basketball league at Connecticut Aggies will bring the Faculty and Sophomore fives together seems apparent after last night's contests.

Both quintets won their games last night, and they are now tied for first place in the league, each with a record of four victories and one defeat.

The Faculty team was extended to the limit in an overtime game to win from the Seniors by a 22-21 count; the Sophs overwhelmed the Ag School by a 44-5 count, and the Freshmen upset the dope to win from the Juniors by a 9-6 score.

DELANEY, AT 185, OPENS TRAINING FOR RISKO TODAY

BRIDGEPORT, Feb. 15—(AP)—Jack Delaney will start active training for his bout with Tom Heeney, of New Zealand, in Madison Square Garden, March 1, at his gym here tomorrow afternoon, his manager, Joe Jacobs, announced today. Delaney returned from Rochester late yesterday afternoon and today worked out lightly. The Rapier of the North weighs 185 pounds at the present time, but hopes to tip the beam at slightly less than 180 pounds for his bout with Heeney.

The winner is scheduled to meet the winner of the Jack Sharkey-Johnny Risko bout for the right to face Gene Tunney for the world's heavyweight championship in June.

BECKER GETS COACHING BERTH AT MIDDLEBURY

MEDFORD, Mass., Feb. 15—(AP)—Benjamin Becker, coach of the Medford high school basketball and football teams, has been appointed coach of the basketball and football teams at Middlebury college, Middlebury, Vt., it was announced here tonight. He will succeed Marshall Klevenow.

Becker is a graduate of Nebraska Wesleyan and of Rockne's coaching school at the latter of which he ranked highest of a class of 183 in his final examination. He coached high school teams throughout the west and the Brown university freshmen teams. He has been at Medford high school two years.

BOXING JABS

Willimantic has its first sanctioned A. A. U. show in many years tomorrow night.

Next week the Windham A. C. promotes again in the Thread City.

In Norwich it is just the opposite. This week the Pastimes conduct an independent show and next Friday the Duwell start indoors with their A. A. U. bouts.

The Pastimes seem to have the majority of the local boys corralled.

A heavyweight bout looms for their show tomorrow night with Young Brush and Young Fedus as the principals.

Al Koziol and Jimmy Quinn are in Providence Friday night, as are also some of the Westerly stable.

Kid Kaplan and Bobby Mays Monday night at the Arena in New Haven.

Ace Hudkins and Sergeant Sammy Baker are getting as much notice for their go tomorrow night as some of these "title" bouts would.

Jimmy Rossi is training in New London for a bout in Bridgeport soon.

Ace Hudkins has been installed an 8 to 5 favorite to beat Sammy Baker tomorrow night.

Hudkins has announced that if he is not given a chance at Joe Dundee's title should he win over Baker that he will quit the ring.

'BOUT SPORTS

The Academy is still "carrying on" but for a spell now things won't come so hard. But that spell is only brief for after a return to the home floor for a tilt with Deep River Saturday the Red and White sets right out again and plays two more games away from home. Next Wednesday the locals are at Stonington and Friday at Plainfield, while on Saturday they play Bacon Academy of Colchester here. The Stonington game will probably go a long way toward determining second place in the league, for in this three-team affair both Stonington and the Academy have lost their two starts, which of course, were with Chapman Tech, the newly-crowned champion. The game with Plainfield Friday should find the locals the favorite on the basis of the slaughtering they administered to this team here in the season's opener. But Plainfield has improved somewhat since then.

Meanwhile the Deep River game Saturday is no cream-puff affair. This team is one of the best of the "little fellows" in the state, according to stories, but whether they are any better than Tourtellotte is a mystery. Academy followers are inclined to believe that to be little and be better than the North Grosvenordale five is nigh impossible.

The glad tidings of the opening of the spring training season ring out this morning. The ice has been shattered, as it were, and within the next ten days all the major and many of the minors will have started for their camps.

There is interest this morning in the announcement of Benny Becker as coach of football and basketball to succeed Marshall Klevenow as coach at Middlebury. Eastern Connecticut high school coaching systems have many products of Middlebury, in general, and Dave Morey, in particular, of which Klevenow was another. Court Whitney at the Academy, George Mullen at Plainfield, and Bill Canty at Bulkeley all come from the little Vermont institution.

Chapman Tech has won the title of the league with the big name but small membership for the seventh time in the last eight years but that will get her little recognition about the state. Next year with the enlarged loop there ought to be quite a race and a champion then will have something to hold up before the state for in this little section of Connecticut we have some pretty fast high school clubs, taking the year as a whole.

Bulkeley will have 16 games on her baseball schedule, it is announced. Which gives the Academy undisputed title to the stiffest slate. The locals have 22 games.

MICKEY WALKER IS DROPPED BY N. B. A.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Feb. 15—(AP)—Mickey Walker, middleweight champion was indefinitely suspended today by the National Boxing association, ruling body in 26 states, for "not having shown any inclination to defend his title though the six months' grace allowed him has expired and proper warning had been issued to him."

At the same time, Thomas E. Donohue, president of the association, announced that no action would be taken against Sammy Mandell, lightweight champion, and Joe Dundee, welterweight titleholder, who were warned by the N. B. A., a month ago along with Walker to sign for title defenses or risk suspension.

"Dundee has indicated his faith and willingness to defend his title by signing with the Madison Square Garden management in New York as early as last November, and apparently has been unable to go through with the defense of his crown, though willing enough, by the force of unfortunate circumstances," the announcement said. Dundee is under suspension in New York because of charges against him in California that grew out of his failure to go through with a match against Ace Hudkins last all.

The Illinois state athletic commission has informed the N. B. A., that Mandell has signed with Jim Mullins for a title bout in Chicago, the announcement said. Although Mullins announced that Walker also had signed for a championship match, no official word has been received here. Walker last defended his title by knocking out Tommy Milligan in London last June.

HAMPDENS SIGN SCHOOLBOY ATHLETE

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Feb. 15—(AP)—Jeremiah Scully, former athlete at Springfield Technical high, has signed for a pitching trial with the Springfield club of the Eastern league. Scully, who is only 19 years old, has been star pitcher for the Somerville, Conn., nine for the last three seasons and comes to the local club well recommended by Herman Hass, manager of the Somersville team and a former American association outfielder. Young Scully is a right hander.

ACADEMY PREPARES FOR DEEP RIVER

The Academy gets back at work today preparing for Deep River High here Saturday night. This is the Red and White's first home game in four starts. Since the recent upheaval in the ranks caused by the ineligibility of four members of the squad, the team has been on the road and lost three games, two of them by close margins.

Since then two players have been added to the squad, Foss and Goldblatt, making the number now having suits at nine. They are Jarvis and Tigar, forwards; Viau, center, and Kelly and LaCroix, guards, of the recognized regular five, while others are Fagan and Foss, forwards; Goldblatt, center, and Swartzburg at guard.

In Deep River the locals will be facing one of the best "little" clubs in the state and the Academy will have to be at its best to get the decision.

U. S. 10,000 METERS OLYMPIC WIN RULED OUT BY SKATING FEDERATION

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland, Feb. 15—(AP)—The United States today lost in committee the Olympic victory it was virtually conceded yesterday by executive decision in the 10,000-metres speed skating event.

Twelve hours after the executive commission of the International Olympic committee had proclaimed Irving Jaffee of New York the 10,000-metres champion, the International Skating federation overturned the commission's decision, wiped yesterday's competition off the books and ruled that the race must be re-run. The fact that most of the skaters already have left St. Moritz apparently precludes any satisfactory attempt to re-run the race, leaving cancellation of the event as the probable eventual course.

Matter Probably Settled.

The federation's action, generally regarded as final, added one more chapter to a short but vigorous dispute which began yesterday when an official of the skating federation cancelled the 10,000-metres event because of unfavorable weather conditions after six of the contestants had completed their heats. Jaffee had made the best time and was regarded as virtually certain to win first place. Cancellation of the race brought forth strenuous objections from Gustavus T. Kirby, official American representative.

An appeal to the executive commission of the international committee ended successfully for the United States when Jaffee was recognized as the champion. His reign was short-lived, however, for the federation quickly overruled the commission and declared the race off.

The federation's decision was taken on technical grounds, it was revealed tonight, the American protest having reached the federation more than three hours after the race was cancelled.

Kirby, however, has not accepted the federation's decision as final. Propped up in bed, the American delegate, who is suffering from a heavy cold, dictated a letter tonight to Doctor Otto Messerli, general secretary of the Swiss Olympic committee, demanding that the federation be overruled and Jaffee allowed to retain the championship.

"Real Protest," Says Kirby.

"You may call this letter a real protest," Kirby told the Associated Press. "Yesterday's complaint was merely a friendly suggestion."

Henning Olsen of Norway, who was responsible for the federation's action, said: "It was all according to the rules and regulations of Olympic competition. I have nothing further to say."

Although Kirby's letter was taken under consideration by the Swiss committee, members of that body said they were powerless to act since the skating federation was supreme in any action taken on technical grounds.

Jaffee, who was present when Kirby's letter was transmitted, was asked whether he would race again.

"This is a tough break," he replied, "but I will race them again, on skates, skis or at foot-running."

Unfavorable since the opening of the winter sports competition last Saturday, the weather was worse than ever tonight. It was raining hard and there were indications that the entire winter sports program might have to be called off.

Hockey Finals Today.

Canada is scheduled to meet Sweden in the first of the hockey finals tomorrow but the condition of the rinks made it extremely doubtful whether this program could be adhered to. The ski run and bobsleigh course have been badly damaged by the unseasonably warm weather.

Final decision on what is to be done probably will come at a meeting of the Swiss Olympic committee tomorrow night.

TALBOT-FARMER STEVE BOUT TO BE PASTIME FEATURE

The "Fighting Motorman," Harold Talbot, hits the comeback trail tomorrow night at the Pastime A. C. show against Farmer Steve, Yantic's contribution to boxing's hall of fame. It will be Talbot's second bout in the squared circle while Farmer Steve makes his debut before a Norwich audience. Talbot in his first appearance before the public did not do so well having a bad case of ring fright even though he possesses a fighting heart. Talbot was ingloriously knocked into a horizontal position early in the fight but this has taken nothing from his courage. His defeat was a sad disappointment to his supporters on the trolleys and he has stood for many unkind remarks. But with a desire to show those who have been fickle enough to turn against him that he is a fighter he is going into the ring Friday night with a grim determination that comes of only hard and studious training and a love of the game.

Farmer Steve, of course he is no farmer but that is what the local boys have dubbed him, is a fighter of much the same style as Talbot and of the same weight. The Yantic boy has been a nightly caller at the Pastime A. C. gym and in his workouts looks mighty fast and packs a wallop although he is a little green in ring experience. These boys should furnish one of the feature bouts of the evening and many will come just to see them in action.

COAST GUARDS LOSE TO ST. MICHAELS FIVE

NEW LONDON, Feb. 15—The Coast Guard Academy varsity lost to St. Michael's quintet of Winooskie, Vermont, at the Y. M. C. A. gym here tonight, 35 to 30. The local team was way off form in the first half and although rallying after intermission was not quite able to overhaul the Vermonters.

PROS DEFEAT GIANTS, 27 TO 18

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, Feb. 15.—A record crowd saw the Plainfield boys plaster the Philadelphia Colored Giants here tonight by a score of 27 to 18. The feature of the game was an oddity that occurred in the second half, when Cooper of the Giants neatly threw a field goal through the Plainfield basket. The Giants, as advertised, played a fast and comical brand of basketball, the comic stunts of the evening being supplied mostly by Beckard, who had a clever way of handling the ball. His comic tricks had the crowd in almost continuous uproar.

Bernot scored the first point for Plainfield with a foul followed closely by Madden, who shot a field goal. Chambers and Yancy threw in a field goal apiece, making the score 4 to 3 in the Giants favor. In the half the score was tied at 8 all, the tying points being made by Yancy. At the end of the first half the count was 14 to 12 in Plainfield's favor and with a few minutes of the second half the score was again tied at 16 all. From then on Plainfield had its own way and held the opposition to two more points, while their score was bolstered to 27 with Dessinger and Bernot making the most points. It was in the last of the second half that Cooper tried to be the good samaritan by shooting a field goal for Plainfield.

In tonight's game Plainfield displayed wonderful team work, showing new life and its old time form. In the preliminary game the Plainfield Buddies took Moosup All Stars into camp by a 32 to 15 score. In the prelim H. Mercier substituted for Peterson of the Buddies and displayed a fine brand of basketball. The Pros have the Millville team for its game next week and a great game is expected. FITCHVILLE CLUB HAS TAKEN RAPID STRIDES

Organized but a scant few weeks with the majority of their players just learning the game, the Fitchville Athletic club has progressed rapidly in the basketball world. Meeting teams of their own calibre, they have won their last four games, after exciting and hard-fought times. Their only defeat was at the hand of the Y Emps in the first start of the season, but this defeat is hoped to be avenged soon. A great handicap to the team is that they have absolutely no coaching, learning the game through practical experience.

This club is open to all challenges at home or abroad. Tonight at Palmer hall, Fitchville, the F. A. C. team meets Burns' All-Stars from Norwich and they will probably line up with Yankowitz and Capt. Kerzosky at the forwards, Ad Homack at center and Steinman and Laskowitz at guards. Al Homack, who showed up well in the last game, Gribbons and Ganskf, will be held in reserve.

FORMER N. Y. U. ASSISTANT NAMED MANHATTAN COACH

NEW YORK, Feb. 15—(AP)—Joseph K. Schwarzer, former Syracuse star, and line coach under Chick Meehan at New York university for the past three years, today was selected as head coach of the Manhattan college football team for 1928. Schwarzer succeeds Britain Patterson, former Washington and Jefferson college tackle whose one-year contract at Manhattan has expired.

CRESCENTS TO MEET DUDLEY A. C. MONDAY

The Stafford Springs Kaceys called off their game with the Taftville Crescents for next Monday night at Parish hall and in their place Manager Burrelle has substituted the Dudley A. C. of Webster, Mass. This team is expected to give the Crescents plenty of trouble for they have four of the St. Joseph's Y. M. A. outfit, the team that Taftville nosed out Tuesday night, in their lineup.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Will Address Merchants Bureau

Arthur O. Lamb, representative of the Manufacturers' Appraisal company in Connecticut, formerly a manufacturer in Winsted, will address the members of the Merchants bureau at the Wauregan hotel tonight on "Tax Equalization." A full attendance of the membership is desired by Abner Schwartz, chairman of the Merchants bureau. Other matters bearing on the program of work will be discussed.

Breed Theatre

The laughs of a lifetime are promised local theatre patrons when Fox Films great war comedy drama, The Gay Retreat, will have its presentations at the Breed theatre for three days commencing today.

Ted McNamara and Sammy Cohen, the merrymaking marines of What Price Glory, are the featured players.

This is a hilarious story of war days and Paris nights and is said to set a new standard in feature length war comedies. The story deals with a sleep-walking doughboy and the two pals who join the army with him to keep him from walking into No Man's Land in his sleep.

Of course, there is a very intriguing romance for each one of them and in the end their very propensity for mischief wins them honors. But in the meantime the team of Cohen and McNamara are said to exhaust an audience with laughter with their humorous characterizations.

The producers call this a story of war daze and Paris nights and judging from previews as reported by metropolitan critics it is one of the most mirthful entertainments ever put on the screen.

The short subject program consists of an Imperial comedy titled Matrimony Blues, a Felix the Cat cartoon, latest news events and the eighth chapter of Blake of Scotland Yard.

MAN BITES DOG

Real News Story Breaks At Last

Herman J. Glucose, 45, bit a large brown airedale on Pfeffer Street this afternoon. The scene was witnessed by officer George Carbarn who took Glucose in custody. Herman will sleep in the Station House tonight unless he can find someone to go his bail, which Magistrate Gunderstone set at $400.00. Herman avers that he never saw that much money in his life.

Asked why he bit the airedale he said, "I always heard that if a dog bit a man it wasn't news, but if a man bit a dog that was news. I wanted to get my name in the paprr." Officer Carbarn then asked Herman if he smoked Old Gold Cigarettes. Herman said, "no." Then the officer said, "Why didn't you make that statement in the first place. To hear of someone not smoking Old Golds IS news."

Golds Name New Baby

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Gold, of 2234 Perwinkle Street, the Bronx, New York, have named their new baby boy Oscar Louis David Gold.

"When I see that name, O. L. D. Gold," said the happy father, "it will remind me of my favorite smoke and I'll be doubly happy."

"JESSIE, OF THE POTS AND PANS"—By B. Dee

Chapter I

Jessica Hightower has been brought up in a small town. Perhaps you may doubt this statement, but why be silly? It had always been her desire to go to the city and live LIFE—artistically. But it seemed her chance would never come. Opportunity evidently had joined the union and was refusing to work overtime.

She was a beautiful girl, her long, wavy, blonde hair being carefully bobbed, and as she washed the pots and pans in her mother's kitchen, she dreamed of New York, Broadway and all the traffic policemen. On her piano she had such songs as "Hotsy Totsy Bam Bam" and "Baby, Get Hot." As she played these she imagined herself entering a night club and hearing people say, "There's that famous Miss Hightower." She had made up her mind that, if such a happenstance really ever took place, she would smile sweetly and say: "No it ain't. I'm Jessie Hightower."

One morning, as she stood in Bilge's drugstore sipping a soda, a stranger entered. He was young, suave and handsome. As he drew an Old Gold cigarette from a beautiful silver case, he bowed and said:

"Pardon me, lady! I'm from the city. Are you Miss Jessica Hightower? If so, I'd like to converse with you."

"Oh, you hush up!" replied Jessica, still sipping.

Miss Emma Weepux and Zeke Dorkman were married at the bride's home last Wednesday. They are a fine young couple. The bride's parents' gift to the lucky pair was a six-room house and a carton of Old Golds, which assures them a good start in life, say we.

NOANK

When many in the village were preparing for supper Tuesday at 5:30 the church bell rang for a fire on Prospect Hill. Little Robert Johnson was on the end of the rope for 10 minutes. On the fire engine with Driver Earl Foster behind the wheel were smoke eaters going to the fire at top speed. It was a bad brush fire in a lot back of the residence of L. Brown. A strong southeast wind was blowing and the neighbors on the hill worked hard as the blaze was creeping fast toward the houses. The firemen got their brooms out and chemical and the fire was soon over. Chief Park thinks some fellow in passing dropped a cigarette butt which started the fire. It burned over 2 lots but did no special damage only that the owner had the lots all fixed up until spring. Now he won't have to burn the dead grass off. Returning to the fire room at 6:15 o'clock, Jack Ellis called the roll and 40 brave firemen answered "Here!" Foreman Walter Palmer told his men that he was glad to see them out and ready for work. This makes three calls in two weeks for the fire fighters.

The bet will be paid when the roamer of the road comes back. Two fellows are to be the judges, Roy Abate and Alfred Burmo and a post card will be sent from Chicago to see how the tires and car are holding out. He takes no one with him; like Lindy in the air he travels alone.

Thomas Domilage who played the drums in the United States marine band several years ago and Leader Muse wanted to see how good Tommie was for he sure can make those sticks go some. A short practice was held for 15 minutes and now 10 are on the list, and not so bad for the first time. It may take a month before the band is formed. After the meeting a lunch of lobster salad, cake, peanut butter sandwiches and the machine shop special drink, oat meal punch, were served. At the next meeting a name for the band will be selected.

POETRY

The Babbitt Jamboree.

When I see an Indian dressed for war
Yet dancing for a Babbitt jambouree
In plumes no Babbitt ever dares to wear,
An anger rises in me
Like high tide in the sea.
These are my own, these Indians, and I know
What makes the broods more bitter than the bloods.
There's just one drop of Indian blood in me,
Yet in tremendous tides and floods
It seems to sweep upon me when I watch
Those who have owned this land turned to a show.

And when I put a feather in my hat,
It is with thoughts the Babbitts cannot know.
Woe to the pale face then who thinks it is for show!
That little feather stands for a whole war;
It means I beat the tom-toms in the rain;
It means a scalping-knife is in my belt,
That I will lead the young braves, not in vain.
It means when all these silly days are done,
Sons of this soil will come into their own,
Sons of the Mohawk,
Sons of Pocahontas,
Bred of these rocks and mountains blood and bone.

—Vachel Lindsay in the London Mercury

We Thank Thee, Lord.

For all Thy ministries;
For morning mist and gently falling dew;
For Summer rains, for Winter ice and snow,
For whispering wind and purifying storm;
For the reft clouds that show the tender blue;
For the forked flash and long, tumultuous roll;
For mighty rains that wash the dim earth clean;
For the sweet promise of the seven-fold bow;
For the soft sunshine and the still, calm night;
For dimpled laughter of soft Summer seas;
For latticed splendor of the sea-borne moon;
For gleaming sands and granite-fronted cliffs;
For Might so mighty and for Love so true, with equal mind,
We thank Thee, Lord!

—John Oxenham.

Deakyne and Pierce and the two women were returning to New London from the country at 4 o'clock. When the auto reached a point on Bank street, near Squire street, the driver lost control of the steering wheel and the car skidded badly because of the wet highway. All of the occupants were thrown violently against the sides of the car and some of them were cut by the shattered windshield and windows. Residents near where the accident occurred were aroused from their slumbers and went to the street and assisted the men and women, who were bleeding from cuts and otherwise displayed evidence of their injuries. An automobile was brought into service and the injured were taken to the hospital and given emergency treatment. They will be under treatment there several days. Following the accident the police were notified and Patrol Officer Clarence Wells arrived just after the men and women had gone to the hospital. He had the wrecked car removed from the highway and taken to a garage. This morning there was evidence of the accident in the vicinity of the telephone pole for the sidewalk and macadam surface was smeared with blood.

SUSPICIOUS SHOPPERS ARE SOUGHT BY POLICE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 15—New London's detective bureau was engaged tonight investigating the acts of two strangers whose visit to a Main street electrical store made it appear that they were crooks and that they visited the place of business for the purpose of obtaining knowledge of the interior of the store. The first man went to the store and said that he was a guest at the Hotel Mohican. He said that he had a radio, which he desired to replace by another and more up-to-date one. He also said that his name was Myers. When the clerk who had talked with the visitor had left the store, a second man visited the store and told the same story. This fact caused suspicion that the men were in league and were not telling the truth. When the police were informed of the two visits, Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh was assigned to make an investigation. A visit to the Hotel Mohican brought the information that no guest named Myers had registered there, but a visit to the Crocker House revealed that such a man registered there Sunday night and left Monday without paying his bill. A description of the two men was given the officer.

He was discharged Saturday, but within a day or two his condition became such that it was deemed advisable for him to obtain additional treatment at the institution.

Jack Merry, a stranger hereabouts, was arrested this afternoon by Special Agent Frederick Jorgenson of the New Haven railroad, charged with trespassing upon railroad property. He was locked up and will be in the police court tomorrow.

A man much the worse for over-indulgence in liquor was locked up at headquarters tonight by Lieut. David Marks and Officer Frederick Jorgenson, special agents in the employ of the New Haven railroad, charged not only with intoxication, but also with refusing to pay his fare. The man was a passenger on the express that arrived in New London from New York at 5:55. He boarded the train at New Haven and when it arrived at the Union station the conductor made complaint to the officers and he was taken from the train.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gentilella, of Bank street, celebrated the 35th anniversary of their wedding today and tonight. Throughout the day at the Gentilella residence, Mr. and Mrs. Gentilella received the congratulations of relatives and friends. Tonight at the Mohican hotel, Mr. and Mrs. Gentilella entertained a hundred or more guests. Refreshments were served and an orchestra provided music. Mr. and Mrs. Gentilella received congratulations and gifts from many friends.

Work on the widening of Bank street, between State and Tilley streets will start soon, so that the improved highway will be ready for additional traffic early in the summer, City Manager William A. Holt has issued orders to the police to have one-way traffic inaugurated on that street beginning Sunday. All traffic will proceed northward, as was the case early last summer, but went back to the two-way traffic within a fortnight. Not only will teams and motor vehicles proceed only northward on Bank street, but all traffic of trolley cars will be in the same direction. This will result in all Ocean beach bound cars, going to Montauk avenue, via State, Washington, Coit and Truman streets.

New London's automobile show opened this evening and with an array of handsome cars of every type of description displayed.

ANNUAL VISITATION OF DISTRICT DEPUTY RULER

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 15—About 500 members of Elkdom gathered at the Elks home here tonight for the annual visitation of District Deputy John B. Edgarton of Connecticut east. The session was preceded by a banquet tendered District Deputy Edgarton who is a member of the local lodge in the Nathan Hale hotel by officers, members of the board of governors and past exalted rulers of Willimantic lodge, No. 1311, B. P. O. Elks. The lodge room was overtaxed with an attendance of about 250 for the meeting. Those present included delegations from Norwich, Bristol and Rockville and many other visiting Elks.

In his talk District Deputy Edgarton made several valuable recommendations and carried the message of the grand exalted ruler. He was presented with a bag of golf clubs, the presentation being made on behalf of the lodge by Past Exalted Ruler R. Ernest Melody. Other speakers included Past District Deputy Dr. Thomas F. O'Loughlin of Rockville, Exalted Ruler George H. Williams of Rockville lodge, Past District Deputy James Hayes of Norwich, Past Exalted Ruler Lawrence E. Millea of Norwich, and Past Exalted Ruler Charles A. Gates of the local lodge, newly elected president of the Past Exalted Rulers association of Connecticut.

During the session which was in charge of Exalted Ruler P. D. Donohue the initiation of a new member, Aime J. Martineau was carried out.

LIBERTY HILL

Rev. W. F. English, treasurer of the Connecticut Missionary society, occupied the pulpit of the Exeter Liberty Hill Congregational church last Sunday. There were 44 persons present—a large number, considering the condition of the roads.

The February weather is following out quite closely the almanac day, which was a clear day of sunshine, with mercury at 5 above zero at sunrise and 35 at noon.

The sudden changing of temperature from warm to freezing has made the highways alternate from deep mud to hard ground with deep ruts. When they are in the worst condition people here have to go to Willimantic through Lebanon Center, making a 14 mile drive, which is as far as to Norwich, but now as the road is getting worse they go by the shortest way, over Village Hill, a 4 1-2 mile drive only, to the former city.

J. A. Choquette is getting out lumber from the Liberty club land.

One particular and unique bit of information which Rev. W. F. English gave us Sunday morning was the definition of "Selah," which is used so many times in Psalms at the end of each verse. He said he had spent quite a little time in study to find out the exact meaning of the word and he found it meant stop and think. He used this word for his text.

Horace Foote, who has been ill the past three weeks, is able to be up but not out of doors yet. Mr. Foote had a hard cold, which produced laryngitis.

Miss Edna Haddad is working for the American Thread company in Willimantic.

There will be services at the Exeter Liberty Hill church next Sunday. There will be a Christian Endeavor service or preaching.

PENDLETON HILL

Miss Katherine Thompson played the piano accompaniment for the eight piece school orchestra which furnished the music for last week's graduation exercises at the West Broad Street school. Graduation exercises at the school in charge of Mrs. Karl Crandall, the principal, are always of a very finished character, and the music was pronounced excellent.

Mrs. Clifford B. Thompson, mother of Miss Katherine, has charge of 53 pupils in the fifth grade of this school.

Mr. and Mrs. Birdsey Palmer and family have been suffering from severe attacks of bronchitis. Mrs. Palmer has been confined to her bed for the past week and under the doctor's care. Other members of the family are just getting out after a long siege of this persistent malady. Richard Palmer, sophomore in the Plainfield High school, has been detained from school for some time owing to an infection of the bronchial tubes.

Miss Christie Palmer has returned from a two weeks' stay with her cousins, Mr. Herbert and Miss Hattie Billings in Natick. Mrs. Charles Cottrell is at present at the home the Billings family in Natick.

Young lambs are becoming somewhat numerous on the hill. The first were fine twins belonging to the fine flock of sheep owned by the Palmer Bros. and Sons and which came Feb. 2. It certainly seems springlike to see baby lambs frisking around over these hills in February.

Miss Amelia Palmer, a student at Willimantic Normal school, spent the week-end with friends in Waterbury.

The Rev. Mr. Mathewson's sermon Sunday morning was a Lincoln day sermon from the text found in Nehemiah V.:19, Think upon me my God, for good, according to all that I have done for this people.

PLAINFIELD

Mrs. Clifford Allard spent Monday in New London.

The fellowship meeting will be held Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Mason. Subject, A Religion for Every Day. Clarence Jeffers will lead the music, with Mrs. Jeffers at the piano. Soloist, Mrs. Cecil Butler. Reading, Mrs. Victor Davidson.

The Lincoln club anniversary meeting was held Monday evening in the vestry of the First Congregational church. Supper was served at 6.30 by the Ladies' Aid society and the program was as follows: Song, America; reading, Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, by Rev. William C. Prentiss; solo, Mrs. William Crowe, with Mrs. Olive Roberts at the piano; sketch, The Greene Crows, Elmer Greene and Ray Greene; address, Abraham Lincoln, the Man of Power, by Rev. Harding W. Gaylord, pastor of the Westfield Congregational church of Danielson; solo, Mrs. William Crowe, Jr., of Norwich. W. G. Herkliots was the guest of the evening.

William P. Barstow was a caller in town Tuesday.

A few local people attended the whist given by the Loyal Neighbor lodge Monday evening in Moosup.

Miss Mary Burke entertained the Monday Evening Bridge club at the home of Miss Pauline Peltier, Pleasant street. Prizes were won by Miss Eva Higginbottom and Miss Katherine Kirby. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Downing Brothers with their gang of men and their new ice plow have succeeded in filling their two large houses with 11 or 12 inch ice.

NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

For the regulation of the speed of the cars of the N. L., W. and P. R. R. in the city limits a petition was presented to the common council. The petition was referred to a special committee. Two people, over the 90 mark, died in eastern Connecticut, one, Mrs. Parker Allen, 93, in Voluntown and the other Mrs. Huldah, 93, in Woodstock. The latter left descendants, it was said, in every state in the union. Interesting extracts taken in part from the files of the Norwich Courier follow:

Tuesday, Feb. 8, 1853—At a meeting of the court of common council held at the city hall Monday evening a petition was presented by A. T. Pierce and others in relation to regulation of the speed of the N. L., W. and P. R. R. cars in the limits of the city. On motion the petition was referred to a special committee, comprising Alderman Jones and Messrs. Allen and Cobb.

It was learned from Mr. Sherman of the Stonington Express, that the prisoners, seven in number, in the jail at East Greenwich, made their way out of the cells on the afternoon of the first and had proceeded as far as the outer door, when the sheriff, hearing the stampede, made his appearance with one man. Although the prisoners were armed with axes and bars, they were captured and placed in the cells again.

Mrs. Parker Allen, 92, died Jan. 23 at the residence of her son, Deacon Nathan Allen in Voluntown. She was a daughter of Rev. Isaac Backus of Middleboro, Mass.

Thursday, Feb. 10, 1853—One of our exchanges records the death of Mrs. Huldah, wife of Col. Zetheniah Tucker of Woodstock, this state, on the second inst. at the age of 93. The deceased, it is said, has left descendants in every state in the union, 87 of whom reside in Massachusetts.

A lazy fellow was sitting besides his beloved and being unable to think of anything else to say, asked her why she was like a tailor. "I don't know," said she, with a pouting lip, "unless it's because I'm sitting beside a goose."

There will be found in the appropriate columns of today's paper an ordinance of the court of common council extending the limits on the west side within which it shall be unlawful for any person hereafter to erect or remove wooden buildings.

The New London county court, Judge Hovey presiding, commenced its session on Tuesday.

Saturday, Feb. 12, 1853—There was an alarm of fire which called out the firemen, but the fire proved to be in a chimney in the small brick building just west of Treadway's block on Shetucket street. The only damage was done by water.

Mr. Gough commenced the advertised series of temperance addresses in this city last evening, at the town hall, which was crowded to hear him. This afternoon he addresses the children at the Methodist church in East Chelsea and in the evening speaks at the town hall again.

Mrs. Susan Marsh, widow of the Hon. Charles Marsh, died Monday morning, the 31st ult, in Woodstock Vt., of paralysis. She was born Oct. 9, 1776, and was the third daughter of the late Dr. Elisha Perkins of Plainfield, Conn.

Affected Face and Neck. Healed by Cuticura.

"My trouble began with pimples. They affected my face and later spread to my neck. They were hard and red, and itched all the time so that I could not sleep. I scratched them and it made them worse, and my face was disfigured. The trouble lasted for seven years.

"I tried other remedies but the pimples kept getting worse. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after using five cakes of Cuticura Soap and five boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Alta McGray, R. 2, Box 68, Charleston, Me.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Nanny Mourns for Danny

From those who sorrow joy has fled
And grief has filled their hearts instead.
—Nanny Meadow Mouse.

Nanny Meadow Mouse closed her eyes. She just couldn't watch what was happening to Danny Meadow Mouse. When she did open them Roughleg the Hawk was slowly flapping away from the spot where Danny had been and, of course, there was no Danny there.

"He's caught Danny," sobbed Nanny. "That big robber has caught Danny. Now I shall never, never see him again! Oh, why should Danny be so careless? I was afraid something like this would happen. Oh, Danny, Danny, what shall I do without you?"

Poor Nanny! She crept back down through one of the little holes in the snow to one of the private little paths she and Danny had made underneath the snow—paths that were now little tunnels. Along this she ran until it joined another private little path, and along this one until she came to the snug little home where she and Danny had been so happy. Into this she crept and disconsolately curled up in the little bed of soft grass inside. She was broken hearted, was Nanny Meadow Mouse. "Oh, dear!" she sobbed. "Why couldn't Danny have been just a little bit careful? He was the bravest Meadow Mouse that ever lived! But was too bold. How many times I warned him not to take such chances! And now that black robber from away up in the North has got my Danny! Oh, dear! Oh, dear!"

Nanny didn't once think of going over to the place where this terrible thing had happened. She knew what she knew and that was enough. She didn't dare go over to that big weed-top where Danny had been stuffing himself with seeds when Roughleg the Hawk appeared. There was no sense in running an unnecessary risk. Besides, what good would it do? Hadn't she with her own eyes seen Roughleg strike and watched him fly away? And hadn't she with her own eyes seen that Danny was no longer there? How she would miss Danny! She had missed him before. Danny had been away on long trips, but always she had held the hope that he would come back. Now she had no hope. She knew that he simply couldn't come back. Probably by now he had been eaten. Nanny sobbed afresh at his dreadful thought.

"So that is where he was sitting when he caught Danny!" thought she.

It was a long time before Nanny left the nest to visit one of their storehouses where a lot of seeds were tucked away. She had to eat. Even those whose hearts are filled with sorrow must eat. But as she ran along through the little tunnels under the snow, the tunnels she and Danny had made, there was always something to remind her of Danny. Yes, sir, there was always something to remind her of Danny. It seemed as if she missed him more and more. She would find herself stopping to listen for sounds of him. But, of course, she listened in vain. Then Nanny would sigh such a deep, sorrowful little sigh and go on. She had no ambition to make any more tunnels under the snow. Sometimes she thought of moving away from the place altogether. It didn't seem as if she could go on living there without Danny.

"It's the lonesomest place in the world," sighed Nanny.

Once or twice she climbed up the little openings in the snow and poked her head out of one of them to look for Roughleg the Hawk. It happened that once she did this just as Roughleg was flying over to his new perch on the fence post. Because he was moving she saw him. In an instant she understood what had happened.

"So that is where he was sitting when he caught Danny," thought she. "He had changed his perch and we didn't know it. Oh, Danny, Danny, why would you be so reckless?"

A fire-fighter is as good as his muscles

7 out of 10 fire-fighters questioned use this to avoid muscle lameness

A FIRE-FIGHTER has to keep his muscles always strong and supple. He must be able to climb and spring with the sureness and swiftness of a cat—to perform almost superhuman feats of strength.

And yet think of the conditions under which he works! Out in all kinds of weather, drenched for hours with the spray from the big hose, he is constantly exposed to the chilling that causes stiffness of the muscles, rheumatism, chest congestions. And his heavy muscular strains—the risks he takes—cannot but bring a certain amount of lameness and numerous minor injuries.

We went right to the fire-fighters themselves and asked them how they ward off the results of chilling—what they use for lameness, stiffness, congestions, injuries.

Out of hundreds questioned, 7 out of 10 said they use Sloan's.

All workers who face exposure and strain praise it

In every walk of life where men and women work hard—face exposure—run the risk of accidents—you'll find Sloan's Liniment the standby. It saves them hours of pain, days of lost time.

Read this statement from a lifeguard at Coney Island.

"I have been a lifeguard for the City of New York for many years, and sometimes after being out on the beach all day in rainy weather, I come home aching all over with muscular rheumatism. But as soon as I apply Sloan's Liniment the pain goes away. I also find it good for a rub down after a long swim or a rescue, and I always carry Sloan's Liniment in my first-aid kit." Walter C. Menyhart, 918 Gravesend Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

And this from a policeman: "I have had Sloan's Liniment give me great relief when all others fail. I recommend Sloan's for all pains in the back and legs. I do a lot of walking and am exposed to all kinds of weather." W. R. Christy, 1933 Master St., Philadelphia, Pa.

One of the fire-fighters questioned. 7 out of 10 told us that they use Sloan's to protect them from exposure and strain

Sloan's is sure—quick

What makes Sloan's Liniment relieve pain where all other liniments fail?

Simply because Sloan's works by stirring up the body's own powers to heal itself. It doesn't just deaden the pain. It gets at the cause. It stirs up the circulation—breaks congestion—clears out germs and poisons. The pain stops because the trouble is gone. You can get a bottle that will last a long time for 35 cents at any druggist's. Use it for:

Rheumatism — Lame muscles
Sciatica — Stiff neck
Lumbago — Colds and congestions
Neuralgia
Sprains and bruises

The company doctor of one of the biggest industries of the country says of Sloan's: "People whose work exposes them to strain or to damp and cold usually suffer from a good deal of muscular soreness. We find that Sloan's gives them quick, positive relief."

ERRATIC PRICE MOVEMENTS CAUSED BY OPPOSING SPECULATIVE FORCES

NEW YORK, Feb. 16—(AP)—Highly erratic price movements in today's stock market reflected the play of opposing speculative forces. Pools succeeded in marking up more than a dozen issues to new high records, but bear traders also uncovered a number of new weak spots and pushed a few issues to their lowest prices in a year or more. Standard industrials and rails moved within a rather narrow range but the general tendency was downward. Trading was only moderately heavy in volume, the day's sales falling below 2,000,000 shares.

Speculative uneasiness over the credit and brokers' loan situation is believed to have inspired much of the day's liquidation. No change developed in the day's money market, call loans renewing at 4 1-2 per cent and holding steady at that figure all day. The weekly figures on brokers' loans will be issued after the close of the market tomorrow.

Weekly steel trade reviews reported that steel production is approaching a state of equilibrium, and emphasize that much of the recent buying has been due to railroad purchases. Operations of the United States Steel corporation are reported to have advanced from 88 to 90 per cent of capacity during the past week. U. S. Steel common closed fractionally lower at 144 after selling a point above that figure.

Revival of activity and strength of General Motors was associated with unconfirmed reports that William C. Durant was again operating in that stock. Wall street has heard reports of a large short interest in the stock but it is not known whether this represents actual "bear" trades or merely technical short selling against stock locked in safe deposit boxes which might later be withdrawn for delivery against such sales. Hupp closed 2 points higher at 39 but the other motors were mixed, Pierce Arrow preferred sagging 2 points to a new low level.

Baldwin jumped 7 points to 250 on a few sales despite the recent publication of a poor 1927 earnings report. Adams, American and American Railway expresses moved up 3 3-4 to 7 1-2 points. Electric Refrigeration crossed 15 to a new high and lost part of its gain. City Stores B advanced nearly 4 points to a new peak at 38 3-4 but forfeited all but a fraction of its gain on realizing.

Bullish operations also were quite pronounced in American Snuff, Brooklyn Edison, General Refractories, Liggett & Myers B, Montana Power and the Standard Plate Glass issues, all of which sold 3 to 5 points higher. On the other hand, weakness developed in American Zinc & Lead common and preferred, Burroughs Adding Machine, Dupont, Freeport Texas, Greene Cananea Copper, Mullins Body, and Wright Aeroplane. Pan-American issues sank to their lowest levels in several years.

A further recession of a point in New Haven in the face of the recent resumption of dividends and a break of more than 3 points in Pittsburgh & West Virginia were the only features of note in the railroad list.

Foreign exchange trading was quiet with prices holding fairly steady. Sterling Cables ruled around $4.87 7-16.

Reactionary price tendencies predominated in the commodity markets. Wheat yielded fractionally and corn dropped a cent or so a bushel. Cotton broke $1 to $1.50 a bale on liquidation inspired by the favorable Texas rains and the bearish interpretation placed upon the efforts of British spinners to force a reduction in wages and longer working hours.

Paramount Famous Lasky corporation had 5,010 common stockholders on December 15, an increase of 23 per cent over a year ago. In the eight years, 1920 to 1927, both inclusive, the common stock has paid $31.25 a share in cash, valuable rights and stock dividends, more than the average selling price of the stock in 1926, which was $67.50 a share. Earnings last year were $12.83 a share on the common.

New paid-for life insurance in January, exclusive of revivals, increases and dividend additions, amounted to $888,240,000, a gain of $1,681,000 over January last year, the Association of Life Insurance Presidents reports.

New England Industries

THE WOOLEN AND WORSTED GOODS INDUSTRY

The woolen and worsted goods industry is the second largest industry in New England, with a total value of output of more than $37,000,000, which represents 10 per cent of the total value of all manufactured products made in this region. The combined industry is of even greater importance to several of the individual states than to New England as a whole. In Rhode Island, for example, woolen and worsted goods comprise 15.4 per cent of all manufactures, in Maine 12.5 per cent., in Massachusetts 4.9 per cent, in Vermont 3.3 per cent., in New Hampshire 5 per cent and in Connecticut 2.5 per cent.

New England produced 64.3 per cent. of the woolen and worsted goods of the country in 1923, showing an increase from 62.5 per cent in 1914. In this period the total value of the products of this industry in New England increased 186 per cent. in comparison with 164 per cent for the balance of the country.

One hundred and sixty-six New England producers of woolen and worsted goods made reports in a survey conducted by the United States Department of Commerce in cooperation with the New England Council. The total output of these concerns represents about half of the production for this area. Individual sales range from $80,000 to $20,000,000 annually and the average annual sales volume per mill is $1,500,00.

As in other industries, the development of hand-to-mouth buying and frequent style changes have become important problems. Yet these mills are now making a larger share of the country's output than ever before.

The average period of operation for the establishments in this group is thirty-six years. Eighteen per cent. of the mills reporting were established within the last ten years. Fourteen per cent have made changes in management during the last five years, and an additional 14 per cent during the last fifteen years. The average period of present management is nineteen years. Labor conditions are reported as the leading attraction for locating in New England, followed by nearness to market, accessibility of raw materials, transportation facilities, freight rates and taxes. Fifteen per cent of the reporting group operate branch plants, all in New England. Wool is the chief raw material and 39 per cent of the concerns buy most of it from New England sources.

The average ratio of wages to total value of product according to 1923 census figures was 21.6 per cent with 20.8 per cent the average for the rest of the country. It is therefore interesting to find from the survey reports that 83 per cent of all mills reporting in this group are using incentive methods of wage payment. The number of workers paid on such a basis average 43 per cent.

Seasonal employment variation in 1923 was only 3 per cent between maximum and minimum periods, but increased to 10 per cent in 1925. Many mills have succeeded in making employment more uniform by manufacturing for stock or developing supplementary lines. Improvements reported in manufacturing practices include better methods of accident prevention, continuous maintenance of plant and equipment, organization and executive control, production control, and uniform methods of cost accounting. Industrial research was reported by ten companies.

New England sales have been increasing for 29 per cent of the mills reporting in this survey, the same production as in the cotton goods group. Manufacturers experiencing increased sales in this area, attribute them to greater sales effort, while decreasing sales are reported due to a change in the market trend.

Increases in total sales were reported on account of new products, lower manufacturing costs, new sales methods, and extension of territories, while decreases were attributed to general overproduction, change in nature of demand, labor costs, and competition from other sections. Many firms sell through New York commission houses which employ salesmen covering the country.

Brands or trademarks are reported as used on 69 per cent of the total output. Advertising costs in 1923 were reported as 1.8 per cent of the total value of product and selling costs exclusive of advertising 6.4 per cent.

The channels of distribution reported include commission agents, direct to manufacturers, wholesalers or jobbers, direct to retailers, exclusive distributors and direct by mail.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre.

Versatility is Richard Dix's middle name.

At least it ought to be. For almost a year, he has played in nothing except heavy dramatic and melodramatic roles. Now he makes an about-face and gives us a hilarious farce.

The new picture is "Sporting Goods," the new attraction for Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the Palace theatre. It is sure to attract all of Dix's regular fans, and, in addition, everybody in Norwich who enjoy a couple of hours of almost continuous laughter.

For this picture is funny. There are funny characterizations, and funny situations, and funny "gags," all performed by a capable cast and directed in a sure-fire fashion by Malcolm St. Clair.

Dix is cast in a typical "young-American" role, that of a happy-go-lucky golf suit salesman, who gets into tremendous (and comic) difficulties when he is a multi-millionaire. As the girl was portrayed by Gertrude Olmsted, he is not to blame at all, incidentally.

Dix's deception gets him into deep water—some of it muddy water, too—but eventually he extricates himself, saves the girl's fortune and then gets one himself and her, too.

One of the funniest sequences in the picture was Dix's poker game, in which the villain, played by Philip Strange, and two other men, try to cheat Dix out of his money, only to be foiled by their own trickery.

The vaudeville offering this week is exceptionally good. Turner and Grace have a novelty bit that's sure to please. Princess White Cloud, a real Indian princess, entertains with vocal, whistling and instrumental solos. Charles and Grace Keating have a peppy comedy song and dance skit and Nelson and Irene are sure to give you a hearty laugh with their comedy. The Artistic Revue with a company of seven people is different from the usual dancing acts. The costumes and scenery are especially attractive and the performers are all artists of exceptional ability.

Strand Theatre.

"A Lost Trail" tells of a band of outlaws who hide their loot in a hidden cave at the end of "A Lost Trail." Buck Parvin, the sheriff, played by Frank Ellis, and Jack Padgett, played by Al Hoxie, are foiled in every attempt to reach the bandit's hangout. After all sorts of complications, which include the holding up of the stage containing the gold dust shipped by the Sierra Express Co., young Padgett and the girl with whom he is in love (Alma Rayford) jointly discover the trail and with the aid of the sheriff round up the whole gang of outlaws. Others in the cast are Leon Kent, Charles Whittaker and Lew O'Connor.

"The Live Wire," is a film comedy taken from the novel "The Game of Light," by Richard Washburn Child. In the picture "The Live Wire," Johnny Hines, the star, is seen as a circus performer, and then as a lamp salesman. By the hero's wit and ingenuity he puts over a big power and light contract for a public service corporation, thereby starting himself on the road to fortune and winning the girl he loves. Mildred Ryan is the leading lady and others in the cast are J. Barney Sherry, Flora Finch and Edmund Breese.

"Aesop's Fables," complete this interesting bill.

Connecticut College Concert

The coming of Percy Grainger for the third concert in Connecticut college series next Monday evening is of interest to all lovers of piano music and piano playing, be they student or finished performer. The originality of his program, his splendid technical equipment and his interpretations have for several years commanded the attention of his contemporaries. His New London appearance will be in Bulkeley auditorium. The sale of tickets begins Thursday morning at Starr Brothers'.

In New London during the past week there were 11 sales of real estate, nine less than during the week a year ago when there were 20. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $40,750 and $84,500.

Building Permits.

A note of outstanding interest in business circles is the manner in which building operations in Connecticut have continued to show a marked increase over the opening months of the preceding year. In the past week the number of building permits issued in the leading Connecticut building centers was 192 compared with 176 for the like period a year ago. The total of estimated building costs this past week was $669,856. In the like week of 1927 this item amounted to $671,610.

Storrs.

A program of school building proposing the immediate erection of a four-room schoolhouse at Storrs was submitted at a recent meeting of the mansfield town school committee. An addition or a new building is said to be needed at Mansfield Hollow and repairs and additions are contemplated at The Ridges and at Mansfield Depot. The school committee, which is making a survey to determine upon immediate steps for providing additional school facilities, is headed by William J. Kirkpatrick.

Rockville.

Jack Lavine, proprietor of the Brockton Shoe Store, has purchased the Swindells property on West Main street, having a frontage of 35 feet. Mr. Lavine will erect a one-story brick block on the site, arranged for five stores.

Waterford.

Plans for the organization of the new fire company in the Goshen and Pleasure Beach sections of Waterford have been perfected and the building committee, of which Giles Beckwith is chairman, is completing arrangements for the selection of a site for a fire headquarters building. Sentiment that is strongly in favor of the erection of a combined community and fire house has been expressed by residents of the sections to be benefited by the formation of the fire fighting unit.

Mystic.

Resolutions calling for repairs and improvements in the tenth district school in Mystic were passed at a recent meeting of the voters of the district. The resolutions provide for the following improvements in the school building. Repairs to the sills, etc.; new floors in the primary department and entry hall; general repairs as needed; installation of sanitary drinking fountains; installation of suitable toilet facilities. The installation of a new heating system will be undertaken when the contemplated repairs have been completed.

New London.

With eight new cottages already finished and occupied and with four now in the course of construction the realty development of Dr. E. Oliver Winship comprising the former Ringe estate at Ocean and Glenwood avenues and Lower Boulevard, stands out as one of the most comprehensive real estate projects of the city for the past year. For several months workmen have been engaged in erecting the beautiful new homes that now grace the former estate and as yet the task has just begun. Eventually it is planned to erect at least 20 new homes in that select locality and there is land enough available on the ten-acre tract to provide ample space for the location of at least 70 new homes.

Through his supervising agent, Thomas T. Wetmore, Jr., Dr. Winship has proceeded with the development with characteristic attention to all details and problems of the future have been solve 2in advance. One of the initial steps in the project was the removal of an ell of the old Riggs mansion to the corner site at Lower Boulevard and Glenwood avenue. Where the former ell was converted into a modern cottage of exceptional attractiveness, the interior being entirely refinished, revived and refaced. The exterior was given the necessary refinishing, a sun porch added, and upon completion the structure had every appearance and was equally as good as a brand new house.

Lower Boulevard Developments.

Thus far the most progress in the development of the estate has been along the Lower Boulevard frontage. Here, four new cottages, all of unusually attractive design and each of an individual type of architecture, have been finished and are now being occupied by the new owners. In doing the contract work for these new houses, and those under construction, Contractor Frank Lamphear has carried out the directions of Mr. Wetmore to the letter in putting only the best material and skilled labor into the structures and to make them a source of pride, not only to the owners but to the entire neighborhood.

Besides the four houses which have been completed there are two more under construction in Lower Boulevard. One is now nearing completion. It has been plastered and is ready for the interior finishing. The sides are of Colonial clapboard. The main structure, resting on a concrete foundation, is effectively set off by a red brick front step entrance which is covered over. The ingenious manner of arranging the roofs, which are finished with composition roofing of various dull colors which add to the harmony of the general color scheme, also enhances the general appearance.

The second stage of the development is along the Glenwood avenue frontage, extending from Ocean avenue to Lower Boulevard. Here three of the new cottages have already been completed and are occupied and three are now in the course of construction.

One of the new houses still unfinished has been enclosed and is ready for the interior finishing. It has wide clapboard siding, with a roof parallel to the street, and sets on a stone foundation. To the north is attached a garage, effectively placed, and to the south is located a room enclosed with three sides exposed after the manner of a sunporch but which in some respects gives the impression of being more a part of the main structure proper.

Work has been practically completed on the exterior of another cottage in the Glenwood avenue frontage, excepting the work of the stone fireplace which is located at the north end with three sides exposed. The manner in which the roof, parallel with the street, slopes down over a wide front porch greatly enhances the general appearance and shows attention to architectural detail.

Excavation work is now under way in preparation for the pouring of the concrete foundation for the latest house to be started on the development.

Applications for Building Permits.

Abraham Rakonky, bath houses, Ocean beach, $5,000.

P. H. Fitzgerald Est., alterations, 9-11 State street, $3,000.

Number of permits for the week, 3; estimated cost of buildings, $8,000.

Westerly.

During the second week in February Westerly Zoning Inspector Louis J. Rossi and Building Inspector Thomas Wills, have issued zoning and building permits as follows:

Feb. 7. Mrs. Antonio Deaimone, (Mary), 53 John street. Construct open porch, 4 feet by 20 feet on house on Westminster street. Peter Nardone, contractor.

Feb. 7. South County Public Service company, 55 High street. Place wooden partitions in storehouse off Canal street for stock room.

Feb. 7. Mrs. Nellie J. Havens, 38 Oak street. Convert pantry into bathroom; renovations and repairs to house at 38 Oak street. Paul Dinwoodie, contractor.

Feb. 7. Harry A. Littlefield, Beach street. Raise roof of building, 35 feet by 18 feet, at rear of restaurant on Bay street, Watch Hill, for upstairs sleeping rooms.

Feb. 9. Salvatore Fiore, 54 Pierce street. Repairs to wooden dwelling house, 54 Pierce street, damaged by fire, cutting in two new doors and removing wooden prop supporting chimney. Paul Luliano, contractor.

At the two story brick business block on Railroad avenue, across from the Westerly waiting station of the New Haven railroad, the scaffolding was entirely removed from the front of the building on Monday. This permitted the granite inscription block "Chester 1925" to be plainly seen in the brick front above the second story windows. It is understood that the upper floor will contain two office rooms and a large room. On the ground floor will be two stores, one of which will be suitable for automobile sales and display. The work of completing the gravel and tar roof is nearly finished.

In the new Morrone and Gastagna two-story brick business block on Canal street in front of the Alba Inn, the cement floor and windows for the first floor store is being laid. A sidewalk awning is already in place and the work of finishing off ceilings and side walls nearly completed. On the second floor is a large public hall approximately 36 by 75 feet and suitable for dances and society single night use.

Laying of the terra cotta tile on the roof of the addition to the Westerly Memorial and Public Library building on Broad street continues to be pushed while interior finishing is being carried on.

The first granite from the Smith Granite company for the water table for the Westerly Central Fire Headquarters station on Union street is promised for delivery on Monday next. These granite blocks will be of the thickness of one and a half of the granite ashlers on the Westerly Town Hall building, and will be laid on the cement foundation which is already completed. Red brick from Barrington, R. I., will be laid for side walls on the water table course.

The American Institute of Electrical Engineers, in session in New York today, will be joined with a session of the British Institution of Electrical Engineers, in London, by transatlantic radio telephony.

WELDING
The Modern Metal Surgeon
A welded part is as strong or stronger than a new one and the cost for welding is always nominal. There is no delay. Welding requires no enforced idleness while broken or worn parts are being replaced from a long distance. Everything of metal can be repaired. Small parts are re-made while you wait. Large and heavy equipment can usually be welded in place often without dismantling the machinery.
No job is too big or too small to be economically welded.

THICKNESS DOES NOT ALWAYS MEAN LONGEST WEAR

With all the modern substitutes for leather, this old-time product still holds sway as the best shoe material there is, according to the Shoe-Fix, Inc. of 256 Main street.

There is a romance to the experiences of those shoe repairers. They have discovered that there is no "Just as good" substitute for leather, contrary to some popular fallacies on the subject. They also give the public a pointer on the fact that not all that appears to be leather is natural leather.

There is an acid treatment for leather which swells up the product, making it appear thicker and making it heavier weighing. But this acid treated leather does not wear as well as the natural leather. Another advantage of the thinner and lighter natural leather is its comfort when made into shoes.

Thus the Shoe-Fix, Inc. gives away the secrets of its trade, because they are not held as secrets, and it is their belief that honesty pays in business.

GET YOUR RADIATOR IN GOOD SHAPE FOR COLD WEATHER USE

Good clean circulation of water through your radiator will save you much trouble in cold weather from your "auto freezing." Your auto doesn't really freeze, as a rule, as many motorists use the term, but some part of your radiation, which isn't in any too good working order, won't permit the water to flow freely and therefore freezes in cold weather. The radiator is the most common part of your auto water system to get clogged up or to leak, which causes as much trouble as anything else.

The Norwich Auto Radiator Works of 375 Main street, makes a specialty of radiator work. Just drive your car around to the Main street shop any morning and have your car looked over. Many times it will be repaired while you wait, and, if not, the job will be fixed up so you can have your car ready to drive home when the day's work is done.

Where Quality and Service are the Watchword

GREGORY'S GETTING TO BE MORE POPULAR FOR ITS SUNDAY DINNERS

Gregory's Restaurant on Broadway has celebrated several birthdays as a part of Norwich's business and civic life. That eating place which started in this city several years ago has grown in popularity until the by-word "meet you at Gregory's for lunch" is as common among the business men and women as "I'll see you tomorrow."

Gregory's has builded its popularity on its good food at reasonable prices. It has become not only a meeting place for business men at luncheon but likewise for afternoon gatherings.

Gregory's just now is putting especial emphasis on its Sunday dinners. It's steak and chicken dinners are well known and they are getting more and more popular.

GOOD TIME TO GET YOUR ORDER IN FOR AN AUTO PAINT JOB

This is a good time to get your order placed to have your auto painted. Perhaps you don't want to put your machine up just now, but perhaps it is better to do so now than in the spring. Orders for auto painting should be placed now and put you in a position to have the work done when you can spare your car. That obviates the necessity of a long wait in the warm months when everyone else wants a paint job and also enables you to have the work done when you don't care to use your car.

The employes of the General Auto Paint Shop of 354 West Main street are painters of note. Their work is always of the best and their customers are always pleased.

CONTRACTING DONE IN ALL ITS BRANCHES MERE JOB TO BIG WORK

In the day of specialization a contractor who tackles anything from a mere little job about the house to the construction of a modern apartment block, a business block or a factory is among the few to be had.

W. S. Spencer of the Disco Bldg. is a contractor on building of all descriptions. He will handle a job of repairs about your house, and the spring is an ideal time to have those little odd jobs done. He will build that driveway to your garage, paint up those walls before summer comes or he will build you a new garage.

Perhaps your floor needs refinishing. He has the sanding machines for the work and will do an ideal job.

And, when your jobbing is done he will paint and finish your work completely.

Mr. Spencer says no job is too small nor none too large. He is always pleased to give estimates.

HEATED GARAGE SERVICE SOUGHT FOR IN COLD WEATHER

The cold evenings of the past few weeks makes you think of what you are going to do with your auto when colder weather continues. Of course you want to keep on using it throughout the winter, and in order to do it you have to have a warm garage to keep it in at night and during the day when not in use.

One of the most modern fireproof, heated garages in Eastern Connecticut is the Bailey Garage, of 12 Bath street, a step from the business center.

The concern also maintains service in gas and oils and accessories. Almost any service is available and they will tell you how moderately is their storage charge and how complete the service.

GET YOUR ORDER IN NOW FOR DELIVERY ON FARM IMPLEMENTS

The farmer has harvested his crops and he has a few minutes now to think of his plans for the coming spring. It is an ideal time for him to think about the machinery he will need to make his farm a better farm another year and to increase its profits.

The Eldredge Hardware Company of 85 Water street specializes in farming equipment and carries a full and complete stock on hand. Just this time of year they have the latest in all farm machinery that the farmer and the land and wood toiler may have ample opportunity to look them over.

It's a good time to look the display over, and to place your order. For, if the Eldredge Hardware Co. hasn't the particular machine you may wish it will give them ample opportunity to order it before you wish to use it.

A GOOD PLACE FOR WOMEN TO SHOP FOR SPRING APPAREL

Women are always looking for a good place to shop, a place of refinement, a place that has all the latest styles and a place that is up to the minute in the quality of its goods and the service it renders.

The People's Store, Inc., of Taftville, caters to the particular wants of discriminating women. It carries a full line of seasonable goods for women in all the latest ideas and styles.

Just now the shop has a fine line of three piece silk and wool knit suits, knit coats, sweater costumes with crepe skirts, all in pastel shades and flannel coats.

The People's Store is always pleased to exhibit its line of goods to any prospective customer, whether you buy or not. It's just a nice, ideal place to shop.

LOBSTER BOAT CASE IS TO REACH JURY IN COMMON PLEAS TODAY

The hard fought suit between the skippers of two New London lobster boats which has been on trial since last week in the common pleas court at New London before Judge C. B. Waller and a jury will reach the jury this (Thursday) morning. The evidence was all in and arguments were completed by the attorneys Wednesday afternoon so that Judge Waller will charge the jury when court comes in this (Thursday) morning at 9.30 o'clock.

Capt. Edgar Derrick, owner of the Maria II, is suing Bradford Lake and Emory Rogers, owners of the Georgianna, for $1,500 damages because of a collision between the two boats on the night of boat race day in New London harbor.

Capt. Joseph Hunt, a young seafaring man of New London, admitted on the witness stand Wednesday that his anger was aroused when Edgar Derrick, skipper of the lobster boat Maria II, termed him a "blind horse" during the latter's testimony in the suit. The witness made the admission while being questioned by Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky, who with Attorney Foster K. Sistare represents Derrick, tried to have Hunt say that he and Derrick was not friendly.

Attorney George Curtis Morgan, who with Attorney Samuel Gruskin represent the defendants, then propounded this question:

"Do you remember of going to see Charlie Chaplin in The Circus with Derrick?"

Judge Waller informed the witness that he could just answer yes or no to that question and the witness replied "yes".

Another witness for the defense was Captain Thomas M. Gandy, skipper of the Square Deal, who testified that the Sunday after boat race day he sat with Capt. John Brown on the after deck of the latter's houseboat Wenonah and heard Derrick say to Rogers on the deck of another boat nearby, "I knew my stern light was out." Captain Gandy was subjected to a vigorous cross-examination by Attorney Hollandersky.

Attorney Morgan passed his opinion on the fact that Franklin Post, Mystic boat builder, was not present in court to be questioned by Mr. Morgan although he was Attorney Hollandersky's witness. Attorney Morgan said that Post was told by him to be in court with his books Wednesday.

Attorney Hollandersky told the court that he had told Post to be present but the latter stated that he had a $5,000 deal to take care of and that if Mr. Morgan wanted him in court, he would have to subpoena him.

Judge Waller then ordered a recess and Mr. Post was called in it being explained to him that he should have been on hand and that he was keeping the court and jury waiting.

FIFTH DISTRICT MEETING WAS HELD AT BALTIC

Legionaires from the Fifth district journeyed to Baltic last Friday evening to attend the district meeting which was held in Sprague hall.

The meeting was opened by District Commander Morris Peck of Lyme. The prayer was read by the district chaplain, Thomas Sears, of the Taftville post.

Various matters of business were discussed and acted upon. The meeting was adjourned for about 30 minutes to allow Mrs. Dorsey to address the Ladies' Auxiliary, and to assist the ladies of Baltic in forming an auxiliary. Several names were secured Friday night and since then quite a number of ladies have signed up, which all goes to show that interest in the Legion is growing.

When the meeting was called to order again, State Commander Earl Richards gave a very interesting talk on work which the Legion is doing. He spoke of the effort to secure a hospital of 500 beds for Connecticut.

The roll call showed members present from Baltic, Taftville, Norwich, New London, Montville, Lyme, Noank and Mystic.

After the meeting, sandwiches, coffee and cake were served, after which dancing was enjoyed until 11:30. The next district meeting will be held in Montville in March. The Baltic post and its auxiliary plan to attend in a body.

NATIVE OF THOMPSON OBSERVES 94TH BIRTHDAY

WORCESTER, Mass., Feb. 15.—Mrs. Eunice A. Kinney, a native of Thompson, Conn., observed yesterday her 94th birthday anniversary at her home, 14 Mason street, by keeping open house with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Kinney.

Relatives and a few friends were guests at the home last night, and there was a birthday cake from which tiny candles glowed. Mrs. Kinney was showered with cards, letters and gifts, with congratulations from a host of friends. She is active, in spite of her advanced age.

Although born in Thompson, Mrs. Kinney came to Worcester in 1864. Her husband, William P. Kinney, served for three years in the Civil war, and returned to live in Worcester up to the time of his death, more than 20 years ago.

ROGERS LAKE INJUNCTION SUIT IS WITHDRAWN

The suit brought against Frank L. Powell of Old Lyme by the Old Lyme Realty company for $10,000 damages and an injunction to restrain Powell from opening the sluiceway or letting out the waters of Rogers lake has been withdrawn without costs from the superior court. The suit was brought in November, 1926, and in the following month the plaintiff company secured a temporary injunction which was issued by Judge C. B. Waller of the common pleas court.

The realty company owns a tract of 150 acres at Rogers lake which has been sub-divided into lots for summer cottages. It claimed that by reason of Powell opening the sluiceway in the dam, the water of the lake was lowered to such an extent that the bed of the lake was exposed and the value of the lots and the possibility of selling lots was seriously interfered with.

The Art Lace and Braid company, which was a party defendant in the suit, claimed that ever since 1864, this company and its predecessors have continuously used the waters of Rogers lake for various manufacturing purposes under a claim of right openly, visibly and notoriously as occasion required and without objection on the part of any riparian owner until the present action was brought. The company claimed the right to use the water in unlimited amount as needed.

TELLS WOMAN'S CLUB OF NEED OF GUARDING STREAMS FROM POLLUTION

Dr. Sanford H. Wadhams of the state water commission was the speaker Wednesday evening at the round table meeting held by the civics committee of the Woman's City club at the Wauregan hotel. Mayor Milo R. Waters and several other members of the town and city governments were present as guests. Dr. Wadhams spoke on the aims of the state water commission and on the methods it is using in its activities. He told of the creation of the state water commission in 1925 by act of the legislature and said that it began functioning about two years ago.

For many years people have been thinking of the constant increase in the pollution of streams, he said. A few years ago you will recall that all through New England our streams were beautiful, clear streams of water. As industries began to demand power they went down to the streams to get that power. With the development of power and the increase in industry, the pollution of streams began in industrial waste and the development of sewerage systems emptying into the streams.

We awoke to the fact that we were strangling our best streams by the great volume of pollution turned into them. To illustrate this, Dr. Wadhams said that the Naugatuck river is no longer a live stream; it is dead, as it is a channel for sewerage.

The passing of the state water commission law was the result of good business sense to stop pollution. Industrial needs demand clean water and not sewerage. There is another important point and this is the gradual damage to land values of land adjacent to streams, owing to the pollution of those streams.

If you stop to think, the streams of the state are no longer fit for bathing or boating. The gist of the law is to stop or to regulate pollution. There are a variety of kinds of pollution. The principal kinds are industrial waste and domestic sewerage. Dr. Wadhams said the commission cannot take action against pollution unless they can point out the remedy. He also said that at the last legislature a law was passed which forbids the dumping of garbage or other domestic refuse in streams or within 50 feet of the streams and providing a $200 fine as the penalty for violation of the law.

Dr. Wadhams said that the state water commission, in its activities, is trying to secure co-operation and not arouse antagonism. He said that when the commission goes into a community, the mayor and heads of the community are visited, the matter talked over, and the financial condition of the community considered. Then the commission, asks, does not order, that sufficient money be appropriated to provide a sanitary engineer to make a survey in order to learn what can be done to remedy the pollution situation. The speaker said that many of the smaller cities have sewerage disposal plants but that there are none in the larger cities. However, one of the larger cities is now working on the project. He said that pollution conditions have been remedied in many of the state's institutions and in many industrial plants.

At the close of his talk, Dr. Wadhams answered a number of questions asked by those in the audience. The meeting was held in the Woman's City club room.

CHARLES E. HUGHES SWAYS PAN-AMERICAN DELEGATES

Chairman of the American Delegation Was Accorded a Great Ovation When He Threw the Whole Weight of the United States Behind the Proposal to Outlaw All Aggressive Warfare on the Western Hemisphere—The Eminent Jurist Again Was Applauded as He Pledged All His Energy and Strength to Promote the Pacific Settlement of Disputes—Head of the Argentine Delegation Has Resigned.

HAVANA, Feb. 16—(AP)—Charles Evans Hughes, chairman of the American delegation at the sixth Pan-American conference, amid the applause of the representatives of all the republics of the western world, today threw the whole weight of the United States behind the proposal to outlaw all aggressive warfare in this hemisphere.

At the same time Mr. Hughes outlined to the conference a plan for the maintenance of American peace. He again was enthusiastically applauded when he declared his country to be "opposed to any acts of aggression, desirous of seeing force abolished from this hemisphere, and seeks nothing but the prosperity, independence and friendship of all the American state."

First the committee on Pan-American union affairs met this morning and approved the final text of the convention relating to that body, as well as a resolution to provide a modus vivendi for its organization until the convention is ratified by the governments. Then the committee on public international law met and selected for discussion the report on pacific settlement of international disputes, originally prepared by Ricardo Alfaro of Panama and elaborated by the subcommittee.

Early in the discussion Fernando Gonzalez Roa, of Mexico, introduced a resolution, in which all aggressive war was declared illegal and providing that international disputes should be settled by pacific means.

This proposition had the fullest support of Mr. Hughes, when he spoke later.

"The United States joins most heartily," he said, "in the declaration that there shall be no more war of aggression in America. We must show that this hemisphere is dedicated to peace and seeks pacific solution of difficulties."

Turning to the concrete problem of preventing the employment of violence, Mr. Hughes proposed that the American countries improve their mutual relations and avoid war by the establishment of joint international commissions patterned on the lines of the American-Canadian boundary commission by the conclusion of pecuniary claims conventions as extensive in scope as possible, and finally by establishing firmly the principle of arbitration for the settlement of international differences. This would be subject only to minimum limitations, which the sovereignty of countries requires.

Arousing a further great ovation, Mr. Hughes pledged "all the energy and strength I possess," to promote the pacific settlement of disputes."

"All means to that end," he continued, "fell under three main headings—periodical conferences or meetings for candid exchange of views on controversial subjects; measures of conciliation, namely, practicable provisions whereby "reason may have play before force takes the field," and judicial settlement, for which definite institutions would be necessary, as reason and justice are not, as he expressed it, "mere abstractions, to which we give verbal devotion."

HEAD OF ARGENTINE DELEGATION HAS RESIGNED

HAVANA, Feb. 16—(AP)—Dr. Honorio Pueyrredon, ambassador to Washington and president of the Argentine delegation to the six Pan-American conference, has refused to withdraw his resignation of both posts, he disclosed here tonight when he made public the texts of telegrams he has sent to his government.

The cable correspondence revealed that the resignations were submitted late Tuesday night following receipt of instruction to sign with reservations the projected Pan-American Union convention even if it did not contain the clause looking toward removal of tariff barriers upon which he had insisted. Dr. Pueyrredon sent another cablegram to Buenos Aires today insisting that his resignations be accepted.

MAN KILLED WHEN THREE HOUSES FELL INTO SUBWAY

NEW YORK, Feb. 16—(AP)—Three brownstone houses of the sort fashionable in the vanishing New York of the 19th century plunged 40 feet into a subway excavation today and buried half a dozen workers who have been razing hundreds of the old-fashioned dwellings. Only one man was known to have been killed.

Twenty workmen were tunneling under the houses at Eighth avenue and 52nd street, on the western fringe of the theatre district, cutting out space for a station of the new municipal subway now under construction. The houses had been propped up with steel and concrete and were thought perfectly safe. One of those props rested on a great round rock and suddenly that rock shifted in the dirt that held it.

A widening crack appeared in the dirt the men were digging in and began to fall on them. Shouting a warning to their fellows they ran back into the main subway excavation as the three houses came hurtling down.

At first it was believed the list of dead might reach a dozen but later checkups were far more encouraging. One man was known to be dead, another was missing and several were injured, the brother of the dead man seriously. The man known to have been killed was Jack Flynn and his brother Frank, who tried to save him, sustained a fractured skull. Carl Peterson, a carpenter, was reported missing.

The roar of the three falling houses, which were unoccupied, was heard over a wide area. Clouds of dust rose over the roofs of surrounding buildings. Traffic was suspended for hours and police reserves kept back excited crowds.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE SUPEINTENDENT GUILTY

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 16—(AP)—The Rev. Dr. Marna S. Poulson, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, today was convicted of transmitting libellous statements against three Newark judges. He was fined $500.

Judge Flannagan, told Dr. Poulson that "respect for his cloth" had influenced him to reconsider his original intention of imposing the full sentence provided by the law. This sentence is $500 fine or two years imprisonment.

The maximum fine was imposed. The court directed that the defendant be committed to jail until the fine was paid, but later this was modified and Dr. Poulson was given until February 28 to pay the fine.

A jury in common pleas court returned the verdict after deliberating only 40 minutes. Defense counsel announced that an appeal would be taken.

ASSAULT ON BIG NAVAL CONSTRUCTION PROGRAM

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16—(AP)—A vigorous assault on the administration's three quarter of a billion dollar naval construction program was made today in the senate by Senator King, democrat, Utah.

Adverting to recent remarks attributed to Rear Admiral Plunkett, who has just retired, Senator King said his utterances were "Un-American, unwise, most foolish and calculated to mislead the people of America and arouse the suspicions of the people of foreign lands."

They hold under arrest Steve Mendola, of Pittston, and Adam Moleski, of Inkerman, who surrendered a few hours after the shooting. Mendola, who was armed said Benito was the actual slayer.

The men escaped from the building by taking charge of an elevator, shoving the girl operator into a corner and riding to the ground floor.

Gov. Jackson, Ind., Free of Bribery

Finds the State Failed to Prove Concealment of the Alleged Crime.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 16—(AP)—Ed Jackson, Indiana's governor, was a free man tonight over his own protest. Against his will, defense attorneys won acquittal on the ground that the state had failed to prove one phase of its case—concealment of an alleged attempt to bribe former Gov. Warren T. McCray in 1923.

The trial ended late today when Judge Charles M. McCabe sustained a motion that the jury be instructed to return a verdict of not guilty. The formal jury took only a few minutes after the court made his ruling.

Governor Jackson wanted to continue through the case to meet the testimony presented by the prosecution—that he and others offered former Governor McCray $10,000 in 1923 and a guarantee of immunity from conviction on charges pending against him, if he would name James E. McDonald to the vacated Marion county prosecutorship.

It was only out of consideration for George V. Coffin, Marion county republican chairman, and Robert I. Marsh, a local attorney, who were indicted with Governor Jackson, that the governor finally permitted his attorneys to make the bid for freedom today, it was said in a statement tonight. Marsh and Coffin were granted separate trials. Prosecutor William H. Remy said he had not determined what course he would pursue with regard to their cases.

Judge McCabe, after pondering for more than four hours over the motion for acquittal, made it clear to the jury that the governor's discharge was solely on the ground that the state had failed to prove there had been any positive act of concealment of the alleged crime which would cause a cessation of operation of the statute of limitations.

WOMAN IS CHARGED WITH SELLING MEDICINAL DRUGS

STAMFORD, Feb. 16—(AP)—Mrs. Lillian Nichols, of East Norwalk, with an office in this city, was arraigned in city court here today on charges of practicing medicine without a license, selling medicinal drugs, and fraudulently obtaining money as a medium and fortune teller. She was arrested Saturday last on complaint of Mrs. Mary E. Palmer, of East Portchester.

Appearing on the witness stand, Mrs. Palmer, in answer to cross-examination of Mrs. Nichols' attorney, said that she had served three of a four months' sentence in Bridgeport in county jail for passing worthless checks. In dramatic answer to questions, Mrs. Palmer cried out that she passed the checks "to get dope from Mrs. Nichols," saying that her life and the future of her two children had been ruined by her craving.

Mrs. Palmer said that she had become an addict of "medicine" that Mrs. Nichols had given her several months ago. In jail, she wrote a letter to Mrs. Nichols, she said, asking her to have some of the "medicine" ready for her Saturday. She went to Mrs. Nichols on that day and gave her marked bills and the arrest followed, according to police.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 16—(AP)—Witnesses for the state today tore the veil from the past life of the quiet-mannered Dr. Charles M. McMillan, accused of the "sack murder" of Amelia Appleby, and pictured him as the tormentor of the wealthy widow whose mutilated body was found on a desolate roadway near here Dec. 26.

Mrs. Grace Spies, Chicago apartment house owner, testified the physician tried to choke Mrs. Appleby in an apartment they had taken in her house last summer. On that occasion the screams of Mrs. Appleby attracted Mrs. Spies to the apartment. She testified she found Mrs. Appleby sprawled over a bed with Dr. McMillan standing menacingly over her.

On cross-examination, Mrs. Spies said Dr. McMillan had "fleeced" her out of $30 on a real estate deal.

The physician, whom the state charges with plotting the murder in order to obtain the wealth of Mrs. Appleby through a forged will, sat unmoved throughout the session.

Shipping Board Sells Three Cargo Lines

Deal Included 37 Vessels—The Amount Received Was $3,646,661.50.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16—(AP)—The government went out of the shipping business on the Pacific coast today when the shipping board sold its remaining three cargo lines for $3,743,661.50.

In making the sale to three different concerns the board ended a controversy which raged for months over whether the lines should be sold under a five year or a ten year guarantee with the advocates of the five year period prevailing.

Six months notice is required if the new owners of the lines contemplate abandonment or curtailment of the services, and operation over prescribed ranks must be maintained for 5 years. The contracts carry provisions for complete interchange of ports after the monthly and semi-monthly sailings from the scheduled Pacific coast and Orient ports have been made.

The lines sold were:

The American Australian Orient line of 21 ships was sold to the Matson Navigation company and the American Hawaiian Steamship for $1,981,755.50.

The Oregon Oriental line of 11 vessels was sold to K. D. Dawson of Portland, Ore., for $1,065,000.

The Tacoma Oriental Steamship company of Portland was the successful bidder for the seven ships of the American Oriental Mail lines at $596,906.

The Admiral Oriental line of the Dollar interests bid $670,357 for this line, the only one on which there were two bids received.

FLOOD CONTROL BILL SUBMITTED IN HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16—(AP)—A new national policy for the control of floods in the Mississippi valley was mapped out in a bill submitted today to the house by its flood control committee.

Sponsored by Chairman Reid of Illinois, the bill would set up new machinery, the Mississippi valley flood control commission, composed of seven civilians to be named by the president, to have entire charge of the curbing of the Mississippi's high waters. It proposed an appropriation of $473,000,000, the federal government assuming the entire expense and responsibility.

In placing the entire cost on the federal government, the measure is sharply divergent from the administration's flood plan, prepared by Major General Jadwin, chief of army engineers, and recommended to congress by President Coolidge. That program placed a twenty per cent payment upon the valley states, and set a figure of $296,400,000 for the cost of the work.

The Reid bill, the product of four months of hearings and study by the committee, was not agreed to by all the committee members. It was approved by a vote of 11 to 6.

Representative Davenport, republican, New York, was not present, but submitted his views in opposition later.

FRANCE VOTES AGAINST DRAFTING WOMEN FOR WAR

PARIS, Feb. 16—(AP)—The French senate, after much gallant oratory, today rejected the government proposal to put every French woman at the service of the state in time of war.

The proposal to mobilize women in time of war was part of the general army reorganization bill which has been before parliament for almost a year. The chamber last year approved the measure by a vote, 500 to 31.

There were few objections at the time to this chapter of the army reorganization bill and in the final vote only communists opposed the measure.

Minister of War Painleve defended the measure in the senate this afternoon, but the senators, many of them bearded and bewhiskered, some of them fathers and some of them grandfathers, were against the measure.

"The country will never accept the forced departure of French women from their homes," said Senator Jenouvrier. "A man owes his services to the state, but as to a woman one can only ask for her voluntary services. Every father of a family will energetically repulse the requisitioning of women."

BODY MAY BE THAT OF ONE OF THE DOLE FLIERS

VENTURA, Cal., Feb. 16—(AP)—The body of a man believed to be one of the missing trans-Pacific Dole fliers was washed ashore near here today. The only identification possible was bits of clothing, identified as that of the navy, clinging to the body, which gave evidence of having been in the water for some time.

The only naval aviator unaccounted for in the Dole flight was Lieut. Vilas R. Knope of San Diego. He was the navigator of the ill-fated Miss Doran, which carried John A. Pedlar as pilot and Miss Mildred Doran as a passenger. Pedlar and Miss Doran were from Flint, Mich.

In the Dole flight, only two of the five planes which started from San Francisco for Honolulu reached their goal.

SENATE ORDERS INQUIRY OF COAL MINE CONDITIONS

Interstate Commerce Committee Will Make a "Thorough and Complete Investigation" of the Situation in the Soft Coal Fields of Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia—Hearings Probably Will Start Next Week.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16—(AP)—The senate today ordered a "thorough and complete investigation" of conditions in the bituminous coal fields of Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia. Chairman Watson of the interstate commerce committee, which will conduct the inquiry, announced that hearings probably will start next week.

Without a voice raised against it, the resolution of Senator Johnson, republican, California, calling for the investigation, was approved.

Previously the senate had rejected, 59 to 215, an amendment by Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, proposing an inquiry also into the coal freight rate structure. The two hours of debate today on the resolution centered almost entirely on this amendment which was opposed by senators from the southern coal states, who asked a separate investigation.

The Johnson resolution had received the unanimous approval of the senate interstate commerce committee after it had heard only one witness, Philip Murray, international vice-president of the United Mine Workers of America. He pictured conditions of distress in the coal regions and charged a conspiracy by the Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio and New York Central railroads with the operators to break the miners' union and wage agreements.

The resolution also would have the inquiry go into complaints against the injunctions issued in the labor dispute by the federal court of western Pennsylvania and into the evictions of numerous miners from their homes in the coal regions.

Provision also is made to permit a sub-committee to conduct the investigation when necessary with a view to having this body go into the fields for hearings.

Senator Reed of Pennsylvania joined with the general chorus in favor of the inquiry.

However, he defended the administration of Governor Fisher of Pennsylvania against charges of maladministration in connection with the suspension of mining operations. He said the trouble was "there are too many miners. Too many mines and too high taxes." If Governor Fisher were "a mint" he would be unable to solve the problem, he said.

EDDIE FOY, THE VETERAN STAGE COMEDIAN, DEAD

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 16—(AP)—The farewell tour of Eddie Foy, veteran stage comedian, ended in death here today.

As he had willed it, Mr. Foy died before age had forced him from the footlights.

The 71 year old actor appeared at the Orpheum theatre last night in his playlet, "The Fallen Star." A heart attack seized him when he awoke in his hotel room this morning and within an hour he was dead.

After lying in state at an undertaking parlor, arrangements were made to send the body tonight to New Rochelle, N. Y., for burial.

News of the passing of Mr. Foy, who had been on the stage for more than a half century, brought words of condolence from theatrical stars throughout the country. "A great actor," "the greatest clown," and "a lovable character," were terms used in describing the veteran.

Mrs. Foy, who was the actor's fourth wife, was with him at death. The Rev. John Hennessey administered the last rites of the Catholic church.

Six of the seven Foy children, who were scheduled to open a vaudeville engagement at Madison, Wis., today were notified and will join the funeral party at Chicago. The eldest son was in California.

Mr. Foy had been subject to heart attacks for several months but his condition was not regarded as serious. After his performance last night he complained of having eaten something that did not agree with him.

Today the 30th Infantry regiment turned out in review. Arizona was presented with a new blanket, paid for by subscriptions of the men. On it is a large letter "A," standing for his name and the Argonne.

The mule stood in the reviewing stand munching carrots near General Bolles. As the infantrymen marched by they snapped to salute and officers placed their swords to their brows.

BODIES OF SLAIN SHERIFFS FOUND IN THE BRUSH

DANVILLE, Ill., Feb. 16—(AP)—The chance discovery of the bodies of two Lafayette, Ind., deputy sheriffs, missing since February 7, when they disappeared while taking two youthful prisoners from Lafayette to the Indiana reformatory at Pendleton, cleared up the mystery of their whereabouts.

Three men walking across the farm of Charles Abdill, of Danville, Ill., seeking fences that needed repairing, came upon the bodies of John F. Grove and Wallace McClure in a wood near the village of Foster which borders the Illinois-Indiana line.

The prisoners, John Burns and Samuel Baxter, have not been found.

The bodies of Grove and McClure, fully clothed and encrusted with mud, lay on their backs, side by side, within 100 feet of a gravel highway. They rested upon an automobile robe, one corner of which covered the face of one of the men. McClure's head had been crushed. Four sprays of brush thrown across the bodies partially concealed them.

The authorities said it appeared that Grove, who was driving the automobile had been seized by one of the prisoners and his head bent back over the seat until his neck was broken. At the same time the other prisoner apparently seized an automobile crank and smashed McClure over the head. The motorcar was found at Decatur, Ill., several days ago. It had a bullet hole through the windshield.

A diamond ring still was on McClure's hand a diamond stickpin in his tie. His watch was also in his pocket.

The place where the men were found was within 300 yards of the house on the Abdill farm, from which several children go daily to school.

Baxter and Burns had been convicted of larceny, Burns was regarded as a dangerous prisoner but Baxter was not so considered.

EVERYBODY fears YOUR COUGH

—and so should you, for it is often infectious and dangerous to those around you.

A safe and agreeable way to relieve coughs is to take PERTUSSIN, which has been used for twenty years in the successful treatment of harsh or painful coughs—even the most severe. PERTUSSIN is entirely free from "dope" or harmful drugs, yet it brings quick relief by helping Nature to expel the sticky phlegm that often clogs the air passages.

What to Do For Oily Hair

Shampoo it! If it is long—about once every two weeks; if short—once a week. Use an antiseptic soap to banish germs with the dirt. Packer's Tar Soap is usually prescribed by specialists. Pine tar is antiseptic, tonic, stimulating. Use two latherings—hot water to rinse. Though at first the oiliness may seem worse, continue the treatment—you'll be amazed at the improvement! SCIENCE Discovers Amazing Beads of Soap

Revolutionary new Octagon Product made in tiny thin-walled "beads" now replaces both flakes and chips

UNLIKE any soap you have ever known. No more scrubbing or extra rinsing. Say good-by to your washboard. New patented* process makes possible these remarkable results.

Super Suds Demonstration in New York Domestic Science Class

A NEW way to make soap has been discovered! A way that banishes once for all the hardest part of washday drudgery . . . that brings a new household blessing to thirty million American women.

It's an entirely new type of soap that makes clothes whiter than ever before. That dissolves instantly. That rinses quickly. That washes dishes in much less time, with far less work.

The name of this remarkable new product is Super Suds. It's an Octagon creation . . . developed by the oldest soap manufacturer in America.

What it is—What it does

Super Suds is an entirely new type of soap . . . different in form, action and result from any you have ever known before.

It is actually soap in tiny thin-walled "beads" . . . the result of a revolutionary manufacturing discovery.

Scientists developed it. Found the way to make soap of microscopic thinness. Four times as thin as chip soap. By far the thinnest type of soap ever discovered.

The minute these tiny beads touch water—rich, active suds result. They dissolve instantly! Like magic! No other type of soap is like it. No other type of soap can give you such astonishing results.

We make this statement without reservation . . . for both chip and flake soap are Octagon products.

For every household use

Super Suds was especially designed for general household use—laundry and dishwashing, too. Thus one soap now does everything you want a soap to do. Super Suds cannot harm the daintiest fabrics . . . washes lingerie with safety. And for the heavy work on washday, it is absolutely without a rival. These facts are based on exhaustive tests in the laboratory and the home.

Look at these amazing Beads of Soap under a magnifying glass. Note the remarkable thinness . . . that's why you get such results.

It dissolves more rapidly than any soap you've ever used before. Its rich, lively suds actually swish about in the washtub—penetrating every fold of cloth—seeping around every fibre—washing away all grease and grime.

There's no need to use your washboard now. No need to scrub and rub until your back just aches from the strain. Leave it to Super Suds to soak the dirt loose without this tedious work.

With Super Suds you'll save much time and effort in rinsing alone. That's because it dissolves so completely. No soap particles are left clinging to fabrics.

Your clothes dry out snowy white. There's never a trace of "soap stain." You simply won't be able to realize that a soap can make such a difference in the appearance of your wash.

Super Suds rinses off completely and leaves no sign of film. You can let china drain and dry by itself. It will gleam and glisten as though polished with a cloth.

Just pour a little Super Suds into your tub or electric washer . . . Quick as a flash you get rich, lively suds. Super Suds dissolves quicker than any soap you've ever used before.

THESE AMAZING BEADS

bring to 30 million American women a soap in the form they have always needed—making possible these wonderful results:

1 Whiter clothes
2 Fewer rinsings
3 Dishes that sparkle
4 Soft, smooth hands

Simply because these thin-shelled beads dissolve completely they leave no soap particles to sour and discolor clothes; to cling to china or glassware; to irritate and redden lovely hands.

New way to wash dishes
No film—No reddened hands

Smooth, lovely hands . . . in spite of three dishwashings a day. China, silver, and glass . . . that sparkle in far less time.

Super Suds rinses off so easily that no soap film is left on glassware or china . . . just give them a hot rinse and let dishes drain and dry themselves. It cuts dishwashing time . . . gets dishes gleaming clean with complete safety to your hands.

Please test Super Suds in comparison with any soap you have ever used before. See how much whiter it makes your clothes . . . how much cleaner without the usual drudgery.

Your precious hands . . . keep them soft and smooth. Use Super Suds three times a day without danger of that ugly dishpan look.

Super Suds is surprisingly inexpensive . . . it's the biggest 10-cent box of soap on the market. Start using Super Suds at once . . . put it on your grocery list today. Colgate & Co., Jersey City, N. J.

An Octagon Soap Product. Every box of Super Suds carries a valuable coupon. Cut it out and redeem it for desirable premiums.

DANIELSON

UNUSUAL ITEMS WILL RAISE ANNUAL BUDGET AMOUNT

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Feb. 16—Compilation of the budget of the town of Killingly for the present fiscal year, which ends July 31 next, finds a considerable number of unusual items to be included. The flood of last November, for instance, cost the town of Killingly $2,852.90 for repairs to highways and bridges. That's one item that could not be foreseen when the year opened so promisingly on the first day of August. There is another county tax to be met this year that calls for $2,916.62 from Killingly. A tax abatement to Powdrell and Alexander calls for the replacing of $1,716.25 that was figured as prospective revenue. It so happens in this particular year that Killingly must make good to the amount of $1,950 to the city of Bridgeport on a pauper case that it has been established Killingly is accountable for, and there is another $1,000 of unexpected expense on state hospital bills for insane poor.

Again, the Connecticut mills receives on the present tax list a reduction of about $100,000 from its former assessment, this being in keeping with reductions being made to textile corporations that are in difficult straits in many sections of New England. That reduction means the loss of approximately $2,500 in tax income, and that must be made up.

Here, it will be seen, is a group of items rating largely as unexpected handicaps to making a sizzling tax reduction. What the new rate will be cannot, of course, be forecasted at this time, but it likely will not be materially less than the present rate.

It so happens this winter that there is an unusual call for assistance from the town in supporting a number of families resident in various sections of Killingly, and that means that the outside poor costs are going to run up. But, notwithstanding all of these bills, Killingly finds itself well situated in comparison with the great majority of towns of its size in New England and is truly optimistic of its future well being.

Death claimed Mrs. Rhoda A. Aldrich, 73, at the home of Mrs. Minnie Dexter Colvin on Oak street this morning at 8.30, a week of burns she received when her clothing flashed into flame at her home in the Kenyon hill section of the town three weeks ago last Saturday.

Mrs. Aldrich was alone at the time the misfortune befell her, and only the accidental return of Mr. and Mrs. John Huntington, who live across the street from her saved her from burning to death at the time, or at least remaining to suffer in some extent that she could not have lived but a very short time. Proctor Aldrich, who made his home with his mother, was in Danielson on business at the time. It is believed that Mrs. Aldrich's dress became ignited when it swept against a red hot stove from stove while she was busy with her household duties. The day following the accident Mrs. Aldrich was brought to the home of Mrs. Colvin for treatment.

Mrs. Aldrich was born in Scituate, R. I., Sept. 18, 1854, a daughter of John and Catherine Cranshaw Tanner. She was the widow of William Prescott Aldrich and had lived in this town the greater part of her life. She leaves two sons, Proctor and James P., and a daughter, Mrs. Jessie Huntington, all of this town.

This morning the funeral of Mrs. Sophronia La Prise was held from her home in Elmville with services at St. James' church at 9 o'clock. Rev. Antheleme Mollard, M. S., was celebrant of the solemn high mass of requiem, with Rev. James McCarthy, M. S., as deacon and Rev. Joseph A. Demers, M. S., as sub-deacon. Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery, the committal service conducted by Rev. F. Demers. The bearers were Adelard Lamelin, Noel Lamelin, William Chattelle, Albert Cloutier, Raymond Saucier and Edward Russell. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Lieut. Albert S. Field of the state police department was a visitor in Danielson today. He formerly was in charge of the local barracks.

Power pumps will be used to flood the surface of Quinebaug lake as soon as the next cold snap sets in, in order to hurry along the thickening of the ice.

Next Wednesday will be Ash Wednesday, marking the opening of the lenten season and a material reduction in the number of social activities for the next few weeks.

William S. Brown turned weather prophet this morning and forecasted some zero mornings for the not distant future.

Trappers hereabouts say that the season now drawing near its close has not been quite so successful as those of other recent winters, though many good pelts of various kinds have been obtained.

If the weather permits, it is expected that pictures will be taken next Sunday afternoon of members of the South Killingly church school.

Howard A. Balch of Bridgeport was a visitor with friends in Danielson today.

Mardi Gras parties are being planned for next Tuesday evening, the eve of Lent.

Members of the board of selectmen have a meeting scheduled for next week to pass upon budget matters, that final estimates may be ready for consideration of the voters at the adjourned annual town meeting in March.

In observance of Leap Year day, the South Killingly church has planned a special observance for the evening of Feb. 29.

Gaston A. Maindon has recovered from his recent illness and is able to be at business again.

L. A. Lockwood, who has frequently visited here and in Putnam and who has numbers of friends in the territory, writes that he is staying at Houston, Tex., for a time.

The Ladies' reading circle is to meet at the Congregational parsonage Monday afternoon.

Next Tuesday evening brings the annual inspection of the Service battery at the state armory.

Mrs. George H. Miner will be the leader when the Ladies' Prayer circle meets with Mrs. K. A. Durkee of Broad street next Tuesday afternoon.

Nathan Berkowitz, who has been coming into this territory for years buying live poultry for the Providence market, died recently at his home in that city.

RHODE ISLAND AROUSED

It is a natural reaction which has been displayed in the state of Rhode Island over the killing of two policemen in Providence. The demand is for immediate legislation that will provide for the death penalty under such circumstances. The law as sought would apply solely to the shooting of policemen while in the discharge of their duty.

Rhode Island is one of the states where capital punishment has been abandoned for life imprisonment, but it is perfectly evident to the people of that commonwealth that such is not adequate punishment for those who deliberately take the life of a policeman. The existing case has brought this matter to attention like nothing else. The police were sent to make a raid on a place where it was claimed liquor was being illegally sold. Upon their arrival the proprietor drew his gun and shot them dead. He knew of course that he would not be hanged or electrocuted. He was equipped to cause death if anyone attempted to interfere with him in his illegal business and he did not hesitate to shoot down in cold blood the representatives of the law. He probably took into account that even though he might be sentenced for life he would stand a chance of getting his freedom by some scheme or other later on.

Rhode Island feels much the same as the judge in Michigan felt when he sentenced the man who killed the small child he had kidnaped, and that is that life imprisonment is not adequate. Rhode Island has been experiencing an increase in capital crimes and it believes different measures should be adopted. The strange part of the present effort is, however, that there should be any thought of restricting capital punishment to those who shoot policemen on duty. That is by all means no more than should be expected, but it is quite as bad for a robber to break into a home and shoot people dead, or for any other person to take human lives.

By all means should the shooting of policemen be discouraged, but Rhode Island should go the whole distance and provide the same punishment for all murderers. There ought to be no discrimination. It ought not to be possible for an accused person to say that he shot another because he knew he wasn't a policeman and therefore would risk a lighter penalty.

PROBING THE UTILITIES

By the action of the United States senate it is apparent that the members of that body have finally come to the conclusion that a halt should be called to the mania for investigations. By the vote upon the inquiry into the public utilities it would also appear that there is recognition of the need of getting away from the political character of investigations. This is indicated by the manner in which party lines divided upon this matter.

The probe into untilities will be made but it will not be made by a senate committee. It will not be under the guidance of any of the senators but will be turned over to the federal trade commission with the restriction confining it to campaign contributions only in presidential and senatorial elections since 1923. The commission will likewise be required to start work without delay and proceed as rapidly as possible, making reports of its progress at frequent intervals.

In connection with this action by the senate it is impossible to overlook the fact that Senator Bruce, a democrat, pointed out the possibilities that a desire to boost political ambitions or to make political capital out of the inquiry could not be overlooked and democrats took a responsible part in placing a check upon the plan of Senator Walsh of Montana.

There is no good reason why all the facts cannot be obtained by the federal trade commission, and with that body making the investigation there will be eliminated the feeling that it is being conducted for political purposes, that certain inquiries are being made for the advancement of the interests of one or the other of the parties and that a sincere search for facts is not being made. The commission will on the other hand have a chance to demonstrate what it can do and that there was no justification for the opposition that was manifested to the reference of the matter to its jurisdiction. If there are conditions which ought to be known the commission should uncover them and there is no reason for thinking that it will not be successful in carrying out the task assigned to it regardless of what the finding may be.

REAPPORTIONMENT

What the outcome of the hearings to be held by the house census committee will be has an interest extending into every corner of the country. The question of changing the apportionment by which the number of members of the lower house of congress is determined is up for determination once more. Action of this character should have been taken earlier in this decade. It is called for by constitutional provision following each decennial census but when it has been undertaken the opposition to the plans presented has been sufficient to prevent anything being done. Whether the present effort will accomplish anything remains to be determined.

The purpose of the committee is to give the house another chance to do something by presenting a plan that will get the needed support. It will be impossible to accomplish anything this decade but action will be taken which will provide a basis for action after 1930 if the house is agreeable.

Population changes in the course of a decade are many. There are states which gain and those which lose. This affects the number of representatives which they might be entitled to in congress provided old apportionments continued. It would likewise mean an ever increasing number in the house of representatives.

Because it is believed that the time has come when the number should be limited to the 435 members as at present, in order to prevent the house from becoming unwieldy, Senator Fess has a plan for reapportionment that will conform to such an arrangement. That will nevertheless mean certain changes in various states. Some which have experienced large increases will gain anywhere from one to six. Others which have lost in population will have their representation cut from one to four, but all would then be on an equal basis of representation in accordance with their populations.

The difficulty in the past has been to get the respective states to accept their allotment under such an arrangement. There can be no objection where there will be increases but those where cuts would be made are reluctant to give up what they have even though they must understand they would not be entitled to them under the changed situation. It is because of the desire to keep the allotment as it is that so much difficulty has been experienced in complying with the constitutional requirement in the past.

CAMPAIGNS WITHOUT MONEY

Much has been said about the use of money in political campaigns. Much is said about it without real knowledge of the necessity of so doing. There were the days when such expenditures were confined to the campaigns preceding elections but now with the direct primary there is not only the additional opportunity but the need of spending money in order to acquaint the people with the issues and the men. Money is spent in large amounts and as has been pointed out in many instances is spent legitimately. The larger the state and the greater the number of people the larger can the expenditure be expected to be.

But as if to indicate that a campaign can be conducted without the use of money former Governor Stokes of New Jersey has made a statement which indicates that he intends to wage his campaign for United States senator from that state without using money. It is certain to be an experiment that will attract widespread attention. He may be strong enough politically so that it will not be necessary for him to even turn over a finger. He may be able to command such services from his friends that there will be no expense involved in his candidacy. He may stage a do-nothing pay-nothing campaign, but if he does and his opponents do otherwise it will be a contest the outcome of which will be watched with much interest.

It is not to be inferred that because his opponents would be following a different policy that they would not be making a legitimate use of the money which would go into their campaigns. Even in the state of Pennsylvania, where an effort has been made to restrict the amount of money that could be used, it has been figured that a certain allowance per voter in the state should be permitted. Even that would involve large amounts in such states as Pennsylvania and New York in comparison with what might be spent in Delaware or Rhode Island.

The moneyless campaign may succeed but it imposes tremendous restrictions on any who try to compete.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

To those who in late years have seen "Billy" Sunday "in action," with coat off and collar unbuttoned, and heard him preach the old-time religion in his own strenuous way, it may be surprising to learn that one still apparently so filled with "pep" today enters upon his fortieth year as an evangelist. Yet it was upon this date, in 1889, that "Billy" Sunday, idol of the baseball fans, made his first appearance on the public platform as a preacher. The place was the old Pacific Garden Mission in Chicago, where only a short time previously he had listened to the sermon which prompted him to forsake a highly profitable career as a baseball player to take up religious work. In the course of time his fame as an evangelist spread to the uttermost parts of the country and his services were in great demand. While public opinion may differ as to Sunday's methods, there is no denying that he has influenced hundreds of thousands to "hit the trail."

INCORRIGIBLE HENRY

Mrs. Tittleworth took up her knitting and the rhythmic clicking of her needles was a pleasant accompaniment to Mr. Tittleworth's critical perusal of the recent ball game.

"I heard of a new way of reducing," she remarked.

"Expenses? They're terrible."

"Weight."

"Today at the meat market, I weighed——"

"Myself, I'm talking about."

"How much do——"

"I don't know."

"Then why——"

"It's an inner feeling. A woman should always look her best."

Mr. Tittleworth pondered this information, but made no comment.

"So I've been thinking of playing golf."

"Golf is for golfers," observed Mr. Tittleworth.

"And pinochle is for pinochlers?"

"I'm ahead 47 cents so far this year. You lose no balls in pinochle."

"And no time?"

"It's the companionship as counts. Take golf, now. What companionship is there among reducers? First you weigh in, then you play hit or miss then you weigh out, and all the time you worry. It's the worry that reduces, and I get plenty of that in the——"

"How old-fashioned you talk. Husbands and wives now play golf together, and each shares the other's worries. Out in the open, under the blue sky."

"But the clothes a feller has to wear! When I quit wearing short pants, I quit for good."

Mrs. Tittleworth arose and left the room. When she returned she was garbed in new attire. Her husband blinked.

"For golfing?" he asked.

"You like this dress?"

"Yes—a color that does you justice."

"And it makes me look thinner?"

"Sure as I sit here. And it's for golfing?"

"To wear while you golf."

"While I golf! Not a word have I said about Herman Tittleworth golfing!"

"It is not necessary that you say a word."

"Then what do I do?"

"Nothing." Mr. Tittleworth scratched his head.

"Somewhere I missed something," he complained. "We was talking about reducing and all of a sudden we was talking about golf. How husbands and wives should golf together."

"Shouldn't they?"

"Sure, but——" he paused.

"But what?"

"Is that a golfing dress?"

"No, it's a party dress."

"A golf party?"

"No, a tea party."

Mr. Tittleworth scratched his head again.

"Where?" he asked.

"Next door. At Mrs. Snorf's, tomorrow afternoon."

"Why?"

"Her sister from Omaha is coming."

"What's that to do with golf?"

"The sister has."

"How?"

"Mrs. Snorf says the sister reduced ten pounds by playing golf this summer with her husband."

Suddenly, a great light broke upon Mr. Tittleworth.

"And how much," he inquired, "did you reduce this summer playing golf with me?"

"Twelve pounds."

"Make it fifteen," returned Mr. Tittleworth. "I'm a hard golfer. And besides, a woman should always look her best."—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Colchester Mail in Other Days.

Mr. Editor: The recent change in the mail service at the Colchester postoffice, due to the removal of the passenger trains from the Air Line railroad, brings to mind the mail service of the past. I have in my possession a local paper published in 1868, which advertises a mail service, typical of the pre-railroad days, as follows:

"Colchester Mail Arrangement."

"New York mail, via Hartford, Andover and Hebron, arrives daily at 5:30 p. m.; closes at 6:30 a. m.

"New York mail, via New London, Chesterfield, Music Vale and Salem, arrives Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday at 12 m.; closes Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 11 p. m.

"Norwich mail, via Norwich Town, Yantic, Bozrah and Bozrahville, arrives daily at 6 p. m.; closes at 7 a. m.

"East Haddam mail, via Moodus and Westchester, arrives Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday at 10 a. m.; closes Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday at 1:30 p. m.

"Chas. H. Rogers, Deputy P. M.

"Joseph A. Foote, P. M.

"Colchester, Conn., May 1, 1868."

With the advent of the railroad we have the following:

"Colchester postoffice. Mail Arrangement. Summer of 1881:

"Mails close for Boston, Hartford, Norwich and New York, at 9 a. m.

"Mails for New York and the west, taking also mails for Boston, Norwich and Hartford, at 5:20 p. m.

"Mails arrive from Boston, New York and the west at 10:20 a. m.

"From Hartford and the east, also Gilead and Hebron and from Norwich at 6:20 p. m.

"From Norwich direct at 1:30 p. m.

A Satisfied Reader.

Mr. Editor: Having made our point, A Bulletin Reader is pleased that Mr. Ringland is so well furnished and so well informed in poetical and military lore, but we decline to enter into a profitless task discussing the demerits of a great general or a great poet. We trust that all The Bulletin readers accept the world's verdict on these two foremost men in the parts they acted when alive. We would not dare to rob France of her honor, nor Wellington of his laurels, by calling Napoleon a "Botch" at Waterloo, nor question in debate, the orthodoxy of the great Christian epic of Milton; although we did not quote it as a proof-text at all, at all, but simply a sidelight which he who runs might read. In all religious topics we say—"to the law and the testimony." Opinions are unreliable—and conjectures often fail to hit the mark.

INCOME TAX TIPS

A taxpayer, though unmarried, who supports in his home one or more relatives over whom he exercises family control, is the head of a family and entitled to the same exemption allowed a married person, $3,500. Also he may claim a credit of $400 for each dependent. The definition of a dependent who is "mentally or physically defective" includes not only cripples and those mentally defective but persons in ill health and the aged.

For example, a widower who supports in his home an aged mother and daughter 17 years old is entitled to an exemption of $3,500 as the head of a family, plus a credit of $400 for each dependent, a total of $4,300. The $400 credit, however, does not apply to the wife or husband of a taxpayer though one may be totally dependent upon the other.

To be allowed an exemption of $3,500, a married couple must have "lived together" in the eyes of the law for the entire taxable year. However, in the absence of continuous residence together the question of whether man and wife are living together depends upon the character of separation. If, occasionally, the husband is away on business, or if, for any necessary reason, a temporary separation exists, the full exemption is allowed. But when the husband deliberately and continuously makes his home at one place and the wife at another, they are classed as single persons, and each is allowed an exemption of $1,500 only.

In the absence of continuous actual residence together, whether a person with dependent relatives is the head of a family, and therefore entitled to an exemption of $3,500, also depends upon the character of the separation. If a father is away on business or a child or other dependent is away at school or on a visit, the common home being maintained, the exemption applies. If a parent is obliged to maintain his dependent children in a boarding-house while he lives elsewhere, the exemption may still apply. But if benefactor and dependent needlessly and continuously live apart, the status of a head of a family does not exist, irrespective of the support given.

Gas on stomach?

makes you feel bloated. Pains around your heart, in your side and back are mostly caused by gas. Pepsinic Seltzer gives immediate relief—it won't affect the heart. Drug stores and Fountains or send 5c in stamps for sample. PEPSINIC SELTZER CO., Worcester, Mass.

Nothing Worse Than A Bad Stomach

Acidity Makes Food a Daily Nightmare for Thousands.

Bad Stomachs that "act up" after nearly every meal, causing gas, sourness, heartburn and the pains usually called Indigestion, cause just as nearly universal misery as any single ailment in the world. Thousands constantly suffer the disagreeable, irritating daily annoyance, seek temporary relief from soda or digestive pills—get no better and don't what to do.

In most cases a "bad stomach" means simply a stomach that is developing "too much acid." This acid sours and ferments the food before the digestive organs can take care of it. The best way to overcome this is to take a good alkaline, like ordinary Busurated Magnesia, right after eating. This instantly neutralizes the excess acid and prevents its formation. When the acid goes, the pain stops, gas disappears, sourness vanishes and food is digested as nature intended. This beats temporary makeshifts.

Every good drug store has Bisurated Magnesia in either powder or tablets, and it is inexpensive, pleasant and convenient to use. Be sure to ask for Busurated Magnesia, which is not a laxative and can be taken freely with entire safety. There is nothing worse than a bad stomach ad nothing better than Busurated Magnesia for keeping a bad stomach straight.

MRS. REBECCA MORARTY HAS REACHED 90TH BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Charles H. Lamb is in receipt of the following concerning her great aunt, Mrs. Rebecca Morarty of Worcester, formerly of Norwich, who was a special guest at a birthday party on her 90th birthday. The article taken from a Worcester paper which also published Mrs. Morarty's picture reads "Ninety years young, that is what children, grand-children and a host of friends say about Mrs. Rebecca A. Morarty who is observing the 90th anniversary of her birth at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Vander Pyle, with whom she makes her home. Mrs. Morarty is in good health except for defective hearing. She is active and keenly interested in current events and everything that concerns women, from home management to fashion and politics. She assists her daughter about the house and is seldom idle, for when the duties she considers her own are performed, she has her sewing, reading, and visits from members of her family, to keep her happily occupied. Her bed-room is on the third floor of the home and she makes about 25 trips upstairs in the course of a day, she says. Mr. and Mrs. Vander Pyl gave a family party in their home in honor of "mother" and children and grandchildren united in the merrymaking. Mrs. Byron H. Evan of Bridgeport, also formerly of Norwich, another daughter, was in Worcester for the festivities.

Mrs. Morarty was born in Norwich, Connecticut in January 1838. She was one of a large family of children born to Gardner and Nancy Case Smith, of Norwich Town. She has 12 grand-children and 12 great grand children, and tells proudly that their homes are scattered from Cuba to California. Mrs. Morarty is senior honorary member of the Women's Republican club of Worcester county and members of that organization were among the friends who sent her beautiful remembrances for her birthday. Mrs. Lambs grandfather, the late William H. Smith of St. Louis, was a brother of Mrs. Morarty.

A former Norwich surgeon, John H. Evans, M. D., now a resident of New York state, is her eldest grandson.

The Norwich evening schools consist of eight classes with a total active membership of 135 at the present time. During the winter nearly 200 students have been enrolled. Some have moved from the city and others, for various reasons, have been obliged to drop out of the classes but on the whole there has been a splendid attendance record.

The classes in the Broadway schools and the Greeneville schools will complete their sessions next Tuesday evening. At that time appropriate exercises will be held. State certificates of attendance will be distributed and the pins offered by the state D. A. R. organization for perfect attendance awarded.

The classes in the Taftville schools will continue for another month, as they were not opened as early as the others in the city proper. In March it is expected that a citizenship class will be started for those people who wish to prepare for the examination for naturalization in June.

There was a very large attendance at the meeting and the programme was thoroughly enjoyed by all present. Those who appeared in the costume of their native lands made a most favorable impression on the large audience. The programme gave the club members some idea of what is being accomplished in the night schools and also demonstrated the interest that is taken in the schools by the foreign speaking residents of the city. It is expected that the night school programme will be an annual event in the activities of the Woman's City club.

INCOME TAX PAYERS SLOW FILING RETURNS

Less than 10 per cent. of the income returns from Connecticut taxpayers have been received at the office of the United States internal revenue bureau in Hartford, Collector Robert O. Eaton said Wednesday, and practically no corporations have made returns as yet.

With one month remaining for filing the 1927 returns, the prospect of heavy congestion in the final week or two of the period for filing appears likely, officials of the office said. The situation is similar to that needlessly experienced each year, the collector said, in spite of determined efforts on the part of bureau officials to have the taxpayers make their returns as early as possible.

Collector Eaton expressed a desire that the public assist the bureau, as much as possible by filing income reports as early as is possible. He said that practically everyone is now in a position to make a report on his earnings for 1927, thus making delays unnecessary.

The income tax law has not been changed since last year he said so that all who filed returns in 1927 should be able to make out the form with little trouble.

The general laws and exemptions are the same as in 1927. Single men must file returns if their net income for the year was $1,500 or more, and married men are required to file returns if their net income was $3,500 or more. An exemption of $400 is allowed for each child.

Persons who fail to file the tax return by March 15 will be subject to a 25 per cent. penalty for tardiness, Collector Eaton pointed out.

The steamer Carisco is to be thoroughly overhauled and will have new boilers placed in it. The boat has been in constant service for about two years so that general repairs are timely.

READ INTERESTING PAPER ON "ART OF BIOGRAPHY"

The literature department of the Women's City club held a round table meeting at the club room in the Wauregan hotel, Thursday afternoon, at 4 o'clock. There was a very large attendance to hear Mrs. William B. Birge speak on "The Gentle Art of Biography."

Biography is today a subject of the greatest interest—perhaps it is the most popular form of literature in this decade—and Mrs. Birge had a fascinating subject for her charming and instructive paper. She traced the art from early times to the present and her paper gave evidence of great research and thought.

Biographical interest began early. We find it in the early Bible stories. Surely, it was one interested in a man's inmost soul who gave us the story of Joseph. It is not only the march of events we see but the brilliant study of a remarkable man. Like all great biographers, this one was capable of sympathy with his hero, yet had the intellectual honesty to record the good and the bad alike. We get a sense of reality even in that story of so long ago. It is this sense of reality that great biographers are able to give so that unconsciously the reader projects himself into the life of interesting people, and becomes one with them.

The lecturer traced the history of her subject for two thousand years. In the first century, A. D., lived the first and perhaps the greatest of all biographers, Plutarch. His vivid descriptions of the important men of Greece and Rome have never been equalled. Not a subtle but a straightforward writer of great learning, his life stories are shining models for all times.

Describing biographies of Charlemagne and Louis IX, written by contemporaries and showing delightful, detailed accounts of the days of chivalry, she passed on to the name of Benvenuto Cellini, who wrote the finest autobiography which we have. Cellini lived in the 16th century and our outstanding later autobiographies, such as those of Rousseau and Amiel, owe much to him.

Boswell's Life of Johnson, at the end of the 18th century, was the first complete history of a human being and is the greatest biography of modern times. A characteristic passage from this book was read at this time which gave a good illustration of his style, as was done in the case of Plutarch when the story of Caesar's assassination was read.

Coming to the Victorian age, biography became popular and large volumes full of detailed careers of heroes and public men were published in profusion. Many were dull and it remained for the 20th century to make biography so keen a rival to fiction.

The study of men's souls has been the principal work in literature, becoming almost an obsession. All the great and the near-great are being studied against their own background. Lytton Strachey has been called the greatest of this modern school. Though his art is satiric, he presents his material and lets his reader form his own judgment.

Since the war the best biography is subtle, taking the best of all that has gone before and adding the modern scientific touch. Maurois and Ludwig, both in this country now, are masters in biography and immensely popular. We might well say that biography has become as fascinating and easy to read as the best fiction.

Mrs. Birge read a passage from Strachey's "Queen Victoria," and ended with two readings from Carl Sandburg's "Lincoln," the latter marvelously beautiful in describing the poignancy and tenderness of Lincoln's early relationships.

FRANKLIN FOX HUNT BAGS FINE SPECIMEN

Fox hunting, the old English sport, is still popular in New London county, and while the large pack of fox hounds so common on the large estates of the English noblemen are unknown in Connecticut, nevertheless many of the Connecticut sportsmen possess fox hounds that would be hard to be beat by their English brothers. No greater lover of the sport can be found than Fred G. Bliss, wool broker of this city, who now resides in the town of Franklin, where also is found the natural home of both the red and gray foxes. Mr. Bliss owns several fox hounds and bird dogs, but especially prides himself on owning as true a hound as ever trailed a fox. Last year ten were hung up to his credit and six have been added so far this year which is a record perhaps only equalled to hounds owned by old timers like C. A. Gager, Reuben P. Potter, Louis Young and Amos Wheeler, and these old timers have owned some first class hounds, Echo has few equals today.

On a recent hunt in the Franklin section, Mr. Bliss, accompanied by G. C. Burdick Norwich Town; Ralph Gibbs and Joe Seymelrock, Yantic; Eugene Clark and Herb Hoxie, Lebanon, enjoyed a very exciting time. Echo soon took up a track and followed Mr. Fox in wonderful fashion for a couple of hours giving tongue in perfect unison. Mr. Burdick, who is an old experienced hunter placed Ralph Gibbs, a novice and also a letter man of the Norwich Free Academy, at a lively run and all the party became separated, but ready to give the death blow to Mr. Fox should he pass their way. Soon their patient waiting was awarded for Ralph Gibbs, the novice of the party, saw Mr. Fox approaching him at a considerable distance. However, Mr. Fox must have realized that he was approaching sure death as he slightly changed his course, and when he did the novice shot but only to see Mr. Fox gather up more speed. Very soon another report was heard, this time it was Mr. Burdick (who claims he would have landed him had he not been eating a sandwich) and Mr. Fox gathered up more speed but soon met his doom by the accurate fire of Lebanon's famous fox hunter, Herb Hoxie. Soon all the party gathered around Mr. Fox admiring his beauty. He was an exceptionally fine specimen, weighing twelve pounds. Everybody was happy and declaring it to be a perfect hunt. It was reported that workmen in the neighborhood became frightened on account of the rapid firing and moved about a mile to get out of reach of any stray shot, they believed the rebels of Nicaragua had made their escape to the Franklin woods.

It is an unwritten law among the sportsmen that the bounty goes to the hunter killing a fox and the hide goes to the dog. In this instance the town of Franklin paid Mr. Hoxie $5 and Mr. Bliss will receive about $20 for the hide.

Mr. Clark is also a veteran hunter and has owned many a valuable fox hound but says he has seen none better than Echo.

Mr. Bliss secured the famous hound from the Hon. Charles Johnson of Uncasville, a couple of years ago and he has continued to maintain his record under his new master.

Mr. Bliss, was catcher for the old Norwich baseball team, and puts the same enthusiasm in hunting as he did on the diamond in the old days when he was the idol of the baseball fans of Norwich.

MOTOR ACCIDENT DEATHS ARE TENTH IN LIST

The annual report of vital statistics just issued by the U. S. census bureau, covering revised figures for 1926, show a total of 1,295,927 registered deaths in the United States, compared with 1,219,019 deaths from all causes in 1925. Of the 1926 deaths, 20,891 were automobile deaths. The 1926 death rate was 1,322 per 100,000, compared with 1,182 deaths per 100,000 in 1925.

Figures compiled by the American Motorists association show that deaths due to automobile accidents rank 10th on the list of causes. Such accidents, excluding those killed in collisions between railroad and street cars in which automobiles were involved, totaled 18,871. This was an increase of 1,240 persons killed in automobile accidents over the previous year. The death rate in automobile accidents in 1926 was 17.9 per 100,000 compared with the death rate in 1925 of 17 per 100,000.

A total of 1,556 motorists were killed in collisions between automobiles and locomotives in 1926, compared with 1,266 killed in 1925 at grade crossings, the revised figures show. The rate per 100,000 in such accidents was 1.5 compared with 1.2 in 1925.

In street car accidents in 1926, in which automobiles figured, 464 were killed, compared with 498 in 1925, the death rate being .4 per 100,000 compared with .5 per 100,000 in 1925. In airplane and motorcycle accidents, revised figures show, 1,507 persons were killed in 1926, compared with 1,718 killed in 1925, the death rate per 100,000 being 1.4 in 1926 and 1.7 in 1925.

Commenting on the rising number of fatalities, as reflected by the figures, President J. Borton Weeks, head of the association, declared that while the figures present a picture of an increased number of accidents, that an analysis shows that the death rate from automobile causes was about the same in 1926 as it was in 1925. This he points out, is due to the fact that during 1927 a total of 3,530,000 cars and trucks were manufactured bringing the total registration in the United States, as of January 1, up to 23,125,000.

"The picture as presented, however, of 20,891 men, women, and children being killed through the instrumentality of the automobile, during 1926, is not a pleasing one and is one that should warn the motorists of his duty, to exercise a higher degree of caution," Mr. Weeks said. "The fault, it must be said, in complete truthfulness, is not entirely that of the motorists. There are many contributing factors, and fortunately many of these, such as the elimination of grade crossings, the installation of traffic signs, signals and the widening of highways, are remedial. In the last analysis, however, the toll of human life through the instrumentality of the automobile depends almost entirely upon the human element, and one of the first resolutions of the motorists, should be to drive safely," Mr. Weeks declared.

USED 190 MILES OF DETOUR DURING THE YEAR 1927

Connecticut highway department expended $129,069 to prepare and maintain traffic detours during the construction period of 1927, an increase of $3,486 over the detour expenditure for 1926, the increase being due to the fact that 190 miles of detour were necessary during the 1927 construction period, as compared with 164 in 1926. The figures, however, show a decrease of $84 in the cost of maintaining a mile of detour in 1927, the average cost per mile of detour in 1927 being $679, as compared with $763 in 1926.

Because of the costliness of detours, the Connecticut highway department strives to avoid their use even more than motorists. Highway department engineers try to keep one side of a road open to traffic while pavement is being laid on the other side. That is not always possible, however, and it then becomes necessary to prepare a detour around the spot at which road-building is taking place.

Preparation of detours is a far more difficult task than it may seem to the average layman. In most cases, the highway department has to do considerable repair work on detour roads before they can be opened to the increased amount of traffic which is to be shunted off from the main highway. Although the best roads available are selected for the detours, preliminary repair work, oiling, and lighting are usually necessary in order to make them safe for the additional traffic load which they are to bear.

Upon the 190 miles of detour which it was necessary for the highway department to maintain, 22,269 gallons of oil were used. In order to direct clearly autoists and truck drivers over the routes which were to be followed, it was necessary to construct, paint and place 1,205 direction and warning signs. Inspectors were employed to watch the condition of the detours so that repair work could be ordered as soon as it became necessary.

SEC. R. S. ROSS ACTIVE AT SCHENECTADY PLANT

A former popular general secretary of Norwich Y. M. C. A., Robert S. Ross, now Americanization secretary at the great plant of the General Electric company, Schenectady, N. Y., continues his successful work along broad lines. The company, in its statement of Jan. 27, 1928, makes reference to the opportunities for education and training offered employes. Stress is laid on the department of making citizens, together with class work in English and instruction in history, the Constitution and the institutions of this country. It is noted that over 4,200 employes have attended these courses.

Of late Secretary Ross has been trying successfully the experiment with his classes of forming a miniature state legislature, a feature of unusual interest and helpfulness to the students of Americanization classes in civics.

Sometimes he substitutes an imitation court of naturalization, or a drama of the United States congress, with students actually taking the parts represented.

Secretary Ross's friends in Norwich and at Gales Ferry—where his family was accustomed to spend the summer—will learn with interest of his continued success.

Mrs. Edward E. Newell

BRISTOL, Feb. 16—(AP)—Mrs. Edward E. Newell, 78, a prominent member of an old Bristol family and active as a D. A. R. in her younger days, died at her home following a brief illness brought on by the infirmities of her advanced age.

Mrs. Newell was a daughter of S. Emerson Root, noted as a clock and manufacturer in the early days of the industry here. She is survived by a son, Emerson R. Newell, of Greenwich, a patent attorney with offices in New York city, and by a daugh

BANNER CARD PROMISED FOR PASTIME AMATEUR BOXING SHOW THIS EVENING

A bout between Harold Talbert "the fighting motorman," and Farmer Steve a heavyweight bout with Billy Brush and Young Fedus as the principals, another match between Vic Darr and Harry Hooper and a tilt between Mush Moriarty and Young Jenner probably can be called the features of the Pastime A. C. amateur boxing show tonight at Olympic hall, although there are plenty of other promising affairs in remaining bouts.

Local Boys Featured

A packed house is expected by the management, who claim to have exceeded all previous efforts with this show. It features local boys while all bouts will bring together home products, that is, boys of eastern Connecticut.

A few of the probable matches were announced Thursday night and is these are to be taken as any criterion then fight fans are in for a busy evening, counting the blows and drops of blood as they rain about the hempen circle.

Talbert, dubbed by his admirers, the Carbarn champion, is making his second start in a local ring with this fight. The last time he was flattened early but as he took that bout on short notice there was an excuse. However, tonight in his tussle with the Yantic mitt-slinger his friends will have no such alibi to produce for he has worked long and hard for this chance to redeem himself in the eyes of the Norwich public. Farmer Steve who real name is Stephen Pirozok, is making his first start in a local fight arena but reports have come from the suburban center where he makes his home that he is in top condition and only earin' for the bell.

Vic Darr, who lost a decision in his last meeting with Hooper has worked nightly to avenge this and this bout should be filled with real excitement.

Mush Moriarty has always given the fans their money's worth but tonight in Jennes he will be extended thoroughly and will have to use all his ring knowledge to win, it seems.

McCarthy Appears

In another bout Johnny Dosh, an up and coming young fighter is slated to go against Young Lizzio of Westerly while Frank McCarthy, Academy football player is scheduled to tilt with one of the Smoke Shop boys, whose name, however, has not been announced.

Young Polinsky of Colchester and Young Burrows of New London form another bout tentatively arranged. The Willimantic boys have not been paired as yet.

The first bout goes on at 8.15 sharp.

AMERICANS LEAVE ONLY WITH UNOFFICIAL TITLE

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland, Feb. 16—(AP)—In the midst of the open season on protests, chief features so far in the Olympic winter sports program, America's speed skaters set out for home today with only one unofficial title.

Hundreds of Olympic athletes, but few officials, bid the American representatives an enthusiastic godspeed as the delegation pulled out for Paris while avalanches of soft snow tumbled down from the mountains and ice skating rinks resembled swimming pools under a warm sun and balmy breezes.

Irving Jaffee, New York flier who scored the fastest time in the 10,000 metre event only to have the race cancelled because of soft ice and unseasonable weather, was subject to the special attention of one delegation of swiss athletes, who carried a banner inscribed: "Jaffee Winner of the 10,000 Metres Race. Long Live America."

Despite the protests of Gustavus Kirby, American Olympic representative, the International skating federation stuck to its ruling that the race must be run in. Kirby was irkmied by the decision, inasmuch as there are no skaters left in St. Moritz. Most of the Scandinavian delegations left for home yesterday.

KAPLAN IN GOOD SHAPE FOR MAYS

Reports from Dennis McMahon, who is taking care of Louis "Kid" Kaplan's training in Meriden, are that the "Kid" is in very good shape for his coming contest with Bobby Mays at New Haven, February 20th. The bout was originally scheduled for February 13th and the postponement helped Kaplan a great deal in getting back to perfect shape.

Kaplan must defeat Mays as he is booked for three more bouts—on February 27th he meets Joe Trabson of Kansas City at Rochester, N. Y.; on March 12th he will meet Freddie Mueller of Buffalo at Buffalo; and on March 27th he is booked to meet the best lightweight that Cleveland promoters can obtain. At the present time they are figuring on either Bruce Flowers, the colorful lightweight, or Stanislaus Loayza, the Chilean.

Kaplan must win all these fights as Jim Mullen is considering him as one of the probable opponents that he has in mind against Mandell, whom the Chicago promoter had signed to defend his lightweight title sometime in June or July at the White Sox ball park in Chicago.

AMERICAN LEGION PLAN BIG BASEBALL HELP

NEW YORK, Feb. 16—(AP)—The major leagues feel that the American legion's plan for developing sandlot baseball offers an excellent means of perpetuating the national game and of keeping the nation's youths out of mischief.

It was chiefly for these two reasons that the American and National leagues, meeting in Chicago this week, voted to contribute $50,000 to the legion's proposal which would bring 100,000 American youths into baseball competition each year through a series of tournaments.

ACE HUDKINS- SAMMY BAKER GO TONIGHT

NEW YORK, Feb. 16—(AP)—Ace Hudkins, free swinging Nebraska puncher, will tackle Sammy Baker, hard hitting soldier from Mitchell field, in a ten round bout at Madison Square garden tomorrow night in an effort to establish himself the outstanding welterweight challenger.

Although Joe Dundee, champion of the division, has been under contract since last November to defend the title against the winner of this match, legal difficulties have upset Joe's ambitions. The Baltimore fighter is under suspension in New York state until he settles his differences with California authorities who had Dundee arrested following his failure to fight Hudkins in Los Angeles last fall.

Despite Baker's knockout of the Wildcat in seven rounds here last summer, Hudkins has been installed a 2 to 1 favorite. Ace holds a decision over Baker in their most recent meeting. Hudkins is finding trouble boiling down to the 147 pound limit and experts believe he may be weakened by the weight. Baker is a natural welterweight.

WALKER HAS "SIGNED" FOR BOUT, SAYS PREHN

NEW LONDON, Feb. 15—(AP)—A telegram from Paul Prehn, chairman of the Illinois boxing commission, member of the National Boxing association stating that Mickey Walker, middleweight champion of the world, had "signed" was received by Thomas Donohue, president of the N. B. A.

President Donohue said that the message indicated that Jim Mullins, a Chicago promoter, had signed Walker to fight. The wire said that a letter would follow explaining. Who Walker had signed to meet, Donohue did not know.

Walker was given up to this date to sign for a match with one of six fighters listed as logical contenders by the N. B. A. Failing to do so, he would be suspended, it had been announced.

Donohue said that he expected the letter explaining the situation tomorrow and until then, he could not say what action would follow.

ANCIENT RIVALS MEET AT STORRS SATURDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Feb. 16—An attractive double-header in basketball is scheduled for Storrs next Saturday night when the varsity and freshmen teams of Connecticut Agricultural college clash with the Rhode Island State fives.

The keen rivalry between these two institutions is enough to guarantee a spirited contest in any year, but this season in particular when both colleges boast strong quintets their meeting this year should develop into a fast game. Saturday's contest will be the first of the annual two game series between. Rhody and the Aggie, the second encounter being scheduled for Feb. 25.

DARTMOUTH TAKES LEAD IN COLLEGE COURT LOOP

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 16—(AP)—Dartmouth jumped into the lead in the intercollegiate basketball league race tonight by defeating Pennsylvania 30 to 29.

The game was protested by Pennsylvania, it being claimed that the student scorers of both teams had lost track of a foul goal by Joe Schaaf soon after the start of the contest. This would have made the count 30-30 at the final bell. Ralph Morgan, chairman of the Pennsylvania basketball committee, filed a protest to President Kemp in New York asking that the game be replayed. An affidavit also was signed by a dozen newspapermen in the press box setting forth that the point in question had not been tallied by the official scorers.

NO WORD YET ON YALE COACH SITUATION

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 16.—(AP)—If a recommendation for head football coach at Yale as successor to Tad Jones, now chairman of the newly appointed graduate advisory committee on football of the Yale Athletic association, was made by the committee last night all information about it was withheld at the university today. What ever action the committee took, it was stated by authority, will be reported to the board of athletic control which must sanction what a committee recommends to make it effective. The board may meet in special session before Alumni day, February 22, in order that an announcement may be made, if one is in readiness on this particular sport.

Eli Oarsmen Outdoors

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 16—(AP)—Taking advantage of the mild weather here today, four Yale varsity crews were out for the first outdoor practice of the season, taking short paddles on New Haven arbor and up the Quinnipiac river. A few shake-ups came when Coach Ed Leader shifted several men in the various shells, but little was indicated in the changes at such an early time.

Freshman crews also had a workout on the bay.

Conger to Meet Hahn

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 16—(AP)—Ray Conger, former Iowa state athlete, and Lloyd Hahn, Boston A. A. will run in the open one mile race, starting 30 yards behind scratch, in the Kansas City Athletic club indoor track and field meet here Saturday night unless they can be matched in a special 1,000 yard race, it was announced today.

Conger recently triumphed over Dr. Otto Peltzer, the German runner, in a meet at Chicago.

FAST PRELIMS FOR ACADEMY GAME

A strong supporting cast has been lined up for the Academy-Deep River game Saturday night at the Y gym. In addition to the usual Senior Church league game, which starts at 6:30 p. m. there are two attractions featuring local amateur quintets. At 7 o'clock the Y Emps will tackle the Noank Nugget Juniors, a classy little outfit that has been cleaning them all up along the shore towns and which disputed the Emp's claim to the Eastern Connecticut title. At 8 o'clock the C. F. C. leading amateur outfit in Eastern Connecticut meets the Mebs of the New London City league. The Mebs recently beat the Kappas here but in the C. F. C. they are facing a far stronger club.

The main game starts at 9 o'clock. The Academy put in a stiff two hours work Thursday afternoon at the Y gym preparing for this clash. Les Pingree played with the second team in the scrimmage which closed the workout and helped greatly in making it a close affair. Pingree will not be eligible for Deep River however, but there is a strong chance of his being ready by the middle of next week. It is also probable that Henschel, the other center on the ineligible list will be righted today.

Joe Viau was absent from yesterday's drill but it is nothing serious and he is almost certain to be ready for Saturday night. The varsity lined up with Jarvis and Tigar at forwards, Goldblatt at center and Kelly and LaCroix at guards. The baseball captain worked well at the pivot for this team and Mace will without doubt see much service in the near future. The seconds had Fagan and Foss at forwards, Diachyshyn at center and Pingree and Swartzburg at guards.

'BOUT SPORTS

The Plainfield Pros probably are better off right now than any of the State league teams. When the Community House bunch decided last spring, to run independently this season when the state league was being formed, many thought it a none too wise move. But evidently the management up there knew what they were doing and right now the Pros are packing them in at every game, something which cannot be tacked onto a goodly number of the state league clubs, according to reports.

Eastern Connecticut has, for some reason or other, a professional rule populace and that was one of the reasons given up in Plainfield for the Pros not entering the Nutmeg loop. Of course, the league, operating as it does in central and mid-western Connecticut, scampers hither and yon under the amateur code, and for the dyed-in-the-wool fans in Taftville, Plainfield, Danielson and Putnam, this sort of game is probably a bit too tame. The high schools, prosper under it, to be sure, but when the big fellows get on the floor fans of these regions want their action a bit rugged.

Interscholastic Sports

Another capacity house looms for the Academy tomorrow night at the Y when they tackle Deep River in their first home game in four starts and since the recent ineligibility fuss.

Windham has been putting in a stiff week of work in preparation for the Torrington game at Torrington Saturday night. An excursion to Storrs to grapple with the Aggie freshmen was included in the week's practice program.

Killingly had a close one with Bacon Academy Wednesday night and had to extend itself throughout to win. The Colchester five plays the Academy next week and they can also be depended upon to give the locals plenty of trouble.

It's too bad Les Pingree isn't in there with the Red and White. With him they could right now give the best of them an awful battle.

GOODYEAR ELEVEN AT MARTINS SUNDAY

The Goodyear soccer team will oppose J. B. Martin Sunday at J. B. Martin park. This team comes with a good reputation and the Taftville club expect plenty of opposition.

Pittsfield Outlook Bright

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Feb. 16—(AP)—More than two-thirds of the fund being raised by the chamber of commerce to help finance the Pittsfield Eastern league baseball club, has been accounted for. The sum of $3,200 has been pledged with $1,300 more to come. The chamber of commerce came to the aid of the Pittsfield club last season and made it possible for this city to retain an Eastern league franchise when the outlook was far from rosy. The recent sale of Infielder "Tweet" Walsh, former Holy Cross star, to Reading started the Pittsfield club on the right track for 1928.

Lambert to Re-Enter College

CHICAGO, Feb. 16—(AP)—Eric Lambert, Columbia university athlete, who was depended on to row stroke oar again in the Columbia crew this spring announced tonight that he would leave Sunday for New York to re-enter Columbia. He has been recovering from an illness here. When he dropped out of school there were reports among the students that he had planned to leave school permanently.

Soccer Players Arrive

NEW YORK, Feb. 16—(AP)—Alec Donald and Harry Chatton, soccer stars of the Patrick Thistles in the first division of the Scottish league, arrived here today to join the New York Nationals. The Nationals also announced the signing of Henry Farrell, former forward of the Philadelphia club in the American league.

DANIELSON DEFEATS MANCHESTER RECS IN HARD FOUGHT GAME, 32 TO 30

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Feb. 16—Deadlocked at the close of the game at 27 all a five minute overtime period was required to settle the winner in the exciting game here tonight between the Danielson Town team and the Manchester Recs, which ended in the score of 32 to 30 in favor of the locals. The encounter was played before a capacity house, who witnessed the finest exhibition of basketball at the town hall this season.

Danielson Leads at Half

At the end of the first half the score stood at 17 to 12 in Danielson's favor, and from the start to the finish of the game few points separated the two teams, every man on the squads contributing at least two points to keep the score on an almost even basis. With the addition of Burke and Bitgood on the Danielson lineup the home team exhibited a fine brand of basketball, Burke, formerly with Dean academy and Foxboro, Mass., holding his man to a basket and foul and contributing a field goal himself. Bitgood hails from Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs and played a neat game.

In the overtime period, in which both sides scored, Schofield netted a foul and field goal followed by a field goal by Bitgood, who scored his second basket for Danielson. The opposition tried hard to forge ahead, but the most they could do in the scoring line was to add three points with a foul and field goal by Mantelli and Norris, respectively.

By winning from the Recs it appears that Danielson has struck its stride and will furnish the fans with high calibre basketball, eclipsing the fine brand that has been the order there this season. This seems likely with the addition of Bitgood and Burke to their fold, whose playing tonight was of fine order, holding their men to small scores, the much reputed center, Norris, reaping only three points. Summary:

Danielson

	G.	F.	Pts.
Keech, lf	3	0	6
Scholfield, rf	6	4	16
Burke, c	1	0	2
Bitgood, rg	2	0	4

NASHUA, N. H., Feb. 16—(AP)—Continuance of the New England Baseball league without change this season, was voted at a meeting of club owners here tonight. The Nashua, Manchester, Haverhill, Lawrence, and Lynn clubs had representatives at the meeting and President Claude B. Davidson held proxies for Portland and Salem. Lewiston was not represented.

CITY ROLLER POLO LEAGUE OPENS AT OLYMPIC RINK

With the Thunderbolts outclassing the West Side poloists 6 to 2 the city roller polo league opened last night at the Olympic rink on Water street. This is the first roller polo game in Norwich since the old state league some 25 or 30 years ago. Although the poloists lacked experience the game was interesting and exciting. The Thunderbolts scored in the first few minutes of play but the West Sides evened the count soon after and at half time the score stood 2 and 2. In the second half the Thunderbolts scored four times while holding the West Sides to no score. The lineups:

Thunderbolts		West Sides
Savage, lr		lr, Pierce
McGregory, rr		rr, Pavey
Lewis, c		c, Guedisk
Straub, hb		hb, Delgie
Chennette, g		g, Edwards

Play will be held in the league each Thursday evening and four teams will comprise the league, the Thunderbolts, West Sides, Mohegans and All-Stars.

(Special to The Bulletin)

HOLYOKE, Mass., Feb. 16—Al Beauregard of Norwich, Conn., appears on the Washington birthday card at the Valley arena here, meeting Tommy Rivetti, of New York at eight rounds.

The main bout of 10 rounds brings together Bruce Flowers, one of the leading lightweights of the days and Nat Kawler, who only recently lost a questionable decision to Stan Loayza.

Centrals Win

The Greeneville Stars were defeated by the Centrals of the city Wednesday evening on the St. Joseph's bowling alleys by the margin of 27 pins for the total pinfall of three strings. John Murphy was the shining star for Greeneville, while Ernest Bean was the bright light for the Central team. These teams will meet at the same alleys next Monday evening for the roll off of the second match.

FIRE DISTRICT M ETING HEARS OF LEGISLATIVE ACTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Feb. 16—An adjourned meeting of Westerly Fire district called to order at 8 o'clock this evening in the town hall by Clerk Carl E. Burdick. In the absence of Moderator Lewis Stanton, representing as president, the Westerly chamber of commerce at the annual dinner of the Providence chamber of commerce, the clerk asked for the nomination of a moderator pro tem. John J. Dunn was named. Clerk Burdick read the call. Fire Chief George E. Egger made a verbal report of favorable progress on the new central fire station. John J. Dunn as a member of the committee and at the request of C. W. Campbell and Everett E. Whipple, reported on two proposed acts on financing presented to the R. I. general assembly by Representative Nichols and Campbell. They were reported by the committee on corporation and were placed on Thursday's calendar. They were voted passed by the house of representatives, but in an amended form. The meeting was adjourned to March 18, 1928, at 8 o'clock for the purpose of taking action relative to the issuance of bonds and other matters of business.

An east-bound express due to make the Westerly station stop Tuesday afternoon shortly after 3 o'clock came to a sudden halt just after it had crossed the Pawcatuck river bridge. The only explanation to the sudden stop was thought to be the fact that someone had pulled the air brake cord. Thursday afternoon a train was halted in a similar sudden manner and an argument was reported to have occurred between a passanger leaving the train at the time and the conductor. The same passenger boarded a later express train at Westerly station.

At the annual dinner of Providence chamber of commerce, Thursday evening speakers were Governor Brewster of Maine and Commodore Herbert Hartley, formerly of the steamship Leviathan, who is now manager of the Trans-Oceanic corporation. Lewis Stanton, president of Westerly chamber of commerce attended also, as did Frank A. Sullivan, Henry L. Burdick, Daniel F. Larkin and George B. Utter.

She was a member of the Hope Valley Baptist church. Besides her husband she is survived by three sons, Louis E. Hall of West Albany, N. Y., Charles E. Hall of Providence and Clifford A. SHE WENT FROM DAD TO WORSE

Down to 98 Pounds—Finally Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Cleveland, Ohio.—"After having my first baby, I lost weight, no matter what I did. Then a doctor told me I would be better if I had another baby, which I did. But I got worse, was always sickly and went down to 98 pounds. My neighbor told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it helped her very much, so I tried it. After taking four bottles, I weigh 116 pounds. It has just done wonders for me and I can do my housework now without one bit of trouble."—MRS. M. RIESSINGER, 10904 Nelson Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

If some good fairy should appear, and offer to grant your heart's desire, what would you choose? Wealth? Happiness?

Health? That's the best gift. Health is riches that gold cannot buy and surely health is cause enough for happiness.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound may be the good fairy who offers you better health.

DETROIT BOOK AGENT ARRESTED AT NEW LONDON CHARGED WITH THEFT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 16—William E. Johnson, alias William E. Webber, 10 Westland street, Detroit, Mich., a book agent, was arrested this afternoon by Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin and Patrolman Henry Sylvia, charged with theft. He was unable to provide a surety on his bond of $200 and was locked up. He will be in court tomorrow morning. Johnson, who has been in New London about three months, during which time he has secured subscriptions to periodicals, formerly resided with Mrs. W. C. Barker, 10 Bulkeley place. While he was a lodger there, Mrs. Barker went out of the city and upon her return she discovered that her watch and a ring were missing and so was Johnson. Mrs. Barker made complaint to the police, but Johnson was not found until today when his arrest resulted. Johnson at first denied all knowledge of the theft of the watch and ring, but after he had been grilled a half hour he admitted stealing the jewelry. Johnson said that he had tendered the watch and ring to Mrs. Annie Hester, proprietress of a rooming house, 119 Golden street, as payment for his room rent. An officer accompanied Johnson to the rooming house and there the jewelry was recovered.

COMDR. HARTLEY IMPRESSED BY HARBOR ADVANTAGES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 16.—Commodore Herbert Hartley, thinks well of New London as the prospective terminal for the proposed Trans-Atlantic Steamship Line. The former commander of the Leviathan, in a talk today, before a representative gathering of professional and business men of this city, noted the advantages offered by this harbor. While he did say that no promise of his could be binding on the proposed corporation, he led his large and enthusiastic audience to believe, that in his opinion, no single one of the ports now under consideration, had as many points favorable for a port as did this one. After viewing the harbor Commodore Hartley said: "What I have seen this morning was far beyond by expectations. I was at Montauk Point yesterday and that, too, is a splendid location. However, I wish I could tell you this could be the port; you've got a wonderful place, a real place, a fine place!"

At twelve o'clock New London business and professional men tendered the visiting commador a reception at the Hotel Mohican, which was attended by several hundred citizens interested in the proposed project. Previous to Mr. Hartley's speech, Mayor James A. May, gave a brief introductory talk and then presented Commodore Hartley a beautiful wrist watch in behalf of the citizens of New London. In the presentation speech Mayor May stated that it was the wish of the donors that the Commadore wear it on the first trip he might make on one of the proposed new liners.

Italian laborers of New London sent the commodore a beautiful basket of flowers as a token of good will. They were presented just before he made his speech regarding the advantages offered by this harbor.

Before attending the reception, Commodore Hartley made a brief but thorough inspection of New London harbor. On the tour he was accompanied by Waldo E. Clark, Commander R. W. Dempwolf and Lieutenant Commander G. T. Finley of the local Coast Guard. Mr. Clark is resident engineer at the state pier and active agent for Governor Trumbull in keeping the state executive in close touch with the progress being made by the proposed Trans-Atlantic Line.

Commodore Hartley arrived in New Londono last night. With him were Mr. Joseph Speedy, former Shipping Board member and his secretary, Nilburin Kusterer. A reporter of the Brooklyn Eagle was present also.

Immediately after the commedore came in from his harbor inspection trip an informal dinner was served at the Hotel Mohican. Those present were Mayor May, Commander Wilcox, of the Coast Guard, Edward Regan, Viggo E. Bird, Col. W. Ellery Allyn, Frederick W. Mercer, Waldo E. Clark, Albert Hickman and Theodore Bodenwein.

John Mack, alias James Mack, was taken into custody this afternoon on suspicion of having stole a wrist watch from Mrs. Georgiana Talbot, 24 Lewis street. He denies committing the theft, but he is being detained for investigation. The watch was stolen from Mrs. Talbot last December.

The Real Estate Exchange has sold to Frank Kalka a building lot on Cape Ann court.

Louis Lubchansky has sold a house and lot, 12 Woodbridge street, to Rocco and Vincenzo Bastallico.

Reuben Lubchansky has leased to John E. Lincoln the premises, Broad and Parker street, used as a gasoline filling station and which were formerly conducted by Lubchansky. The lease is for one year and the rental is $300 payable monthly in installments of $50 each.

George R. Morris, administrator of the estate of John N. Carroll, former deputy sheriff, has sold to Charles D. Carroll a house and lot on Carroll court.

Alfred and Gildo Minucci and John Garofoli have sold to Percival E. Hall a building lot on Jefferson avenue.

Thomas G. Dillon, acting on an order of the superior court, yesterday sold two building lots at Neptune park, formerly owned by H. C. Hine, to Charles D. Carroll, the price being $3,200. The sale was ordered to satisfy a judgment in favor of the Mariners Savings bank.

John W. Beitzel, 102 Shaw street, was in the police court today charged with violation of the city's parking ordinance and was fined $5. Beitzel, who pleaded guilty, parked his car on Bank street, much longer than the time provided by ordinance, 30 minutes. Complaint was made to Patrolman William Corcoran, who ordered Beitzel into court. It is claimed that Beitzel has made a practice of parking his car in front of Bank street places of business indefinitely.

Alfred Hallett of the Hotel Mohican and Miss Katherine Parsons Belden of Lenox, Mass., were married this morning at 10 o'clock at Hallam chapel, St. James' Episcopal church by Rev. Philip M. Kerridge. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. John F. Coyle of this city. Mr. Hallett is manager of the New London store of the Mohican company. After a wedding trip to the home of Mrs. Hallett's parents in Lenox, they will reside at the Mohican hotel.

POETRY

New Every Morning.

Every day is a fresh beginning,
Every morn is the world made new.
You who are weary of sorrow and sinning,
Here is a beautiful hope for you—
A hope for me and a hope for you.

All the past things are gone and over,
The tasks are done and the debts are shed;
Yesterday's errors let yesterday cover,
Yesterday's wounds, which smarted and bled,
Are healed with the healing which night has shed.

Yesterday is a part of forever,
Bound up in the sheath which death holds tight.
With the glad days and sad days and bad days which never Shall visit us more with their blame or their blight.
Their fullness of sunshine or merciful night.

Let them go, since we cannot relieve them,
Cannot undo or cannot atone;
God in His mercy receive and forgive them.
Only the new days are our own—
Today is ours and today alone.

Here are the skies all burnished brightly,
Here is the spent earth all reborn;
Here are the tired limbs springing lightly
To greet the sun and share with the morn
In its chrism of dew and cool of the dawn.

Every day is a fresh beginning—
Listen, my soul, to the glad refrain;
And in spite of old sorrow and old sinning,
And trouble forecasted or possible pain,
Take heart with the new day and begin again.

—Susan Coolidge.

The Skillful Listener.

The skillful listener, he, methinks, may hear
The grass blades clash in sunny field together,
The roses kissing, and the lily, hather
It joy or sorrow in the summer's ear.
The jewel dew-bells of the mead ring clear
When morning lightly moves them in June weather;
The flocked hours flitting by on stealthy feather,
The last leaves' wail at waning of the year.
Haply from these we catch a passing sound,
(The best of verities, perchance, but seem)
We overhear close Nature, on her round,
When least she thinks it; bird and bough and stream
Not only, but her silences profound,
Surprised by softer footfall of our dream.

—John Vance Cheney.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"Is he a bore?"

"Terrible bore. He is one of those orators who speak on all phases of the subject."—Kansas City Star.

Husband (in car)—Great heavens! The engine is terribly overheated.

Wife (calmly)—Then why don't you turn off the radiator?—Life.

Dealer—Madam, I came to collect for the washing machine.

Madam—How come? You said it would pay for itself in a few months. —Wet Hen.

"How shall I ever meet my obligations?" groaned the bankrupt. "Meet them half way," suggested his legal adviser. And thereupon he made a 50 per cent. assignment.—Boston Transcript.

"How is your boy Josh getting along in school?"

"Fine," answered Farmer Corntossel. "The way he talks shows he knows more than the perfessers. Only the perfessors won't admit it."—Washington Star.

Old Slow Poke—Mister Jackson, er—that is, I would like to, er—that is, I mean I have been going with your daughter for five years.

Old Man—Well, whadda you want—a pension?—Stevens Stone Mill.

Very Moderate Conjurer—I can only keep going for about ten minutes. What shall I do if there's an encore?

Showman (bitterly)—If there's an encore, I'll go on myself and eat my hat!—Tit-Bits.

Two young bloods were sitting at a dinner-cabaret show. They were much impressed by the beauty of a dark-haired chorus girl. "Isn't she stunning?" said one. "She is," agreed the other. "And they tell me she comes from Italy." "Genoa?" asked the first one. "Not yet," replied the other, "but I hope to, shortly."—Brooklyn Eagle.

As the historical linden tree before the "Stadtschloss" in Potsdam, Germany, is proving a serious hindrance to the city's present traffic, an attempt will be made to transplant it to the adjoining park. The tree derived its popular name of "Brittschriftlinde" from the fact that under it petitioners were wont to assemble to attract the attention of Frederic the Great in his study opposite, whereupon the king would come out to accept the respective petitions from the hands of each. It is regarded as doubtful, however, whether the tree, several hundred years old, can stand such a transplantation.

Burgess Bedtime Story

What Danny Meadow Mouse Was Doing.

When you are in trouble, just dig your way out;
You can if you will, there is never a doubt.
—Danny Meadow Mouse.

When Danny Meadow Mouse had heard the sharp squeak of warning from Nanny Meadow Mouse he had dived headlong through a little hole in the snow beside the stem of the weed under which he had been sitting. He hadn't waited to find out what the danger was. And Danny had been just in the nick of time. If he had waited only long enough to turn his head to see what the danger might be Roughleg the Hawk certainly would have caught him. But he hadn't waited. He had dived in headlong and run right down the stem of that plant to the ground. Then he had looked up. He saw something dark shut out the light from the little hole through which he had come. He waited until the light was coming in that little hole again. He knew then that the danger had passed. He promptly climbed up and peeped out. He was just in time to see Roughleg resume his perch on the fence post.

"So that was it!" exclaimed Danny to himself. "Old Roughleg hadn't gone away after all. It is a wonder he didn't catch me. If it hadn't been for Nanny he would have. Now, the question is what shall I do? It would be foolish to even try to run across the snow to those holes that lead down to our private little path. Roughleg would have me before I could get there. I guess there is nothing for it but to dig a new tunnel. There is one thing about it and that is there is no danger doing that."

So Danny once more climbed down the weed-stem and began to dig a little tunnel along the ground, under the snow. It was slow work. You see, he had to cut a lot of dried grass at the same time. But Danny is a good little cutter and he knows how to work. He kept right at it. And while he worked he wondered what Nanny was doing.

"I do hope Nanny isn't worrying," thought Danny. "I hope she saw me dive down and fool old Roughleg. My it is a good thing that hole was there! But then, I wouldn't have stayed over here if that hole hadn't been here. Nanny didn't know it, but I had been over here before. The first time I came there was a little hole, but I made it big enough for me to get down. It's a good thing I did that. My, old Roughleg must have been disappointed! I don't wish anybody such hard luck as to be hungry, but I'm certainly glad that I'm not in his stomach right now. My, but this is some job!"

Danny kept right on working. Little by little that tunnel grew longer. It was headed in the direction of Danny's home. Danny hoped that sooner or later he would strike one of the tunnels he and Nanny had already dug. Until he did there was nothing to do but to keep on working.

Two or three times Danny was tempted to go back, climb up to the surface and take a chance of getting across to those other holes. Then he would think of how narrow an escape he had already had and go right on working.

"It's a good thing I don't have to go hunting for food," said Danny. "I should hate to be hungry and have to work like this at the same time. I can always go back and get some seeds from the top of that weed, but some of this grass is very sweet and tender. I'm surprised. Yes, sir, I'm surprised. Some of this grass is as green as in summer and just as sweet and tender. I suppose the snow is keeping it. Well I do hope Nanny isn't worrying, for goodness only knows when I'll get home."

HOME BREW GASOLINE BURNS OFF PAINT ALL RIGHT

Arthur De Martin made some home brew and put it away to treat friends. He has a large fishing boat, tight hauled out at West View boat yard to burn off the paint. So going down to the cellar of his home to get the gasoline for the torch to start burning the paint off Wednesday, It was dark and his good stuff was marked with the name on every bottle. "Burnside Special". Without his glasses Capt. De Martin got hold of the wrong bottle—it was not the gasoline! So he filled the torch with Burnside and started to remove the paint, a match set it going and soon he smelled something like his special stuff. It was taking the paint right off. Later on he was getting the fumes, so he had to quit. He found out it was home brew in the torch not gasoline and it had the right name Burnside for it burned the paint off the boat. He said "My friends don't get any of that brew" and into the river it went.

Palace Theatre

Did you ever play poker?

And did you ever have a woman stand behind your chair and ask questions—out loud—about your hand?

And were you ever three or four stacks behind and wondering how you'd ever catch up and then get one of those marvellous hands that come once in a lifetime?

If so, put on your hat and coat and hurry down to the Palace theater, where Richard Dix's new Paramount picture, "Sporting Goods," opened yesterday for a three day run.

It has in it one of the funniest poker sequences ever screened. It wouldn't be fair to the Palace management to reveal the details of the hands by which Dix wins. It is enough to say that it will be a hilariously funny picture for every man, woman or child, who knows the difference between a pair of deuces and a straight-flush.

But poker isn't all that's in "Sporting Goods." It is just a very funny part of a very funny picture, in which Dix plays a golf suit salesman who is mistaken for a multi-millionaire and is forced to make good to win a girl he loves. He has some terrible obstacles—terrible to him but extremely comic to the audience—to overcome, including a trying situation on a beautiful California golf links, but he finally emerges on top.

Gertrude Olmstead plays the girl, and the rest of the supporting cast boasts such names as Ford Sterling, Myrtle Stedman, Philip Strange, Maude Turner Gordon, Claude King and Wade Boteler. The picture, one of the funniest in which Dix has ever played, was directed by Malcolm St. Clair, director of "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes." The vaudeville this week is highly praised by all who have seen it. Heading it is "The Artistic Revue," a company of screen artists who present a singing and dancing number that is far above the ordinary. Turner and Grace in a novelty sensation, Princess White Cloud the woodland songstress, Chas. and Gean Keeting billed as "Some Steppers," and Nelson and Irene in a comedy skit make up the balance of the program.

Strand Theatre

Unrivaled dramatic thrills—spectacular battle scenes—the greatest railroad crash ever filmed—a blood tingling love story and the most laughs ever crammed into a motion picture. That in a nutshell is "The General" Buster Keaton's colossal comedy now showing at the Strand. Produced on a lavish scale by Joseph M. Schenk "The General" is the costliest and most ambitious laugh picture in the history of the screen. "Buster" has the interesting role of a young Southern patriot who blunders his way into fame and the affections of a girl, when a band of Federal raiders swoop down upon the Confederates, steal a train and play havoc with the South's military plans.

"Business of Love" a story of romance and laughter is a mirth-provoking comedy which deals with affairs of the heart. This delightfully humorous picture is full of action and has for its stars, Edward Everett Horton and Barbara Bedford, who have a merry time trying to solve the greatest problem of the ages, that something called "love." In the supporting cast are Zazu Pitts, Carl Stockdale and Dorothy Ward. This is a Jesse Robbins production and is shown for the first time so bring your sweethearts and wives and see how this all star cast handle "This Business of Love."

Breed Theatre

A screamingly funny farce is the only way to describe, "The Gay Retreat," Fox Films latest release to the Breed theatre, which had its first presentation yesterday afternoon. It kept a crowded house shouting with laughter as the story of the sleep walking soldier and his two buddies was unfolded on the screen.

This is a story of the war but from the humorous angle and with the most unusual situations ever pictured. It deals with Dick Wright, played by Gene Cameron, who enlists in the ambulance corps after being turned down by other branches of the service. His chauffeur and valet, also join to keep an eye on him and to prevent him from wandering into No Man's Land in his sleep. These two body guards are played by Sammy Cohen and Ted McNamara, who scored so sensationally as the merry making marines in "What Price Glory."

But their performance in "The Gay Retreat" surpasses even their laugh provoking acting in the great war epic. But they have ample help in creating laughs. There is the Red Cross nurse, Betty Francisco, whom Dick leaves behind in his father's care, and the beautiful French girl played by Judy King, whom he meets overseas. Also Holmes Herbert as his father and Charles Gorman as the hard, tough sergeant. The performance of this well chosen cast in a story that is filled with thrills and with a double barreled romance and directed by Ben Stoloff results in a production that for sheer entertainment is a thing not soon forgotten.

Bean Hole Beans

Southern corn bread, Virginia ham, Maryland fried chicken, New England baked beans,—they come down to us from the puritan and the pioneer, the backwoodsman and the prairie farmer, these distinctively American dishes.

Of them all, none has a more romantic history than New England beans. The most famous of the old-time recipes for New England beans dates back to the time when big lumber crews first began to clear the Maine forests. Here, for decades, the camp cook's call sounded in the tiny clearings three times a day: "Fill 'er up!"

Hearty, hunger-satisfying food they must have—and the camp cook gave them beans. Beans two times a day, beans three times a day. Beans of such rich flavor and mellow tenderness that the lumberjacks (or so tradition says) grumbled when they did not appear.

Visitors to the old camps have written of those beans. Of the great outdoor oven, called the "bean hole," where for hours fragrant branches of pine burned to heat the clay sides. Of the huge iron bean pot, wide-bellied and heavy-lidded, filled to the brim with par-boiled beans, with layers of sweet, sugar-cured pork, molasses and brown sugar. Of the time when the bean pot, lowered into the hot embers, was sealed and left for twenty-four hours.

Only to the chance Maine traveller, however, were these beans available. Other people knew them by reputation alone, until a modern manufacturer obtained the old recipe.

For years he worked to achieve the same wonderful flavor, the same outdoor "woodsy" fragrance. At last he secured a flavor that made even New Englanders enthusiastic.

"They're the best beans I ever tasted! Where can I get more like them?" —letters poured in from people who had tasted the new beans. The new product was then put on the market, and, in honor of its origin, was named Bean Hole Beans.

Bean Hole Beans seemed to have a place ready and waiting for them. When mothers hear the usual "What are we going to have for dinner, Mother? Make something good!" they soon learn to rely on a smoking hot dish of Bean Hole Beans.

For toasted sandwiches, for Saturday night suppers, for indoor picnics to bring the gayety and freedom of summer to a crisp wintry evening, Bean Hole Beans offer a "something that is different" a heartiness and zest.

A new automatic fog guide for airplanes is being tested by the Royal Air Force in England. Instruments to keep an airplane on its course in the air have been in use for some time. The new device enables a pilot to make a safe take-off even in a fog so dense that he may be unable to see the wings of his own airplane. At present all aviation activities are forced to suspend in extremely foggy weather

DEMAND FOR U.S. TREASURY BONDS WAS OUTSTANDING FEATURE OF THE MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—(AP)—General heaviness of recent pool favorites in the stock market and a sudden expansion in the demand for United States treasury bonds were the outstanding development in the financial situation today. Stiffening time money and commercial paper rates undoubtedly had an effect on sentiment, and some hesitancy was created by fears in some quarters that another increase in brokers' loans might develop. This, however, was not borne out. As the total of brokers' loans announced after the market closed showed a decrease of $$15,626,000. Call money held at 4 1-2 per cent all day.

The sudden demand for U. S. government bonds was unexplained, especially in the face of tightening money rates. But it was suggested that market operators may have been disposed to transfer some of the idle funds from the stock market, which has been showing marked signs of weakening.

The stock market started upward with a rush at the opening. Led by numerous public utilities which had been stimulated by the senate's rejection of the Walsh resolution calling for a senatorial investigation of superpower projects, this burst of strength quickly faded out. However, when bear selling developed against numerous of the recent pool favorites, some of these displayed the greatest weakness at intervals notably such issues as Freeport Texas, Mullins corporation, A. M. Byers, Wright Aeronautical and City Stores "B."

Oil shares, confronting recurrent reports of unfavorable conditions in the industry, motors, some of the independent steels, rubber and sugar shares, were hard pressed, many of them going down 1 to more than 9 points to new low levels for the year. This list included such issues as Pan-American, Lago, Nash Motors Dodge common, Midland Steel Products preferred, Colorado Fuel, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Goodrich Rubber, Kelly Springfield, American Sugar, Cuban American Sugar and a few other miscellaneous issues.

There was some covering toward the close of the session when a rapid 5-point rise in Vanadium Steel caused a flurry of nervousness among some of the shorts. Incidentally, there were a few outstanding strong spots, including Victor Talking Machine, General Cable "A," Baldwin Locomotive and American Zinc, yet advances ranging from 1 to more than 3 points.

A few of the investment railroads followed an upward trend of their own. Led by Reading, which scored a gain of 3 1-4 points. Atchison and Union Pacific also gave a good account of themselves.

Very little change was noted in foreign exchanges. Sterling cables ruled slightly higher around $4.87 13-32 and French francs held close to yesterday's final quotations. A few of the European currencies were a shade lower.

An advance of about 2 cents a bushel in wheat futures held the principal interest in the commodity markets. Cotton, coffee and raw sugar quotations were steady, but sugar futures were weak, showing recessions of 1 to 7 points.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16—(AP)—The packing industry has worked itself out of a bad situation, and the outlook for 1928 is good. Provided producers and packers keep their production within bounds says R. I. Bentley, president of California Packing corporation. Stocks have been so reduced he says. That the amount on hand is less than the average for this time of year indicating the volume of business for 1927 has been very satisfactory.

The preliminary statement of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad for 1927 shows net income of $32,632,845 after taxes and charges in contrast to $28,494,294 in 1926.

The price of prime western zinc has fallen to the lowest level in more than five years to 5.97 1-2 cents a pound. East St. Louis low for 1927 was 5.50 cents and for 1926 6.70 cents.

Structural steel contracts last week jumped to 70,000 tons from 45,000 the week before. New inquiries were for about 30,000 tons against 46,000 the preceding week.

American Gas & Electric earned $6.63 a share on the common stock in 1927 after preferred dividends against $3.12 a share on a smaller amount of shares outstanding in 1926. Net income rose to $14,829,811 from $13,005,783.

The New York curb market membership of Donald C. Caplin has been bought for $60,000 by Dewitt J. Manheimer, unchanged from the previous sale.

Consolidated Film Industries, Inc. reports an increase of more than 24 per cent in January earnings over the same month last year. The month's processed film exceeded 35,000,000 feet, a gain of 10,000,000 feet over a year ago.

Stockholders of Fidelity-Phoenix Fire Insurance Co., will vote April 23 on a change of capital stock to 1,000,000 shares, $10 par, from 400,000 shares at $25 par, the new stock to be exchanged 2 1-2 shares for one.

New England Industries

ELECTRICAL MACHINERY, APPARATUS AND SUPPLIES.

In 1923, there were in the United States 1,671 establishments making electrical machinery, apparatus and supplies, of which 217 were in New England, with 139 in Massachusetts, 65 in Connecticut, 15 in Rhode Island and 7 in New Hampshire. The number of establishments in New England increased 41 per cent from 1914 to 1923, while there was an increase of 66 per cent for the rest of the country. In 1923 the New England plants paid 43,000 employes $55,500,000 or 18 per cent of the national income of such workers. The size of establishments increased from a naverage of 156 workers to 197, and wages increased from an average of $600 to $1,250 in line wit hthe rest of the country.

New England's value of product in 1923 was $203,000,000 or 18 per cent of that for the United States, as compared with 19 per cent in 1914. During this period value of product increased 217 per cent in New England and 303 per cent for the rest of the country.

A survey of representative New England establishments conducted by the United States Department of Commerce in cooperation with the New England council shows that the plants with which the survey is concerned have been operated on an average of twenty years. The chief reasons for locating here were given as good labor conditions and accessibility of raw materials. Branch plants have been established by 13 per cent of the reporting group. Steel, copper and brass are the chief raw materials, steel obtained mostly from outside New England, and copper and brass usually procured throughout local houses.

Incentive wage methods are reported for 24 per cent o fthe employes in the establishments included in this survey. There is little seasonable fluctuation in employment, and occasional slackness is met by manufacture of radio apparatus or making up for stock. Improvements have been effected in methods of production control, accidents prevention, organization and executive control.

Total sales have increased 95 per cent since 1921. Increases have been brought about by new products, new sales methods, extension of territories and lower production costs. Decreases, reported by 18 per cent of the producers, are attributed to a change in the nature of the demand, particularly by manufacturers of electrical railway supplies.

Twenty-eight per cent of the total sales of his group are in New England, which is reported as the major market for 17 per cent of the companies. The proportion is high in Massachusetts and low in Connecticut. New England sales are reported as increasing by 89 per cent of the companies and the few which suffer decreases attributed them to the westward movement of factories, to transfer sales activities to western centers, and to the decrease in street railways. Increases were reported as being effected because of better quality of products, more building, and sales effort. Seventy-two per cent of the output is branded and advertised, assisted by 83 per cent of the concerns advertising, this item equalling 2 per cet of total value of product in 1925. Selling cost, exclusive of advertising, was reported at 12.7 per cent of that value.

The chief methods of distribution reported are through wholesalers or jobbers, and direct to the consumer. Forty-four per cent of the concerns reporting carry one an export business, and these sales in 1925 were from 1 to 10 per cent of total sales in individual plants, with an average for the group of 6 per cent.

LEDYARD
BURNED SHOLES BARN
AN INTERESTING BUILDING
The large barn that belonged to Mr. Marion Brown as the Jerry Sholes farm, in Preston, which was burned with its contents last week, was built by Mr. Sholes about 50 years ago. This was one of the largest barns in Preston. The foundation was built by Edward Howard who built the Laurel Hill tunnel and cost $300. The barn was built by Charles Hammond and his son-in-law, who formerly lived on the East Side, Norwich; Hammond avenue being named after him. It took 40,000 shingles to cover the two roofs of the barn. It would hold between 40 and 50 head of cattle. Shingles were cheap then, costing between 2 and 3 dollars per M.
Mr. Sholes sold much milk and cream at this time and he stated that he paid for this barn in one year's time by the sale of his products.
"Chosen Men of God" was the theme of Ralph Krout's address in the Congregational church Sunday morning. This being Lincoln Sunday, the speaker spoke in eulogistic terms of the Great Emancipator.
Miss Louise Clark had charge of the Christian Endeavor meeting, held at the residence of George Garrapye, Sunday evening. "Choosing Ideal Parners" was the topic discussed.

NORWICH TOWN

The work committee of the League of Service of the Norwich Town Congregational church is to hold its meeting at the home of Mrs. Charles P. Learned, of East Town street, this (Friday) afternoon. Arrangement was made by the chairman, Mrs. Herbert L. Yerrington, to hold the meeting with Mrs. Frederick Ross, of Sturtevant street, but owing to illness in that family it was necessary to make a change.

The Norwich Town club of New London County Home and Farm Bureau, Mrs. William Weaver president, met Thursday, with Mrs. Everett Rogers, of Wauwecus street. The demonstrator, Mrs. Belle H. F. Robinson, of Gales Ferry, again took up the work of drawing in rings, and a demonstration was also given in millinery. The hostess served dinner to the demonstrator, and coffee to the club members who brought their lunch.

Mrs. Arthur Fulton, chairman, assisted by Mrs. William Weaver, will have charge of a supper to be given in Norwich, under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor society of the Norwich Town Methodist church.

Mrs. Benjamin L. Kennedy and Miss Alice H. Kennedy of Town street had as callers Thursday afternoon Mrs. Mary St. Onge and her daughter, Mrs. Louis Maynard, of Providence, also Mrs. Louis Kennedy and Ernest Kennedy of Danielson, who motored to Norwich Town. Mrs. St. Onge and Ernest Kennedy are sister and brother respectively of Benjamin L. and Louis Kennedy.

A large tree standing on the original Harland estate, on Sentry Hill, now the property of Frederick S. Armstrong is being cut. Years ago, when a veranda at the front of the mansion facing Washington street, was added; it was necessary to build around the trunk of this unusually large tree, in order to get the desired width of the veranda. In having the tree completely removed at this time, it has been reported that Mr. Armstrong intends to make other improvements to the big house, formerly the home of the late General Edmond Harland.

REPORT EUGENE O'NEILL'S WIFE TO SEEK SEPARATION

Agnes Burton O'Neill, second wife of America's foremost dramatist, Eugene G. O'Neill, formerly of New London, is quoted in a New York tabloid as about to start proceedings looking towards a separation from her noted husband. Mrs. O'Neill and ten-year-old son are now en route to Bermuda where the playwright several years ago purchased a palatial new home. O'Neill, who announced to New London friends when he was there recently that he was to leave shortly for a trip to Europe is now said to be preparing for a visit to California. The reason for Mrs. O'Neill's reported action is not given. According to press statements, Harry Weinberger, New York attorney, had been retained by Mrs. O'Neill to press the separation proceedings.

Reports that the O'Neills were about to separate were first circulated when the playwright arrived from Bermuda to supervise the production of Marco Millions, one of his two great stage successes this year. After he had intimated that his wife would remain in Bermuda for the winter, she suddenly appeared in New York about ten days before the premiere of Strange Interlude, the most recent O'Neill production.

O'Neill's first wife was Kathleen Jenkins of New York, whom he married in 1909 and from whom he was divorced in 1912. He was married again on April 12, 1918, to Agnes Boulton Burton of London Eng. and for some time, prior to O'Neill's rise as a playwright, the couple lived over a grocery store in Provincetown, Mass. When he became successful he purchased his home at Bermuda and another residence at Ridgefield, this state.

WILL AWARD CONTRACT FOR MOTOR TRUCK MAIL SERVICE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WORCESTER, Mass., Feb. 16—Postoffice officials have advertised for bids for motor truck delivery of mail between Worcester and New London, Conn. This delivery has been made for the past few months by a temporary carrier, but a contract to carry the mail will be awarded shortly to the lowest bidder.

The purpose of this mail delivery is to furnish service between Oxford and towns on the route of the old Norwich & Worcester railroad, which is now a division of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad. At the present time only two trains are run each way each day, and the truck delivery makes possible a better mail service between the intermediate towns along the route.

THINKS GRAND LIST ASSESSMENT HERE IS ABOUT 35 PERCENT OF VALUE

Norwich is notorious around the state for high tax rate and low assessment value, said Arthur O. Lamb of Rockville, a representative of the Manufacturers' Appraisal company, when he addressed the meeting of the Merchants Bureau Thursday night at the Wauregan hotel on the subject of Tax Equalization. Mr. Lamb added that he believed property in Norwich today is assessed at about 35 per cent of its value on the average.

Mr. Lamb's talk was given after the supper meeting of the bureau, which had an attendance of 25, with President Abner Schwartz presiding.

President Schwartz introduced Mr. Lamb, who said that the laws of the state relating to taxation are many and varied and often conflicting so that it is no wonder that the assessors are in trouble trying to please everybody. The company which he represents has had experience in appraising 75 cities, he said, and its method is to ask for a local committee of men who know land values through whom they reach a basic front foot value. The standard depth for lots is 100 feet and a depth curve is applied to reach values with depreciation allowances for holes in the ground and high elevations.

Every building in town is measured, he said, and a price is put on them at the sound value for today with deductions for age and condition. The attempt is made to get at a figure that is 80 per cent of the full value. Giving Putnam as an instance of what is accomplished by the method followed by his company, which conducted an appraisal in Putnam last year, he said that they listed 20 houses which had not been on the lists before and they found enough personal property to pay the expenses in the first year.

The company's method gets detailed information on every piece of property, which is all listed on a card and serves for a permanent record. The first need, he said, is maps. They pay for themselves and will disclose extra acreage and lots which had never before appeared.

There is really no argument, Mr. Lamb said, over what the outside man can do in making property assessment in contrast to what the assessors can do. The complete re-assessment is too big a job for the three regular assessors to accomplish along with their routine work, he declared, but if the system is once put in the assessors can carry it on with very little trouble. Mr. Lamb mentioned places in Connecticut where his company had put in its system, including Putnam, East Hartford, Windsor, East Haven, West Haven, New Britain and Rockville.

In 1916, he said, the grand list of the state was one billion one hundred million. Last year the grand list was two billion three hundred forty million and the grand levy sixty-five million. In the period named the grand list had doubled and the grand levy had increased 400 per cent. The school bills in the towns have increased 300 per cent, and the extravagance of school boards is the big increasing item of expense in the towns.

Five years ago he said he checked up Norwich and found property here was assessed on an average of 39.3 per cent of its value, varying from 18.2 per cent to 67 per cent. At present he believes it is about 35 per cent of value.

He advised his hearers to look upon the assessors' office as the source of the town's income and after a system for equalizing the assessments is installed to "watch your budget."

He declared that equalization of taxation is so important that it should be done by every city in the state.

Question Period.

After Mr. Lamb closed his talk, members were invited to ask him questions upon points upon which they desired information.

In response to the question whether income from property was taken into consideration in determining the assessment figure, his answer was "No."

He was asked what provision is made for tax payers to protest over the valuation placed on their property. His answer was that they could come before the board of relief and his company would provide a representative to sit with the board of relief as an aid in handling protests. In Putnam, he said, they had had only 75 cases of protest, which they considered a rather small number.

Another inquirer wanted to know what power the state of Connecticut had to force a town to make a re-assessment of its taxable property. In reply Mr. Lamb said that the state tax commissioner was a broad-minded, patient man, who, he believed did not want to frighten Norwich or any other town into doing the work. In Bridgeport, however, the method that Tax Commissioner Blodgett had followed had been to secure special legislation for the appointment of a commission of seven members, whose salaries ranged from $$4,500 to $7,000 per year. It was an expensive thing for Bridgeport.

Asked whether his company would assess the value of stock in stores and mill machinery, Mr. Lamb answered that they would do so if it was desired. He said further that the state was not requiring re-assessment every ten years because of obtaining extra revenue through the state tax since the state tax was not based on the size of the grand list.

Belden Withdraws Resignation.

Clark Belden, executive vice-president of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce, has withdrawn his resignation and will remain with that organization, according to announcement Wednesday. Mr. Belden recently resigned in order to engage in magazine work but his resignation did not take effect until later this month and at a meeting of the executive committee on Monday he advised the committee that he intends to remain with the organization.

SETTLEMENT IN SUIT BROUGHT OVER DOG BITE

A settlement having been reached, notice of withdrawal without costs from the docket of the court of common pleas of the $1,000 civil action brought by Miss Anna Eisenman of New London against Mrs. Maude H. Steele of Waterford, was filed Thursday with Clerk Lewis Crandall. The amount of the settlement was not declared and counsel for both parties declined to comment upon it.

Miss Eiseman brought suit against Mrs. Steele, an instructor at Williams Memorial institute, for recovery of $1,000 injuries alleged to have been received by on Aug. 17, 1926, when she was bitten by a German police dog owned by the defendant. The case was heard in the court of common pleas, a jury in March, 1927, returning a judgment of $5 in favor of Miss Eiseman. The judgment was later set aside by Judge Charles B. Waller and a new action was started. It was this latter action that was withdrawn Thursday.

MADE SETTLEMENT IN SUIT AGAINST ALBANO

Settlement in favor of the plaintiff, in the reported amount of $125 was made Thursday afternoon in the $1,000 damage suit brought against Peter Albano, of New London, by Mae Edmunds, who claimed that on the night of Aug. 3, 1927, the defendant attempted to indecently assault her and while resisting him to the best of her ability, he caused her to receive serious wounds in the face, body and limbs.

The case was scheduled to be heard before Judge Christopher L. Avery in the superior court at New London Thursday when Attorney Morris Lubchansky, counsel for the plaintiff, and Attorneys G. C. Morgan and Clayton B. Smith for the defendant agreed upon a settlement.

DEFENDANTS WIN VERDICT IN LOBSTER BOAT SUIT

A verdict for the defendants in the lobster boat case that had been on trial in the common pleas court at New London was rendered Thursday afternoon by the jury after the twelve men had been closeted in the jury room for three and a half hours.

The suit was brought for $1,500 damages by Edgar Derrick of New London, owner and skipper of the lobster boat Maria II against Bradford Lake and Emory Rogers, owners of the Georgiana. The two boats collided in New London harbor on the night of boat race day last June. The defendants set up a counter claim of $200, but later withdrew it. Derrick was represented by Attorneys Perry J. Hollandersky and Foster K. Sistare, while the two defendants had Attorneys G. C. Morgan and Samuel Gruskin for counsel.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Omer T. Mandler which was followed by a nuptial high mass sung by Rev. Fr. Mandler. Mrs. Aglae Sarazin of Jewett City, cousin of the groom, sang the Ave Maria at the offertory. The bride was very charming, gowned in white georgette trimmed in rhinestones. Her bridal veil of tulle was caught up in coronet fashion. She carried white roses and carnations and a shower of lillies of the valley. She was attended by the groom's niece, Miss Louise Maynard. She wore orchid georgette with Venetian lace and wore a corresponding hat. She carried pink roses and carnations. The best man was Charles Lamoureux, cousin of the bride. COMPULSORY ARBITRATION PROCLAIMED KEY TO PEACE

Decision Arrived at by a Major Committee of the Pan-American Conference—Has the Endorsement of the United States—Recommendation to Be Made For Call of an "Arbitration Conciliation Conference" in Washington Within the Next Year to Draw Up a Collective Pan-American Arbitration Convention.

HAVANA, Feb. 17—(AP)—With the endorsement of the United States, compulsory arbitration was proclaimed today by a major committee of the Pan-American conference to be the key to the maintenance of peace in the western hemisphere, and as providing a logical means for the settlement of international disputes.

After a three hour session today the sub-committee of the committee on public international law agreed unanimously upon the report which calls for an "arbitration conciliation conference" in Washington within the next year to draw up a colective Pan-American arbitration convention.

According to the report the specific duty of the Washington conference would be to discuss the minimum exceptions to compulsory arbitration to which al countries would be expected eventually to agree for the purpose of excluding from such procedure questions involving their independence, sovereignty, domestic affairs, and problems affecting third parties not signatories to the convention.

Action in this matter served to a large extent to detract attention from the actions of Dr. Honorio Pueyrredon, until yesterday head of the Argentine delegation, and who, until then one of the burliest persons about the conference was today apparently practically idle. Dr. Pueyrredon was reported to be enjoying a much needed rest at the suburban hotel Almendares and completing the arrangements to leave Havana for Washington Wednesday.

While he refused to discuss his immediate plans with interviewers it was understood he intends leaving Washington for Buenos Aires with the least possible delay. He would make no comment as to the probable action of the Buenos Aires government on his resignation beyond pointing out that he had insisted his resignation be accepted. Just whom the Argentine republic might place in his stead as ambassador at Washington or what course he planed to follow when once back at Buenos Aires were subjects he refused even to touch upon.

There was from him, however, a reiteration of his stand on the Pan-American convention, a further statement that is light was directed against conference at Havana.

nation but against principles and for other principles upon which he said, the issue of Pan-Americanism has its very foundation.

Laurentino Olascoaga was in charge of the Argentine delegation today.

In taking its action today with regard to a committee on compulsory international arbitration the committee took cognizance of past failures of such meetings of experts where delegates had not the authority to sign the convention but merely drew up a draft which was later submitted either to the Pan-American congress or the individual governments. In many of these cases there has never since been a definite action by the nations eligible to become signatory to such treaties.

The sub-committee today ordered specifically that delegates to the forthcoming Washington conference shall be jurists with plenipotentiary powers, authorized to sign whatever convention the conference may evolve.

The announcement of the sub-committee's action—which is sure to be ratified by the plenary session of the conference—produced the best impression in all conference circles.

The first article of the sub-committee report is a flat unconditional statement that the American republics consider compulsory arbitration as the best means for pacific settlement of international disputes. Such unqualified endorsement of a bare principle, even if, as is the case, it is modified in the second article providing for the conference to discuss exceptions, is considered here as the greatest and most important modification of the established policies of Chile and the United States, nations regarded by the delegates as the traditional champions of conditional optional arbitration.

ARGENTINA ACCEPTS THE PUEYRREDON'S RESIGNATION

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 17—(AP)—The Argentine government has accepted the resignation of Honorio Pueyrredon as ambassador at Washington and also as president of the Argentine delegation to the Pan-American conference at Havana.

SUSPENDED RECTOR SUES BISHOP BREWSTER FOR $100,000

BANGOR, Me., Feb. 17—(AP)—Rev. George S. Robinson, of Winn, suspended rector of Trinity church, Lewiston, brought suit for $100,000 in the supreme judicial court of Penobscot county here today against the Rt. Rev. Benjamin Brewster, Episcopal bishop of Maine. The plaintiff seeks damages, alleging slander and libel.

The suit is the outcome of an alleged attempt of Bishop Brewster to dispossess Archdeacon Robinson from the church property at Winn and to prevent him from conducting services in the Mission church there and at Kingman, Sherman and Macwahoc. A suit of forcible entry and detainer was brought in the Bangor municipal court and this action, it is understood, was to go to the law court by agreement of counsel.

The statements to which Mr. Robinson takes exception were alleged to have been made in the Bangor municipal court during the hearing on the writ of entry, and in letters sent by the bishop to members of the parishes at Kingman and Sherman advising them of his action in forbidding the archdeacon to hold services in the Mission churches in those towns.

The suit is returnable at the April term of superior court to be held in Bangor.

AMERICAN OIL TANKER SANK AFTER EXPLOSION

TOKYO, Feb. 17—(AP)—Most of the survivors of the American oil tanker Chuky, which exploded and sank while on route from San Pedro, California, to Yokohama, are in a serious condition, according to reports from Misaki where the Japanese fishing trawler Matsuch landed 21 members of the crew today.

According to the bare reports of the accident obtainable now the tanker exploded and sank Wednesday morning approximately a hundred miles southeast of Cape Noshima. Captain C. Hermes and fifteen of the crew were killed outright in the explosion, it was said, remaining members of the crew having themselves by clinging to driftwood until picked up by the trawler Thursday morning.

VEITSCH ELIMINATED FROM CONTEMPT CASE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17—(AP)—The number of respondents in the criminal contempt proceedings growing out of the shadowing of the Fall-Sinclair oil conspiracy jury by Burns detectives was reduced to four today when Justice Siddons dismissed the charges against C. L. Veitsch of Baltimore.

Veitsch, manager of the Baltimore office of the Burns Detective agency, brought $1,500 here to pay the surveillance squad which was employed by Harry F. Sinclair, but knew nothing of the shadowing, government testimony developed. Justice Frederick L. Siddons, ruled that Veitsch's guilt had not been established beyond a reasonable doubt.

CONFESSED STABBING WOMEN IN HARTFORD

HARTFORD, Feb. 17—(AP)—Lieutenant James Bray and Lieutenant George Washburn, of the Bridgeport police came here late today to aid Hartford police in their investigation of Lorenzo Desmarais, 17 years old, who this afternoon confessed to stabbing three women in this city. The Bridgeport police said, after viewing the prisoner that they did not believe he is the man sought in Bridgeport for three years and known there as the "phantom stabber."

Desmarais said he had spent only one night in Bridgeport. Police are dissatisfied with his story, however, since he has given several conflicting explanations. He said this afternoon that he had lived with the Bridgeport stabber and later retracted this statement.

The prisoner was arrested late last night after he had frightened two women in the southwestern section of the city, the vicinity he had been operating in since December.

38 MEN CLINGING TO GROUNDED FREIGHTER

YMUIDEN, Holland, Feb. 17—(AP)—Thirty-eight men comprising the crew of the British freighter Shonga are clinging to the fore part of the vessel which is firmly imbedded in the sand bank half a mile from shore. The Shonga, bound for Hamburg, went aground this morning and broke in two.

That part of the vessel on which the men sought safety appears to be held tight, and all efforts of tugs and life boats, with rocket apparatus, to make contact with the wreck have failed owing to the violence of the sea. Notwithstanding this the men are not believed to be in imminent danger.

The after part of the vessel is gradually working out to sea and is almost completely submerged. Portions of wreckage are being washed ashore together with some of the Shonga's cargo of cocoa beans.

The justice directed the jury to return a verdict of $78,500 in favor of receivers of the Brody and Funt, Inc., of Norwalk plaintiffs in the action against the Norwich Union Fire Insurance company and 14 other companies, which had charged fraud in the claim for the furs, lost in a fire in the Leipzig Fur Dressing company plant in 1924.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 17—(AP)—Peggy Burns, 21-year-old magazine cover artists' model, is an heiress to more than a half million dollars but she said today her new-found wealth would not turn her head.

She is to receive $175,000 in interest on the estate at once, a monthly income of $500 for the next [illegible] years and a lump sum of $500,000 when she becomes 31 years of age. She knew her grandfather had made her the main beneficiary in his will, she said, but she thought the legacy "wouldn't be more than several thousand dollars."

When asked whether she intended giving up her work as a model, she said, "I plan to continue it but not as a steady diet—of course."

Her parents live at Washington, Pa., and her father, J. A. Burns, is general manager of the Pittsburgh Coal company mines. The heiress says she intends to take a "modest" apartment in New York.

Lev[illegible]han Grounded and Was Refloated

Was Entering Southampton Waters on First Trip Under Commander Cunningham.

SOUTHAMPTON, England, Feb. 17—(AP)—Commodore Harold A. Cunningham piloted the United States liner Leviathan safely through many a mine field and submarine zone during the World war, when he was navigating officer of the big ship, but tonight, on his first trip into this port as master, he got stuck on a sand bank.

Although the vessel was in the hands of a Trinity House pilot at the time, Commodore Cunningham was in such a state of mind when visited by the newspapermen that he pulled his cap down over his eyes hurricane fashion and refused to discuss the mishap.

The soft bar, known as Brambles, held the ship firm enough to give three tugs several hours' work, without success, until the flood tide lifted her off. When the Leviathan docked four hours later, a cursory inspection of her hull failed to reveal any damage.

R. O. Olivier, a Boston business man, told the Associated Press correspondent that there was no excitement among the passengers.

"We were aground about three hours," he said. "We were coming in at half speed, when the vessel seemed to touch the edge of a mud bank. It was so gentle that no one felt the least jar, and it was some time before the majority of the passengers knew what had happened. Three tugs tried to pull us off, but they were unsuccessful until the tide rose."

Other passengers confirmed the absence of shock or excitement.

Eamon De Valera, the Irish republic leader, who was aboard, concurred in the view that the grounding of the Leviathan was a minor accident. Then he went on to speak of his mission in the United States. He said he had no difficulty in raising half a million dollars in America, and, he added, "now I have to raise a similar amount in Ireland, for the idea is that the capital for our new newspaper should be equally divided between the two countries."

Bramble bank, as described by the "channel pilot," is a vast accumulation of sand and gravel nearly blocking up the entrance of Southampton water. A small part near the western end has been heaped into a knoll. The position of the bank is marked by buoys.

QUESTION CONSTITUTIONALITY OF THE SHIPSTEAD BILL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17—(AP)—The constitutional authority of congress to enact legislation restricting the use of injunctions by federal equity courts as proposed in the Shipstead bill was challenged today before the senate judiciary committee when opponents of the measure, aimed at strike injuctions, began presentation of their side of the case.

The form of the attack, delivered by Alfred P. Thom, general counsel of the Association of Railway Executives, came as a surprise to the committee and started an argument that was still in progress when the committee adjourned until tomorrow with Thom still on the stand.

The railroad attorney said he would not touch upon the use of injunctions in labor strikes, since that subject "will be covered by others." He insisted, however, that, as drawn, the bill would deny the federal courts, including the supreme court, the employment of injunctions in more than 30 categories of cases aside from labor matters.

Violent Break in the Stock Market

Quotations Showed a Loss in Market Values of Stocks of Over a Billion Dollars.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17—(AP)—The stock market broke violently today under a deluge of selling orders which so taxed the facilities of the New York stock exchange that the ticker was 30 minutes late in recording the final quotation. The reaction, which was the most drastic since the one which followed President Coolidge's now famous "I do not choose to run" statement last August, carried quoted values of scores of leading issues down $2 to $5 a share while a few high priced pool specialties collapsed $10 to nearly $20.

The day's sales ran close ot 3,000,000 shares, with nearly half of the day's business transacted in the last hour of trading. There were 748 individual issues traded in, a new high record for all time.

While there was nothing tangible with which the day's selling could be directly associated, speculative uneasiness over the large volume of brokers' loans, which are well above one billion dollars above the total a year ago, and the recent increase in unemployment were widely mentioned as bearish factors. Wall street merely regarded it as a "technical reaction" and further evidence of the old adage that "trees do not grow to heaven".

The break in prices represented a loss in market values of well over a billion dollars. Nearly $60,000,000 loss was sustained by two of the leading issues, the common stocks of United States Steel and General Motors corporation, which dropped back $3.12 1-2 and $2.12 1-2 a share respectively.

Some of the stocks recently most active on a rising scale were the hardest hit. Midland Steel Products preferred was pounded down $13.75 a share to $211 or $104 under the record high price established last December. Greene Cananea Copper plunged $16.50 to $116, against a record high price of $164.50 last month.

Net declines of $5 a share or more were numerous, including such prominent stock as Adams Express, Chlumet & Arizona, Dupont, Gold Dust, Montana Power, Montgomery Ward, Transue & Williams, U. S. Industrial Alcohol and Warren Brothers.

Brokers' wires between New York and Florida, where many prominent market operators are wintering, were kept hot by the transmission of heavy selling orders. One brokerage house reported that it had received, over one wire, orders to sell mor than 50,000 shares of various stocks.

STRANDED TANK STEAMER IS REGARDED AS A "HOODOO"

LIVERPOOL, England, Feb. 17—(AP)—The British tank steamer Varand, pursued by what the crew called "A Friday, Hoodoo," is aground at the mouth of the Mersey tonight. She is in danger of breaking up and sending her 8,000 tons of benzine to menace Liverpool and Liverpool shipping with a fire peril similar to that caused by the Anglo-American tanker Seminole, which grounded on Pluckington in the Mersey on December 13 and later broke her back, releasing her cargo of gasoline.

The captain and crew of the unlucky vessel, numbering 41, were taken off today in a bold rescue by a New Brighton life boat.

PATRIOTIC ORDERS FAVOR WARSHIP CONSTRUCTION

Representatives of the Daughters of American Revolution and the American Legion Approve the Administration's Program—Men Who Fought in the World War Would Have Congress Provide a Program "Which Will Give Us Absolute Parity on the Sea."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17—(AP)—Approval of the administration's warship construction program was urged upon the house naval committee today by representatives of the Daughters of the American Revolution and the American Legion.

Mrs. William Sherman Walker, vice president general of the D. A. R., declared at a hearing that as "wives and mothers and sisters of the men who must go to sea in ships, we want a navy in keeping with the up to date principles as manifest in all business enterprises of our country."

John Thomas Taylor, legislative representative of the Legion, in a letter to members of the naval committee, also urged the building of additional ships declaring that the organization of men who fought in the World war wanted congress to provide a program "which will give us absolute parity on the sea."

In addition, Taylor said, the Legion desires that the construction of the 71 ships proposed in the program "shall start immediately."

The facts before your committee show that these ships are needed," he added. "They should be built, therefore, and built for use on the high seas—and not just to scrap, which was the fate of the 1916 program."

Mrs. Walker said that when the Daughters of the American Revolution spoke on a question like that of the building program it "does so in the spirit of maintaining for America the priceless heritage handed down to us from the founder patriots." She urged the committee not to listen to pacifists declaring that "we regard the army and navy as dependable peace establishments."

During the hearing Representative Britten, republican Illinois, who presided, recalled that Secretary Wilbur in presenting the program to the committee said that it was "a part of the carefully prepared construction and replacement program" developed by the navy general board. Britten contended that, excepting the five proposed aircraft carriers, the new ships were designed to replace old ones.

PASTORAL LETTER BY BISHOP W. A. HICKEY

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Feb. 17—(AP)—The Providence Visitor, official organ of the Roman Catholic diocese of Providence, tonight carries a pastoral letter by Rt. Rev. William A. Hickey, bishop of the diocese, announcing "one last effort to reclaim those who are leading or are being led into almost irremediable error in their rebellious attitude" and condemning as "enemies of the church" those who have opposed payment of "seat money" and otherwise challenged the authority of the head of the diocese.

The pastoral letter is accompanied by a letter to Bishop Hickey, from Archbishop Fumansoni-Biondi, apostolic delegate at Washington, which condemns "the lack of good faith and the contumacy of these recalcitrants" and predicts that the ecclesiastical superiors of priests from outside the diocese who have engaged in the controversy "will promptly see to it that their deplorable activities cease."

SECOND MISHAP MARS WINTER TEST FLIGHT

LEVERING, Mich., Feb. 17—(AP)—The second mishap that has marred the winter test flight of the army first pursuit group of Selfridge field fliers in northern Michigan, caused serious injury today of Lieut. Hoyt L. Prindle, pilot, when his plane crashed in an attempt to take off from a snow-covered field on a farm near here. Prindle suffered several fractured ribs and internal injuries.

The accident occurred as the group of 12 planes under command of Major Thomas G. Lanphier were taking off for Traverse City and Manistee. They had been forced down last night by a blinding snow storm, and one of two Douglas transport planes making the trip was badly damaged in landing on ice.

Six planes had successfully taken off when Lieutenant Prindle's plane, after rising 15 feet, suddenly went into a side nose dive. Part of the plane had to be cut away to free the pilot.

THEFT OF FOX TERRIER VAULED AT ABOUT $2,500

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(AP)—A wire-haired fox terrior said to be valued at about $2,500, was stolen from his bench in the basement of the Madison Square Garden Wednesday night just before the close of the Westminister Kennel club's annual show. The theft was not disclosed until today.

The manner in which the dog, Warily Gang Leader, was spirited out of the garden remains a mystery as every entrance was guarded and no one allowed to leave with a dog without complete identification countersigned by the superintendent. At the time of the theft the owner, Reginald M. Lewis, of Ridgefield, Conn., was on the main floor showing Talavera Margaret, kennel-mate of the missing dog, and who was awarded the title "best dog in the show."

FASHIONABLE CLUB RAIDED BY DRY AGENTS

NEW YORK, Feb. 17—(AP)—So quietly that the guests hardly knew a raid was in progress, dry agents early today raided the fashionable Jungle club in the theatre district. Business was not interrupted.

Three couples in evening dress arrived at the club shortly after midnight and after being served signalled the 15 dry agents outside, who arrested three waiters and seized three bottles of liquid. The patrons, most of them in evening dress, were not molested.

This morning's raid, although by the same agents, was in contrast to that made on the club Helen Morgan last month when the rooms were dismantled and their furnishings carted to a warehouse.

SAYS CRIMINALS MAY BE REBUILT INTO GOOD CITIZENS

CHICAGO, Feb. 17—(AP)—Criminals are made, not born, and can be rebuilt into normal good citizens under expert handling, Dr. George A. Dorsey, psychologist and author, tonight informed the school for parents at the midwest conference on character development.

Taking the raw material, a child of six, it is just as easy to fashion a man of high leadership as it is to produce a worthless clod, Mr. Dorsey said. "The baby is born all right, his inheritance is good, for there is no such thing as a born criminal. The child enters the world with a blank mind and upon its environment depends the way that it will grow."

The training of the child should be begun before the age of six, the psychologist said, but a lad of 15, haled into police court, can still be retrained into a normal citizen by surrounding him with a new and different favorable environment. Dr. Dorsey scored the government for using prison and reformatory superintendents with political pull when they should be trained scientists.

He told the parents that ordinary human beings only use one-ninth of their brain power, the dormant remainder never trained for service.

RAPID LIQUIDATION OF PUBLIC DEBT OPPOSED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Rapid liquidation of the public debt was opposed in the house today by Representative Garner, Texas, ranking democrat on the ways and means committee, on the ground that foreign countries would insist on cancellation of their debts to the United States as soon as the American debt had been wiped out.

The Texan predicted that in such event propagandists would charge the government with using foreign money to defray its expenses, adding that no such charge can be made so long as the public debt stands. His argument preceded passage of the Burton bill for funding the $62,850,000 debt which Jugoslavia yet owes the government.

Garner did not oppose the bill, which now goes to the senate, but said he could not approve the principle behind foreign debt settlements that has been defined as "the capacity of debtor nations to pay." He argued that the government had no "moral or legal" right to lend "the taxpayer's money" to foreign countries after the signing of the armistice, and that every cent of such loans should be repaid.

POISONED WELL AND FLOUR CAUSE OF EIGHT DEATHS

LOUISVILLE, Ga., Feb. 17—(AP)—A poisoned well and flour bin, which a coroner's jury said brought death to Mrs. Rose Kelly and illness to eight members of her family, have been charged to a neighbor woman and her daughter.

Mrs. Liza Ann Davis, 25, and her mother, Mrs. Ida May Williford, 55, were arrested yesterday, charged with murder. Officers declared the arrests followed the finding of footprints that led from the Kelly home to the house where the accused woman resided, a grange, near this town.

When a jury pronounced Mrs. Kelly's death due to poisoning, an investigation was started which officers said resulted in discovery of poison in the Kelly flour bin and well.

A motive was suggested in the statement that Tom Kelly, the dead woman's husband, recently furnished information in a robbery for which the husband of Mrs. Davis is sought.

Some of the rescues approached the thrilling, early arrivals on the scene, including firemen, policemen and spectators, carrying into the open those affected by smoke and gas.

Newton of the Merchants association of the chamber of commerce has appointed the following committee to arrange for the first annual springtime opening and window display contest: James B. Fullerton, Joseph M. Berard, Harry Cohen, Harry W. Standish, A. Linn Weatherhead, Nelson A. Daniels, and Executive Secretary Earl J. Arnold of the chamber of commerce. A meeting will be held Monday to further the plans. Tentative plans call for a special edition of the newspaper when the merchants will make announcements of much interest to the shopping district of the Willimantic trading area.

It is indicated that much of the mail out of this city will in the future bear a striking envelope paster that has been received at the chamber of commerce from the Elton hotel, Waterbury. Secretary Arnold has sent for a second supply of the pasters for general distribution.

Tax Commissioner William H. Blodgett talked on the Tax Problems of Windham at the monthly meeting of the Congregational church Brotherhood held in the church house Thursday night. Commissioner Blodgett made interesting comparisons of the federal and state tax problem and later dwelt on figures relating to Windham. He forestalled any hope of tax reductions inasmuch as there was the necessity of new and costly improvements in addition to upkeep costs. To a question on how the town might conduct a revaluation of taxable property, Commissioner Blodgett pointed out three: First, by the general method of assessors in "giving a guess" at the value or accepting the phrase of most property owners, "put me down the same as last year; second, a revaluation by a single man commission and thirdly a revaluation by a group of experts engaged in that work. The meeting was in charge of President Stanley J. Sumner. Supper was served by the women of the parish. The guests included Earl J. Arnold, new executive secretary of the chamber of commerce and John H. Wilcox, member of the board of relief. Justice George E. Hinman introduced the speaker.

Father Papillon. The bearers were Ernest Asselin, Arthur Robitaille, Ferdinand Bernier, Edmond Theroux, William Bengle and Clement Lussier.

Secretary Arnold of the chamber of commerce has received a letter which he interprets as being indicative of the impression made by this vicinity on those who are seeking attractive and peaceful surrounds. The letter is from a prominent physician now a resident of Paris, who writes that he desires to locate in a suitable environment near Willimantic. He proposes to return to the United States next spring to establish his home. The information has been passed on to the real estate members of the chamber.

FARM HAND COMMITS SUICIDE WITH KNIFE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 17.—Constantine Naumec, 41, a farmhand employed on the Vogel farm in Hop River village, committed suicide at eight o'clock this morning by slashing his throat open with a newly sharpened table knife and then plunging the blade into his abdomen and again in the left side of his body near the heart. Displaying a stoicism borne of a desperate or partly demented mind, the man then walked out of the kitchen where he had committed the act and went to a nearby field where he fell beneath a tree. He died about two hours after the stabbing. Medical Examiner Dr. William L. Higgins of South Coventry was summoned and he pronounced death due to self-destruction, apparently during a fit of temporary insanity. Mrs. Vogel attempted to stop the man from inflicting further wounds on himself after he had slashed his throat but he threatened her with the knife and while she looked on in horror he sank the blade into his body after tearing away part of his clothing to bare the skin. Naumec is but little known. He has worked on farms in Columbia and other towns. Mrs. Vogel purchased the farm about two weeks ago, having come from New York city. She hired Naumec to work for her. There was nothing disrupted in the farm routine this morning. Naumec went out to do his early morning chores and as usual he returned to the house apparently to partake of the breakfast that had been prepared by Mrs. Vogel. The woman had occasion to enter another room. When she returned she found Naumec bleeding profusely from a cut on the throat and he was tearing at his clothing. He left a trail of blood as he staggered from the house to the field. Deputy Sheriff Harvey S. Collins was called and the medical examiner was summoned. Dr. Higgins arrived as the man died. The deceased has one brother, Mike Naumec, also of Hop River, and another brother, John Naumec residing in South Amboy, N. J. He was unmarried.

JEWETT CITY

ANOTHER FIRE TRUCK POSSIBLE FOR THE BOROUGH

(Special to the Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Feb. 17—Following an interview today with Warden E. J. Yoccis, it seems probable that the board of borough government may consider the purchase of another fire truck. After a bad fire several years ago, there was activity in relation to the purchase of a pumper. Chief H. L. Stanton of Norwich came to Jewett City and addressed a joint meeting of the firemen and citizens at the hose house parlors.

At this time E. A. Faust, speaking for the Aspinook Co., said that his firm would give $1,000 in the event that the purchase was made.

The plans formulated at that time failed to materialize, mainly because of personal oppositions. The present truck cannot carry enough hose to make a showing in the handling of a bad fire, which was proven Sunday morning in the three lines made necessary to the fire house for more hose. Then again, the present truck has spells of being balky in starting, which taken together with its having too little power for hill climbing, makes a serious combination which will sometime cost the borough heavy losses.

Francis Campbell will sell household goods and plants. Call and get good values. Low prices.—adv.

Wednesday evening a shower was given Miss Ruth Campbell at the home of Mrs. A. H. Wilcox in Glasgo. Miss Campbell is a member of the Glasgo Finishing company's office force and is soon to become the bride of Napoleon Bianchetta. The elaborate decorations of fancy crepe paper were in blue and white.

In the center of the ceiling was suspended a paper bell, with long streamers, which were held by the thirty-four guests seated about the parlor. Beneath the bell was a large basket of gifts of china and linen. As Miss Campbell knelt to unpack her treasures the streamers were pulled, whereupon a great shower of confetti was liberated and fell like a miniature colored snowstorm.

Refreshments and games went to make up a pleasant evening. Mrs. Wilcox served, assisted by Mrs. Ruth Clark, Miss Evelyn Clark, Miss Elsie Clark and Miss Josephine Russenas.

John Malek, owner of the block badly damaged by last Sunday's fire, has made settlement with the insurance companies. The Economy Grocery, which occupied the center store has decided to discontinue business in the borough. All day their trucks have been hauling away goods which were not disposed of at the fire sale. Farrell's restaurant is to reopen, La Claire haberdashery will also resume business. Mr. Malek said Friday that he may consider the raising of the block one or two stories, with the fitting up of modern residential apartments. The housing problem is great here, and there are always people looking for a tenement to live in.

The Ladies' society of the Congregational church spent a busy and profitable day in the vestry, recasting chairs under the direction of Miss Stratton of the farm home bureau. Several members of that organization here were present also. At noon, escalloped potato and macaroni, jelly, pickle relish, biscuits, cake and coffee were served by Mrs. E. L. French, Mrs. W. H. Wolfe were appointed a committee to arrange for an entertainment. As a very pleasant feature of the meeting Mrs. E. A. Faust in behalf of the society, told Mrs. F. E. Robinson how much her faithfulness to the welfare of the church was appreciated and presented her a half dozen silver spoons, suitably inscribed. Mrs. Robinson is retiring from the secretaryship after serving fifteen years. Mrs. McNicol was appointed to confer with the pastor in regard to the wayside sermon board. It has been impossible to keep a glass in it, as passing school children deliberately break the glass by throwing stones at it. Mrs. W. A. Richardson was the hostess who made the arrangements for the meeting.

Rev. Harold L. Arnold of Franklin is to preach as a candidate at Pachaug church Sunday.

Pachaug Grange has arranged with the Mystic Dramatic club to present the Mock trial scene in Grange hall.

Strange things happen as the result of a calamity, oftentimes. The saying "some good comes out of every trouble" was proved as one result of Sunday morning's fire in the Malek building. A person who went through the burned rooms Sunday afternoon found in the hall door a Water library book. Everything else was turned to a cinder, but this book was not harmed. Returning the book to the librarian, who had sent several notifications to the person who took out the book, she looked up the date when it left the library. It was July 1924—nearly four years ago! The book was one of a set of two volumes, now out-of-print, and could never have been replaced. All the efforts of the librarian were unavailing, but the fire did it. New she someone figure what the bill would be at two cents a day, omitting holidays and Sundays.

Sunday evening at the Congregational church Mr. Mr. Stanley A. Wilder, who is a missionary in Africa, spoke on Rhodesia, South Africa. Mr. Wilder was a missionary in Africa for twenty years and many of the books were photographed by himself. The talk and the pictures are shown to be said to be very interesting.

SOCONY MEN FEAST ON STEAK AT G. L. POINT

The Standard Oil Co. force had an outing at Groton Long Point at cottage Night Out, coming in trucks. It was a steak supper with all the trimmings. Cook Ira Rathbun who is rated one of the best cooks at the plant and had many days experience at the Hotel Taft in New Haven, did the cooking for the gang. Thirty were in the party. The cottage was dressed up with oil cans and lanterns shining among the red crepe paper. A short program was put on. Everett Hitchcock had a new saxophone and he wanted to show how good he could play so he gave a solo, "The Sidewalks of New York." Smokey Joe Walsh who is a fire fighter, was at Fall River, Mass., and helped put out the big fire and was telling his experience about it and declared it was some hot. He was fighting the fire on the bank and other buildings. The oil can trio, Bill Barry, tenor, H. Taylor, bass and Chris Barry, baritone, sang "I Picked Her Up Because he Threw Me down." A sweet potato whistler solo was given by Elbert Rathbun. A prize was awarded the one who could tell the best lie; Huck Taylor got first try at it. He told of an apple raised at his truck farm in Maine which was as big as a trim pumpkin and it made 2 barrels of cider. Next was O. Foote who was a deep blue fisherman on the good ship Mollie out after sword fish which were as thick as flies on a cow's back. He saw Mate Bradley with a knife in his teeth jump on a swordfish's back, going at top speed. Mr. Fish was in danger, for the mate got the fish O. K. by putting the knife several times in its back until the fish was killed. No more lies were told for Foote got a handsome belt for the prize. Then the A. & P. steaks were put on the table and everybody enjoyed a good Groton Long Point supper. Earl Chapman did the Harvard hop, as Eddie Buvas was at the piano. At the close of the outing everybody sang, If You Want a Good Time, Spend It With the Oil Can Gang of Socony.

The one who guessed what a mystery box held was to receive a hand-painted picture of the Old Hand Engine of 1771. After everyone had a guess, Alden Brecky said a jar of red beans, one orange and a raccoon hat. He had all but one right, it was the orange. He received the prize. Dancing to music by Camarey's Noisy Five followed.

Three Legionnaires of the village went to Mystic on Friday evening and were guests of the grange. The Noank song bird, George White, sang several selections, with Mrs. G. Carpenter at the piano. ANOTHER UNSOLICITED TRIBUTE FOR ALL-BRAN

Good news for sufferers from constipation

Mrs. Kiell sat down and wrote us a letter when she had proved ALL-BRAN a safe "sure-cure" for constipation. Read her voluntary tribute:

April 4, 1927

"I have been using Kellogg's ALL-BRAN for quite some time and I want to tell you how much I appreciate it. I have found it a sure-cure for constipation, and know it is a remarkable regulator for the stomach. After using it, my family and I certainly will not be without it. I have even sent so far as to send some of it to my mother in Poland, Europe."

Gratefully yours,
Mrs. Anna Kiell,
77 Wolcott Terrace, Newark, N. J.

Perhaps you know what a terrible affliction constipation is. Blighting wherever it thrives. Ruining health. Marring beauty. Causing headaches, back pains, foul breath, loss of sleep—indeed, leading to more than forty serious diseases.

But did you know it can be easily relieved by a pleasant cereal food? Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to bring relief. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal. Serve with milk or cream—fruits or honey added. Use in cooking. At grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

DANIELSON

DANIELSON MAN GIVEN JAIL SENTENCE FOR NON-SUPPORT

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Feb. 17—A rather sordid picture of youthful married home life was unveiled in the town court this morning when Matthew Farrell was presented before Judge W. Fenner Woodward to answer to a non-support charge. Farrell was sent to jail for 60 days.

Farrell has done no work since about the first fo the year. Meanwhile his wife continued to work until she became ill. Their home without wood or coal, debts staring them in the face, they finally separated, she going to the home of her parents in a village of the town, he going to make his home with relatives. Among other things that the hearing developed was the fact that only recently Mrs. Farrell sought out Farrell, bought him a supply of food and gave him $2. Having heard all there was to be said about the case, Judge Woodward ordered Farrell to jail, the effect of the sentence being to impress one that Farrell has not tried as hard as he might to provide for his family. The couple have two children.

At the February meeting of Sarah Williams Danielson chapter, D. A. R., held at St. Alban's parish house yesterday afternoon delegates and alternates were elected to attend the 37th continental congress to be held in Washington, April 16-21, and also to attend the 35th annual state conference to be held at Derby, March 20-21. The delegates are Mrs. Lena C. Tripp, regent, Miss Marion D. Chollar, Mrs. Harriet L. Paine, Mrs. Nellie M. Cundall, Miss Bernice Cogswell, Mrs. Ethel G. Ingalls, Mrs. Harriet L. Kingsbury, Mrs. Ida F. Blanchard, Mrs. Minnie M. Milligan; alternates, Miss Mary J. Mendell, vice regent, Mrs. Mary E. Kenyon, Mrs. Mary H. Taynton, Mrs. Arlene C. Hosmer, Mrs. Ina Keech, Mrs. Deborah Atwood, Mrs. Cora B. Bill, Mrs. Lelia S. Spencer.

The meeting voted to send donations to Maryville (Tenn.) college and to the American International college at Springfield, Mass. It was also voted to purchase five more lineage books.

Featuring the meeting was a patriotic program given by children of the D. A. R. in the interim between Lincoln's and Washington's birthdays. The children were in costume. They gave readings and presented charades and proved themselves capable and interesting entertainers. Those participating were: Charlotte Bacon, Russell Chapin, June Cogswell, Ruth Clarke, Philip Clarke (representing Abraham Lincoln), Meron Clarke, Thomas Day, Marshall Dowe, George Ingalls (representing George Washington), James Ingalls, Ralph Ingalls, Ellen Ingalls, Ruth Johnson, Lita Keach, Mildred Keach (representing the Goddess of Liberty), Sidney Marland, Robert Marland, Richard Marland, Alice Olsson, Geneva Olsson, Doro Olsson, Mary Pike, Pauline Russell, Charles Russell.

Refreshments were served.

The hostesses of the afternoon were Miss Helen Perkins, chairman, Mrs. Mildred Olsson, Mrs. C. W. Atwood, Mrs. Sidney P. Marland, Miss Carrie Chamberlin, Mrs. W. K. Pike and Mrs. S. S. Russell.

This afternoon following prayer service at the home at 1.30, the funeral services for Miss Charlotte H. Palmer were conducted at Trinity church in Brooklyn by Rev. Leonard R. Richards, rector of St. Alban's. Many attended the service at which the choir sang, Miss Helen Witter being the organist. The ushers were Francis E. Storer, cashier of the Windham County National bank, and J. Dyer Potter, treasurer of the Cargill Trust company of Putnam and a former resident of Brooklyn. Burial was in the South cemetery. The bearers were Judge Oscar F. Atwood, Treasurer Sidney W. Bard of the Brooklyn Savings bank, Charles H. Blake, Frederick Miller Willis Kenyon and E. M. M. Marlor. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Newly installed officers of Highland grange of South Killingly are: Master, Louis S. Barstow, who also is master of Quinebaug Pomona grange; overseer, Mrs. Raymond Tilton; secretary, Mrs. Grace Barstow; treasurer, B. E. Terwilliger; lecturer, Miss Mildred Davis Steward, Aaron Vial; chaplain, Aden A. Tillinghast; assistant steward, M. D. Whittaker; lady assistant steward, Miss Mildred Kenney; Ceres, Miss Louise Terwilliger; Pomona, Miss Margaret Terwilliger; Flora, Miss Lillie M. Young. Fred J. Kennedy, gatekeeper of the Rhode Island State grange was the installing officer.

A general revaluation of the property of the town of Killingly being among the things that must be done, to comply with the requirements of the state, and which will be done here prior to 1930, finds the town's people divided as to whether the revaluation shall be done by local people or by professional appraisers. One hears much as to this and there are many pros and cons on both sides of the question. A suggestion heard today was for what someone has termed a mixed board of appraisers, if they may be called that instead of assessors, this board to have some professional talent upon it and also some local citizens whose judgment of property values are sound and who know the whys and wherefores of avoiding appraisals that would be injurious to the town industrially.

Relative to the nearly ''000 flood damage of which mention was made in this column as having occurred in the town of Killingly in the early days of last November, there was some talk today, and it had chiefly to do with considering such an item of expense as more or less routine. This conclusion was arrived at by harking back to years when Killingly has paid as high as $6,000 or $8,000 a year, upon occasion for opening highways blocked by unusually heavy and severe snowstorms. Nature, to date this winter, apparently has set out to compensate the town for its loss in repairing the flood damage. Not a dollar of expense has been incurred for snow removal this winter, and the first of March is not so far away. It may be too early even now to figure that the balance sheets of the town will be no more seriously affected by the flood than they have at times by snowstorms.

Spanish war veterans resident often make mention these February days of thinking back over a period of 30 years to the late winter days of 1898 and the spring that followed for that year brought to many of them their big experiences of a life time—a going away to war. The majority of the veterans of that war still resident here went out as members of Company F of the Third Connecticut infantry. Youth was their's then—and it all was a great adventure. It so happens that at least two of that patriotic band lived to see action—heavy action—in a much greater conflict, the World war. The men referred to are Charles C. Rapp and Carl Anderson, both overseas veterans who were in France in 1917 and 1918. Mr. Anderson also has the added distinction of enlisting and going to the Mexican broder for service some time prior to the entry of the United States into the World war.

O'NEIL IS SENTENCED TO 30 DAYS IN JAIL

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Feb. 17—George O'Nell of Plainfield, having pleaded guilty to fraud and unlawful appropriation of property, was sentenced to serve 30 days in jail at Brooklyn this afternoon at a session of the town court, Judge W. Fenner Woodward presiding. O'Nell was represented by Attorney Irving H. Mitron as counsel.

Some 13 months ago Elton Nolan of this town entrusted to O'Nell an automobile to be sold for Mr. Nolan's account, O'Nell having been an automobile dealer. O'Nell disappeared with the car and is presumed to have disposed of it, for it never has been recovered. Arrested in Providence some weeks ago, O'Nell has since been held in jail at Brooklyn awaiting trial, in default of bonds. His sentence in jail is comparatively mild by reason of the fact that he has made restitution. On Saturday O'Nell is scheduled to appear in the town court of Plainfield to answer another charge having to do with his alleged operations in that town.

Louis Kohler, who is employed by W. J. Craig, remains confined to his home as the result of injuries he received in a fall some time ago.

Marking the beginning of the penitential season, there are to be services at St. Alban's church Ash Wednesday

Miss Annie Hutchins will have the members of the Fortnightly club at her home for a meeting next Tuesday.

The first official rally of Troop I, Boy Scouts, was held this evening at their hall, the boys appearing for the gathering in their uniforms.

It is announced that the Junior play recently given at the high school netted 4115 to be added to the Athletic field fund.

Buds have appeared on maple trees in Danielson, weeks ahead of time, and from another section of the town come reports of bulbs showing sprouts through the ground.

A reminder is given that all motor vehicle operators' licenses expire at midnight on February 29. Because of the rush to get them during the last few days of the month, man Danielson men are applying for renewals now.

Rev. and Mrs. Richard D. Hatch of Brooklyn have been stayin~ for a time at Daytona, Fla. They have been in the south for weeks.

BUILDING THE NAVY

Just now there seems to be uncertainty as to what is going to be done in regard to the naval bill. As presented to congress, calling for the authorizing of ships which are believed necessary if the navy is to be kept or brought up to the right standards to meet national defense requirements, an expenditure of $740,000,000 would be involved over a period of years.

This means a lot of money, and since the naval programme has been set forth it has been looked upon with opposition from many directions. There has been the feeling that such a spurt in naval construction would overcome all the good that has been done in the past few years since the Washington agreement was signed. The purpose of the bill is to give this country what it needs in the way of new warships, but there is a strong feeling apparently that instead of plunging into a bigger construction more attention should be given to keeping naval strength down in the expectation that the other powers will also agree to such a policy.

This was the hope from the last Geneva conference. Just previous to that, this country held up its naval plans in order to set a good example and lend influence to the efforts about to be undertaken. The Geneva conference did not succeed. It gave little promise that there would be an early agreement in behalf of further limitation and the result is that such delay in naval construction as this country encouraged needs to be overcome if we are to properly look after our interests. That is one reason for such a large programme at this time.

If, however, it is the indicated will of the country that there should not be such an outlay the president has said that he would be satisfied if the building provisions were restricted to cruisers, but that class he regards as weak, and cruisers are of much importance in looking after the many government responsibilities and we need more than we have as long as the other nations are not willing to fix a limitation of their strength in such auxiliaries. The real needs of the navy should not be overlooked whatever the amount it.

FOR WALKERS' PROTECTION

The idea of meeting dangerous highway conditions by building sidewalks along modern roads is not only gaining support but efforts are being made to put it into effect.

There are localities where much use is made of the hard surfaced roads, where the cement highways are used by pedestrians as well as vehicles, and because of this many people afoot have been struck and killed or badly injured. There may have been some responsibility on the part of all, but in view of the too numerous cases there is need for applying some remedy. That has been recognized and in the town of Warwick, R. I., where there is a heavy travel in the road by pedestrians petitions have been presented to the town for the construction of a sidewalk.

Therein unquestionably lies a big measure of protection for the walkers. They have a right to feel that it is quite as right to build a safe and comfortable walk for them as it is to construct expensive roadbeds for motor vehicles. Such walks would keep the pedestrians out of the road and would eliminate such accidents.

How the expense of such construction is to be borne remains to be determined but it was apparently the intention of the petitioners at Warwick that it should fall upon the town. There are of course only certain stretches along the highways where such walks would be needed. That is where many people use them and there would be no thought of putting a sidewalk along every modern road for the benefit of the occasional walker. Each town could therefore look after its own requirements. The benefits would be local and the expense would depend upon the amount of construction that had to be done to provide needed protection.

In lieu of such a provision there would of course be the alternative of having the pedestrians carry lights or wear reflectors for the purpose of warning the vehicle drivers of their presence. Such seems a much wiser course than the method which has been suggested of walking on the left hand side of the road.

OUGHT TO HAVE IT

The residents of the Districts of Columbia are serious in their endeavors to get the right of representation in congress. They are not desirous of taking away the authority which congress has over the national capital but they believe they should be able to participate in the national government. They are conscious of the fact that the hands of congress is tied in this matter, that it cannot grant them the right without a change in the Constitution, so they are seeking a constitutional amendment that will bridge the difficulty.

It is possible for those working in Washington but retaining their residence elsewhere to go home and vote. Many who might make Washington their official home do not do so for that reason. Those who do make Washington their legal residence are without the right to participate in their own national government. This of course leaves them in an unpleasant position and it is by no means surprising that they want to have it changed.

They are in a position less favorable than residents of territories. They know that they will get the right to vote some day if they increase in population but for the Washingtonians there's nothing of the kind to look forward to.

The people of the district take the generous view that the framers of the Constitution unintentionally failed to give congress the power to give the district representation in congress and the electoral college as was done in the case of a territory becoming a state. Perhaps they didn't anticipate the need of such a provision. But the time has long since come when Washington believes that the oversight should be corrected. Just now it rests with congress to determine whether it will approve the request for a constitutional amendment and thereby submit it to the 48 states for ratification. We are not surprised that Washington maintains that it is fit to enjoy this right and exercise this power and it is believed that in common justice they should be extended the change which they seek.

MISSISSIPPI FLOOD CONTROL

There are times when it seems as if the present congress was determined to do just the opposite of what the administration recommends. It is an expression which was anticipated before the opening of the session, for this is the year of a presidential election and politics are certain to play an important part in deliberations.

A careful study was made of the situation in the Mississippi valley following the flood with a view to preventive measures. This survey was made by the army engineers and by their estimate there should be an expenditure calling for $290,000,000, with the government standing 80 per cent. of it and the benefited states the rest.

From the study which has been made by the house committee from the reports made by the engineers and the witnesses who have appeared before it, and possibly the visits made by some of the members, it is figured that there ought to be an expenditure of $473,000,000 with the government footing the whole bill.

That represents quite a difference. As understood the idea would be to follow plans of the army engineers but to put someone else in charge of the work under those plans, naming a special commission to direct the work instead of leaving it to the army engineers, and to make a political affair out of the whole undertaking instead of keeping politics out of it entirely.

Flood control legislation is needed and should be adopted but there is no justification for running wild over a matter and showing little regard for engineers' opinions and figures.

ARBITRATION AMONG AMERICAS

Charles E. Hughes took an important part in connection with the Washington conference and he has done the same at Havana as head of the United States delegation to the Pan-American conference. He was named for that purpose and his choice was fully appreciated and applauded.

He has been heard with telling effect whenever he has spoken at Havana, but in his speech in behalf of outlawing war in the Americas he struck a note that was not only welcomed but which may have come unexpectedly to some of the delegates. What sort of impression he made is indicated by the reception that was accorded his words. He made it clear that the countries in the western hemisphere can get along without aggressive wars, that the controversies that disturb can be settled amicably as most of them are.

Peaceful settlement of disputes he insisted could be accomplished by conferences, by means of conciliation and by the use of reason and justice in the judicial settlement of controversies. Mr. Hughes threw his whole weight into this plea and it could not fail to carry weight with those who heard it. His appeal was straight from the shoulder, true to the line and so preferable to aggressive tactics that it could not fail to inspire.

The idea of getting a substitute for war is deserving of the highest praise. The plan of compulsory arbitration needs only to be thought about seriously in order to make an excellent impression and the weight which Mr. Hughes threw in its support was by no means small. There was the weight of the country which he represented and there was his own personal influence and plea.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

As one reads the tributes of praise each year given to the memory of the Great Emancipator on his birthday arrives, he can hardly fail to mark the shift of emphasis from year to year. This is not at all strange as it is the result of new evidence that comes to light. Biographies of the last generation were not in any respect intentionally deceptive, but were constructed on evidence at their disposal. In more recent years further investigation has been made into his life, particularly its early part, the result of which is a change of emphasis in some of its minor details. Take, for instance, the popular conception of the poverty of his early life. Beyond all question they were greatly exaggerated. It is now commonly believed that Abraham Lincoln suffered no more from poverty than other boys under the limited conditions of the day.

This idea of popular misconception applies equally to his "twin pillar of greatness" whose memory will receive our grateful praise on Wednesday next. The writer does not believe that there was any intentional attempt to deceive the public, but the writers gave what was commonly accepted. The early biographies of Washington leaned altogether too much to goody-goodyism. But even these were vastly more honorable—because they were honestly believed—than the deliberate attempts in these days to blacken his character for monetary considerations. Pastor Weems, one of Washington's earlier biographers bore on his sainthood a trifle more than the actual facts would seem to warrant. The kind-hearted, credulous Weems was so much of an enthusiast that he evidently read into his history the thing he considered a man of Washington's caliber ought to be, and honestly believed he was. Whatever is now said, his place in history is assured.

For us Americans the two great characters, mentioned above, so completely dominate the calendar for the month of February, that we forget some others whom this month has produced who are certainly entitled to some consideration. It was on the 9th of this month that William H. Harrison was born. To the rank and file he is nothing more than a name because he died just one month to a day after his inauguration. Had he lived he might have been one of our outstanding presidents, and certainly his active services prior to his election pointed to this conclusion. Another great living personality who February has given to the world is Thomas A. Edison, who, though well advanced in life, is still with us. It is the consensus of all those qualified to give an intelligent opinion that Thomas A. Edison will in the future stand in science where Washington and Lincoln now stand in national affairs. Feb. 11 has joined the 12 in immortality.

Those who have spent much time and ability in trying to explain the phenomenon of insanity have been baffled thus far in finding an hypothesis that seems to follow any known laws. In some cases it would seem that the cells of the brain were not interrelated, because on some one subject the mind seems to be quite unbalanced, while along all other lines the mind works normally. It is also quite noticeable that those other parts of the brain that are not effected are more than normally keen. Insanity, in many instances, seems to develop a cunning that was not observed when the brain was in the healthy state. This has not been satisfactorily explained. Another fact often seen in mental diseases is the complete reversal of prior normal conditions.

Not long ago the writer came across a suggestive magazine article entitled: "If You Haven't It—Improvise It" was the remark of a lady to her cook who complained that she found the larder lacking something she thought she needed. In fact she thought the dinner dish would be a failure without it. The mistress made this significant reply: "If you haven't got what you want, use what you have—improvise!" The value of such a remark lies in its tendency to make up one's sleeping and-possibly-inventive faculties to meet the emergency of the hour. Is it not perfectly amazing how fully a person will meet a difficult situation when he has to do it? When something calls to the front every sleeping power that one possesses, he will conquer the seemingly insuperable. This is not very bad advice for everybody—for the great or the small: when you get into a tight place—and who does not get there sometimes?—"improvise! Now this is nothing more than carrying out the old saying: "Where there is a will, there is a way."

The above suggestion is something that public speakers are perfectly familiar with. It is also something that the raw recruit at public speaking hardly knows anything about. To all public speakers there comes a time, sooner or later—but usually sooner—when in the course of an address, their minds face a blank wall. This is very apt to be the case if the subject matter has been committed to memory. What to say next that is logically connected with what has just been said, is the greatest problem. If the speaker is a wise old sinner, he will smile, look wise, make a spectacular gesture, and say something as near to what he had expected to say as possible, and put a great deal of animation into it. If he has firm control of himself in nine cases out of ten he can get away with it. Unlike a school boy he will not stammer, blush, stutter awhile, and then sit down.

Being as we all are at this season of the year more or less impressed with the Lincoln atmosphere, we cannot help thinking how his spirit and utterances apply to some of the burning moral questions of the present time. He could not understand how a man's language, or the color of his skin had anything more to do with his political rights than the color of his eyes. The question of the blackman's color is no longer questioned in the major part of the United States as a disqualification of his citizenship. But there are those who seem to balk at a man's language. In other words in some quarters there is a tendency to turn foreigners down. What moral authority have we for turning foreigners down if they are eligible to citizenship? If this nation is to be a rod of iron then its diverse elements must be welded into an organic whole. Why make race distinctions?

The "strangers are within our gates". They are here by the will of God. They are here by our own deliberate invitation. Of course I do not here allude to the comparative few who are smuggled in in violation to our immigration laws—they are a very minor factor. But what we need to day as much as anything else and perhaps more is to insist that the laws of this country are to be implicitly obeyed. Of course just as much by the native born as the foreign born. Let there be no race discrimination in this important matter. More than this let our courts of justice give decisions in case of law violations with real teeth in them. Some decisions rendered especially in automobile accidents have teeth in them to be sure but they remind us of false teeth. And in case of the violation of our liquor laws we could certainly gain a very important lesson from the manner in which Canada deals with the offenders of her liquor regulations.

EXPLOSIVES; MAN'S POWERFUL SLAVES

"Booming detonations that a century ago could have meant only the thunders of war, are heard almost every day now by the inhabitants of any sizable city. They are the sounds of man's most powerful slaves, explosives," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society, "carrying on their daily labors of peace for civilization: tearing loose materials for lime and cement, digging out stone for structures and roads, piercing hills, excavating that dams, railways, and factories may grow. The pioneer slowly and laboriously slashed his way through Nature's superficial barriers with his ax: with much less effort the modern engineer blasts his way through mountains, tumbles hills into valleys, and recasts the face of the earth to his liking and his need.

An Age of Explosives.

"Civilization has had its ages of stone and bronze and steel; of wind and water and steam power. It requires taking no great liberties with terms to call this an age of explosives. Man blasts out the route for a highway; makes it smooth with stone and cement blown out elsewhere; and all that it may be traversed by millions of vehicles propelled by explosions of gasses. Overhead airplanes whir, driven by explosive engines. Man has conquered the air only since the harnessing of explosions for power, and has never made a practical flying machine driven by any other form of energy. By the roadside farmers plow their fields with tractors driven by similar engines, and blast boulders and stumps from their fields with charges of high explosives.

"In cities, our water supplies come through aqueducts and tunnels that explosives have helped to build. Diesel engines driven by exploding petroleum are replacing steam engines in factories and ships; and some light and power plants are operated by these highly concentrated and economical mechanism. Even steam plants and railways are dependent on explosives, for the coal which drives them is torn by powder and dynamite from the bowels of the earth.

Civilization's Mightiest Tool.

"Never since man developed his first crude tools—wooden clubs, stone hammers, and the rest—has he come upon a device or a substance comparable in force to explosives. They give him the powers of a demi-god. With them he can come closer to imitating Nature's forces than in any other way. He can overcome the force of gravity so as to hurl projectiles scores of miles. He can be detected by seismographs hundreds of miles away. When Hell Gate Rock was blown up at New York in 1885 the tremors were recorded at Albany and at Boston.

"Explosives depend for their great power on the fact that while occupying a relatively small space an instant before explosion, their gasses occupy a tremendously greater space the instant after. Gunpowder, the first and the 'tamest' of the well-known explosives, exerts, when it explodes in a confined space, 6,000 times the pressure of the atmosphere or nearly 50 tons per square inch. The 'high explosives,' dynamite, gun-cotton, nitro-glycerine, and TNT, exert several times the force of powder; and mercury fulminate, the most violent of all, produces a pressure of 200 tons per square inch. The latter finds its chief use in very small quantities in the form of caps used to detonate less violent explosives.

Feather Tap Sets Off Most Sensitive Explosive.

"All explosives are dangerous and must be handled with caution; but there are definite degrees of dangerousness. Gunpowder and dynamite will not explode unless subjected to a more or less violent jolt. Nitro-glycerine is nitrogen-iodide. This substance is so unstable that it is said that the tap of a feather will set it off.

"Even in peace time the United States manufactures large quantities of explosives. In 1926 the total, not considering explosives for ammunition, was more than half a billion pounds. Of this, approximately two-thirds was made up of high explosives and one-third of black powder. A quarter of the high explosives and 86 per cent of the black powder was used in coal mining. Nearly half of all the high explosives were used in metal mining and quarrying, and the remaining quarter was divided about equally between construction work and miscellaneous uses.

"Many absorbingly interesting services to man are hidden behind the miscellaneous classification. Explosives are used among other ways in channel deepening, to produce 'echo waves' in the scientific 'diving rods' of the oil prospector, to aid in draining swamps, to 'blow up levees for emergency flood protection, to fight great fires, to destroy the bodies of dead animals, to 'shoot' oil wells, to send up signal rockets and fireworks, to cast life lines to ships in distress, to break up ice jams, log jams, and icebergs, and to prepare holes for the planting of trees.

Constructive Use Began in Tyrol.

"Man's discovery of explosives is not definitely known. Records do not bear out the widely held opinion that the Chinese invented gunpowder. Pyrotechnic substances such as Greek Fire or 'wild fire' were used in the early and middle centuries of the Christian era to frighten enemies or to set fire to their ships. But one of the first definite recipes for gunpowder appears in the writings of Roger Bacon in the thirteenth century. The first recorded use to propel missiles from cannons was in Florence in 1326.

"Perhaps the most interesting chapter in the history of explosives was written one hundred years later in southern Tyrol, now a part of Northern Italy. In the first quarter of the fifteenth century Sigismund, Archduke of Tyrol, conceived the idea of using gunpowder to blast a better road through the gorge of the Eisak (now the Isarco). This, the first known use of an explosive for a constructive purpose, was a shot that has had mighty reverberations around the world.

"The explosive type of engine, which has advanced man with giant strides as a power user, depends on substances that are not themselves explosives. These are the liquids gasoline, kerosene, alcohol, benzol, and fairly heavy petroleum derivatives. But these non-explosive substances, when vaporized and mixed with air, become rather powerful explosives, capable, however, of being harnessed to turn man's machinery. In automobiles alone there are explosive engines in the United States aggregating more than half a billion horsepower. Tractor engines, stationary gasoline engines, and Diesel engines carry the total well toward the billion mark."

Sunday Morning Talk

Jacob's Ladder.

The ladder which Jacob saw reaching from earth to Heaven, on which angels were going up and down, was a symbol to him of three facts: First, that there is continuous intercommunication between earth and Heaven; second, that God stands at the entrance to Heaven, as it were, sending His angels on errands of love to the world and receiving their reports as they return. Third, that God is kind and desires to enter into friendly relations with men.

Jacob must surely have carried all these thoughts away with him when he left Bethel (the House of God) to continue his journey. But above all else he must have been impressed with the thought that God had a personal interest in him and that he could count on God's help; for God, Himself, had spoken kindly to him and had promised to be with him always and do great things for him.

Inevitably Jacob would associate this promise with all his thoughts of God in his after life. He would think of God as his pledged protector and benefactor. We find that this was the case from the references made to His promise on Jacob's after history. That promise became a bond of friendship between Jacob and God; as Jacob watched its fulfillment he learned to trust God more and more, and became more keenly conscious of his dependance upon God.

And so, in time the promise came to be itself the ladder by which Jacob climbed up to a closer acquaintance with God and fuller fellowship with God.

It was the God-like character of the promise which God gave Jacob, that caused it to become the guiding star of his life and the ladder by which he could climb up to God. That promise opened up to Jacob's wondering eyes a vision of future glory which would widen out more and more the longer he gazed at it and the destiny to which God had called him, the greater would be his conception of God's greatness and goodness and his own responsibility as God's man.

"And behold, I am with thee, and will keep thee in all places whither thou goest, and will bring thee again into this land; for I will not leave thee until I have done that which I have spoken to thee of."

Here was a promise of personal protection and guidance and of unlimited blessing, both to himself and his descendants in ages to come, and to all the world through him. And this great promise was sealed with the assurance that God would not leave him until all these things were accomplished. What greater thing could Jacob have asked for if he had been allowed to choose for himself.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Anti-Prohibition Hallucinations.

Mr. Editor: I would like to call attention to an article by Dr. Albert Levitt of Ridgefield on Anti-Prohibition Hallucinations, in which he says among other things:

"Three main ideas run through all their (the anti-prohibitionists) propaganda.

1. "The anti-prohibitionists profess to believe that the 18th amendment and the Volstead act were illegally placed upon the statute books; that they were enacted without having been submitted to the people in proper fashion; that prohibition is a radical and revolutionary change in policy; that the change was made as a war measure and at a time when the people were occupied with other things of a graver nature, so that a few fanatics and zealots were able to foist an undesirable situation upon an unsuspecting and preoccupied nation.

"A belief such as this is arrant nonsense. The 18th amendment was submitted to the people of the nation in the only way in which a constitutional amendment can be submitted to them. It was submitted to the legislature of the several states. They are elected by the people and, presumably, they represent the people. When the legislatures ratified the 18th amendment the people ratified it. The Volstead act was passed by congress. Congress represents the people in national affairs. Under our present system of government we have no way of referring national legislation directly to the individual voters. They act through their representatives. When the representatives passed the prohibition act the people passed it. If the opponents of prohibition have a thesis to urge in favor of a pure democracy that is their concern. But what sense is there in saying that a thing was not done when it was done in the only way in which it could have been done under existing circumstances?

"It is not true that the 18th amendment and the Volstead act were war measures.

"The amendment was submitted to the people on Dec. 17, 1917. The Armistice came on Nov. 11, 1918. On this latter date, for practical purposes, the war was over. Whatever grave matters than prohibition were in the minds of the people, they did not include the war. Prior to the armistice 14 states had ratified the amendment. After the armistice 31 states ratified it. Among these 31 were the most densely populated states in the Union, New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio, California, Michigan and Minnesota. And the national prohibition act was not passed until Oct. 28, 1919, or nearly a year after the armistice. The opponents of prohibition are confusing "war prohibition act" and the national prohibition act. The former was emergency war-time legislation. The latter was the enactment of a peace-time policy.

2. "It is contended, by opponents of prohibition, that prohibition is so contrary to the customs and habits of the American people that it is an unnatural phenomenon and a legal monstrosity.

"The ratification of the 18th amendment and the passage of the prohibition act establish a prima facie case that prohibition is in accord with the customs, and therefore of the wishes, of a majority of the people of the nation. If this legislation has not been submitted to the people, as the anti-prohibitionists assert, then they have no authoritative information as to what the wishes of the people are. At most they can but guess at them. They are special pleaders. And it is an axiom of the law that the guess of a special pleader has no force against a prima facie case. But the truth of the matter is that the anti-prohibitionists do not represent the majority view. Nor do the prohibitionists. Both are militant minorities. But the prohibitionists have the passive majority with them. The majority would rather keep the evils and costs of prohibition than return once more to the greater costs and evils of non-prohibition. The majority will not fight even for its own good. But it recognizes and calmly appropriates to itself the best that the fighting minorities produce. That is why prohibition is here to stay.

3. "The antiprohibitionists are fond of making eloquent pleas for the toleration of minorities. One of their recent protagonists has said:

"'It is a popular idea that the majority should rule. But this does not mean that the people should vote on every question affecting human life and that the majority should then pass penal statutes to make the rest conform. No society can hold together that does not have a broad toleration for minorities. To enforce the obedience of minorities by criminal statutes because a mere majority is found to have certain views is tyranny and must result in endless disorder and suffering.'

"This, like most generalizations, sounds like something and means nothing. The writer of the above quotation surely cannot mean that every minority should be tolerated. A dozen men band themselves together to rob mail trains. They are a minority. Are they to be tolerated? A group in Michigan combine to buy one of their number a seat in the United States senate. Another group engages in the transportation of women for immoral ends. A third smuggles opium. A fourth sells morphine, cocaine and heroin to drug addicts. These are all minorities in action. Are they all to be tolerated? Yet all these activities are forbidden by laws. Are these laws to be habitually violated? Are all laws to be violated simply because minorities will suffer because of their enforcement? If not, which laws are to be violated? Who is to decide the matter?

"Under our system of government a political controversy is settled when the several state legislatures ratify a constitutional amendment growing out of that controversy and an enabling statute is passed. Thereafter nothing can honorably be done except to obey the law, or repeal the statute or reamend the Constitution. That is why Chief Justice Taft, who was a staunch opponent of prohibition, now insists upon it that the 18th amendment and the Volstead act must be enforced and obeyed."

An Appreciation of Miss Charlotte H. Palmer.

Mr. Editor: Miss Charlotte H. Palmer has passed out of this life into the Great Beyond but she will ever live in the hearts of those who knew her best because of her fine, upstanding Christian character and her gracious personality. Her most striking characteristics were her keen mentality and strong convictions, her unfailing loyalty and dependableness, and the courtesy and thoughtfulness which she accorded to all with whom she came in contact.

Miss Palmer was a devoted churchwoman and worked with untiring zeal for the welfare of Trinity church, Brooklyn, Conn., of which she was a member, having been a teacher in the Sunday school for many years and active in all that pertained to the best interests of the church. She was a Christian gentlewoman in every sense of the word and by her example gave evidence of the reality of her faith.

In her friendships she was loyal and true, delighting in little acts of kindness and helpfulness, and possessing a warm sympathy for all who were ill or sorrowing. Her private charities will probably never be known, for in these matters she kept her own counsel.

Miss Palmer did not enjoy good health and was frail in stature, but this did not daunt her valiant spirit and she was always cheerful and interested in others. A woman of broad interests and a bearer of large responsibilities, yet she always found time for the finer things of life, being a great reader and a close student of nature. She loved the birds, the flowers, the trees and woods and fields and in her constant communion with nature she ever spoke to her "a various language." Her knowledge of and familiarity with wild flowers was remarkable for she could name instantly almost any specimen she saw. She was precise in her statements and ever spoke in truth and verity and her faithfulness was unfailing. To whatever project she gave her interest into that she put all the force of her personality and carried it to fulfillment with an attention to detail that brought unqualified success.

Her well-stored mind and her keen sense of humor made her a most interesting conversationalist and she dispensed hospitality with a cordiality and charm that were a delight to all who were privileged to share it. Her great qualities of mind and heart made her a very understanding person and her many lovable characteristics greatly endeared her to those to whom she gave her friendship. It can truly be said of her, "None knew her but to love her, none named her but to praise."

Miss Palmer's was a life well lived, worthy of emulation, and, while her home town of Brooklyn, to whose attractiveness her personality contributed in such large measure, will know her no more, her spirit will ever live on and be a benediction to the town she loved so well, for the influence of such lives does not die but is eternal.

Former Norwich Leaders

James D. Mowry.

(From Norwich Bulletin, Feb. 23, 1866)

Mr. James D. Mowry, for the past fifteen years president of the Page Steam Heater company, died at his residence, 256 Broadway, Friday evening, after a sickness of several weeks. He was an old and respected citizen and had in his long and memorable life been identified with many local enterprises. He had been agent of the Chelsea mills and of the Rockland mills prior to 1866. He started the Mowry Machine company, was for years secretary of the Page Wood Type company and finally its president.

In 1867 he took an active part in arranging for the bi-centennial celebration of the settlement of the town, and was a member of two committees that contributed to the success of that memorable event.

He was a loyal republican and during the dark days of the rebellion did what he could to promote the cause of the union. At the opening of the war he was a member of a committee for the raising of the war fund. In 1862 he contracted to furnish the government with 30,000 rifle muskets of the latest Springfield construction. The barrels were made at Cole & Walker's, Franklin street, the locks by C. B. Rogers & Co., and the other pieces at Mowry's factory in Greeneville.

In 1864 he was the leader in the movement to connect Greeneville and Preston with a bridge, and as the result of his labors witnessed the erection of the first bridge across the Shetucket at that point.

He was a member of Somerset Lodge, No. 34, F. and A. M., and a member of the Elms club.

He was a man of a kindly disposition and pleasing personal qualities, and was highly esteemed by those who knew him.

Mrs. Mowry, his daughter, Mrs. Frederick T. Mason, and his son, William C. Mowry, survive him.

YOUR HEALTH

MURDER IN THE FIRST DEGREE.

By George Joyce Hall, M. D.,
Sacramento, Calif.
Member Gorgas Memorial.

The five year old son of Mr. and Mrs. O. U. Know died last night after hours and hours of horrible agony. Johnny was a very fine little boy and the neighbors and their children are going to miss him very much. The attending physicians did all in their power but when they first saw Johnny it was already too late to save his life.

In looking into the cause of Johnny's sudden death there have been several pertinent facts disclosed. The doctors consider themselves blameless, although they frankly admit that if they had been called sooner the child probably would have lived. The death certificate gives the cause of death laryngeal diphtheria. And the physicians stated that he literally choked to death. This is a horrible way to die, and it is particularly unfortunate that an innocent little child should be punished in this manner.

Johnny's mother and father have been frequently asked to bring him for toxin-antitoxin treatments but Mr. O. U. Know said that was all "applesauce" and that the doctors were "meddling" too much today in other people's business. And Mrs. O. U. Know was told by Mrs. Jane Calamity that it made children's arms horribly sore to have toxin-antitoxin, and she didn't believe in it anyway. So in spite of the advice of the school nurse and the family physician, Johnny was not protected against the dread disease when his playmates were.

It is my firm belief that there is a time coming in the future when such a death will be declared "First Degree Murder," and the parents will be held to answer for the crime. Or at least there should be a law to that effect. The loss of life each week from diphtheria is appalling. Many children are dying from diphtheria and it is my sincere belief that the careless, thoughtless parents who do not believe in inoculation or who put it off till tomorrow should have this matter brought so forcibly before them that they themselves will realize the danger in delay.

Toxin-antitoxin, given in three doses a week apart, will prevent that child from having diphtheria for life. But there is this one thought to be kept in mind—it does not have its full effect for from three to six months after. And so it is possible for a child to contract diphtheria even during the time while the toxin-antitoxin is being given. But you must prepare for the future and then you can at least feel safe from worry when some other child in the neighborhood is quarantined with a big glaring Diphtheria sign on the front door.

Antitoxin given to those who have been exposed to diphtheria will prevent it for a short time. And when a child first becomes sick with diphtheria large doses of antitoxin will probably save that child from dying. But how much simpler it is to prevent it than to try to cure it after it has developed only your physician knows.

Let me urge all readers of the Gorgas Memorial health articles to go at once to have your children immunized against diphtheria — it will pay.

The Furnace Liar

Though the liar with the fishing pole is mighty in his day,
With his stories of the glories of the one that got away,
And though the poker liar gives a certain touch of class
To his tale of what took place when he decided not to pass,
I always have considered that in winter, spring or fall,
The common furnace liar is the greatest one of all.

Nobody can escape him; he will stop you on the street
And lecture twenty minutes on his theories of heat.
He says: "I put two shovels on, and then I went away,
And never touched that furnace for the balance of the day!"
You know he lies; he knows you know, which only fans his zeal,
For the hardened furnace liar is no ordinary pest.

The furnace liar never balks at perjuring his soul
By telling how he only paid for seven tons of coal,
Or sometimes narrating, with a wealth of fine detail,
How sifting of his ashes saves him fuel by the pail.
You take two furnace liars, and decide which is the worst
By tossing up a coin to see which tells his story first.

There's something in a furnace that is poisonous to truth,
That slays veracious counsel with a keen ophidian tooth;
The furnace numbs the conscience with its red hypnotic stare,
And not unnaturally promotes the output of hot air.
There have been men who never lied, but none of them, you'll find,
Has ever talked of furnaces with others of his kind!

INCOME TAX TIPS

If the status of a taxpayer changes during the year, his personal exemption is determined by apportionment, in accordance with the number of months the taxpayer was single, married, or the head of a family.

For example, a couple married on July 31, 1927, and living together on December 31, 1927, may file a joint return and claim an exemption of $2,206.33; that is, seven-twelfths of $1,400 for the husband while single or $875, plus seven-twelfths for the wife while single, plus five-twelfths of $2,500, or $1,458.33 for the period during which they were married. If separate returns are made, husband and wife may each claim a personal exemption of $1,604.17. The husband is entitled to seven-twelfths of $1,400 or $875 for the period during which he was single and one-half of five-twelfths of $2,500 or $729.17 for the perior during which he was married. The wife is entitled to a similar exemption.

A person who on July 31, 1927, ceased being the head of a family—the support in one household of a relative or relatives being discontinued—is entitled to an exemption of $2,666.67, which is seven-twelfths of $2,500, plus five-twelfths of $1,500.

With respect to the $400 credit for a dependent, the taxpayer's status as of the last day of the taxable year determines this credit. If during the year his support of such dependent ceased, he is not entitled to this credit.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative mixed with olive oil.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Mrs. Minnie Fisher Cunningham, whose candidacy for the democratic nomination for the United States senatorship from Texas assures another colorful campaign in a state whose elections are so often full of national interest, has become one of the best-known women in Texas by reason of her active participation in various public movements. For the past two years she has been executive secretary of the National Democratic Woman's club in Washington, D. C. She has long been a leader in the woman's movement in Texas, serving as president of the State Suffrage association before suffrage was granted to women, and was first president of the League of Women Voters. In the senatorial election in July Mrs. Cunningham will have formidable opposition. Among others seeking the nomination are former Governor Oscar B. Colquitt, Congressman Thomas L. Blanton, Alvin Owsley, former national commander of the American Legion, and Senator Earle B. Mayfield.

DRUG STORE KITTEN APPLIES FIRST AID REMEDY

The Otis pharmacy has raised a kitten, that evidently has acquired medical knowledge also of drugs and first aid. The kitten is jet black and is a great favorite with the children and grown ups. It is always ready to play with them either on the street or in the store. Tuesday evening after the store was closed the cat hurt its paw in some manner with no one around to render first aid. Knowing that there was a window display of first aid supplies, evident from blood stains, it went to the display of iodine, peroxide and Mercurochrome, knocked over a bottle of peroxide and a bottle of iodine and applied the remedy to the injured paw. The treatment was successful, as the paw is healing rapidly. Evidently the kitten used no bandage, as they were not disturbed.

WOMAN DIES WITH HEART ATTACK; MAN LOSES LIFE IN THAMES RIVER

Mrs. Mary Purcell, 59, wife of John Purcell, a paper mill employe, died suddenly late Friday afternoon in a small room off her bedroom in the lodging house at 242 Main street where she and her husband had lived for some time.

Medical Examiner C. C. Gildersleeve pronounced death due to a heart attack induced by asthma from which Mrs. Purcell had been a sufferer for a considerable period.

When she was found life was extinct and people from the lodging house notified Officers Barney Keenan and Michael Carroll in Franklin square who telephoned to police headquarters from where word of the sudden death was sent to Dr. Gildersleeve, who gave Cummings & Ring permission to take charge of the body after he had visited the lodging house.

Mr. Purcell was summoned from his work at the paper mill in Thamesville. He said that his wife had been a sufferer from asthma for some time and had been under a doctor's care, but had been feeling well when he left her earlier in the day.

Mrs. Purcell was born in Mystic, her maiden name being Fisher. She was formerly married to a man named Ney, living in Hallville. After his death, she was married three years ago to Mr. Purcell. Besides her husband she is survived by a son and a daughter by her first marriage, George Ney, living on Walbach street, New London, and Mrs. Jennie Galvin of 67 Eastwood avenue, Waterbury. She also leaves a brother and two sisters in Waterbury, John Fisher, Mrs. James O'Neil, 27 Plaza avenue, and Mrs. Jennie Moore.

Found Drowned In River

Alphonse Zottole, 50, New Haven, a patient at the Norwich State hospital, met death by accidental drowning in the Thames river about 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon. In some unexplained manner he fell into the river while walking about the hospital grounds. The body was found Friday morning floating in the vicinity of Dawley's lumber mill. Medical Examiner N. B. Lewis pronounced death due to suffocation by drowning and probably accidental. Zottole had been a patient at the hospital since September 27th last suffering from encephalitis, described as inflammation of the inner covering of the brain, which renders the sufferer partially paralyzed. He was not a violently insane patient and was allowed the privilege of walking about the hospital grounds. It was probably due to his ailment that he was unable to save himself when he fell into the river, the hospital authorities think.

RHODE ISLAND REDS HOLD HONOR ROLL LEAD

For the third consecutive week a pen of Rhode Island Reds owned by Charlescote farm from Sherborn, Mass., headed the honor roll in the Storrs egg laying contest, and more and more it appears that these birds from the Bay State have started in where the Broadview White Leghorns from Winsted, Conn., left off. The Broadview birds established a long string on honor roll winnings, and now it seems as though the Charlescote entry is out to duplicate the feat.

Their score of 69 eggs for the fifteenth week brings the pen total of this entry to 792 eggs and to third position among all competitors.

Fred H. Sampson's pen of Rhode Island Reds from Springfield, Mass., placed second on the week's honor roll with a score of 58 eggs. White Wyandottes owned by the Fisher Poultry Farm of Ayton, Ontario placed third with a 55-egg score. White Rocks entered by Granite Springs farm of Granite Springs, N. Y., finished fourth with a production of 54 eggs. This is the first week in the present laying trial that no Leghorn entry laid eggs enough to make the honor roll.

The contest flock of 1,400 pullets more than held their own during the fifteenth week. Their score, 5,177 eggs, a lay of 52.8 per cent., is a gain of 31 eggs over the score for the previous seven-day period. Moreover, it represents a gain of 382 eggs over the output for the corresponding week a year ago. Up to last Monday night there was a grand total production of 69,416 eggs. This gives an average score of 495 eggs for each of the 140 competing pens or 49 eggs per bird. In fifteen weeks a gain of 8,202 eggs has been made over the production for a similar period in last year's trial. This is an average gain of better than 50 eggs a week.

NEW HAVEN ROAD HAS ITS OWN MODREN HOSPITAL

Establishment of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad of a completely equipped, modern hospital in Union station, New Haven, marks a new advance in first-aid service and treatment of the injured by any railroad in the country. No hospital or first-aid department of any railroad in the nation can be found which will compare with the New Haven's hospital, which has recently been installed under the supervision of Dr. Ralph H. Jenkins in a suite of rooms on the second floor of the station. The hospital service offered by the New Haven is another step in line with its policy of taking every precaution for the safety and well-being of employes as well as passengers.

Among the instruments and the apparatus of the railroad hospital are to be found the most modern and effective electric ray lights, resulting from recent discoveries and inventions. In two of the rooms of the hospital are arranged infra-red machines of varying powers for the treatment of strains and bruises, a fleuroscope for the diagnosis of fractures, vacuum and magnetic instruments for the removal of cinders and steel splinters from the eyes, violet ray apparatus, ultra-violet ray dispersers, an instrument for stimulation of the ears by the creation of comparaitvely soundless vibration which affect the eardrums, and an electric apparatus which creates a diathermic current.

Not only is the latest medical apparatus included in the equipment of the office, but ordinary facilities are so arranged as to enable the doctor in charge and his assistants to give the best possible service. Faucets, for example, are operated from the floor by the feet, leaving both hands free for manipulation. Electrical refrigeration is used to keep vaccines and other mixtures and cultures at proper temperature. Sterilizing machines purify surgical instruments immediately after their use. There is a laboratory department for experiment, a ward for the badly injured, an operating table, in fact everything necessary for the efficient operation of a hospital.

TWO ALARM FIRE IN EARLY MORNING IN WATER ST. WHOLESALE DISTRICT

A two-alarm fire on the top floor of the third story brick building on Water street, occupied by the Eldredge Hardware company, shortly after 12:15 o'clock this (Saturday) morning, threatened, for a time, the Water and Commerce street wholesale district. Quick and efficient work on the part of the fire department kept the blaze confined to the attic, where it originated.

The fire had apparently been burning for some hours for when the first alarm, from box 161, was pulled by Officer Clarence Simpson, the attic was a mass of flames. An explosion which blew out the windows on the top floor, due to the excessive heat, gave the first intimation that the building was on fire. Up to that timg no smoke was visible from the street. People passing the building 15 minutes before the explosion saw no sign of fire.

As soon as the department arrived on the scene, a second alarm was ordered pulled, calling out all apparatus in the city limits. The second alarm brought Engine No. 2 from the Greeneville station, Engine No. 6 from the Thamesville station and Engine No. 3 from the station on the Joseph Perkins road.

Water lines were quickly hitched up and streams were played through the windows of the top floors of both the Eldredge Hardware store and the store occupied by Fred C. Crowell, wholesale and retail dealer in doors, sash and blinds, paints and glass. Smoke was pouring in heavy volumes from the top floors of both business houses. Two lines were used on the Commerce street side of the building and several from the Water street side.

The firemen had to fight their way into the building through dense and choking smoke. After nearly an hour's fight the blaze was extinguished. The fire started in the easterly end of the Commerce street side of the building and the walls and ceiling were badly charred. A large quantity of merchandise was stored in the attic and suffered considerable damage. There was also considerable damage from water which poured down into the stores on the ground floor.

First appearances gave the impression that both the top floors of the Eldredge store and the Crowell store were blazing, as there was almost as much smoke pouring from the Crowell store as from the Eldredge store. Mr. Crowell stated that he estimates the damage to his business from water which leaked down from the top floors at around $3,000, possibly even higher. A large quantity of doors, blinds, etc., were badly wet down.

Just what caused the fire had not been determined at press time but it is thought that someone who was smoking had gone to the top floor of the building during the late afternoon and that a spark or a cigarette butt was responsible, and that the fire smouldered all evening in the closed up attic. The damage to the Eldredge store was not estimated but it will, without doubt, amount to several thousands of dollars. The recall was sounded shortly before 1 o'clock.

AUTHORITIES WORKING ON "MAIL POISON PLOT"

ALEDO, Ill., Feb. 17—(AP)—Postal authorities working on a "mail poison plot" case which was responsible for the deaths of two Aledo residents followed a trail today which led them toward Los Angeles or Long Beach, Cal.

Investigation indicated the plot may have had its inception 18 months ago with the organization of an anti-chicken thief society, in which one of the victims, Mrs. Curtis Lowry, 40, had been active, Maurice Baker, 33, a farmer, the other victim, died on the same date as Mrs. Lowry, February 2, after having taken a sample "flu" medicine sent through the mails.

Twelve persons in Aledo, including the two victims and State's Attorney James A. Allen, were the only ones, so far as is known, who received poison capsules. None, except Mrs. Lowry and Baker, used the medicine. Following their deaths, State's Attorney Allen ordered an investigation and examination of the vital organs of the deceased and also the contents of the capsules.

70 CATHOLIC REBELS KILLED IN MEXICO

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 17—(AP)—Dispatches from Guadalajara today said more than 70 Catholic rebels, including five chieftains, fell under federal fire yesterday during a series of clashes in the state of Jalisco. Different groups of insurgents, who have suddenly become active in the region where the Catholic rebellion has been going on for several months, were defeated.

THE "FIGHTING MOTORMAN" TAKES LONG STRIDE ALONG THE COMEBACK TRAIL

Harold Talbot, "the fighting motorman," went a long way along the come back trail last night when he earned a clear cut decision over Farmer Steve in the feature bout of the Pastime A. C. amateur show at Olympic hall. Although the judges decided the bout a draw for some unknown reason, Talbot through his aggressiveness clearly earned the decision. The bout without doubt was one of the most exciting and thrilling three round bouts ever staged in Norwich and the local fans will be greatly pleased to know that these two boys have been matched for the next show on March 2nd.

Although the other bouts were good the Talbot-Farmer Steve bout so far overtopped them that they seemed lame. The crowd was apparently waiting for this bout for when Farmer Steve made his appearance, wearing a cap and overcoat over his fighting togs the crowd broke into wild cheering. Talbot, playing his points, kept the Farmer waiting several minutes before making his appearance. As the "fighting motorman," swept down the isle to his corner, his cerise and white bathrobe wrapped tightly about his lithe form, pandimonium broke loose. The old hall rang with such cheers as were never heard before. The crowd was simply wild. Looking at the boxers in the ring the contrast was very striking. Steve, easily resting on his stool with his face wreathed in smiles, scanned the crowd with interest. Talbot in the other corner was a composite picture of Rodin's Thinker and The Gladiator, thoughtful determination written on his fair countenance. It was his chance to show Norwich that he possessed the fighting heart to come back after being ingloriously defeated in his first bout.

Steve in Overcoat

There was a tense silence as the clear and booming voice of Norwich's best little announcer "Broadway Jack" Callahan, introduced the two gladiators. The silence held while Steve shed his cap and overcoat and Talbot slipped easily out of his robe.

The bell. The battle was on. Such a battle too. The crowd howled, it was in convulsions as the fighters rushed together, throwing gloves from all angles and not caring in the least where they landed. The pace was furious for the first minute and then abruptly halted. The crowd fairly gasped to recover its breath and the fighters stood and glared at each other. Then more action. Talbot took one on the ear, blinked and then blinked again, steadied himself and started in right where he left off. Talbot took another and when the going got pretty warm, reversed and fought with his back to his opponent. A bit of strategy rarely used in the ring. Both were breathing heavily at the bell. The edge was with Farmer Steve.

The second round was a repetition of the first only more so. Talbot had seemed to get his bearings and had solved the attack of the Bean Hill lad. Talbot ducked almost the first blow and as it went whistling over his head he swung a mighty left that found a soft place and nestled close under Steve's floating. The wind went out of Steve like it does out of a punctured tire, with zizz. Steve gasped, his lip quivered and he tried to suck in the lost air in great gulps.

Talbot right here lost the chance of the fight to score a knockout. He simply stood, fascinated by the efforts of Steve to regain his breath and watched with blinking eyes. Finally he snapped out of it, but it was too late, Steve had got his breath back. They fought and then fought some more. Talbot went to one knee when he missed a terrific swing. Steve stood grinning over him as he bounded to his feet. Then Steve when sprawling as Talbot winged him as he passed by a rush of flying fists. The bell found them still glaring at each other.

The third round found them somewhat tired and the pace had slowed to a mere trot. There was more clinching in this round and it was here that Steve had the advantage, once with his arm about Talbot's neck in a half-Nelson he rained blow upon blow into the face of Talbot. Did they bother the fighting motorman? Not a bit. He blinked them off and tore loose smothering the Farmer under a storm of blows. He was fighting furiously at the bell. Then came the disappointment. The judges called it a draw. How could they?

Young Lizzio of Westerly opened the evening's show with a clean cut decision over Kid Wallace of Colchester in a clever exhibition. Lizzio's experience proved enough to give him the advantage over the Colchester boy.

Johnny Dosh of Norwich and Young Bernier of Willimantic put on a pretty boxing exhibition with Dish earning an easy decision. Bernier would not come to Dosh and Dosh also played a waiting game that made it more or less of a long range engagement.

Mickey Campaign of New London, after knocking Young Phillips of Westerly down once for a six-count in the first round, repeated in the second and just as the round was closing dropped the Westerly boy for the count.

Young Tauff of New London knew too much for Kid Lavella of Willimantic and put the Thread City boy away in the second round. The first round started fast with the Willimantic boy flashing plenty of speed but soon burned out. At the opening of the second round Lavella weakened and gave up the sponge after a few seconds of fighting.

Mush Moriarty of Norwich and Al Migneault of New London fought a fast draw in one of the features of the evening. Moriarty took the first two rounds but weakened in the third and the New London boy came through strong. Moriarty looked out of condition and his blows did not carry their usual snap.

Hooper Loses Decision

Harry Hopper of New London lost a hairline decision to Young Metcalf of Westerly in a bout that was marred by Hopper's continual clinching. Hooper knows little about the open game but is deadly on his infighting with the result that at close quarters many of his blows go astray.

Frank McCarthy, Academy football player made his debut to a Norwich audience with a knockout over Smoke Sylvia of Versailles in the second round. McCarthy showed the results of the training with his brother, Young McCarthy, and fought a cool and heady fight, wasting little energy in wild swinging, most of his blows finding their mark and carrying punishment with them. He knocked Sylvia down twice before landing the final blow that stretched out the Versailles lad.

Vic Darr won an easy knockout over Young acobs of Willimantic after two minutes of fighting in the first round. Jacobs started off fast and swarmed over Darr for the first minute but hit only with an open glove. Darr struck just one blow and it was all over, Jacobs taking the full count.

The officials were Jack Callahan, announcer; Felix P. Callahan, timer; Alex Pasnik and Earl Mathewson, judges; Mickey Ross of Westerly, referee.

LARGE CROWD SEES WILLIMANTIC AMATEURS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 17—A very classy card of amateur boxing presented at the Al Pierre Tabarin tonight by the Willimantic A. C. under the sanction of the Connecticut A. A. U. brought out a crowd of about 500 enthusiasts. The fights were fast and met with the general approval of the crowd. There was considerable hard hitting, but there was but one bona fide knockout. There were two disappointments, one in the announcement that Frankie Colombo of Windsor Locks, who was to appear was ill at his home. The other was that the opponent to be matched with Henry Bell, veteran Hartford heavyweight, had fallen down the rear stairs of the Tabarin about 20 minutes before the bout was scheduled and did not enter the ring.

The first bout, at 165 pounds, was slated as a grudge fight between Billy Leahy and Young Carpenter, both of this city. The rather uneventful three rounder closed with a technical knockout in favor of Leahy. Carpenter fought at the Pastime A. C. show a short time ago.

Bout two, 140 pounds, brought together Dan Carter, fast colored ring man of Hartford and Joe Sequin of Danielson. The fight was the hit of the night and was approved by a series of applause from the audience. Sequin used a left jab with considerable effectiveness and drew blood from Carter. The bout was awarded to Sequin on points.

In the third bout Tony Fedus of Colchester who fought for the Pastime A. C. in Norwich several times, and George Chase of Danielson weighing in at 170 pounds gave a clumsy but good exhibition of hard fighting. Both men appeared considerably fagged, but very much game, in the third round and Chase was given a decision on points.

Bout four was a fast go between Bill Patrick, 135, of Hartford, and Lucien Brouillard, 135, of Danielson. Those boys mixed things up after the style of game cocks and were popular with the fans Bruillard received the decision on points.

Bout five failed to go beyond the first round. Sid Gunning of Hartford, 145, and Joe Billings, 145, of Danielson, were pitted in this go. Billings was excused before the end of the first round, when the referee discovered that he had sustained an injury to his ear.

Peloquin Knocks Rhode

The next bout brought together two young simon-pures, weighing in at 118 pounds, Rene Peloquin of Danielson and Mickey Rhode of Hartford. Rhode appeared to be getting the best of things, until the bout had gone into the second round for 2 minutes and 20 seconds, when Peloquin registered a knockout with a left to the side.

Bout seven was a disappointment as stated above as no fixed opponent for Henry Bell could be found to replace the fighter who had injured himself in a fall down the stairs. Tony Fedus who lost the decision to George Chase in bout three gamely returned to the ring to face Bell. The bout was purely exhibitional in nature and Bell refrained from making it a slaughter. Fedus was bleeding again from the nose and the bout was called off after two rounds in the ring.

The officials for the evening were Billy Conway of Hartford, referee, H. N. Bullard and Daniel F. Daley, judges, Ray W. Downer, time keeper, and Police Commissioner Frank J. Murphy of Hartford, announcer. The promoters of the bouts were Henry Rothblat and Daniel Connell.

HARDING HIGH WINS TWO IN EASTERN CONN.

Warren Harding high of Bridgeport, heretofore the Academy's only opponent in eastern Connecticut relations, broke into the sport realm of this section in earnest Friday by trimming two of its scholastic basketball teams.

Playing at New London in the afternoon, the Presidents trimmed Chapman Tech 37 to 19 in a game that was all their own.

At night the Park City club skipped over to Stonington and won from Stonington high 30 to 20.

This is regarded as quite a feat and the Bridgeport club left eastern Connecticut late last night carrying the respect of the many to see them perform.

Harding, in this feat, trimmed two-thirds of the Eastern Conn. league, it will be noticed. This club had a strong desire to come here and play the Academy on this trip but the local's schedule would not permit it, Deep River having already been carded for tonight and the inter-sorority dance, a feature event of the Academy's year, filling the program Friday evening.

Harding has won 18 and lost four games this year and their next trip to these parts comes in the annual baseball game Memorial day when they oppose the Academy.

HEATON WINS BOB SLED OLYMPIC TITLE FOR U. S.

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland, Feb. 17—(AP)—Streaking down the ice at nearly a mile a minute, John Heaton, of New York, gave the United States its first official victory of the Olympic winter sports competition today when he captured the Skeleton Bob Sleigh race.

PENN. FIVE WOULD QUIT COURT LOOP

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 17—(AP)—The row stirred up when Dartmouth won the intercolegiate basketball game, finished under protest, from the University of Pennsylvania in the Palestra last night by a score of 30 to 29, will be thrashed out at a special meeting of the executive committee of the league in New York either Monday or Wednesday.

Pennsylvania threatens to quit the league unless the game is played over.

The trouble over the game was caused when it was alleged that two students acting as official scorers failed to score the second foul goal thrown by Joey Schaaf, Pennsylvania star, shortly after the start of the game.

The score board credited the disputed point to Pennsylvania and it is claimed that all newspapermen in the press box keeping score agreed the point was made.

ACADEMY CLASHES WITH DEEP RIVER QUINTET AT Y. GYM THIS EVENING

N. F. A.	Deep River
Jarvis, lf	lf, A. Mozzocki
Tigar, rf	rf J. Mozzocki
Viau, c	c, Tourville
Kelly, lg	lg, Welse
LaCroix, rg	rg, Morrow

The Academy returns to the home court after a two weeks-three game absence, meeting one of the fastest teams out of Class A in the state, Deep River. It is also the Red and White's first home appearance since the ineligible occurrence that disqualified four members of the squad.

In Deep River the locals are meeting one of the stiffest tests on their schedule. This team has cleaned them all up in her class and also holds a decision over Chapman Tech, twice conquerors of the Academy.

N. F. A. Has Improved.

The Academy has shown marked improvement of late, even though losing in the last four starts. Since the Windham game which was dropped by four points, the Red and White has battled viciously for the verdicts even though facing superior odds. Against the Coast Guard, Jr. Varsity last Saturday the Academy gave a real exhibition but to lose by a pair of points. Against Chapman Tech, also in the Whaling City Tuesday night, the locals shaded their opponents for the majority of three quarters only to falter at the end when playing with but two regulars in position and lost by six points.

Tonight the Academy will be as strong as it can be under the circumstances. Pingree will not appear but in his stead the revamped lineup of Joe Viau a forward, at center, and Dave Tigar, who will be playing his third game as an Academy regular, and Lloyd Jarvis, who has been on the squad less than a month, at forward, with Capt. Jim Kelly and Buck LaCroix at guards.

Much Interest in Team.

Ordinarily, the townspeople would desert a team that has lost as often as the Academy has this year, but on the contrary, interest rises with each tilt and tonight another capacity house is expected. This is probably due to the fact that the locals, no matter where or how the game, always are battling to the last ditch. They deserve praise, those eight or ten boys wearing the Red and White, seems to be the general feeling among their supporters and tonight with a little side-line encouragement they can visibly give it. Especially should the students show a bit of vocal interest in the quintet and not expect the team to do it all for basketball at N. F. A. A cheer-leader, a few more to cheer—and some cheers.

The main game starts at 9 o'clock. At 7 the Y Emps meet the Noank Juniors and at 9 the C. F. C. tackles the Mebs from the New London City league.

'BOUT SPORTS

Tonight the Academy plays another basketball game. No doubt many will turn out and a goodly share of them will be students at the local institution.

It does seem funny just why this lack of cheering at N. F. A. court games is. The only school to show any spirit along this line this year was Windham, which brought along a real delegation. The Academy gang seems to take a game in which its team plays as just a game. There is little difference from any amateur game over at the Y when the Academy plays. True, the crowds are larger than any other local team can draw. That is no doubt due to the traditions, etc. of the local school but as for backing for the few boys that are doing more than their bit to keep the sport going at N. F. A. there is none.

In football there was little school spirit outside of the players and in basketball there is none.

BASKETBALL BRIEFS

The Academy tonight.

Chapman Tech sure ran into a tartar in Warren Harding.

Putnam High still keeps winning.

The C. F. C. will be after No. 12 win tonight and they ought to get it from the Mebs of New London.

The Plainfield Pros play Millville again next week. This team has been an awful stumbling block for teams around this section and the Pros are only in another attempt that carries of encouragement in breaking this record.

HUDKINS GETS DECISION OVER BAKER

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, Feb. 17—(AP)—Ace Hudkins, vicious clouter from Lincoln, Neb., clawed his way past Sergeant Sammy Baker, army warrior and to the forefront of Joe Dundee's welterweight title challengers in a gory ten round battle here tonight.

Into the melee, third of a specular series, was packed all the thrills of the fiercest kind of fighting, and all the drama that can lie in a game battler's refusal to "give up the ghost" even when everyone but him of the 16,000 in the arena knew he was licked.

Baker Game

Baker, courageous as the flying corps he represents, was as badly whipped as a fighter can be in ten rounds and still keep his feet. But in whipping him, Hudkins, too, took a severe punishment as he ever has been called upon to endure in punching out a victory.

Twice—in the second and sixth rounds—Sammy ran into overhand swings that dropped him into the resin for counts of nine. The first was a right smash to the chin, and Sammy chose to rest for most of the count. The second a flailing left dangerously close to the foul line sunk Baker when the ring was reeling about him and even the lights must have shown red to him through a daze of blood.

Despite terrific punishment from unceasing punching, Baker rallied whenever the cause seemed most hopeless. The drumming right hand that knocked Hudkins out in seven rounds last summer, beat a merciless tattoo on the westerners head. In at least half the rounds, Baker, staggering about and pawing with his left for openings, whipped over that right to set Hudkins on his heels.

Hudkins' eyes were nearly shut from Sammy's head punishment at the close, but Sammy was a sight to behold, with blood oozing from gashes about his mouth, his body crimson from gore and punishment.

Maxie Rosenbloom, of New York, outpointed Jack McVey, Negro middleweight from Harlem, in an eight round semi-final. Maxie was too fast and clever for the hard hitting Negro. Rosenbloom weighed 159 1-2, McVey 154.

Glimpses of Sports of Other Days

NORWICH TEAM GOES TO MERIDEN

(This is the first of a series of Reviews of Local Sports of other days that will appear in the Bulletin once a week).

This week's story deals with the sale of the Norwich league team in 1908 to Meriden after eight years of State league ball for this city. This feature should prove entertaining and interesting for not only the old-time sport fans but also for those of the younger generation.

The following story is from the accounts in the Norwich Bulletin of Feb. 12, 1908:

According to an Associated Press dispatch from Meriden: "After nearly a month of negotiating for the purchase of the Norwich State league baseball team, two local sporting men, Charles H. Smart and C. H. Cheney, bought the team and franchise Tuesday afternoon, after a long discussion with Managers O'Neil of Springfield, Clarkin of Hartford, Durant of Waterbury and Danaher of New Haven. The meeting was held in Attorney Danaher's office and after considering the proposition made by the local sporting men the team and franchise were turned over to them at a figure which neither the league managers nor the present owners cared to make public. According to arrangements, the Meriden team will take up the season's schedule of games, which had been assigned for the Norwich team. The following players are included in the purchase: Accorsini, Cote, Bridges, Soffel, captain; Pastor, Golden, Duff, Halligan, Tuckey, Duffy and Alderman."

Price Was $1,500.

The purchase was accomplished after a four-hour session with the Meriden men, several conversations by telephone with Henry B. Davenport in Norwich, a lot of urging on the part of the committee, and the acceptance of financial aid from the committee. Manager Dan O'Neil of Springfield acted for the local men. The Springfield buyers at first had only a thousand dollars, which they later made up to $1,150. When this point was reached, the money offered by O'Neil, Durant and Danaher made up the $1,500, which was the price for the team without third baseman Cy Perkins. Capt. Jack Tighe gets Perkins for the Holyoke team. The Meriden people handed over $500 in cash to Manager O'Neil to bind the bargain and gave a note for $650, payable May 1, for the balance which they are to pay.

All the names appearing on the list of players transferred are the men who played here last season, except Alderman. He is a pitcher, who signed a contract for Captain Tighe in 1906, but never reported. He is still on the Norwich reserve list.

Mr. Davenport expressed himself on Tuesday night as hopeful that someone would take up the matter of providing baseball games for this city in the coming season for he still believed that the city would be right for the game, if the expenses could be kept within bounds. While the talk of the sale of the Norwich team has been going on there have been various suggestions offered from New London and Willimantic papers that these two cities with Norwich and possibly Westerly might form a league.

Much Credit to Owners.

That the fans of the city will feel lost without a team to root for goes without saying and on all sides are heard expressions of regret over the transfer. At the same time there is nothing but admiration for the three plucky owners—Henry B. Davenport, Frank A. Mitchell and Dr. George Thompson—who have backed the game alone for about a year and a half in face of heavy financial losses. Had not New London proved so great a fizzle in the past year that it was transferred to New Britain for the coming season, it is probable that Norwich would have kept the team, but with the Whalers gone from the eastern end of the state, the league directors saw a chance to make the circuit more compact and have fostered the plan to shift the Norwich team to Meriden. Whether they will be the gainers or not is a matter of some doubt, as Meriden has once before been compelled to give up league ball for lack of financial support.

To the three men named above who saved the team for the city in August, 1906, when it was about to go to the wall for lack of money, the baseball public and indeed the whole city owes much more than it is ever likely to pay. The team has been a standing advertisement for the city, making the name of Norwich heard in many quarters where it would otherwise not be known.

First League Ball in 1899.

League ball was introduced to Norwich in 1899 by Manager Jack Rose after a disastrous season in Danbury. Mr. Davenport took over the reins of the local club in July of that season after Rose had skipped town and left the team stranded without a picayune. Henry W. Tibbitts and others stepped into the breach with Mr. Davenport, agreeing to run the team for a week and pay over to the players, who had elected Luke Dorsey captain and manager, whatever was left after expenses were paid. Mr. Davenport, acting as treasurer, handed over to the men about $35 apiece at the end of the week. From then on he has never ceased to take a financial interest in the game. By the end of the week John C. Chapman, who had formerly run a team successfully in Meriden, was granted the franchise by the league. He ran the team for the rest of the season. Because of shortage of players Norwich had to forfeit one game to Jerry Denny's Derby Angels at this time.

With the exception of a year or two, Norwich teams have not up a standard article of ball and been counted as prominent contenders in every league race, succeeding twice in bringing the pennant to Norwich. Both times this was accomplished under the captaincy of John F. Tighe, who began his fine record of six years as Norwich captain by producing a pennant winning team in 1900 under the management of A. W. Doe.

Last, Then First.

The complete records of the league for the nine years in which Norwich has figured, shows the work of the Norwich team as follows: 1899, won 41, and lost 58, for a percentage of .414, finished last; 1900, won 64 and lost 38 for a percentage of .660, finished first; 1901, won 63 and lost 46, for a percentage of .578, finished third; 1902, won 51 and lost 58 for a percentage of .468, finished seventh; 1903, won 54 and lost 50 for a percentage of .519, finished fifth; 1904, won 58 and lost 62 for a percentage of .465, finished sixth; 1905, won 42 and lost 74 for a percentage of .362, finished eighth; 1906, won 72 and lost 53 for a percentage of .576, finished first; 1907, won 71 and lost 51 for a percentage of .582, finished fourth.

The first pennant winning team playing the game which the oldtimers remember with enthusiasm, finished the season with the following lineup, which includes some names now recognized as stars in the major leagues: Manager, A. W. Doe; captain, John F. Tighe; pitchers, Mack, Lewis, Nops; catchers, Manning and Wilson; first base, Tighe; second base, Dan Murphy; third base, Harrington; short stop, Hobe Ferris; outfielders, Dorsey, Williams and Henry. The other pennant winning team had the following players: Manager and captain, John F. Tighe; pitchers, Tuckey, Stevens, Halligan and Plank; catchers, Bridges and Accorsini; first base, Tighe and Accorsini; second base, Lord; third base, Perkins; shortstop, Soffel; outfielders, Golden, Ball and Cote.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Fifty years ago this week the Rev. Dr. Dana resigned as pastor of Park Congregational church, to accept a pastorate in St. Paul, Minn. Rev. Dr. Dana's resignation was accepted by the church, of which he had been pastor since its organization. The same week the Universalist society held a highly successful entertainment and the Hook and Ladder Co., held its 20th annual masquerade ball and concert at Breed hall. The employees of the Norwich and Worcester road also held a masquerade ball at Steiner's hall, the same week. Interesting extracts taken from the files of The Norwich Bulletin, 1878, are as follows:

Monday, Feb. 11, 1878—At the park church, yesterday morning, the Rev. Dr. Dana greatly surprised his congregation by offering his resignation as their pastor. In what he said he evinced a very tender affection for the church with which he has been associated since its organization, and at the same time modestly asserted his belief that it was for the best interests of his charge that their present relations be served. The immediate motive of this action is a flattering call recently received by Dr. Dana from the Plymouth Congregational church of St. Paul, Minn., which has been cordially re-inforced by earnest letters from leading divines in that state. If the Park church consents to let him go, that organization and the community will be robbed of a motive power which it will be next to impossible to replace.

A false report was circulated about town, Saturday, that a man well known and esteemed in this community had committed suicide. If the report was maliciously circulated the originator ought to be punished.

Danielsonville people are going to talk over the matter of a fire engine this evening. The best thing they can do is to make the investment.

Tuesday, Feb. 12, 1878—This evening commences the entertainment of the Universalist society. It is useless to speak in raptures over their efforts. They are well known to the public as offering none but splendid attractions and are sure to attract crowded houses. It runs for three nights. Buy a ticket for all and thus enlist "for the war."

At last the interpretation of the symbolic letters "B of B" appears, and in so far as it relates to the O. D. Ones, we are not surprised. They stand for Blessings of Benevolence. Could any symbols be more fitting and appropriate to this antediluvian order?

Railroad masquerade at Steiner's hall, Thursday evening. It is expected that Arbuckle, Theodore Thomas and Joe Greene will be there on their way home from Voluntown. This trio makes a full band.

John Warburton of Laurel Hill, employed at Hopkins and Allen's manufactory, slipped and fell on Front street, yesterday morning, as he was starting for his work and broke his collar bone. He is doing well, however.

Wednesday, Feb. 13, 1878—The Shetucket Foundry property which was deeded yesterday for the sum of $10,500, would have brought two years ago, good judges of real estate assert, $18,000 to $20,000.

The "Hooks" are arranging for a fine ball on Friday evening. They expect it to equal anything ever before given in the city. Twenty-five numbers on the programme.

Three petitions have been circulated about town for signatures in the interest of as many candidates for the position of postmaster when the present term shall expire next summer.

Some of the roads in the eastern part of Preston township are still filled with snowdrifts so deep as to wholly obstruct travel.

John Manning's store at Norwich Town was entered by thieves Monday night and about twenty-dollars worth of goods and change taken.

Thursday, Feb. 14, 1787—At a meeting of the directors of the old Norwich bank, Tuesday, Mr. Frank Johnson, cashier, tendered his resignation, which was accepted and Mr. Stephen B. Meech, assistant cashier, was promoted to fill the vacancy. Mr. Johnson was elected to the office of vice president. The festival and dramatic entertainment of the Universalist society at Breed hall drew a complimentary house last evening and at times the hall was crowded. The play is notably free from the least that could offend the taste and is especially captivating in the denoument. Those interested in the management of the entertainment are highly pleased with its success.

The occupants of front offices at the City Hall building are much incensed against a boy that they have frequently observed abusing horses at a stable on Church street, and, it is expected that he will be prosecuted.

Hartfield will be at the Hook and Ladder house tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock, with costumes for the masquerade.

Friday, Feb. 15, 1878—The railroad masquerade ball at Steiner's hall last evening, was one of the most largely attended and brilliant that has ever been held under the auspices of the Norwich & Worcester road employes. Friends of the management were present from the neighboring cities of Worcester, Providence and Hartford. Nothing was wanted in the line of music and refreshments to make the entertainment pleasant and all were gleeful and merry as could be.

The postoffice was besieged yesterday by the juveniles, and it seemed at some hours as though all the Broadway school had come en masse in search of valentines. The number of those tender missives that found their way to more tender hearts was countless.

Mr. H. L. Reed of Jewett City, was engaged in evangelistic work with the Congregational church at Preston City last week and considerable religious interest has been awakened at that place.

At the Park church last evening, Dr. Dana's resignation was accepted and the deacons were authorized to make the necessary provisions for a council to dismiss him.

Saturday, Feb. 16, 1878— Among the more elaborate granite and marble stones placed recently in Yantic cemetery, is a monument erected by Bishop Paddock, as a family memorial, which now marks the resting place of a former wife of Bishop Paddock, well known and esteemed here, where she died, as he was closing his rectorship of Trinity church, and his three deceased children.

The Norwich Caledonian society will celebrate Washington's birthday with a literary and musical entertainment and "social hop" at Union hall, Greeneville, February 22nd, entertainment commencing at 8 o'clock.

The engines Charles Osgood, and I. W. Dow, of the New London Northern road, are undergoing repairs.

T. Walter Swan is among the number of those who have gone to Florida for health.

Mr. Bates has received over 40 applicants for the Norwich deputyship.

Judge Hovey is holding court in Middletown.

The masquerades have made the streets unusually lively for two evenings past.

The second annual ball of Palmyra Encampment of Odd Fellows occurs on Wednesday, the 27th inst.

MEASURING ATTAINMENT

(Written specially for The Bulletin.)

There is a rather widespread feeling among those of us who earn our livings by manual labor that we are the only real workers of the world, and that the rest are riding on our shoulders.

Some will demur indignantly, when the proposition is thus baldly stated, and a few undoubtedly see beyond it. But for a considerable majority of manual laborers the existence of such a feeling is undeniable. Even many who do not openly express it have what I suppose the psychologists would call a "sub-liminal obsession," slumbering at the bottom of their consciousness and ready to break out under favoring conditions.

With this widespread feeling goes an equally widespread conviction that those who do the work, i. e., the manual laborers, should have at least the major share of the profits of such work.

The mechanic working faithfully his eight hours at his bench or machine in factory or shop thinks that the manager, sitting at his desk before a pile of papers, has the easier job of the two and, justly, has no claim to a bigger salary or wage.

The laborer standing beside that inexorably moving belt and screwing on a half-inch nut as the job passes him is inclined to think luck is partial in that he draws down only $5 a day while Henry Ford draws out of the business perhaps $5,000 a day.

The men whose labor and skill combine to make clothes or furniture or other products thinks that the success of the factory is due to them, much more than to the buyer of the raw materials who is chasing the world over to find them at a lower price or of higher quality; much more than to the harried shop foreman who is kept constantly at his wits' end to increase production turn-out and lower production costs; much more than to the general manager who has to scheme out ways to dispose of their work on such terms as will give labor its wages and capital its dividends.

To hand-worker who puts in his eight hours a day and then drops tools and work and all thought of both for the remaining sixteen hours is apt to envy Edison, who is reputed to be worth several millions, though Edison's regular working day for many long years was one of sixteen hours, and half the remaining eight was spent in puzzling out recondite problems.

It is to this feeling, so generally distributed, that more than half our industrial troubles are due.

It is a feeling based less on actual desire for justice than on natural selfishness.

Instead of being nourished as it is by certain upstart leaders of so-called "labor" or condoned as it is by certain political demagogues it should be reprobated and discouraged.

For the outstanding fact is that brain-fag is even more exhausting than muscle-tire and brain work even harder than manual labor. Moreover, brain capacity is rarer than artisanship. And in this world prices are fixed less often by real intrinsic values than by scarcity of product.

A coalhod full of diamonds isn't worth anything at all to a freezing man in comparison with the same hod full of clean anthracite coal. But the market would rather rate the hodful of diamonds up in the millions and the hodful of coal down in the cents.

There are more men who can screw on a half-inch nut with celerity and precision than who can do Henry Ford's work.

There are more men who can wire a house and put up the lighting fixtures than who could have invented that simple looking bulb and its inclosed filaments.

There are more men who can make a jim-dandy piece of furniture than there are who could plan that piece and sell it at a good profit.

In all such cases the general law holds that the scarcer the product the higher its costs; the rarer the ability the larger its rewards.

There were several hundred if not thousand mechanics in Detroit as capable with their hands, as faithful in their work, and as anxious for more wages as Henry Ford when he began putting his first automobile together at his lonesome bench in his basement shop. But they hadn't the "something" in their heads which was the begetter of the biggest industry in the country. They were working for dollars, and doubtless grouching because they weren't paid more; Ford was working for thousands, and planning to get them, not from any single employer but from the public, which is vastly richer, in the aggregate, than any capitalist.

We farmers grumble and groan because we have to pinch our pocketbooks to get money enough to pay taxes and buy shoes for the children. David Rankin, Missouri farmer, whom I have referred to before this, hadn't money enough to buy a pair of summer shoes for himself till after he was 21, but died worth $3,000,000 and doing a business so big that he had to establish a bank of his own to carry it on.

Don't you suppose Ford earned his millions and Rankin earned his and Edison earned his just as truly as you and I have earned our weekly pay envelopes?

You bet that last envelope they did!

If our brains had been as good as theirs, and our industry as unflagging and our ambition as soaring, we could, any one of us, have done as much.

The big, unthinking, happy-go-lucky world would just as good have paid its millions to you as to Henry Ford, if you had made his car; it would have paid its millions to me as readily as to Edison if I had supplied it with the incandescent electric lights it wanted; it would have turned over its millions just as happily to Hank Jones of Podunk Flats as to David Rankin of Missouri if Hank had given it what Rankin did.

The markets of the world do not now, never have and never will pay according to the intrinsic value of the thing bought. They pay for what the fashion of the moment demands; for what popular whim hankers after; for what "salesmanship" can put over on them; but most of all for rarity of product. A highway paved with pearls wouldn't be anywhere near as good a road as one dressed with gravel. Yet the world pays eagerly thousands of dollars for pearl necklaces where it expects to buy gravel for 35 cents a cubic yard. The chief reason for which inequality is that pearls are scarce, while gravel can be dug out of any old stream bank.

As a matter of cold fact, the man who can do and actually does what other men cannot or will not do gets the shekels where the others must be content with the farthings.

It may be that this rule doesn't work in Heaven. But it functions on earth and, so long as we remain on earth, we are in common sense bound to accept is governance.

Various wise men, at various times times in the past, troubled over what seemed to them the injustices of fortune and the unhappinesses of mortals, have imagined and described various Utopias in which all injustice was abolished and all unhappiness forgotten. Some have even started communities where Utopian ideas should be put into practice. Unfortunately or not, according as you look at it, not one of these imagined Paradises has even been found, nor has one of these well-meant community schemes ever worked.

The man who turns out watch-screws which are worth more than their weight in gold may think he has earned that balancing weight of gold. But has he?

How about the other man who planned the watch, so that it would run accurately regardless of position or temperature? How about the other man who selected with sedulous and uncanny care the materials for making the screws? How about the other man who invented and perfected the almost superhumanly accurate machine which shape and thread those minute bits of wire without the error of a millionth of an inch? How about the general manager who directs and controls all the interlocking functions which combine towards the final product? To the screw-maker his job seems the most important of all, yet in fact it is but one minor operation in a long succession of others, all of which must be made to dovetail exactly with the rest to insure success, or even to avoid disaster.

Hold a cent close enough to your eye and it will shut out the light of the full moon. This does not mean, however, that the cent is bigger than the moon. It means simply that you are not measuring the two in a judicious way.

Manual labor is just as honorable as brain work. It deserves as fair rewards—as fair, not necessarily as large. For the ability to do manual labor is vastly commoner than the capacity to do effective brain-work.

And both are labor. Don't forget that for one moment. The mere fact, standing by itself, that one man is paid $30 a week while another is paid $300 a week is not proof that the first man is really earning more or the second man less.

Could the first man take over the second man's job and carry it on as successfully? Very likely he may think he could. There was once, as has been related, a bullfrog who thought he could be big as an ox. So he swelled and swelled and swelled till his limiting skin burst with a loud pop. He never got to be as big as the ox. Nor was he worth much, any longer, as a bullfrog.

No man's measure of himself is likely to be as accurate as that which is made of him by others.

Self conceit and self assurance are not always symptoms of ability.

Nor is self seeking always the surest road to worthy attainment.

Those attending are invited to come attired in costume of "ye ancient time," if possible. If this is not convenient, they will wear at least some ancient article. Light refreshments will be served during the evening. It is hoped that all will come ready to join in a good time. Some of the features for the evening are a play, old-time songs and an art gallery. The art gallery is to furnish material for a prize contest on identifying pictures of people resident or well known in Union. It is expected that there will be a small collection of antiques on exhibition.

COLUMBIA

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hutchins, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Hutchins and Mrs. Lillian Rice represented the local grange at the meeting of East Central Pomona held at Scantic Wednesday.

Miss Margaret Valkely is working in Willimantic.

The lecturer's hour of Columbia grange Wednesday evening was in the form of a colonial tea. Eight young ladies dressed in quaint colonial costume danced the stately minuet; later in the evening also dancing the lanciers. Mrs. Edith Ishaw sang two old-time songs and Mrs. Elsie Collins and Miss Harle Field also sang twice. Rev. Duane Wain gave a talk on early laws and customs and Chester Lyman, a charter member, gave a brief talk on some of his recollections of the older times. Tea and coffee were poured by the hostesses of the occasion, Mrs. Lillian Rice and Miss Lillian Lyman. Sandwiches, cake and candies were passed. In spite of the bad travelling there were 32 grangers present, who enjoyed the evening, all appreciating the effort and work put into it by the new lecturer, Mrs. Madeline Mitchell.

The Ladies' Aid society met Thursday afternoon at the parsonage, 21 ladies being present. The hostesses were Mrs. H. W. Porter, Mrs. Clare Robinson and Mrs. Harvey Collins. Fruit salad, sandwiches and coffee were served by the hostesses.

Rev. Mr. Duane Wain has received from the missionary board his appointment as missionary to Angola, Portugese West Africa. He will be associated with Mr. Niepp at Ochilesso. Mr. Wain and his family expect to sail for Portugal in August, where he will study for a year, at the end of that time going to Africa. He will engage in regular missionary and industrial work. Rev. Mr. Wain has been pastor of the local church for two years and a half and has many friends, who will be very sorry to have him leave Columbia.

MY GIRLHOOD DAYS.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: It is a pleasure to read so many of the Social Corner letters found in The Bulletin each week. I wish to add my mite by writing about my girlhood days.

Many are the pleasant memories of my girlhood days spent among the pines and sand plains of Voluntown, Conn. Each season of the year brought its enjoyment. I loved to roam over the fields and woods picking pond lilies, winter green, arbutus or wild flowers.

I had turkeys to chase besides dropping meadow or riding horse for the various kinds of work to be done. When my mother told be to wash the dinner dishes and I ran off out the door and stayed to get rid of the dishes, I found them waiting for me if I did not come back until night. Happy were the hours spent trapping with my brothers or picking up chestnuts with my father. Sliding down hill on a plain board or a sled made from barrel staves was unbounded joy in those days.

The heavy timber has since been cut off and many acres of the fields are becoming wooded while the pines on the sand plains are large enough for lumber. Many times my parents went away and left my two brothers and me to keep house. One time when I was nine years of age they went away and left me to keep house. My older brother came home from school and said "the school teacher is coming to our house tonight to board." My first thought was she has not much cooked in the house but I can make some good doughnuts. I had helped fry them so I mixed up my first batch of doughnuts alone. I took three eggs, one cup sugar, one cup milk, three tablespoons cream, one teaspoon soda, two teaspoons cream tartar and flour enough to knead the dough on the board. I rolled the dough out long and about four inches wide cutting across into strips about one inch wide with a case knife and pressing the ends of the dough together. I fried them in some heated lard I had on the stove. I had fine luck with them. Another time when I was 11 years of age my parents went to a funeral and left me to prepare a chicken pie supper. I had nearly everything ready when they with 12 guests returned. Those girlhood days were a very happy period of my life. I could roam about the woods and fields at any time with nothing to fear. But alas! for the poor girls of today. How times have changed.

Best wishes to all.

GREAT G. (Club No. 5.)

FORT NED, VIA NIPMUCK PATH

Social Corner Editor and Sisters—would it be interesting to the sisters that are going to Fort Ned to take a trip on paper as near as we can over the Nipmuck path? As we cannot go down beside the river where the path was we will have to follow the road, and on the way we will use our imagination freely and picture in our minds the houses, some long gone and some still in good repair and the people in them in the late 17th and to the middle of the 18th centuries.

We will start in Hanover going north. After passing the turn in the road that goes down to the bridge we come to a small house, the main part of it used to stand in front of the second house at the other end of the row and was a cooper's shop where Mr. Fuller, a young man, made barrels and buckets, pails, tubs, dish heelers and rundets. We will see him again if we don't break down. His father lived just across the forks of the road, but he never would know the house, as it has grown a gable, porch and veranda, if he came back.

In the next large house a family named Gilmore lived. The man was known as Priest Filmore and preached. Going on, we cross the brook. Just over it and close beside it is a very fine spring of water. You may drink and give Lizzie one but you need not carry any away as there are several others on the way. A little way up the road at the right was a barn and at the left a house entirely gone. John P. Allen lived there.

Farther along was a large two-story house at the left. Deacon David Allen lived here and later Nathan Witter. It was burned some years ago.

Now we come to a fork in the road. We will keep to the right and soon come to a very busy corner where Eleazer Smith has a sawmill, a grist mill, a blacksmith shop and a carding mill. Imagine people coming to get a horse shed and having a bag of corn tied carefully in the center and at the end (the end string was usually sewed onto the bag) then the bag was put on the horse and then the man, and large sacks of wool from the white sheep and some from the black sheep tied on around him to be cleaned and carded into rolls for his wife and the girls to spin and weave into cloth or double twist and make into yarn for mittens and stockings. We will go across the bridge. This is the first time we have come to Appaquag (or Little River).

We will turn to the left here and the first house was the Hubbard Adams house. His daughter married Col. Ethan Allen who owned the woolen mill at Hanover for many years. Later Dillis Morse lived there. The next house Jesse Peck lived in and then we turn to the left again just beyond it and soon come to a gate, or perhaps it is only a gape in the wall. Now we will go in. There used to be a house here built by C. A. Hilberts when he owned the mill at Fort or Ford Ned. The house was spoken of with a kind of awe and called the mansion and had hot and cold water in every room up stairs and a furnace down cellar. It was built high with terraces on the west and north, had a veranda across the front and sides and a high tower room over all. In the grounds were evergreen trees and fruit trees, roses and other flowers. It was this Isola Forrester, the story writer, chose as her home in the story of her life, written for the Saturday Evening Post. Her people of the United States for a short time until George Washington was inaugurated.

We are not many miles from Windham's famous frog pond where all the bass frogs sang Colonel Dyer, and the tenors all sang and Elderkin too, when they flocked across the country for a drink at the river.

There was a trip hammer there years ago and a young man named from Scotland to walk to Windham to take the Hartford and Providence stage coach for Hartford. It was not light when he got to the trip hammer and as he had heard much about it decided to raise the gate a little and see it trip, close it and go along. But the hammer dropped before the gate was hardly started up and before he could let it tripped again and again. He worked fast to shut the gate but could not and the hammer made a noise that could be heard half a mile at least. He saw lights in many windows and thought he could not afford to raise the stage, so left. He never went back to ask about it as he did not think it wise.

As we go into Windham near the foot of the hill is a gambrel roofed house that was pointed out as the British officers' quarters and the brick house farther on the jail, but later was told they were not.

As we stand on the street by the church we see the old Windham bank now a library. Here are collected a number of historical papers and Bacchus sits on his keg with his basket of fruit. He was carved by a prisoner from a solid piece of wood. We can see east and of the inn that is so old and a brick house one of the colonels lived in.

And here those that go to Norwich can take the left hand road and go through South Windham all the way home on a good road, or the right hand to Willimantic. I shall go back the way we came. If, when I get to Pudding hill I want to see a little more of the Nipmuck path and the Appaquag river I can go to Hampton or take the left turn where C. E. H. lived and see a little of it at the river.

But I think I will go home and make a

JOHNNY CAKE.

HUMOR.

Dear Social Corner Friends—What a wonderful thing it would be if a sense of humor could be bottled or put up in tablet form so that all those who do not possess it naturally could be supplied by their druggist. For it has been well said that "the one quality that has won more success, brought more happiness, kept together more homes, cured more illness, and kept more people out of insane asylums than any other three qualities combined is a sense of humor." A sense of humor will enable one to have a good laugh and ease the tension of nerves that are at the breaking point and we all know it is true as Ella Wheeler Wilcox said,

"Laugh and the world laughs with you,
Weep, and you weep alone."

Humor enables one to smile in the face of adversity and how else can adversity be so well met and disarmed? A wife with this blessed sense gets along with a husband who would be impossible to any woman lacking it and on the hand the husband endowed with this quality can actually take comfort with a wife who has lots of trying things in her temperament. And to the tired mother with children whose bodies must be cared for and minds and souls trained that they may be fitted to become worthy citizens. What is there to take the place of this rejuvenating sense of humor? As Edmund Vance Cook says,

"Keep your face with sunshine lit,
Laugh a little bit,
All the shadows off will flit,
If you have the grit and wit
Just to laugh a little bit."

So let us see to it that we get a share of this saving sense of humor even if we do go without a new car this spring. How fine it is to see our page overflowing with helpful and entertaining letters. With sympathy to all in trouble.

JACK-IN-THE-PULPIT.

USING LEFT-OVER THREAD

Dear Social Corner Friends: I do hope the editor has not crossed my name off the list. I have not written in a long time but am still very much interested in the Corner and read all the letters. But it's hard to get around to write. I can read the Corner page with my baby in my arms, but I cannot write with her, and I cannot write letters like some of the sisters, for I am not gifted that way.

Guess Who: Many thanks for sending in so many nice recipes.

To the sister who sent a good way of sewing on snap fasteners: I have tried it, with fine results.

Sister Ready: Do you know where your Aunt Joe is now? I would love to have her address.

Kitty Lou: Your letters are always so helpful. Have a relative who always reads them, although not a member.

Starbright: You have my sympathy in the loss of your mother. Had met her a few times and thought she was lovely, and I know she was one grand in-law. It must seem so empty at home now. Have you run down to the cottage lately?

Only a Link: Are going to try your butterscotch pie; it sounds good.

I, too, think it would be nice if the sisters in reporting the death of a sister would put their names in as Aries did. Many times we read about the passing of someone in the paper and do not know they are Corner members.

Now I want to tell the sisters what I do with my left-over thread. You know when making different things you get a spool of thread and don't use it all up, so it's left to hang around. Well, I use all kinds and colors to sew carpet rags on the sewing machine—dark colors for dark rags and light colors for light rags. And you can do the same thing for piecing bedquilts, and when hubby's double cuffs are worn on his best shirts I rip them up and turn them around and sew on again and you have a new cuff.

Best wishes to all.

ANASTASIA.

GREETINGS FROM MOSES' WIFE

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: Many thanks to ladies of Danielson for such a fine dinner and good time.

Plum: Welcome home from hospital.

Last Rose of Summer: Hope you are feeling better.

Irma: Have you been to see Mr. and Mrs. Felix lately?

Keziah Doolittle: I lost that S. Could you send another?

Harry E.: I met your mother. Was sorry you weren't at last meeting. Yes, the bride looked fine. Didn't we have a fine time at the wedding?

Great G.: How about that Johnny cake? How would a piece of watermelon taste?

Buffalo: Wish I had a dish of those beans.

Merry Dimples: That was a pretty name you gave me.

Ann Tenna: Did you listen in to WEAF on Y. M. C. A. Sunday? If so, how did you like it?

LILY PAD: How did you get home with the car over the rocks?

Best wishes to all Social Corner sisters.

MOSES' WIFE (Club No. 4).

NOT INTERESTED IN CHICKEN BUSINESS

Dear Editor:
Oh where, Oh where is my silver tea spoon?
Oh where, Oh where is it hidden?
Look at C. A. E. hall, in gay Danielson,
With a white string tied around its middle.

We met at Club No. 4 happens to see his special article, just inside the menu. We may be barred, notified the auxiliary, the Birds might direct flocks of a flight to us. Occasionally one sees a sensible jay, scolding as usual and industriously hunting for breakfast. Several cowbirds stay with my pigeons all winter. One perches on top of my chimney in the daytime, to keep warm, I presume.

Someone asked how many Social Corner folks were preparing to enter the chicken business. I will say "Not me!" The chicken business is overcrowded now. At the high price of grain it is impossible to compete with China. It is said China will swamp us and drown us all in omelet (figuratively speaking). People already in the chicken business, who have proper equipment, advertise lustily to try to induce other people to purchase. That is business. But it is my experience that one cannot produce eggs and fowl, at regular market prices, at a profit in competition with western and foreign producers. It is my belief that 12 hens and one male, well fed and free from lice and diseases, and in proper quarters, give better results than 100 fowl half fed and in miserable condition. I would advise people to grow vegetables. Everyone must eat, and vegetables can be canned, dried or shipped; same with small fruit. Let's raise lots of strawberries and other fruit. They are so healthful and don't forget to raise lots of flowers this year.

I wish to thank all friends for cards and letters. Hope to see you all at Putnam, Club No. 4 meeting. Anyone going our way, stop and take Lindsay and myself along with you.

Tacoma: Where are you? Au revoir.

ARIES.

STILL ROOM FOR NEW MEMBERS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: I, too, attended Club No. 4's meeting at Danielson and enjoyed the day very much. I suggested at the meeting during the afternoon that we either take one week during the month of February, or the whole month, and call it Club No. 4's time and as many as would should write a letter for the Corner page. I have been much pleased to note the letters from Club No. 4 thus far this month and am looking for more. Our new members, some of them, keep us guessing. However, they are welcomed just the same and still there is room for more.

No, Keziah Doolittle, I have not a picture of M. H., except in memory. We missed you at Danielson. Glad that plum has returned home. Hope she will recover rapidly.

Airy: What has become of you? I will see that you are not left out in the cold for the next meeting.

Well, Moses' Wife, if you get cold at the next meeting, I am going to send for the Penny Doctor at once.

Sorry to learn of Jack's Wife's death. I am sure we all extend our sympathy to the bereaved family.

Derinda: Did your parents have a portrait of Rev. C. H. Peckham when he was a young man? If so, was the portrait sold among other pictures at the time of the auction in Franklin, Conn.?

U. C. E.: Time you had at least a day and a night off for a vacation. Come to Putnam to Club No. 4's next meeting and look up Buffalo, where you may find at least a night's lodging.

I wish to thank Miam and Lindsay for the very pretty birthday cards received.

If not too late, may I wish all a happy and prosperous new year.

BUFFALO.

FINE TIME AT CLUB NO. 2

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I'll say we had a fine time Tuesday at Club No. 2, and I knew everybody agrees with me. Nearly everyone turned out to enjoy it. I was surprised to meet friends there that I didn't know were sisters. We are all in sympathy with those sick sisters who were unable to attend, and hope that next month we will be able to celebrate the anniversary with all hands on deck.

Catnip: I hope the space you saved for your piece of Washington pie didn't give you any discomfort. Mine didn't. I was surely surprised.

Sister Ready: I hope you will favor us again. You and your helpers deserve first place for putting the day over as you did. I was some surprised to meet you there. I always think of you when I use my pyrex custard cups. I hope the next time you wish to get off for the afternoon to attend the movies with the Colonel and Tom you won't have quite so much trouble about it, or about leaving the dishes in the sink with a towel over them. But you won out as it was.

Well, here's hoping for a good crowd next month.

GEORGETTE.

GINGHAM GIRL'S GREETINGS

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: It has been such a long time since I have written to the Corner, I decided that the next time I was not doing anything special I would write. We certainly have had a very nice winter. These nice sunny days make us feel as though we would rather be outdoors than sitting in the house. There is not much more of winter so why should we worry?

I am very glad to see the Corner getting larger and so many new names every week.

Dece: Had a very nice time the other night. Did you get cleaned up from the time?

Hollyhock: Where have you been keeping yourself this winter?

Butterfly: How many rugs have you made this winter?

1492: I have done my part. How is it?

My sympathy extends to all who are in trouble, or sickness, and a kindly thought to the well ones.

Sincerely yours,

GINGHAM GIRL.

STARTING A CLUB NO. 4 BOOK

Dear Social Corner Folks: A few weeks ago I received a neat little calendar attached to which were 12 bouquets of flowers, representative of the 12 months. And to the Social Corner Member who expended the time and money to send out so many of these unique little calendars I say thank you. Have received them for several years and when I run across one it always brings pleasant memories. I also want to thank those who remembered me with holiday and birthday cards.

The meeting of Club No. 4 on Jan. 21 was a success from start to finish and surely it is a great pleasure to the hostesses to know that every one is aiding them in making the party a lively one.

There were 51 members and visitors present, and we have so many new members in Club No. 4 I do not know where I am at, so am going to start a Club 4 book and find out "who is who." Am going to check up all who have written this year, and in the next two or three months hope to see a letter reading Club 4 from every one who is a member of this club. We do not want to monopolize the Corner page, and the editor will see to that part.

Just Polly: Hope you are one of my members. Write a letter to the Corner and tell us all about it. Then there is Aldie, Barbara, the fellow with the long Indian name, and several more from whom we hope to hear.

Whistling and Puzzled: Sorry you have so much sickness in your families. Hope the sick ones are better soon.

There is a way to keep the feet warm while taking a fresh air cure at home: Place a suitable sized wooden box in which to put the feet. If a steamer rug or blanket is opened and so arranged that it is spread partly over the seat of the chair and partly within the box, a hot water bottle is frequently placed on the rug in the box and the ends of the rug drawn up and tucked securely about the lower limbs of the chair occupant, the feet are kept comfortably warm even on a day when the thermometer registers below zero.

My sympathy to all who are sick or in sorrow.

TWICE TWENTY (Club No. 4)

PLANNING A PUTNAM MEETING

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: Here I am again. Glad to get a name at last, so I guess we will succeed if we keep trying. We are having lovely weather so far, and spring will soon be here. I hope there will be good weather on Feb. 19, as I have been planning to get to Putnam and meet more of the Social Corner sisters and also to get a good dinner. I am sure we had a dinner fit for a king in Danielson. Hope I will not have to walk more than 1 1-2 miles. I was pretty lame the next day, but am all ready to try it again if there is no other way to get there. We expect to be working but will be there if possible. Awful glad to see two new members—Ham and Toast.

Aries: Thanks for my cute valentine which you gave me at Danielson meeting. Hope to return favor some time.

Rosy Posy: You see, I took your advice and succeeded in getting a name at last. Hope you are feeling fine, and hope to see you in Putnam.

Pep: Hope to see your letter in the Social Corner page before you forget how to write.

Butterfly: I suppose you are still making rugs. Hope you don't make them in your dreams.

Good luck and best wishes to every Social Corner member.

TRY AGAIN.

GREETINGS FROM PETER PROSE

Howdy, Folks: Well, I've arrived back in the Corner. Know no one has missed my writing, but I'm back in line and ready to say "Present!" Hope all the sisters are well and enjoying this lovely weather.

Peggy Alden: Yes, I had some more olives and guess I'm getting used to them, for I rather like them now.

Nelly Grey: Suppose Johnny is back at school and having a great time.

None-se-Pretty: Only wish I could see you. Thought you were coming up this way. Good weather to travel. Better come.

Lilac Lady: Was'sa'matter? Try to beat me by writing once in a while.

Keziah: Many thanks for cushion. I appreciate it very much.

Best wishes to editor, sisters and all readers.

PETER PROSE.

M. I. G.'S BROWN BREAD

Dear Social Corner Sisters: My letters are few but I take pleasure in reading the letters of others. They are very interesting. I don't want to be forgotten as a Corner member, so I must write. We had a lovely time at our last meeting. The tables were decorated with runners of national colors, and we had plenty of eats for all, and some to spare. I for one enjoy the Social Corner. You see many that you know and make new friends, and it gives you something to think about. May the good work go on.

I have made and tied one quilt and almost made another. That will have 500 blocks in it when finished. Am doing dressmaking besides and still making tatting.

Brown Bread: One cup of meal, one cup rolled oats, one-half cup molasses, scalded; when cool add one teaspoon soda in some milk to thin it, little salt and steam three hours; add a few raisins.

M. I. G. (Club No 5).

MISCELLANEOUS

Dear Editor and Corner People: It is quite time I thanked the Corner member who sent the very attractive calendar. It is quite unusual. Did you buy out the store? They all seem to be alike this year. I appreciate mine very much and found a good place for it. How nice to have the flowers appropriate for each month.

I agree with Black Eyed Susie about the faithful R. D. mail carrier. We have one of that kind too and he always brings along a cheerful smile with the mail and is more than accommodating.

Rural Delivery's joke about leap year and Lindbergh was good, but haven't you noticed some of the girls are flying too, so he better look out or he may get caught.

I was interested in the letter about "Some of Our Winter Birds" by The Friendly Voice. Have always been fond of the birds. This winter a very small owl has come several times and sat in a tree very close to my window. I stared at it through the window and it twisted its neck around and stared at me.

A good chance to study the owl.

HEPATICA

HOUSECLEANING HINTS.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: As it is getting near housecleaning time here are just a few hints.

To clean a painted wall wash it with saleratus water, about one tablespoon of saleratus to a quart of warm water.

A piece of zinc placed on glowing coals will clean the chimney of soot.

A little lye put in paste will make the wall paper stick.

To drive a nail in plaster, heat it very hot and the plaster will not break. To drive nails or screws into hard wood always rub them with soap and they will go in easily and will not split the wood.

Shelline the inside of drawers and they will be easy to clean.

When you remove the waste from your carpet sweeper carefully cut the lint and hair from the revolving rolls and brushes. Then with a cloth dipped in kerosene rub the bristles and the inside of of the box clean and the oil will prevent the dust from rising when you sweep.

Best wishes, Foxglove, and thanks for card, Whirlwind.

EFFIE M. (Club No. 1)

GOOD TIME ASSURED

Dear Social Corner Members: The February meeting of Club 6 will be held Tuesday the 21st in Mechanics hall on Broad street, Westerly. Beers is to be the hostess and that insures a good time to all who attend. Come all who can and bring dishes and food with you.

E. L. M.

ANOTHER MEMBER

Mr. Editor: Dear Sir I have attended the Social Corner a number of times and I like it very much. I think they have wonderful good times. I think it helps neighbors to gather as nothing else would. I would like to join the Social Corner and Club No. 8. For my pen name I take

LINDY LEE.

EXPERIENCES IN OTHER WINTERS

Dear Social Corner Members and Editor: I, too, want to answer the roll call for 1928, and I also want to thank the Social Corner Member for the lovely calendar sent me.

I know you will be pleased to hear that it really did double duty. I was delighted the day the calendar arrived, not only with that but also with the thought that I was remembered with so many others. My son had one just like it for Christmas and when he saw mine he decided to send his to his aunt in New Haven. As I was going over a few days after, I took it over. I found her very sick with grippe and vaccination and you should have seen how delighted she was with the little potted plants, so you see you cheered up two homes that time.

What a wonderful winter we are having, but I suppose the little folks and some of the big ones are disappointed at the lack of snow.

I often think of an experience I had several years ago in sliding down hill, but not coasting. I was in the house with several young people who like myself had been brought up with strict ideas about Sunday. We were never allowed to play any kind of games but could go for walks and sometimes for a short ride in the middle of the afternoon. On this Sunday the snow was very deep but there was a very hard crust on it so we decided to go for a walk across the fields. As we were walking along a very high embankment one of the girls slipped, fell and slid down, landing on the ice in the brook at the foot of the embankment. She had such a good slide that we all decided to try it, so down we went. That was great fun, but when we tried to go up the hill again—that was another story. We would get up a few steps, then slip and slide down again, and we had no idea how many miles we would have to walk before we came to level ground. We found some sticks, but the crust was so hard we couldn't break it. We climbed and worked for about two hours and finally by each one pounding with one heel in the crust we were able to make small holes and managed to reach the top of the hill. We never tried sliding down hill that way again.

On another Sunday four of the small children in the house decided to take their father's two-wheel gig and by putting the shafts up the hill they could sit in it and ride down hill. This went fine for a long time, but finally they didn't get it loaded just right and just as they reached the foot of the hill up came the shafts and over they all went into a big mud puddle, and such a sight as they were! We had some hard work but lots of good laughs along with it.

Hope we may see lots of our members out to the meeting of Club No. 6 on Feb. 21.

Tich: Hope to see you Tuesday and please tell your son that I did enjoy the music so much.

Comnos: Haven't seen you for such a long time. Hope you can get down Tuesday.

If it isn't too late, want to wish you all a happy and prosperous New Year.

SKIPPER.

REALLY A SOCIAL CORNER

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: Hope you are all feeling fine after our meeting Jan. 31st. What a fine time we did have, and such a lovely dinner and good social time together! I think our club is rightly named. Surely it is a social corner.

Ann Tenna: Was sorry not to see you at the Danielson meeting.

Lindsey: I want to thank you very much for pretty birthday card, and Balsam Fir for pretty card sent me. I will write as soon as I can get to it.

Pine Cone: Haven't seen you since we went to club meeting. Hope you are all right.

Butterfly: I guess it is safe to say you are the champion rug maker. I would like to see all those lovely rugs you have made.

Hope all the sick members are now on the gain, and hope to see you all Feb. 29th.

FAN TAN (Club No. 4)

REQUEST FOR MANY WRITERS.

Dear Editor and Sisters of the Social Corner: I was able to see so many sisters at the February meeting of Club No. 1. Just Jill was a good hostess and what a fine table she had with flowers and candles! It sure did look fine.

Aunt Alice: What has become of you? Don't ever see that you write. Do get busy.

Tuny Ann: Sorry you hurt your hand. Hope it will soon be better so we will see a letter from you; also Paleface.

Buttercup: What about a letter from you? Are you too busy to write?

Effie M.: We sure do have a good time with you at the meetings.

Lavender: Hope you weren't sick as I didn't see you with us Feb. 8th.

Balsam Fir: How are you and your daughter? Hope she is gaining since she went to Maine. Many a night we two spent together. Can you guess who I am?

Sarepta: Why don't you write? I hope you will come and attend our next meeting in Willimantic and I sure will see you.

Best wishes to all.

FREELOVE (Club No. 1).

WELL WORTH THE LONG WALK.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I am not a writer but will try to do my part by sending a few lines to let the sisters know we got home safely after that 7 1-2 mile walk. Stubbs, Snooser, Try Again and I took it and it was certainly worth it. We traveled five miles to get our appetites and two and a half miles for digestion. The program was wonderful, especially that piece one of the sisters gave. It is surprising the memory some people have. The old songs, so dear to everybody, were much enjoyed.

Hope we all meet again in Putnam February 29. Maybe I'll have to walk six miles but I'll be there if possible. Glad to see so many new members, including Ham and toast. That sounds good for Club No. 4. I like to see Saturday come so I can read the Corner letters, they are so interesting.

Rosy Posy: Hope we will see you in Putnam.

Aries: I thank you for that little envelope you gave me in Danielson. You said you'd take care of my washboard. I haven't seen you since.

Skinny: Where are you? Wake up.

Best wishes to all and may those sick or in trouble have speedy recovery.

SALMON RECIPES.

Dear Social Corner Sisters — I'll tell you how to make different meals out of salmon.

Salmon Patties—1 can salmon, 4 eggs, 3 tablespoons thick sweet cream, half teaspoon salt, pinch of pepper, 4 tablespoons cold water, sifted bread crumbs 3 cups, white sauce half cup, finely cut celery, 3 slices of toast. Flake the salmon, add 2 eggs slightly beaten the cream, salt and pepper. Mix and shape in small flat cakes. Coat with 2 eggs beaten with cold water covr with sifted bread crumbs. Saute in butter until well browned on both sides. Serve each cake on a slice of toast and cover with white sauce to which celery has been added. Serves eight persons.

Season, add two raw egg yolks, cool, shape into cutlets, roll in flour then beaten egg diluted with milk, dip in bread crumbs and fry in deep fat to a golden brown. Serve with tomato or cream sauce.

Scalloped Eggplant with Salmon—One and half cups mashed cooked egg plant, one can salmon, half cup dried bread crumbs mixed with one-fourth cup melted butter one and a half cups medium thick white sauce. Mix thoroughly, put in buttered baking dish, cover with bread crumbs and bake half hour in moderate oven.

BROWNIES, JELLY ROLL AND SOAP.

Dear Social Corner Sisters— Am glad to see so many interesting letters and good recipes. Will send in some I have tried lately though new to me.

White Tulip—Am glad the children liked my mince meat bread. Perhaps they would like these brownies.

Brownies—One-half cup butter, 1 cup sugar, 2 squares melted chocolate, one tablespoon milk, half cup pastry flour after it has been sifted, vanilla, one cup broken walnut meats, one teaspoon baking powder. Bake in sheet tin. When cold cut in squares. I am very fond of these.

Jelly Roll—Four eggs, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup pastry flour after sifting, 1 teaspoon baking powder, flavoring. Bake in sheet tin 10 to 12 minutes. Turn out on waxed paper, spread with jelly, roll quickly, dust with powdered sugar. This is the nicest one I ever made.

Soap—dissolve 1 can potash in one quart of cold water, stir until dissolved with a stick using granite kettle. Melt 6 lbs of grease, strain through cheese cloth into granite dish pan, dissolve three dessert spoons of sugar and the same amount of borax in hot water about a half pint, add to lye. Put in 1-2 cup of ammonia, stir well. Rinse a large dripping pan in cold water. Now stir lye into lukewarm grease until it looks like honey. Then pour into wet dripping pan and let set. When cold mark in squares.

VISITING NORWICH 51 YEARS AGO

Dear Editor and Friends: I see they are writing up Norwich 50 years ago. Well 51 years ago last August I spent a day in the Rose of New England, the pleasantest day I ever had. I went to visit my sister who lived with her aunt in Versailles on the river bank by the big bridge. It was at camp meeting time so auntie said one morning "We are going to the camp meeting." Well I wanted to go but sister said, "No, Tiny you can't. We can't be bothered with you." So they got ready and went. When out of sight I went for the lounge. Maybe I wasn't making some noise. Soon uncle came in and said, "Tiny, goodness the the folks will think a caravan has let loose. Get up and wash your face, put on your other dress and get your purse and hat." So I did, and he took out a bright half dollar and put it in my purse. Oh my wasn't I rich! Then we got in the buggy and started going across the bridge. He said we were going to Norwich. We passed through Occum, a pretty little village, then on through Taftville, a neat clean pretty little factory village. It all looked so nice. Then into Greeneville, where it was also neat and clean and on to the city. It did look so nice. He put the horse in a barn and we went out to see the city. He showed me some beautiful buildings and then the new court house. We went all over it but one room. He said they were holding court. I said "Are they courting like sister and Bob?" He smiled and replied, "Well not quite." Then we went up Laurel Hill and he showed me the house where daddy and his chum Charley Cobb once boarded. Then we came down and I saw a yard filled with white blocks and he said they were blocks to press men's hats and ladies bonnets. Coming down I got a glimpse of the river. He said it was the beautiful Thames. Oh how pretty it did look. Then I went on a steamboat and we went on it. Then we went out and he showed me the most beautiful place I ever saw. He said it was Buckingham's place. Well it sure was a palace. There was one place more daddy told me to be sure and go to. That was to see the colored shoe maker named Smith. We went in. After they had a talk we started for home and passed some of the most beautiful places I have ever seen. That was the happiest day I ever spent.

Many thanks to members of Club No. 4 for the box. It was so nice to be remembered.

L. T. H.: Hope you are feeling better.

Ann Tenna: Hope your cold is better.

My prayers are for those that are in sickness or trouble.

CLUB NO. 4 ENTERTAINS MARCH 1

Dear Social Corner Folks: The Putnam sisters of Club No. 4 invite all members of the Social Corner to meet with them on Thursday, March 1, in the vestry of the Methodist church, corner of Grove and Bradley streets. Please bring dishes and food, as usual, and come prepared to respond at the roll call.

PRIMROSE.

HINTS ON STAMPING AND HOOKING RUGS.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Good morning, one and all! May I have a little chat with you? It is quite a while since I have written a letter, but I am always anxious to read them all. And there are many good ones. I always like to read Ann Tenna's and enjoyed the ones on cats, for I also love cats.

Now I want to pass along a hint that might help some one of you. I made a white crepe night gown, and I wanted to embroider a pattern of a rose and buds, one on each side of the front of the night gown. As I had only one transfer pattern I did it this way. I used the pattern on the right side of the gown, and then the pattern was still very plain but there was no mark of it left to mark my other side. So I laid it just where I wanted the pattern stamped and worked right over the paper. When I had it all embroidered I tore the paper off and my flower looked just as nice as if it had been stamped before working it. To the sisters who hook rugs here is another hint: If you want to hook a burlap try this: Take a plain piece of burlap and buy a transfer pattern suitable for a bedspread and place it in the center of the burlap. Sew it on real tight, now with a fine point hook, hook right through the paper, and tear paper off as the work progresses. One can buy the stamped pattern in colors, but they are more expensive than those just stamped in one solid color such as black.

I have hooked five rugs in the last two winters, and I have found this to be a help. Instead of having all the rags in a bag or box where they have to be turned over and over to get the color one wants, I cut all mine about 10 or 12 inches long, and make a bundle of one color and tie it in the center, when I need blue or yellow I just draw one piece out and I can see what color I want just at a glance, without turning the bundle of rags over and over. If one is hooking flowers, and finds it hard to shade them save all the pictures you find in colors which appear in different magazines. Also if you have an old wall paper book it will give you ideas of how to shade the flowers and leaves.

V. B. A.: I'd like to see the rug your friend is making as I intend to make one also. I am hooking one now 28x42. I like to hook with the crochet point hook far better than any hand machine. The hand machine goes much faster, but I do not care for it.

Will close by wishing every sister health and happiness.

GOOD ADVICE

Dear Editor and Everybody: I am sending a poem entitled "Bird With the Broken Pinion," to be used when possible, also a bit of good advice:

"It was intended that life should be a glory and not a grind." It rests with us to make it so.

There are exceptions to all rules, and this is one of them: "It never pays to advertise your troubles." Don't do it.

"Happiness is largely a matter of voluntary selection. Choose good and joy will follow you. Select evil and sorrow will camp on your trail." There is nothing surer than this.

Edgar Guest says: "To see good put in action is what everybody needs."

To him that overcometh I will give, was said.

Trust in that promise and go ahead.

Said somebody: "I am not fighting my fight. I am singing my song." To do that is the part of wisdom. Life should be one glad sweet song instead of the dirge it is with many people.

"If you want to meet a smile, take it with you all the while. If you wish good cheer to greet, give the same to all you meet. If you want the good to

ANN TENNA (Club No. 4)

VALUABLE TO HOUSEWIFE.

Dear Corner Friends—Here are some household helps.

When sprinkling flat pieces, such as towels, pillow slips, napkins, curtains, handkerchiefs and the like for ironing, dip one article in five in clear water, squeezing, not wringing, as dry as possible, lay flat two dry articles and then one wet one, then two dry and so on, rolling tightly when all are done. These will be no dry spots and every piece will be a good even dampness. It is a pleasure to iron clothes sprinkled this way.

Before cutting cake which is iced hold the knife in boiling water for a few seconds and you will be able to cut without the ice breaking.

The marble tops from old fashioned bureaus and wash stands make excellent slabs for bread and pies.

Potatoes will bake more quickly if boiled in salted water for ten minutes before being put in oven.

To preserve parsley, dry it in a cool place, then put it in air-tight tins or boxes.

A teaspoon of raspberry jelly dropped into each cup before hot tea is poured into it will give a mysterious aroma and flavor.

After boiling salt beef, leave two or three carrots in the liquid until cold. The carrots will absorb the salt in the liquid and it can be used for soup.

Place a clean newspaper each day on the shelf of the gas stove where you put dishes to heat and many a disfiguring black mark will be avoided.

SOMEONE'S EQUIPMENT

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I seem to find nothing but dishes to write about every time. You see I am one of the last ones to go home so if anything is left why of course I find it. Someone left their plate, cup and saucer, etc., tied in a linen napkin on the desk near the door after the last meeting of Club No. 6. I brought them home and will take them to the meeting next Tuesday and hope the owner will be there.

Some time I am going to write a real letter but just now my time seems pretty well taken every day so will say goodbye and hope to see a good number out for Tuesday.

THANKFUL FOR ASSISTANCE

Social Corner Editor and Sisters: I wish to thank all who brought food and helped in any way to make the gathering of Club No. 2 a success on Feb. 14.

Yours as ever,

SISTER READY.

WHEN QUESTIONS ARE ASKED.

Dear Social Cornerites: Nearly every week a new name is added to club No. 4. What a big, big family we must be now. Such a jolly family, too. Nelly Gray says, "They do not ask any questions as to who you are or what your religion, but reach out their hand in a hearty welcome."

The editor said, "Caro Asks Questions." It sends me back to my childhood, when our old white-haired pastor said, "This little girl asks questions, which shows she will gain in wisdom." I can remember my dear mother saying, "Oh, I don't know, go ask your dad." Children certainly do ask very perplexing and very curious questions and I think they should be answered truthfully. It may mean so much in future lives.

My little niece used to say, "I will

EXTREME DECLINES OF 5 TO 19 POINTS IN BREAK IN FINAL HOUR OF MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 17 (AP)—The stock market today experienced the most drastic reaction since that which followed the famous "I do not choose to run" statement of President Coolidge last August. Heavy selling orders for both accounts carried scores of leading industrials and rails down 3 to 5 points while extreme declines of 5 to nearly 19 points, a small part of which were recovered, took place in a scattering of specialties.

Trading, which had been relatively dull until the last hour, took such a sudden spurt at the close that the ticker was 30 minutes late in recording the final quotation. The day's sales fell just short of 3,000,000 shares.

Wall street could point to nothing in the day's news on which to hang the reaction. It was generally conceded, however, that pool manipulation in recent weeks had created a number of speculative peaks which needed to be flattened out. Failure of the market to make any appreciable response to the decrease of $15,635,000 in brokers' loans and the unusually favorable 1927 earnings reports of the General Motors corporation and the Pennsylvania railroad inspired "bear" attacks which eventually dislodged a number of stop-loss orders, and sent the whole market running down-hill in the last hour of trading. The few rallies which took place were rather feeble in character.

While the drop in brokers' loans last week was regarded as favorable, the total outstanding is still more than one billion dollars above that of a year ago, and a further sharp contraction is generally regarded as desirable to offset the unfavorable publicity given to the subject in recent weeks. Call money renewed today at 4 1-2 per cent, and dropped to 4 1-4 around mid-day. Time money and commercial paper rates held firm.

Among the active issues, Midland Steel Products, preferred, and Greene Cananea Copper were the hardest hit. Midland preferred broke 18 3-4 points to 211, as against a high of 315 in December, and Cananea collapsed 16 1-2 points to 116, as compared with a high of 164 1-2 early this year. Net declines of 5 points or more were recorded by Adams Express, American Zinc & Lead preferred, Barnet Leather, Calumet & Arizona, Dupont, Gold Dust, International Business Machines, International Nickel, Montana Power, Montgomery Ward, New York Dock, Standard Milling, Timken Roller Bearing, Transue & Williams, U. S. Industrial Alcohol and Warren Bros.

U. S. Steel common sold off more than 5 points to 140 7-8 despite the recent improvement in the steel business. General Motors made up the $1.36 dividend which came off the stock today on the first sale at 136 3-4, but subsequently sold down to 133 and closed slightly above that figure for a net loss of 2 1-8. American Can dropped from a high of 80 1-8 to 76 7-8 off 2 3-4 net; Hudson Motors lost more than 4 points at 73 1-4.

In addition to the uneasiness over brokers' loans, Wall street also has expressed concern over the recent increase in unemployment and the small margin of profit in several of the leading industries.

Weekly mercantile reviews were somewhat mixed, Bradstreet's characterizing conditions as "rather more spotty" while Dun's found some signs of additional gain. Receipt of more than $2,000,000 in gold from Canada was offset by an almost equally large shipment to South America.

Foreign exchanges held steady in quiet trading. Sterling cables were quoted around $4.87 15-32.

Reactionary tendencies also predominated in the commodity markets, but the losses were not large. Wheat and corn fell about a cent a bushel and cotton closed only 2 to 7 points net lower after an early advance of nearly $1 a bale.

Following the wedding the couple will reside in Niantic.

The Woman's auxiliary to St. John's Episcopal church held a card party Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Marion R. Davis.

Nanny Hears a Queer Noise.

If eyes should fall you, it is clear,
You then must trust to nose and ear.
—Nanny Meadow Mouse.

Most of the little people of the Green Meadows and the Green Forest will agree to that. Nearly all of those who wear fur put more faith in their noses and their ears than they do in their eyes. They know that eyes are more often fooled than are nose or ears. And of those who depend on their noses and ears most of them put the most faith in their noses.

Nanny Meadow Mouse had no hope that Danny was alive. If you could have asked her she would have told you that she knew he wasn't alive. She knew that he had been caught and eaten by Roughleg the Hawk. She had seen him caught. She hadn't seen him eaten, but she had seen him caught. At least, she thought she had. You know, people often think they see things which they really do not see at all.

My, my, how lonesome Nanny was! She wanted to move away from there. Yes, sir, it seemed as though she just couldn't go on living there where everything reminded her of Danny. She wanted to move away, but this was no time to move. She was afraid to travel on top of the snow for fear she would be caught by Roughleg the Hawk or Hooty the Owl, and she couldn't travel under the snow without digging a long tunnel to wherever she wanted to go. And that was more work than she could undertake. So there was nothing for it but for her to continue to live where she and Danny had lived so long and been so happy.

It happened one day that she had gone out clear to the end of one of the longest of the little tunnels she and Danny had dug. There were some seeds out there of a kind of which she was very fond, and she had gone out for some of these. She was sitting there, thinking how fond Danny was of those seeds when her ears caught a little sound. She stopped eating in order that she might listen better. She listened for two or three minutes and heard nothing.

"I guess," said Nanny, "my ears fooled me," and once more began to eat the seed she liked so well. A few moments later she pricked up those little round ears of hers again. This time she knew she wasn't mistaken. There was a sound. It came from a little to one side. It wasn't much of a sound, but it was enough for Nanny to be sure of it. Her heart skipped a beat.

My, my! How lonesome Nanny was!

"Some one is digging in the snow off there," said she to herself. "Somebody is digging; now who can it be? Oh, dear! I wonder if more trouble is coming. Perhaps it is just another Meadow Mouse. I hope so."

She ran back a little way along the tunnel so as to be nearer home. Then she sat down and looked back. She felt sure that whoever was digging would sooner or later come out in their little tunnel. She wanted to see who it might be. She was all ready to take to her heels and run. It might be an enemy. Nanny was so lonesome that right down in her heart she hoped it would prove to be another Meadow Mouse. She just wanted somebody to talk to. She wanted to tell somebody what had happened.

So she waited, ready to run if an enemy should appear and ready to greet a friend if a friend it should prove to be.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Tom—I've waited 16 minutes. Have you forgotten me?

Walter—Not yet.—Detroit News.

Teacher—Now how old would a person be who was born in 1898?

Bright pupil—Man or woman?—Pathfinder.

Him—What's the name of the magazine you want me to buy?

Clerk—I forget, but you can't miss it—there's a picture of a girl on the front cover.—Life.

Bobby—Daddy! A boy at school told me that I looked just like you! The Dad—That so?—and what did you say?

Bobby—Nothin'. He was bigger'n me.—Passing Show (London).

Greene—I told my wife that if she bobbed her hair I would leave her.

Browne — But she bobbed it, and you're still living with her!

Greene—You bet I am. I'll show her she can't bluff me!—Montreal Star.

"Is this stuff reliable?" asked a dubious customer.

"Reliable!" cried the bootlegger. "Say, I've been selling from this consignment since early this morning, and I haven't heard of anybody dying from it yet."—American Legion Monthly.

Dealer—Yus, miss, these 'ere pigeons can find their way anywhere.

Girl—But you surely don't expect me to believe that a pigeon can find its way absolutely anywhere?

"Bless yer 'eart, my pigeons can. I crosses them with parrots and when they get lost they just ask the way!"—Tit Bits.

"Well, Tommy, did you behave in school today?" asked Tommy's father of his young son, who had not been going to school very long.

"Behave?" exclaimed Tommy in a tone of amazed surprise. "Of course I did! Why, the teacher said she never saw a pupil who behaved so."—Children.

WATERFORD MAN STOLE WATCH FROM NEW LONDON BENEFACTRESS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 17—John Mack, 57, a laborer residing at Quaker Hill, Waterford, was in the city court today, charged with theft. He pleaded not guilty, but upon the evidence submitted the court found him guilty and Mack was sentenced to 30 days in jail. Mack went to the residence of Mrs. Georgiana Talbot, 24 Lewis street, last December and requested food, for he was out of work. Mrs. Talbot said that she would feed Mack upon the latter's chopping wood for her. Mack agreed and after he had concluded his task he carried the kindlings into the house and left them near the stove. Mrs. Talbot had occasion to go to another part of the house while Mack was transferring the wood from the yard to the house and it was then that Mack saw a watch and stole it. Mrs. Talbot did not detect her loss until after Mack had partaken of his meal and had left the house. She reported the theft at police headquarters and stated that Mack had been the only person who could have had an opportunity to steal the watch. He was known to the police, but he was not seen about the city until yesterday, when Sergeant Nelson Smith observed Mack, and he was arrested. Mack has a long police record; he has been arrested many times charged with intoxication and vagrancy. He came to New London 11 years ago from Pawtucket, R. I., and has resided here since, mostly at the B. P. Learned mission, until he went to Quaker Hill to live, less than a year ago.

Daniel T. Hawkins and Raymond Smith, both colored and sailors, the former a member of the crew of United States Coast Guard destroyer McCall and the latter of the crew of the destroyer Trippe, were charged with breach of the peace. They pleaded guilty and fines of $10 were imposed in each case, but execution of the sentences was suspended. Hawkins and Smith had been drinking together last night and shortly before midnight while they were walking to the state pier they engaged in a quarrel. A fight followed and attracted a crowd as the battlers exchanged blows on Main street near the corner of Hallam street. The police were notified and Automobile Patrol Officer Augustus Ray and Patrolmen John Sullivan and Albert Iverson went and arrested the pair.

Ada Booker, Baltimore, Md., has written to the New London police in an effort to ascertain the whereabouts of her brother, William Booker. Booker is not known to the police, neither does his name appear in the city directory.

James Deskyne, United States Coast Guard, and Miss Theresa Hopkins, two occupants of the automobile which was wrecked by hitting a telephone pole on Bank street Wednesday morning, were discharged at Lawrence Memorial hospital today. The other two occupants of the car, William Pierce and Mrs. Allen Robbins, Old Lyme, are still patients at the hospital, but they will, it is expected, be discharged early next week.

Walter E. Johnson, alias Walter E. Webber, of Grand Rapids, Mich., was in the police court today charged with theft. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced to 30 days in jail. Johnson, who is one of several book agents who have been soliciting subscriptions about the city several weeks, obtained lodging accommodations at the home of Mrs. W. C. Barker, 10 Bulkeley place, when he first arrived here. Mrs. Barker went out of the city for several days and when she returned she discovered that her watch and a ring were missing and Johnson was also absent. She reported the theft at police headquarters, but no trace of Johnson was obtained until yesterday when he was arrested by Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin and Patrolman Henry Sylvia. When Johnson was taken to police headquarters he denied strongly that he had any knowledge of the theft of the jewelry, but finally confessed committing the theft and said that he had given the watch and ring to Mrs. Annie Hester, proprietress of the rooming house at 119 Golden street, where he had been stopping since he left the home of Mrs. Barker, in payment of room rent. The police recovered the watch and ring and returned them to Mrs. Barker.

The funeral of Edward H. Caulkins was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at his residence, 61 Franklin street, and was attended by a large assemblage of mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. Chester H. Howe, pastor of the First Baptist church. The bearers were members of Palestine commandery. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery, where the committal service was conducted by Eminent Commander Morris Ruoff, assisted by members of the commandery.

William Henry Harrison Chappell, 87, died last night at his residence in the Lake's Pond district, Waterford, after a lingering illness resulting from infirmities attending Mr. Chappell's advanced years. He is survived by two sons, George and Legrande Chappell; also by a daughter. Mr. Chappell was born in Waterford and always resided there. He operated a farm successfully for many years, until his health became impaired.

Albert, year and four months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Grippo, 35 Truman street, died last night at the residence of his parents.

Gordon Anthony of Edgewood, R. I., a patient at Lawrence Memorial hospital, was discharged today. Anthony was one of two occupants of a motorcycle which was wrecked in Waterford several months ago when, after colliding with an automobile, it struck a pole beside the highway, attached to which was a metal rural mail box. Anthony's leg was so terribly lacerated by the metal that the member was amputated.

Mrs. Robynson, Room 19, Shannon building, Norwich, reported to the police this afternoon that she had lost, on Truman street earlier in the day, a large pocketbook containing papers of value to no one but herself.

Richard J. Manion of this city and Mrs. Elizabeth Willis of Jewett City were married by Rev. C. S. M. Stewart Wednesday evening at the residence of the clergyman, on Brooks street. Fred M. Furlong and Miss Minnie Tyndall, the latter a sister of the bride, were the witnesses. Mr. and Mrs. Manion will make their home at 22 Ledyard street.

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Lubow of Montauk avenue of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Doris Lubow, to David Lahn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Lahn of Hillside avenue, Westerly. Mr. Lahn is associated with his father in the drygoods business.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Evarts, 172 Howard street, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ruth Elizabeth Evarts, to Walter R. Palmer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Palmer, of Noank.

Patrolman George Perkins tonight reported the existence of a dangerous depression in the highway on Main street, near the corner of Crystal avenue.

Louis and Ida Lubchansky have sold a house and lot on Woodbridge street to Rosario Cardillo.

At a hearing before the board of compensation today in the municipal building, for the purpose of obtaining an expression of property owners on Bank street, between State and Tilley streets, as to the advisability of widening and repaving that section of the thickly traversed street and which is a cause of traffic congestion through-out the summer, it developed that Elmer E. Kenerson, former alderman and at present employed by the city as caretaker at Riverside park, was opposed to the contemplated changes of the street. Mr. Kenerson, who is a trustee of Mohegan lodge, I. O. O. F., appeared before the board and stated that at a meeting of the lodge last night that body voted unanimously against the changes being made as contemplated by the city. Mr. Kenerson's objection, as well as those of the trustees, was to reducing the width of the sidewalk in front of the Odd Fellows building. William F. Kingdon, another member of the trustees, who was in an ante-room, was called before the meeting and made contradictory statements in regard to the vote taken by the lodge. He said that there was a vote taken in the matter, but it was not unanimous to oppose the city's contemplated action. He is a member of the board of trustees and he voted against the lodge opposing the city. He believed if the city officials were of the opinion that the widening of the street should be made by reducing the width of the sidewalks, such a course should be followed. All the property owners on the street were in favor of the proposed widening of the street, other than Mr. Kenerson in his representation of Mohegan lodge. The matter will be acted upon later at a meeting of the city council.

THREATENED MANAGER, LAGRUA SENT TO NORWICH

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 17.—Sabitino Lagrua, of 71 Woodbridge street, exhibited unmistakable symptoms of insanity this afternoon when he went to a woman's store and threatened to dynamite the building. He is now a patient at Norwich State hospital, for he was arrested and after being examined was committed to the state institution. Lagrua went to the Style Shop about 1:15 o'clock and entered into a conversation with Joseph Polinsky, manager of the store, declaring that someone connected with the store had caused a "spirit" to haunt him and because of that fact he intended to have the place destroyed. Polinsky became alarmed at the actions of Lagrua and, going to the street, informed Traffic Officer William Corcoran of what had occurred. The officer went to the store and after conversing with Lagrua a brief time, became satisfied that the man was not mentally sound and arrested him. He was brought to police headquarters and taken to the detective bureau, where he was questioned at length. It was then made doubly sure that Lagrua was mentally unbalanced and City Physician George P. Cheney was summoned. After Dr. Cheney had concluded the examination, Lagrua was ordered committed to the asylum and Officers Cornelius Moriarty and Albert Iverson took the demented man to Brewster's Neck tonight.

The Kenneth LaFlamme fund was increased $16.50 Wednesday night as a result of a whist and pinochle party sponsored by Minnehaha council, Daughters of Pocahontas, in Odd Fellows hall.

Miss Alice Prentis, visiting nurse, is confined to her residence on Thames street, Groton, by illness. Miss Prentis' duties are being attended to by Mrs. Grace Bump, school nurse.

Patrolman and Mrs. Henry Sylvia will observe the tenth anniversary of their wedding tomorrow evening, at their home, 100 Ocean avenue.

Connecticut College Concert.

The remarkable and arresting things that have been written about Percy Grainger who appears in Bulkeley auditorium under the auspices of Connecticut College next Monday evening, by great musicians and artists in various countries, prove the extent and provocative nature of his personality and musical gifts.

When Grieg first met Grainger, he wrote in the Scandinavian press of the latter's playing as follows: "What is nationality? I wrote Norwegian peasant dances that none of my countrymen could play. Here comes this young Australian, and is the first to play them as they should be played. He has the true folk song poetry in him. Percy Grainger is a genius such as we Scandinavians must love."

Whippet Auto.

Unusual lines of beauty and design are characteristic features of the perfected Whippet which is being presented at the lowest prices in the entire history of the Willys-Overland company. The recent price reduction in the Whippet places this modern car in direct price competition with the lowest priced models in the light car field.

Although the basic principles of Whippet design are retained in the perfected models, certain refinements have been made which add materially to the beauty and grace of the car. Each model is distinctive for its rich exterior color combination while the interior appointments have a distinct luxury tone.

The perfected Whippet retains the low swung body, a type of design that has since been adopted by many other manufacturers, not only in the light car field but in cars that sell in the higher prices range.

The long, sweeping lines of the Whippet from the nickeled radiator to the rear are accentuated through the employment of full crowned fenders. In place of the old type sun visor, which was formed by a continuation of the roof line, a cadet type sun visor is used on the perfected Whippet. This imparts a smart military effect to the cowl section and also provides a wider range of vision.

Interior improvements likewise carry out the aim of the manufacturer to even increase the quality and equipment of the Whippet despite the new low prices. Remote door controls have replaced the old type of locks, thus providing an additional convenience for driver and passengers. An automatic windshield wiper is now standard equipment in place of the hand operated wiper on the original Whippets.

The rich upholstery blends perfectly with the exterior color schemes in each of the various models. The metal trimmings also are in keeping with the noticeable stamp of luxury. Not only are these interiors marked by luxury but utmost roominess is provided for driver and passengers.

The unusual reception being accorded the perfected Whippet in every city, town and hamlet of the nation since the price reduction was announced, indicates that this modern light car has quickly reached a position of quality leadership in the light car field.

Palace Theatre.

One of the most distinguished casts ever gotten together for any picture will appear in the forthcoming feature at the Palace theatre, The Cohens and Kellys in Paris, a Universal-William Beaudine production, co-featuring George Sidney and J. Farrel MacDonald in the title roles.

George Sidney portrayed the role of Cohen in the first Cohens and Kellys, which proved to be one of the greatest comedy hits ever filmed. It is said that tons of thousands of requests for "more Cohens and

Scene from "The COHENS AND KELLYS IN PARIS" A UNIVERSAL PRODUCTION

Kellys" practically compelled the producer, Carl Laemmle, to bring out the Paris adventures of the laughably famous Irish-Jewish firm as a super comedy.

Vera Gordon and Kate Price, who created the roles of Mrs. Cohen and Mrs. Kelly will appear again in the characters they have made. Gertrude Astor, with a fan following all her own, will play her accustomed role of dizzy vamp, while Sue Carol, as Miss Cohen, will supply the rest of the good looks to the production. Charles Delaney, popular leading man, will account for the role of young Pat Kelly who falls in love with the Cohen girl and thereby plunges the two families into a mad rush for Paris to stop the racial mistake.

PATRIOTIC PICTURES AT Y. M. C. A. SUNDAY

Betsy Ross and the American Flag in six reels will be the feature moving picture at the local Y. M. C. A. gymnasium on the coming Sunday at 4 o'clock.

The leading characters are Alice Brady and John Bowers.

This is a most stirring tale—the story of the making of the first American flag; a patriotic drama of Revolutionary days, centering about Betsy Ross, a widow who is commissioned by General Washington to make our first flag. The scenes of the Colonial period are carefully depicted and the story holds your interest throughout. This is the type of a picture that is greatly needed in these days, when patriots of the highest type are so valuable.

In connection with the picture of this wonderful feature, Principal Henry A. Tirrell of the Free Academy has consented to speak briefly on the topic, "What the American Flag Means." Patriotic songs will be used, and Hugh Kinder will furnish appropriate music for the entire service. The public is invited to attend. Children 11 to 15 admitted if accompanied by parents.

Strand Theatre.

The Midnight Sun, a picture remarkable for the dramatic strength of its story, for the richness of its scenes and for the acting power of its players is showing at the Strand on Sunday night only. It is a spectacular story of St. Petersburg, Russia, during the reign of the last czar. The story centers around a dancing girl who through the influence of a grand duke and one of Russia's financial kings, brings herself from the ranks of the Imperial Russian Ballet to the position of its premiere ballerina. Playing one against the other, the girl loses her heart to a young officer of the duke's household. Out of this with the aid of Nihilists' plotting comes intrigue, romance and drama. In the cast are Laura LaPlante, Pat O'Malley, Raymond Keane, George Siegman and a great galaxy of over 500 super players.

The glamour and mystery of the historic Los Angeles Chinatown together with a cleverly worked out plot and an exceptional cast goes to make Going Crooked one of the most fascinating crook comedy dramas ever filmed. The story revolves about the activities of a gang of jewel thieves, their one fatal slip, the love of a beautiful adventuress for the young district attorney who goes crooked to prove his love for her and the adventures of a stolid detective who bungles the case. Bessie Love and Oscar Shaw are cast in the leading roles. Others in the cast are Leslie Fenton, Gustav Von Seyffertitz, Edwin Kennedy and Lydia Knott.

Breed Theatre

Settings beautiful in their simplicity which achieve reality by elimination rather than detail; settings absolutely original as far as the screen is concerned—these are promised in First National's "The Private Life of Helen of Troy," which comes to the Breed theatre here, beginning tomorrow.

The film version of John Erskine's brilliant novel of the characters of Grecian mythology, is blazing new paths in movie stories; and Carey Wilson, producer of the picture was determined to make the sets as unusual as the story itself.

A staff of artists and designers spent months in advance of the picture to prepare a background idealistic and novel enough for the highly conventional theme and treatment of the story.

"The Private Life of Helen of Troy" features Maria Corda, Lewis Stone and Ricardo Cortez in the roles of Helen, Menelaos and Paris respectively. Alexander Korda directed the picture from Carey Wilson's screen version of the book.

REPORTS NORWICH JANUARY BUSINESS GOOD AS COMPARED WITH OTHER CITIES

With few exceptions, general business conditions in Connecticut during the first month of the current year were as good, and in many instances better than the same month a year ago, according to a survey of leading communities prepared jointly by local chambers of commerce and the Connecticut chamber of commerce.

In virtually every one of the communities surveyed building indications were very much greater last month than during January, 1927. Several communities reported increases in gas and electric consumption and in postal receipts. Two cities, however, reported decreases in the latter item. Bank debits and bank clearings also showed increases in some places and decreases in others. Industrial establishments in several communities reported operations at about normal, and as comparing favorably with conditions a year ago.

The reports made for Norwich and New London were the following:

Norwich

Secretary Pilcher of the Norwich chamber reported as follows: Building permits for January, 1928, increased over January 1927, the total amounting to 20 permits of $44,608 as compared with 9 of $14,141 last year. The total bank clearings show a slight decrease, the total being $7,256,972.74 for January 1928 as against $7,736,433 January, 1927. Total savings deposits on January 31, 1928, $38,431,378.28 on January 31, 1927, $39,750,006.64, and January 31, 1928, $42,452,236.23. Gas consumption for January, 1928, was 12,516,000 cu. ft.; for January, 1927, it was 14,497,000. Electric consumption for January, 1928, 929,970 kwh. as compared with 931,300 kwh. in January, 1927. The number of new telephones installed was 37 as against 64 of January last year. The number of removals was 32 as against 36 last year, which gives a net gain of 5 for this year as against 28 last year. Post office receipts for January, 1928, were $10,615.95, as compared with $8,388.79 last year. Retail conditions generally showed slight improvement as compared with January last year. The demand for insurance has improved and conditions industrially are gradually picking up. This summary, January business situation in Norwich is considered good as compared with other cities in New England of similar character and location.

New London

Secretary Garlepy of the New London chamber reported as follows: Business conditions in New London during January were about the same as last year with some gain. Perhaps the best barometer for computing community gain or loss is the consumption of gas and electricity which were as follows: A gain of 393 point three 100 cu. ft. over 1927, in gas consumption. In electric consumption there was a gain of 58,683 kilowatt hours in residence lighting, a gain of 41,544 kilowatt hours in commercial lighting and a gain of 118,112 kilowatt hours in commercial power. Postal receipts show an increase of $1,035.53. There was a gain of 308 telephone installations over January, 1927. The open winter favored builders who kept up continuous house programs during the month. Retail sales the early part of the month were rather slow, but came back well before the month closed. Nothing new in the industrial line developed during this period. The employment situation eased up somewhat when one of our large factories called in several hundred employes.

PRESENTED INSTRUCTIVE PAPER FOR PARK CHURCH WOMEN

The Women's Federation of Park Congregational church held its monthly business meeting on Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Hugh Henry Osgood Memorial parish house. Miss Hannah Crowell, president, opened the meeting with scripture reading and prayer. The reports for the month were presented and recommendedations of the executive committee adopted.

Mrs. Frederick W. Cary, chairman of the parish house department, then introduced Mrs. A. N. H. Vaughn, who gave a paper "Bits about Connecticut" which was most interesting and instructive.

Mrs. Vaughn presented vivid pictures of Connecticut's physical conditions; its early settlements; the hardships of the Puritan ancestors; the rigid "blue laws"; and the diversity of its products of the soil, mine and manufacture.

Delineating the early government, tribute was paid to the first governors, the cool, shrewd, politic statesmen and the resolute people who built the sturdy foundation of this state. Through hardships, trials and persevering effort "the forefathers blazed the way," thus "do these problems seem very different from our own as we have their experience and much greater opportunity." "We, who call ourselves their daughters must still fight on wisely and well as we may, not only for freedom of country, but freedom of action that shall protest and not destroy, freedom of religious principles that shall sustain."

Tea was served by Mrs. Aurin W. Payson, Mrs. Edward J. Graham and Mrs. Samuel E. Smiley, assisted by Misses Janet Blackstone, Muriel Hynd and Louise Evans. Mrs. William H. Allen and Mrs. Harrison Gray at the table. The new tea set, made possible by the initial gift of Mrs. William H. Allen, in memory of Mrs. Emily Pierce Wattles, was used for the first time in this parish house meeting.

CHIEF OCCUM VISITED HARTFORD INDIAN EXHIBIT

A reception was held at the old state house in Hartford Friday afternoon in honor of Chief Occum, a Norwich Indian, who spent the day there as a guest of the Hartford Grade Teachers' club. The chief came in connection with the exhibition of Indian relics shown this week under the sponsorship of the club and the Friends of Hartford at the old state house. He visited several schools in the morning.

The exhibition closed Friday evening.

Chief Occum appeared in full Indian dress and explained in detail many interesting objects that he brought with him to illustrate his address.

GRACE CIRCLE CELEBRATES ITS 33rd BIRTHDAY AT HOME

Grace Circle of the King's Daughters, of which Mrs Hezekiah Perkins is leader, celebrated the 33rd anniversary of its organization Friday afternoon by giving its annual birthday party to the members of the household at the Johnson Home. The exercises began at 3 o'clock and at 5 a fine supper was served. This consisted of creamed chicken in patty shells, rolls, pickles, cake, ice cream and coffee. At each place was fruit and a favor with candy. The members of the committee with Mrs. Perkins were Mrs. Harry E. Higgins, Mrs. M. E. Maguire, Mrs. Robt. H. Montgomery, Mrs. Alfred M. Haring and Miss Amy Burlingame.

In the entertainment of the afternoon the girls who assisted by singing and playing were Misses Louise Higgins, Emily Bidwell, Mary Shaver, Marion Agnew, Janet and Dorothy Harris and Janice Richards.

TILSON PUTS IN BILL FOR ANOTHER JUDGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17—A bill asking for an additional judge for the Second judicial district of the circuit court of appeals, which includes Connecticut, was filed in congress today by Floor Leader Tilson. This measure, which would increase the judges in that district, has the endorsement of Chief Justice Taft, Judge Swan and the Conference of Judges on the ground that the work of the Second district has more work than can be now accomplished by six judges.

Given Surprise Party

An agreeable surprise party was given Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Duhdaime, 551 Boswell avenue, in honor of William Burke. There were guests from Norwich, New Britain, Norwich Town, Montville and New London. Vocal solos were rendered by Mr. and Mrs. Peter Tracey, also George Cormier and Miss Doris White. There was black bottom and Charleston dancing by Mrs. William Burke and Miss Doris White.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and all left wishing Mr. Burke many more happy birthdays. Mr. Burke received many useful gifts.

AWARDED COMPENSATION FOR DEATH OF HUSBAND

A workmen's compensation award in the lump sum of $1,800 has been made by Commissioner Albert J. Bailey in favor of Mrs. Mary Kozlowski of 110 Geer avenue, widow of Antoni Kozlowski, who was an employe here of the American Woolen company, in which the liability was carried by the Employers Liability Insurance corporation, Ltd., of New Haven.

On Dec. 4, 1927, Antoni Kozlowski received a strained shoulder while working at the local plant of the American Woolen company, and which injury, Commissioner Bailey finds arose out of the course of his employment. The injury required medical treatment and the attending physician estimated that there would probably be ten days disability therefrom and that the patient would then be all right, but Commissioner Bailey finds, Kozlowski contracted pneumonia while at home on account of the injury and that his death followed on Dec. 16, 1927.

The finding says that claim for compensation was made and several conferences were held at which it developed that there was considerable doubt whether Mrs. Kozlowski would be able to sustain the burden of proof of injury arising out and in the course of the decedent's employment as being the cause of his death or contributing to it in any way, the causes of death having been given as lobar pneumonia and cardiac asthma. In view of this doubt and desiring to reach a compromise settlement of the case if possible, an agreement was reached by the respective parties, which agreement, Commissioner Bailey says, provided for a lump sum of $1,800 to the claimant by the respondents who also agreed to pay all reasonable medical bills incurred because of the injury in question.

Kozlowski left surviving him his wife, claimant in this claim for compensation, and the following minor children, John Kozlowski, aged 17 years; Charles, aged 14 years, and Annie, aged 9 1-2 years, the dependency of the claimant being admitted by the respondents.

In view of the circumstances, Commissioner Bailey says, and the doubt on the part of the claimant as to her ability to sustain the burden of proof which rests upon her in claiming compensation on account of the death of the decedent, and also considering the financial burden which would necessarily fall upon her if the claim were prosecuted at a formal hearing, this is found to be a proper case to settle on a compromise basis, and the agreement voluntarily reached is found to be a fair adjustment of the claim, and the same is approved.

WATER PLANS MADE FOR MANY YEARS AHEAD

Connecticut water utilities construction programs, when considered in connection with the fact that reservoir storage plants and watersheds now in service are more than ample for present needs, promise an abundant supply of pure water which will provide for any growth in fire, industrial, or household water demands in Connecticut for many years to come. Patronage of the water utilities has been growing steadily, but it is the policy of Connecticut water utilities to enlarge their facilities even more rapidly than their business growth, in order to be prepared for any emergency.

Throughout the state there are 110 water supply plants which administer, with ample reserve supply, to the present water needs of the people of Connecticut. The total number of reservoirs in use, or ready for use, in the state, number 227. Only a part of those supplies is drawn upon at any one time; but reservoirs must be constructed and maintained large enough to supply the wants of the water companies' patrons during the dry season of the year, when water demands are at their height and the supply at lowest ebb. Size of pipe lines must also be sufficiently great to permit full supply of water during the busiest hour of the busiest day of the year.

MARKED ONE DOLLAR BILLS MAY PROVIDE CLUE

In an effort to apprehend the gang of safe crackers responsible for a series of burglaries last Saturday at Norwich automobile salesrooms, Lieut. E. V. Streagan, commanding the Groton state police barracks, has broadcast an appeal to bankers and merchants to be on the watch for two bills of $1 denomination which were obtained in the loot taken last Saturday night from the salesrooms of the Irving E. Bogue Co.

Each of the bills, bore the stamp mark of the Royal Bank of Dublin and it is through this means of identification that the state police hope eventually to get track of the burglars.

Eight gold pieces taken from the Bogue salesroom may also prove of assistance to the investigating officers. Five of the pieces were of $5 denomination, the other three being $2.50 denomination. Anyone who should come in contact with the two bills or anyone asked to accept gold pieces from suspicious looking persons are requested to immediately communicate with the Groton barracks.

GAVE BIRTHDAY SURPRISE TO CHARLES A. DOWSETT

On Monday evening last about 35 members of the First Spiritual Union, descended upon the household of Charles A. Dowsett, president of that Society, and tendered him a surprise party of a strikingly jolly type. It was Mr. Dowsett's birthday, and knowing this, the various members of the church body collected a purse of gold and presented it to him in the course of the evening's entertainment. Mr. Dowsett, while actually and wholly surprised, proved quite equal to the emergency and after the presentation by Mrs. Louise Sumner Cobb responded to the very generous gift in a pleasing manner. Many other gifts were received by Mr. Dowsett and those too included gold as well as other useful articles. The evening was spent in social activities of varying natures and included vocal and instrumental music, recitations, games, after which delicious refreshments were served. Guests were present from out of town and the goodly number returned to their homes with the feeling that they had participated in a genuine and altogether delightful surprise wishing their host many returns of the day.

TAFTVILLE

A full house saw "A College Revue," a clever minstrel show produced at Ponemah hall Friday evening by the members of the minstrel troupe of Nemrod Grotto, M. O. V. P. E. R., of Norwich, under the auspices of the Dramatic club. The entertainment was given by the Grotto troupe as a return courtesy to the Dramatic club, the members of which gave their minstrel show at the Grotto hall several weeks ago. The jokes included many local hits, and the songs were snappy and catchy. Novel lighting effects were introduced during the minstrel. After the entertainment there was dancing, the music for which was furnished by Bourdon's orchestra. It is the plan of the Dramatic club to donate the proceeds to the fund for the new boiler at the Taftville Congregational church. Richard Oat was chairman of the committee which had charge of the affair.

With many attending, the dance given by the Turner section of the Taftville Maennerchor club proved an enjoyable affair Friday evening at the clubhouse. The hall was gaily decorated for the affair. Ted Moore's orchestra played for the dancing which was continued until midnight.

Wilfred Linderson 5f North Third avenue has been a visitor in North Stonington this week, the guest of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel S. Vergason.

CORRESPONDENT FAKED AN INTERVIEW WITH HOOVER

Secretary of Commerce Denied the Story Printed in the Miami Herald—Correspondent Quoted Mark Sullivan, Political Writer Who Accompanied Hoover, as Saying That the Latter Had Decided Not to Allow His Name to Be Used in Any State Primary Where He Would Be Opposed by a Favorite Son, Except in the Case of Ohio.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 19.—(AP)—Characterizing a purported interview published this morning by the Miami Herald as "a piece of sheer mendacity on the part of your correspondent," Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce and presidential candidate, in a telegram to the Herald from Savannah today denied the story en masse and each paragraph individually.

He described it as "faked from beginning to end."

Mark Sullivan, political writer who accompanied the secretary to Key West on a fishing trip and whom the Herald's Key West correspondent quoted in the story as Hoover's political spokesman, in a telegram denying the story, said that he "never talked with your correspondent or any other correspondents, that "many of the things (statements attributed him in the story) are known by me to be untrue and others I never heard of but believe to be untrue."

The story from Key West, released after the secretary left that city on the way to New York, said in quoting Sullivan, that Mr. Hoover had decided not to allow his name to be used in any state primary where he would be opposed by a favorite son, except in the case of Ohio where he already has already authorized it. Such a policy would have debarred him from the Illinois and Indiana primaries where Gov. Lowden and Senator Watson are in the race. According to the story he also said the Dakotas and Nebraska and would be left alone for the moment though plans were in the making to enter him in primaries in ten states.

Mr. Hoover's telegram to the Herald said:

"Purported interview with me published this morning is faked from beginning to end both in direct or indirect quotation through Sullivan. Not a single paragraph represents the facts or oponions held. No discussion was held either directly or indirectly with either yours or any other press representatives. As a piece of sheer mendacity on part of your correspondent I have never seen the equal."

Sullivan said:

"I have read dispatch summarizing story from Key West to Miami Herald in which I am quoted. I never talked with your correspondent or any other correspondent. None of the things attributed to me were ever said by me to anyone. Many of the things are known by me to be untrue and others I never heard or but believe to be untrue. This is an example of faking so flagrant that it is a duty to you to tell you."

The Herald says, in explanation of the published interview:

"Sunday morning the Miami Herald published what purported to be and what it believed to be an authentic interview with Hon. Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce in President Coolidge's cabinet, and a candidate for nomination for president at the coming republican convention. Mark Sullivan, a well known national newspaper correspondent, was copiously quoted throughout.

"The Herald published this interview with considerable elation because we had been informed that this would be the only interview given out by Secretary Hoover while in Key West, and the editors felt that it had received special consideration in this connection.

"The interview, of course, was published in good faith and without the slightest suspicion of its authenticity.

"Under these circumstances, of course, all the Miami Herald can do is to admit that it was imposed upon by its own employe, apologize to Secretary Hoover, Mr. Sullivan and to readers of the Herald and to express its sincere regret for the occurrence.

"The Herald representative at Key West has been discharged."

ENDORSES HOOVER FOR PRESIDENTIAL NOMINATION

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(AP)—A statement endorsing Secretary Hoover for the republican presidential nomination and defending his attitude toward agriculture was issued here tonight by Representative Ketcham, republican, Michigan, a member of the house agriculture committee.

"Taking President Coolidge's 'I do not choose' statement as final," he said, "I consider Herbert Hoover the strongest candidate the republican party can nominate for the presidency."

"The overwhelming sentiment for Mr. Hoover in Michigan," he added, "is a fair indication of the nationwide demand for his nomination."

Ketcham, long a student of the farmer's problems and author of the export debenture farm relief plan, characterized as without foundation reports that Hoover could encounter strong opposition from the farm element because of his alleged unfriendly attitude toward agriculture while serving as food administrator during the war and as secretary of commerce.

JUMPED FROM WINDOW OF THE CHICAGO LIMITED

HACKENSACK, N. J., Feb. 19—(AP)—Fred Van Wetering, son of a prominent Bergen county family, today jumped from a window of the Chicago limited of the Pennsylvania railroad, near Rahway, as it was traveling at an estimated speed of 50 miles an hour, and escaped with a few cuts and bruises and a possible fracture of the ankle.

He was brought to the home of his father, John Van Wetering, tonight and disclaimed all recollection of having leaped from the train. Relatives said his health had been poor for some time.

Van Wetering, who lives in Ridgefield Park, had started west to visit a war buddy in Nebraska.

Arriving in Chicago, he became so ill that he decided to return home.

Rahway police informed local authorities that the train did not stop after Van Wetering had jumped from it. Two residents of that town found the man limping along the railroad right of way and took him to a hospital for treatment.

LINDBERGH MAY FLY WITH 200,000 PIECES OF MAIL

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 19—(AP)—More than 100,000 pieces of mail had been received tonight for the flight of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh on his old mail route which he left a year ago to go to California where his "Spirit of St. Louis" was being built.

It was estimated, however, that the amount of mail to be carried on the flight will total near to 200,000 pieces as a flood of St. Louis mail was pouring into the mail boxes tonight. The mail on hand consisted largely of letters from other cities.

Six ships were made ready tonight to carry the letters. Colonel Lindbergh will pilot each of the ships part of the way between here and Chicago.

The record-shattering batch of mail was attributed by postal officials here to widespread desire of the public to honor the "Lone Eagle" by participating in his temporary return to the mail service. Each piece of mail handled on the run tomorrow will bear the souvenir postmark. "Lindbergh again flies the air mail."

FOUND DEAD IN KITCHEN OF A ROOMING HOUSE

STAMFORD, Feb. 19—(AP)—Frank Kruger, about 50, was found dead in the kitchen of the rooming house in which he lived here today by his landlady, Mrs. Joseph Kudleski. Mrs. Kudleski said that he had been drinking heavily for several days.

Medical Examiner Ralph W. Crane found acute alcoholism as the cause of his death. Kruger had no relatives living here and neighbors said that they thought he had a sister in Philadelphia.

MURDER CONVICT DROPPED DEAD WHILE EXERCISING

WORCESTER, Mass., Feb. 19—(AP)—Louis Pasakinski, 20, Gardner, recently convicted of first degree murder, dropped dead while exercising at the Worcester county jail this afternoon. Death was said by physicians to be due to heart disease, but an autopsy will be performed tomorrow.

Pasakinski was found guilty of the murder of Joseph Markus, a Gardner taxi driver, in the Templeton woods in November 25.

WOMEN IN COAL FIELDS ATTACKED STRIKEBREAKERS

BRUX, Czechoslovakia, Feb. 19—(AP)—Strikebreakers in this coal mine region encountered a new terror today when battalions of angry women armed with horsewhips and sticks belabored them without mercy for having replaced their husbands when they struck for more pay and better conditions.

The "scabs," as the women call them, proved no match for the irate housewives who, after beating several strikebreakers into insensibility, marched triumphantly toward the mines. There they attempted to prevent the pumpers from relieving the floods in the mines. The women were finally disarmed by gendarmerie and were marched to the police station muttering implications and threats against their captors. About 25,000 miners continue absent from their work.

AGED MOTHER PAID $1,000 STOLEN BY HER SON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19—(AP)—With the surrender of 26-year-old Paul Marye, former postmaster of nearby Arlington, Va., yesterday to New York police and his confession to embezzlement of about $1,000 of the postoffice funds, it developed here that Marye's 65-year-old mother, Mrs. Annie C. Marye, had gone to work following her son's disappearance three years ago and repaid the money to the government.

Because the mother, a widow, is in broken health she has not been informed of her son's surrender. It was said at her home, however, that if her son is not extradited to Virginia within the next few days she probably will be told so she may go to New York to see him. No word had been received from the son in the more than three years of his absence.

WRITING CASE FELL ON THE HEAD OF SIR BASIL BLACKET

NEW DELHI, India, Feb. 19—(AP)—During the excitement caused by the announcement of the adoption of a boycott of the Simon commission last Saturday an Indian reporter in the press gallery of the legislative assembly dropped a large writing case, which fell on the head of Sir Basil Blacket. It was first thought that the incident was accidental, but later the reporter, who works for the Hindustani Times of Delphi, was arrested on the charge of injuring a public servant. He was released in bail of 2,000 rupees. He protested that the dropping of the case was accidental. Sir Basil temporarily lost consciousness although he was not seriously injured by the blow.

880-FOOT AIRPLANE CARRIER TO CALL AT NEWPORT, R. I.

BOSTON, Feb. 19—(AP)—The U. S. S. Lexington, 880-foot airplane carrier, sailed from here today on her first official cruise, which will bring her to her base at San Pedro, Cal., about April 1. The sailing, which had been delayed a day because of bad weather, went off without a hitch.

The Lexington carried only six airplanes today, but will take on more than 44 additional planes at Pensacola, Fla. Before stopping at the Florida port, the ship will call at Newport, R. I., and Hampton Roads, Va.

More than 2,000 persons were on the dock when the vessel sailed. Captain A. W. Marshall was in command.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

SINGAPORE, Feb. 19—(AP)—Captain Bert Hinkler, British aviator who is making a flight to Australia, arrived here today from Rangoon, Burma.

LONDON, Feb. 19—(AP)—George Bernard Shaw after witnessing a private showing of the moving picture film depicting the career of Edith Cavell, the British nurse who was executed as a spy in Belgium during the war, ridiculed the idea of its being suppressed because of German objections that it revived painful memories and would embitter relations between the countries.

BERLIN, Feb. 19—(AP)—Princess Victoria, 61-year old sister of the former German emperor, and her youthful husband, Alexander Zubkov, a Russian refugee, are now planning a trans-oceanic flight. The couple, who have kept tongues in European society wagging by their actions almost continuously since their marriage without the approval of the former Emperor Wilhelm, declined today to reveal either the date or destination of their projected flight.

NATIONAL ELECTION TO BE HELD IN JAPAN TODAY

TOKYO, Feb. 19—(AP)—The national elections in Japan tomorrow will mark a new phase in the history of the empire of the Rising Sun, owing to the extension of the electorate under the new "manhood suffrage law" from 3,000,000 voters to nearly 12,000,000.

This change probably means a concentration of majority strength in the more democratic political parties with possible far-reaching results.

Under the new suffrage law the strongest voting section will be the tenant farmers who are busily engaged amalgamating their various organizations for the purpose of presenting a united front. Efforts also are being made to secure a union of the tenant farmers party and the urban labor party to oppose the "seiyukai" or government party, and the "minseito," or opposition party, both of which have been losing favor in recent years.

McLaughlin, all of this city. The arrests followed an investigation of months conducted by operatives for the local detective bureau and a private detective agency.

Food Supplies Are Depleted in Russia

Government Has Decided to Take Vigorous Measures to Remedy the Situation

MOSCOW, Feb. 19.—(AP)—[illegible] most age of flour, butter, [illegible] and textiles has reached [illegible] serious stage here that the [illegible] authorities have decided to take [illegible] measures to remedy the situation.

While these commodities may be purchased [illegible] at prices in private markets they are scarce in many of the government co-opertavie stores, and in fact some government stores have been forced to limit sales owing to the lack of supplies. Purchasers have been standing in long lines awaiting for hours an opportunity to make their limited purchases or necessities. Sometimes they reacher the counter only to be told that all of the goods of the kind they desired had been sold.

Several instances have been reported where the co-operatives ceased selling altogether to the public although continuing to supply small rations to their members.

This situation, recalling the days of a famine, has been attributed primarily to the grain shortage. The resignation of Alexander Petrovitch Smyrnoff, commissar for agriculture, because of failure to manage the grain storing campaign which fell 2,000,000 tons short of the previous year despite increased harvest, was reported yesterday. A slight improvement in the grain situation has been attributed partly to the recent visit of Joseph Stalin to Siberia where he issued new instructions to the officials there in the hope of persuading the peasant farmers to send their grain to the markets.

MAYOR WALKER MAKING JOURNEY TO NEW ORLEANS

En route to New Orleans with Mayor Walker, Feb. 19—(AP)—New York's traveling mayor was a partial casualty today as he continued his journey to New Orleans and the mardi gras.

A Walker tooth acted up during the night and caused him considerable annoyance as his train passed through Virginia and into the Carolinas. Tonight the mayor reported the situation under fair control without having had the train paged for a dentist.

When R. H. De Butts, eastern passenger agent of the Southern Railway, boarded the train at Washington and presented him the left hind foot of a rabbit, Mayor Walker said he would not wait for Wednesday's horse race to use the talisman, but would rub it on his aching tooth at once.

Mayor Walker repeated today that he is not making his southern trip to talk politics, and insisted that he will not say a word about Governor Alfred E. Smith and his possible availability as a presidential candidate.

"The governor has not asked me to mention his name in any speeches I may be called on to make," Mayor Walker insisted, when told that many think he will have something to say on politics before he returns home.

He was the "late mayor of New York" again today, for he slept until noon.

Before leaving Baltimore, Mayor Walker and Governor Ritchie had a long conversation in which the Maryland governor confided to the mayor that he has under consideration an invitation to debate with Ogden L. Mills, under-secretary of the treasury, at the Academy of Music in Brooklyn. The subject would be the chances for success of the two parties in the next election.

Capital and Labor Are At Odds in Germany

Labor Unions Are Endeavoring to Force Higher Wages—Trouble Impending.

BERLIN, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Whatever the outcome in the present conflict besetting the German metal industry in which nearly a million workers are threatened with a lockout next Wednesday over the wage question, it is agreed in responsible quarters that further clashes between capital and labor will follow.

In the past year all labor contracts have been denounced by trade unions at the first opportunity in order to force higher wages and by the end of April there will be 47 such contracts under notice of suspension affecting more than 3,000,000 workers. Employers are unanimous in the opinion that industry cannot stand further wage increases and it is believed that the official arbiter, appointed to solve industrial problems, has about reached the limit of his capacities.

Last year's German industrial boom—an isolated boom amid a general stagnation of European trade — is showing signs of exhaustion. Much of the success in expanding industry was due to the ease with which American credit was obtained. Among warning voices heard from many quarters is the weekly "German Economist" which says that Germany of all the continental nations is paying the highest wages, the highest prices and the highest rate of interest on loans.

Industrial credits are not obtainable in Germany under ten per cent., this authority points out, "which, coupled with the enormously adverse trade balance shows something rotten." Industrial quarters also warn against the impression based on a misconception here of labor conditions in the United States that higher wages mean greater buying power and the general enhancement of workers. The basis of the prosperity enjoyed by the workers of America, it is asserted in this quarter, is that in the United States has the greatest and cheapest money market in the world.

Germany's economic situation this year faces the most difficult stage of the reparation problem and will be very sensitive to setbacks from any quarter. Continuance of industrial peace therefore, is of the highest importance if Germany is to hold her own politically and economically in the troublous times ahead.

HORNED FROG LIVED 31 YEARS IN A SEALED CORNERSTONE

EASTLAND, Texas, Feb. 19—(AP)—A horned frog, sealed alive in the cornerstone of the courthouse here 31 years ago, was alive when the stone was opened yesterday according to County Judge Edward S. Pritchard. The old courthouse is being razed. It is a west Texas tradition that a horned frog can exist a century without food or water. A skeptical newspaper man had the judge verify the report that the frog was alive when taken from its long entombment.

The cornerstone containing the frog and a number of old newspapers, coins and Masonic emblems, was opened in the presence of a throng of curious residents who gathered to see the frog, dead or alive.

When Eugene Day, surrounded by county officials, picked the toad from the cavity in the stone, a cheer went up. The frog appeared lifeless for some time. After awhile it opened its eyes, as the crowd waited for some sign of life. Then in about 20 minutes began to breathe. The mouth, however, appeared to have grown together.

The frog was placed in a box in the custody of Judge Pritchard and is on exhibition. Efforts will be made to induce it to take food and if necessary the mouth will be opened by an operation.

BODY OF LORD ASQUITH WILL BE BURIED TODAY

SUTTON COURTENAY, England, Feb. 19—(AP)—Under a quiet starlight sky the body of the Lord of Oxford and Asquith tonight was borne through the single street of the dimly lighted village between rows of quaint half-timbered Tudor cottages to All Saints church, where it was placed on a catafalque in the nave to await burial tomorrow. The remains of one of Britain's great war leaders were placed in an English oak coffin on a simple wheeled bier, and preceded by the processional crucifix and white robed choir boys on the impressive journey to the church.

Lady Oxford and other members of the family followed the bier on foot. A short funeral service was held in the church, after which hundreds of sorrowing villagers, feeling keen personal loss in the death of their great neighbor, passed before the coffin.

COLORADO MINERS VOTE TO RETURN TO WORK

DENVER, Colo., Feb. 19—(AP)—Eighty per cent of the striking miners in the various coal strike zones of Colorado have voted to return to work pending the decision of the state industrial commission in its investigation of working conditions, the state executive committee of the strikers announced today.

The committee refused to give the number of miners voting on the ballots which the committee circulated, but said the result would affect all of the striking coal miners in the state. Two weeks ago a similar vote was taken but at that time the striking miners voted to remain on strike. The strike was called October 19, 1927.

Meetings at which the vote was taken were held today in 18 coal camps, in all but two of which the majority voted to return to work.

PAN-AMERICAN CONGRESS TO COME TO A CLOSE TODAY

The Conference Has Been Dominated by Political Controversies—Every Outburst Against the United States Was Followed by a Vote of Confidence in the Washington Government—Charles Evans Hughes Has Become the Outstanding Figure of the Conference.

HAVANA, Feb. 19—(AP)—The sixth Pan-American congress, which comes to a close tomorrow, marked a notable departure from the character of previous conferences of this type by being dominated by controversies of a political nature instead of confining its activities mainly to the study of tangible means of inter-American intellectual social and economic co-operation.

Following closely upon widely advertised incidents in Nicaragua between United States marines and bandits and upon the unsuccessful effort of the Argentine ambassador at Washington to obtain mass importation of Argentine products through United States tariff barrier, the present conference began its labors last January amid general predictions of disaster.

Conference leaders, therefore, find matter for boasting in the fact that this conference has been second to none in the formulation of actual measures to promote inter-American co-operation and solidarity. They also regard it as the highest compliment to the ability of the United States delegation that the conclusion of every political outburst which seemed directed against them found virtually a vote of confidence in the policies of the Washington government.

Events at Saturday's plenary session brought American diplomacy at this conference to its climax and provided the most dramatic scene ever witnessed in any Pan-American conference. Arising to face a hostile majority, Charles Evans Hughes, leader of the American delegation, shattered insinuations and denunciations of American imperialistic purposes by talking hard realities to his critics and when he had finished practically all opposition had been swept away in a flood of applause that rocked the conference hall.

Thus, on the eve of adjournment, one of two major political issues which kept the conference in a state of uncertainty for over a month and which provided ground for a mass attack upon the United States' Latin-American policies has been cleared up. Even Dr. Gustavo Guerrero, of Salvador, leader of the irreconcilables in the matter of no international intervention, had to give way and withdraw his resolution on this question which had been introduced under such circumstances that a vote upon it would in reality have been a division upon American aggressiveness.

The United States also led the winning side in the tariff struggle, the other great political question which appeared for a time a serious threat to the tranquility of the conference. All delegations except Argentine soon rallied to the American standard and acting as spokesman, Mr. Hughes denounced the categorical demands of Honorio Pueyrredon, head of the Argentine delegation, that Pan-Americanism should tend to restrict and control the imposition of excessive tariffs and other obstacles to the free flow of commerce in inter-American trade.

Mr. Hughes' speech was so vigorous in delivery and so forceful in argument that all the delegates felt even while it was being delivered that momentous results would be derived from it. A few days later Senor Pueyrredon received instructions from his government at Buenos Aires to abandon his intransigeant position and that same day he resigned from both the Havana conference and his post at Washington.

Only a small number of new outstanding figures arose at this conference, although a great number of already established reputations were emphasized and enhanced further.

Mr. Hughes, by common consent, was by far the outstanding personality of the congress. His commanding personality and ability to profoundly influence the gathering by quiet advice and suggestions, only resorting to more brusk and decided tones when fundamental principles upon which the United States stands were attacked and threatened, was widely commented upon.

In general his policy at the conference never changed from the opening day. His delegation was ready at all times to go to the extreme to accommodate the desires of other delegations. Rarely did the United States take the lead in any matter, since the opinions of other delegations as a rule were already divided, the Americans only backed one side or the other. In this manner all suspicion that the North American delegation might be trying to dominate the congress was dispelled.

Raul Fernandes, of Brazil, carried much weight in the deliberations of the congress, where he appeared conscious of representing the greatest country in territorial extent on this hemisphere, which, like the United States, speaks a language apart from that of all other republics but one. A remarkable uniformity of views between the United States and Brazil in all major matters was developed in the conference.

Among the constructive conclusions reached at this conference was the 11th hour agreement regarding the basis for an arbitration and conciliation conference in Washington, regarded as one most likely to have great influence on the future of inter-American and international relations.

The agreement, reached after hours of discussion in closed sub-committee session, establishes the principle of compulsory arbitration for the settlement of all international disputes with the only reservations pertaining to the sovereignty and independence of nations in their purely domestic problems.

A conference to draw up a collective Pan-American covenant along these lines must meet in Washington within one year.

The final agreement on the Pan-American Union convention, around which so much discussion had raged while Dr. Pueyrredon maintained his tariff demands, caused great satisfaction in all circles. In practice the convention will not affect vitally either the operation of internal organization of the union except that the countries will be allowed to have special representatives on the governing board instead of diplomats regularly accredited to Washington.

The committee on public international law has to its credit perhaps the greatest work accomplished. Treaties have been concluded regulating the status of aliens abroad and placing them on the same footing as nationals, stipulating the rights and duties of diplomats and consuls, and providing room for international co-operation for the suppression and prevention of revolutions in each other's territory.

Formal reservation was entered by the United States on the treaty establishing the right of asylum, on the ground that traditional American policy refuses to allow its embassies and consulates to be used as places of refuge by other nationals.

The treaty on the rights and duties of neutrals in event of war was approved. The principles which former Secretary of State Lansing first launched, namely, that neutrals have rights which belligerents must respect, formed the basis of the convention. Greater freedom of action for neutrals was established by the agreement which was designed to prevent undue interference by war with legitimate neutral commerce.

OPPOSED TO MINTING COINS TO HONOR INDIVIDUALS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19—(AP)—Despite the view of Secretary Mellon upholding treasury precedent of refusing the minting of coins to honor individuals or to perpetuate local achievement, the house coinage committee plans tomorrow to begin hearings on two bills which propose issuance of memorial coins to Colonel Lindbergh and the late Speaker Cannon.

The hearings, however, are expected to be perfunctory in character and the committee is understood to be willing to abide by the treasury secretary's opinion.

In a letter to Chairman Perkins, Mr. Mellon recorded his opposition to the proposals, but said he had a high personal regard for Col. Lindbergh. He took the position that memorial coinage had proved an unwarranted expense in the past and that the practice is not pleasing to the people as in many instances the coins have been refused in trade.

The memorial coin for Lindbergh is proposed in a bill by Representative Aigood, democrat, Alabama. It would have the mint strike off 40,000,000 half dollars in commemoration of the flier's achievements. Representative Holiday, republican, Illinois, introduced a bill to strike off 20,000,000 fifty cent pieces to memorialize former Speaker Cannon.

LIST OF MISSING FROM FERRYBOAT STANDS FOUR

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 19 (AP)—The list of missing from the San Francisco-Oakland Ferry Peralta was reduced to four today when three persons unaccounted for last night ewre located at their homes.

The four still missing from the approximately thirty passengers swept into San Francisco bay from the deck of the ferry when it dipped forward suddenly last Friday were: J. M. Collins, Hugh Findlay, Daniel Petker and Evelyn Kraft, a Negress.

United States inspectors who yesterday questioned the engine room crew at a federal inquiry into the accident have concluded that the "dip" of the boat was caused when some member of the crew turned the wrong valve, sending water into the forward balancing tank, when it should have been sent astern.

High officials of the Key System, owners of the ferry, have been summoned to testify when the inquiry is resumed tomorrow.

MISREPRESENTED GOODS; ORDERED OUT OF TOWN

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 19 — That itinerant vanders are not welcome in Willimantic became self evident the past week-end when three salesmen who might be placed in the category of peddlers were escorted out of the city by the police. The apprehension of the trio came as a result of the interest taken in their activities by Secretary Earl J. Arnold of the chamber of commerce who spotted the salesmen doing a house to house canvassing with rolls of linoleum. Secretary Arnold was informed that the men possessed linoleum which they claimed to be remnants of floor covering. Conflicting stories were told of the source of these remnants, one being that the covering was the residue of material left over from the furnishing of a hotel in New Britain. This story might have gone over but for the fact that the name of the hotel was wrongly given. Secretary Arnold then turned over his information to Captain of Police Frank McLean and an investigation was started. The three men were rounded up and taken to police headquarters for questioning. They were traveling in an automobile bearing a New York state registration and in the car were found old pieces of crockery which the leader of the trio said had been purchased from an elderly woman in Bristol. Two of the salesmen had failed to pay the license fee to the local city clerk. They were arrested, however, on the grounds of being World War veterans, which exempts them. The third member of the party, however, was not a veteran and he had not secured a vendor's license. Upon cross-examination he admitted having made some sales. Police Chief Grady informed the men that they had misrepresented their wares in Willimantic and that their best bet was to leave the town at once. They were given time to lunch and then were escorted from the city limits by Motorcycle Officer Bombria. In stating that the expulsion of the vendors was but one of several endeavors that the reorganized chamber of commerce would adopt in its policies of protecting the merchants and people of Willimantic from misrepresentation. Secretary Arnold lauded the splendid co-operation he had received from the police department in making a rapid check-up of the activities of the salesmen.

TWO FINED FOR SETTING SNARES IN HEBRON

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 19.— When some of the natives are inclined to farm as a "spite" case was heard in the Hebron town court Friday when Edward Rathbun, 20, and Everett Porter, 19, both of Hebron, were charged with two violations of the game laws. Rathbun faced charges of hunting without a license and illegally setting snares and Porter was charged with illegally setting snares and carrying a concealed weapon. The cases were heard by Justice of the Peace Albert M. Gilman of Coventry, who had been drafted for the occasion. Through their counsel, Charles Brown of Colchester, the youths pleaded not guilty and with the statement that they felt that there was little hope of being found not guilty, refrained from giving any defense testimony. They were consequently found guilty. Porter was fined $35 on each of the two counts, plus the costs, amounting to $37.82. Rathbun was fined $25 for illegally setting snares and five dollars for not having a hunting license. His fines and costs amounted to $34.70. through their attorney, the defendants gave notice of an appeal to the next criminal term of the Tolland county superior court under bonds of $200 each. The bonds were furnished. The prosecution was led by Grand Juror Richard W. Hubbard. Justice of the Peace J. Banks Jones of Hebron, declined to hear the case due to his acquaintance with the defendants. The testimony of the state was to the effect that complaints had been received by Deputy Game Commissioner Williamson of Hartford against the setting of snares in Hebron. An investigation was launched by Deputy Game Wardens Edward Wraight of Rockville and B. E. Meyers of Ellington. Rathbun and Porter were arrested on land of Anshel and Claude Jones near the Hebron-Marlborough town line. Both denied having had anything to do with the setting of snares which were pointed out to them in the woods by the game wardens. Porter had a hunting license but he carried a loaded revolver concealed in his pocket, constituting a violation. The game wardens testified that they had seen the young men in the vicinity of the snares on a few occasions and in their belief the youths were implicated.

The town of Windham faces a considerable of expense the coming spring to put into repair the miles of back road which have already suffered severely from prevailing thaws and will be in almost impassable condition when the several inches of snow that now cover the ground begin to melt away. Mild weather last week drew practically all of the frost out of the ground and some of the roads were left in very poor conditions. Mud that was a foot deep was reported on the old Back road and gravel had to be hauled to fill up some of the worst places. Snow, which fell during the storm Saturday, was patted down into heavy drifts by the wind storm early Sunday morning. The melting away process is expected to raise havoc with traffic conditions in the country districts. Rural mail carriers in the towns of Andover, Columbus and Franklin have had to abandone automobiles and travel by team the past few days.

Mrs. William H. Murphy Sheffield, 82, of 4 Francis street, died in St. Joseph's hospital Saturday afternoon. She was born in Willimantic, September 13, 1845, a daughter of Jeremiah and Mary Mahoney Murphy. Besides her husband and parents the deceased leaves one infant son; two sisters, Mrs. Harold McKenna of Montpelier, Vt., and Miss Bernadette Murphy of Southington; and two brothers, Edward Murphy of Albany, N. Y., and George Murphy of Fredonia, N. Y.

Among several matters of importance to be taken up at a meeting of the new board of directors of the chamber of commerce next week, will be an effort to secure a large attendance at the 19th annual meeting of the State chamber of commerce in Hartford in May. It is hoped to secure a delegation large enough to reserve a Willimantic table, and give other evidences that this city has a live chamber through which it is making every progressive step for public welfare.

Some 25 couples attended a Valentine dance given at the Congregational church house Friday night by the Club of the Open Door. Miss Leona Carpenter and Howard Sandstrom won an elimination dance which was one of the several features of the evening. A vaudeville skit was presented by the membership contest team headed by Miss Carolyn Smith. The dance was in charge of Miss Anna Hall, chairman, Miss Katherine Smith, Miss Arthur B. Wheelock, Mason Lincoln and Francis Turney.

WEATHER TURNS TRICK IN FAVOR OF ICEMEN

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Feb. 19—M. E. Shea of the firm of Shea Bros., with a number of men from the borough visited his big ice fields at Dorrville today. Although five inches of snow fell here Saturday the party was astonished to find the large 16-acre field free from snow, with the ice as smooth as glass. Mr. Shea said that preceding the snow storm there was considerable water on the ice. All Saturday forenoon the mercury was above freezing, the snow melted and Sunday night there was five inches of good ice. This morning at 5 o'clock the thermometer showed only 13 above. For the fourth time this winter the harvesters will be in readiness to rush in an 8-inch crop and Mr. Shea is confident that this promise will not be a melting one.

Before the trolley came Treasurer William Franklin of the Saturday Night club gave him a pocketbook with a $5 gold piece in it, wishing him good luck when he reaches the golden state. "Come quick to my house, Miss Nellie Carr! A robber is in my pantry!" So, making good time to the place Mrs. Carr opened the door and let him in. With his gun in his right hand he told the robber to come out, but no one came. Once more he gave the warning. Then opening the door to the pantry, he found the house cat, Mike, caught behind some pans and not able to get out until freed by the cop "It was the cat" that made so much noise that Mrs. Carr thought a robber was in the house. So Night Cop Baker said, "Well, anyway, we found out who it was! So you can finish your sleep, while I go back and walk my beat!"

Some good plays were made that thrilled the fans, so the cheering section gave both players a good hand. Getting near the end of the battle of cards, Lightning Bracci was leading by only 10 points. Deveau went ahead of his rival, but at the final deal Bracci held the pasteboards that won the game, getting 1500 to Deaveau's 1440. So Fighting Bracci is pinochle champion of the fire room. DANIELSON

DANIELSON COVERED BY 6-INCH BLANKET OF SNOW

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Feb. 19—Today the rasp of the snow shovel was heard in the land, and in more strenuous action than on any previous occasion this winter. There was a fall of several inches of snow to be removed from walks, and paths to be made and a general clearing to be done to make things more orderly and getting about easier.

The average depth of snow hereabouts as the result of a storm that started in Friday night as a combination of snow and rain was from five to six inches. With it is some sleet, and those who tried to make a thorough job of cleaning walks today found that the deposit left after the weather disturbance made this very difficult.

Saturday afternoon brought the worst period of the storm, especially the period shortly before sunset and for a part of the early evening. At this time state highway plows were moving up and down the trunk line highways, while the northeaster howled and sifted snow about in a way to threaten a really serious storm. Traffic moved without difficulty over these routes, excepting for the manner in which the storm made it difficult for drivers to see as clearly as they would have liked.

Off the trunk lines conditions were much different. Drifts piled up in some sections, and this fact taken with another having to do with the ground being deep with ruts and soft left many a car stalled and unable to extricate itself. Clinging to the trees, the snow turned the territory hereabouts into a fairyland. This morning the countryside was really beautiful in its dress of immaculate whiteness.

This morning the body of S. Cady Hutchins was taken in charge by Providence undertakers and conveyed to that city, where funeral services are to be held, burial to be in Swan Point cemetery.

Mr. Hutchins died Saturday night at 11 o'clock after a fortnight's illness with pneumonia. He had been so critically ill the past ten days that little hope for his recovery was entertained, but by Friday there appeared to be some improvement and the possible prospect that he might survive. His death, announced this morning, came as a surprise to his many friends here.

Mr. Hutchins was a native of Danielson, a son of Shubael and Josephine Gladding Hutchins. His early education was obtained in the schools of Danielson, after which he attended Yale university, graduating in the class of 1893. During the years that have since elapsed Mr. Hutchins was engaged with several different business enterprises, and for several years past has been manager of the Finnegan jewelry store in Danielson.

He was a man of innate culture and unfailingly courteous. His friends here are in great number and regret over his death general.

Mr. Hutchins leaves his wife, Mrs. Helen R. Hutchins; a daughter, Helen Gladding, and a sister, Mrs. A. W. Belden, of Auburndale, Mass. He was a member of What Cheer lodge of Masons of Providence.

His funeral services are to be conducted by Rev. G. F. Goodenough, pastor of the Congregational church at Jewett City, and a classmate at Yale and intimate friend of Mr. Hutchins.

A death at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam this morning was that of Mrs. Lillian R. Swan of North Sterling. Mrs. Swan had been ill with pneumonia and a patient at the hospital for about a week. The body was brought here in charge of Undertaker A. F. Wood.

Mrs. Swan was the widow of Horace S. Swan. She was a daughter of Horace A. and Elizabeth Bennett Smith and was born in the town of Sterling. She leaves a son, Everett, who made his home with her, and a daughter, Edith, who has been a solo trombonist of national prominence for the past score of years and who returned from filling theatrical engagements to be with her mother during her last illness.

FOUR NEW CARS SMASHED WHEN TRAILER OVERTURNS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Feb. 19—Two new Chevrolet coaches and two new Chevrolet chasis were badly damaged this afternoon when the trailer truck on which they were being transported from the assembly plant at Tarrytown, N. Y., to the Bruce Chevrolet company at Putnam skidded and turned over halfway down Hampton hill near the Gill place. Anthony Tripodi of 124 Causeland avenue, Buffalo, N. Y., driver of the trailer truck, told State Officer Eleton Nolan of the Danielson barracks that a pleasure car was parked beside the highway just above where the accident happened and that when he turned out to pass it his own cumbersome machine, which, with its trailer, was about 40 feet in length, skidded. It hit a fence on the west side of the road, then skidded to the east side, back to the other side and struck an embankment and then turned over, spilling the Chevrolets off and wrapping one of them around a maple tree. The wrecked cars were towed to a garage at the top of Tampton hill. The trailer truck is owned by the Nucar Forwarding company of Trenton, N. Y., and Tarrytown. The driver escaped uninjured.

This afternoon at 1 o'clock relatives and friends assembled at the funeral parlors of A. F. Wood to attend services for Mrs. Rhoda A. Aldrich, who died Thursday morning. Rev. Chester F. Armstrong of the Danielson Baptist church conducted the service. Burial was in the Aldrich-Baker cemetery in the Sparks district of the town. The bearers were James P. Aldrich and Proctor Aldrich, sons; John Huntington, son-in-law, and Edward Aldrich, a cousin.

At all the masses at St. James' church this morning regulations for the Lenten season were read to the congregations. The penitential season opens with the Ash Wednesday services of the current week. An admonition to the congregation at all the services was that they refrain from participating in amusements during Lent and to give daily thought to the significance of the season being observed. Other announcements had to do with special services for the period of Lent.

It is not to be regarded with wonder that East Killingly residents are so insistent as to having a better highway route into that community from Danielson and Elmville. Going out of Elmville toward East Killingly the route that runs over the hill and the one that skirts the base of it past the plant of the Killingly Worsted company plant are in terrible condition right now. They are deep with ruts, rough and dangerous and very likely to be the cause of accidents, not to mention the strain they put on cars and those who operate them.

From residents of that section of Westfield near Stearns street comes a rather bitter protest that their complaints in official uarters relative to an ill-fitting cover on a sewer manhole in the concrete pavement of North Main street brings no remedy of what they term an irritating nuisance. Hundreds of cars run across the cover every day, and every time a car goes over it there is a nerve-smashing clatter. Residents thereabouts state they are awakened at night by the clattering of the cover. They assert that their requests that the condition be corrected have brought no results. Such is the racket the cover makes when a car goes over it that many operators of machines who are strangers hereabouts stop their cars and get out and examine them after being in contact with the cover.

With the temperature down to eight above zero in Danielson early this morning, and several inches of snow on the ground, hope of getting ice enough to meet Danielson's needs for the remainder of the year revived. Ice dealers are not going to overlook any possible plan for hurrying along the crop, which might be developed within a few days now if the weather holds cold.

As the pastorate of Rev. Leonard R. Richards, rector of St. Alban's, draws to a close, a committee of the church has been considering the selection of his successor. In early March the pastor goes to Pomfret to take charge of Christ church. It was stated today that no decision has been reached as to who will come to Danielson to take charge of St. Alban's.

Sleighs made their first appearance of the winter in Danielson on Saturday and were again in use today, not that it was such good sleighing, but it seemed in some cases because of what has again become a novelty. The ice film that formed on state highways where they had been scraped off made fairly good traveling for sleighs. Out in country districts owners found the sleighs handy in getting about today.

New owners of some of the homes at Connecticut Village plan to improve them in the spring and in several instances to build garages.

At East Killingly Saturday evening members of the Jolly club held a dance in Sayles hall. This organization has about 30 members.

Killingly's board of relief will hold its closing sessions this week to hear pleas for abatements and other similar matters.

It was not a pleasant experience that one of the non-commissioned officers had a night last week when those who were at the state armory locked a room in which the non-com referred to had left all his clothing while he was down stairs for a shower, and went home, unaware of the predicament in which they had left him. With only a robe from his automobile and a towel as raiment, he had to make a trip about town with his car until he could find someone with a key to the room where his clothing had been left.

Scores of young people were out today, making the most of the best opportunity they have had for coasting to date this winter.

A meeting of the Danielson Development association has been called for Friday evening of this week.

Dr. Hugh Campbell of Norwich will be here on Tuesday at the usual time to hold a clinic for tuberculosis at the town hall.

For Tuesday evening—Mardi Gras—a number of social events are planned for Danielson.

Miss Blanche Messenette of Fall River was a visitor with friends in Danielson today.

An event for officers and members of the Service battery is the annual inspection, to be held at the state armory, Tuesday evening.

In observance of Washington's birthday, banks in Danielson, and also the schools, will be closed on Wednesday.

PUTNAM

UNAUTHORIZED TRAFFIC OFFICER BROUGHT TO COURT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Feb. 19.—On Friday afternoon motorists were adhering to the commands of a man thought to be a traffic officer, on Providence street. The man was attired in civilian clothes and was ordering cars about on the south end of the street. After he had been doing the voluntary police duty a resident nearby telephoned the Putnam police. Officer Benoi Durand went to the locality to investigate the rumors of a new officer on the force. Officer Durand approached the would-be cop and found him to be no less than William (Bill) Reegan of no place in particular, and was under the influence of liquor. Officer Durand arrested Reegan.

He was brought up before Judge Geissler in the city court Saturday charged with drunkenness and being a nuisance. He pleaded guilty to the two counts. The judge ordered the man to vacate the limits of the town and the case was ordered placed on file.

Reegan has been a common frequenter of the Putnam police lockup many times and he has the reputation of being the only man sent to jail on Christmas day in Putnam.

Joseph Thurber was arrested Friday for overloading, by the state police officers from the Danielson barracks. Thurber was to appear in city court Saturday morning, but he sent a representative in his place. Judge Geissler refused to accept the representative and the case was laid over until Monday morning at 9 o'clock.

A meeting of the citizens committee of the water works issue met in the office of Attorney Irving H. Mixon on Friday evening to set a date for a public mass meeting of the citizens of the city to debate on the waterworks question. The date set, was Thursday, February 23, at eight o'clock. At the adjourned meeting of the common council the citizens committee was granted the right to hold a special city meeting on the 27th of February. The committee agreed that a mass meeting should be held before the day for the electors to cast their ballots. A speaker is to be engaged, besides the arguments that will be put up by local orators on the question. The meeting will be held in the city hall on Church street.

Receiver George M. Coffin has returned to his duties at the First National bank after a month's vacation in the south. During his month of absence Mr. Coffin spent much of his time in Charleston, N. C., visiting with relatives there.

This is the first time Mr. Coffin has been absent from his duties since his appointment as receiver of the defunct bank in 1924.

The Women's board of the Day Kimball hospital presented the annual Valentine tea on Friday afternoon and evening in the Odd Fellows' hall on Pomfret street. The Valentine tea is one of the biggest social events of the year in the city and this year it was a huge success and was largely attended by many Putnam people. The event opened in the afternoon with a bridge party, that proved to be an attractive feature as there were 35 tables in play. The party netted a sum of $74. The hall was prettily decorated with red and white, the valentine colors, blended with hearts. The candy booth in charge of Mrs. Gladys Wicks of Pomfret, netted the board a large sum, as did the flower booth in charge of Mrs. J. A. Atwood of Wauregan. Tea was served at 4 o'clock by Mrs. Thomas and Mrs. Taintor, of the Mad Hatter Tea house in Pomfret.

In the evening the Valentine dance was held. Arrangements for the dance were in charge of Miss Elizabeth Rafferty of Putnam. Music was furnished by an orchestra from Providence. Mrs. H. N. S. Bradford of Thompson, president of the Women's board of the Day Kimball hospital was general chairman for arrangements of the Valentine tea. She was assisted by Mrs. Andrew V. Frost of Putnam, Mrs. Silas M Wheelock, Miss Ellen Wheelock of Putnam. The affair this year was a success, although not as elaborate as in former years, it was well attended and a large amount was netted for the improvement of the hospital. This year the Valentine supper was omitted and there were less booths in the hall.

The Valentine tea for many years has been an annual event in Putnam, it being instituted in memory of Day Kimball for whom the hospital was named. February 14th being chosen for the date as it is the birthday of Mr. Kimball.

A representative of the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars was in Putnam Thursday evening speaking at the Bradley theater. The subject of his talk was "Respect To Thes American Flag." During his talk Boy Scouts passed out pamphlets containing a code to "Old Glory." A small collection was taken by the local Boy Scouts to help carry on the work.

Mrs. Lea Salvage died at her home in Harrisville on Friday evening at 9 o'clock. Mrs. Salvage was 69 years of age. She was born in Canada on March 1, 1859. She was married in St. Aime, Canada to Lea Salvage. The couple came to the United States shortly after their marriage, settling in Harrisville. Mrs. Salvage leaves seven sons and a daughter. She was a member of the Ladies of St. Anne of St. Mary's church.

After a week of real spring weather winter returned Friday evening with light snow squalls and a steadily decreasing temperature. The snow continued to fall throughout Friday night and by Saturday morning the city was blanketed with a three inch covering of snow. The snow kept falling all day Saturday and by night the snow was in some places a foot deep. Snow plows of the state highway department were kept busy keeping the roads open to traffic during the day.

On Sunday many Putnam people motored out through the country viewing the snow-covered landscape. The light rain Friday caused the snow to cling to the trees giving the woodlands nature's most artistic touches.

Frank Champeau, Jr., of Church street, died Friday in the New York Memorial hospital in Brooklyn, N. Y. Mr. Champeau had been a patient at the hospital for many weeks previous to his death. Last week the surgeons at the hospital amputated one of his arms that had been infected, thinking that it would save his life. Being in a weakened condition he died on Friday evening.

Frank Champeau was 33 years of age and was born in Putnam, where he attended St. Mary's parochial school. He enlisted in the service in October, 1917, and was sent overseas to France. He fought in many of the important battles of the war and in the battle of St. Mihiel he was wounded in the hip, this injury being the cause of his death.

Mr. Champeau is survived by his father and mother, two brothers, a sister living in Putnam and one sister living in New London.

Military funeral services will be held Tuesday morning. The funeral will be in charge of the local post of Veterans of Foreign Wars of which Mr. Champeau was a member. A firing squad in charge of Commander Martin B Robertson of the American Legion will fire a volley of shots at the cemetery in honor of their deceased comrade.

Children throughout the city were taking advantage of the snow covered enjoying coasting and the more popu- enjoying costing and the more popular winter sport, skiing. Sunday being an ideal day the older folks were seen in many places throughout the city enjoying a nice long coast on the old double ripper.

Many children are again sliding on the more dangerous hills of the city that are continually open to traffic, but up to late Sunday no casualties were reported to the police department. In former years it has been the custom for the city officials to post hills that are dangerous to children coasting, but so far this winter there has not been enough snow to warrant placing the placards about the hills.

Edgar Pegion of Hartford was a Putnam visitor Sunday.

The whole world knows Aspirin as an effective antidote for pain. But it's just as important to know that there is only one genuine Bayer Aspirin. The name Bayer is on every tablet, and on the box. If it says Bayer, it's genuine; and if it doesn't, it is not! Headaches are dispelled by Bayer Aspirin. So are colds, and the pain that goes with them; even neuralgia, neuritis, and rheumatism promptly relieved. Get Bayer—at any drugstore—with proven directions.

Physicians prescribe Bayer Aspirin; it does NOT affect the heart

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

Prescription He Wrote in 1892 is the World's Most Popular Laxative

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as they are today. People lived normal, quiet lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air and sunshine. But even that early there were drastic physics and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings to put into their system. So he wrote a prescription for a laxative to be used by his patents.

The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe, gentle bowel stimulant as Syrup Pepsin.

Under successful management this prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. The fact that millions of bottles are used a year proves that it has won the confidence of people who needed to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds and fevers.

Millions of families are now never without Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and if you will once start using it you will also always have a bottle handy for emergencies.

It is particularly pleasing to know that the most of it is bought by mothers for themselves and the children, though Syrup Pepsin is just as valuable for elderly people. All drug stores have the generous bottles.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.

SELLING THE SHIPS

The shipping board has disposed of its vessels on the Pacific coast. Although it may be felt that they have been disposed of at a low figure it is to be realized that such disposition means the termination of an operating loss, and in all probability more has been obtained for them now than could be under any normal conditions in the future.

It is easy to figure that if private enterprise can buy and operate vessels, which it is to be supposed they intend to do at a profit, that the same might be done by the government. Actual operations do not bear this out. We are still in possession of many ships, idle ones, which are costing the government millions of dollars every year and each year are becoming less valuable. We have sold ships at large sacrifices, far below what they cost to build, but in so doing we are terminating what would ultimately mean a total loss and at the same time putting an end to the annual deficits in connection with their operation.

If the shipping board can establish new lines of steamers covering routes where there is now no service, such as a new line which is contemplated between Philadelphia, New York, Boston and Brazilian, or northern South American ports, and convince private capital that there is business enough there to encourage indulgence on its part in such an enterprise, it may be possible to gradually work off the fleet of government owned merchant vessels. That is, it may be if the life of the vessels is such that they can be made to interest prospective purchasers by the time there is a chance under such a plan of putting them into operation.

The fact of the matter is that many of the merchant vessels which the government owns are not being sought by prospective ship owners or lines which are seeking additional ships. These vessels already need reconditioning at no slight expense and a careful study would unquestionably indicate that the quicker the government got rid of them, at almost any figure, the better off it would be from a financial standpoint, while it would do much to stimulate private capital to properly meet the shipping problem.

CUBA REMAINS FIRM

With less than ten days in which to act it does not look as if congress intended to take action modifying the existing law dealing with the shipment of cigars to this country.

Cuba has sought this change so that cigars could be sent into this country by mail order houses in shipments of less than 3,000. It has found that this business is restricted because of the amount stipulated and Cuba thinks it sought not to be allowed to continue. It has sought the change for some time but without results. Cuba has in fact taken the matter so seriously that it has threatened to terminate the parcel post agreement between the republics unless the change is adopted.

The parcel post agreement ended with last June, but it was thought that the present congress might be made to see the advantage of meeting Cuba's demands rather than deny the benefit of the parcel post to the many who make use of it in this country, and in arrangement was agreed to whereby it was extended until March 1, 1928.

Congress knows the situation but it cannot be said that there is any promise that it will act favorably before the first of March. In recognition of this probability and the refusal of Cuba to grant any further extension the postmaster general has given notice to the postoffices throughout the country that all parcel post matter destined for Cuba which cannot reach there by the first of March must be refused. By that time all parcel post business will cease. Cuba will not be able to send anything here by that method and those in this country who have been doing millions of dollars worth of business in Cuba through the parcel post will be denied that advantage.

There are those, who are getting the benefit of the existing law, who are quite anxious that there be no change. They are apparently getting the support of those who are blocking action in congress but it will probably be revealed in time whether the advantage which accrues to them is greater than the disadvantage to other Americans who are now relying upon the parcel post for the maintenance of a profitable business in their lines in Cuba.

SEEKING SOUTH POLE BY AIR

Opinions will vary as to whether the results attained in ocean flying are such as to inspire confidence in the plan of Lieutenant Commander Byrd to fly to the south pole. If we could restrict judgment to those cases where the aviators have completed the crossing, it might be said that there had been a decided strengthening of public opinion concerning long distance and hazardous flying, but it is impossible to think of those who have been successful without considering those who have made the attempt but have never been heard from since.

Commander Byrd has a record of accomplishment to his credit which is enviable. He is not a novice in polar flying, but it is impossible to think of his contemplated quest of the south pole by air without realizing the dangers which are involved and the hazards that must be encountered.

There is a decided difference between the conditions at the north pole and those at the south. The former is covered by ice under conditions which are more favorable for those forced down, while the south pole lies on a continent with great barriers of ice and high mountains to be negotiated, while the weather conditions there, according to the tales of those who have penetrated that region, are about the worst that can be anticipated with blizzards and terrific winds that are much pleasanter to read about than to experience.

But those things have not deterred Commander Byrd in his preparations. It would seem as if their very existence egged him on, while there is no evidence that he will be lacking in companions if the 200 applications which have already been presented to him for a place in his expedition mean anything. There are those who are inspired by search for adventure and their plans serve as the best sort of inspiration for others. They are ready and willing to take the chance for the sake of the glory that will go with a successful accomplishment, or even for their desire to do the unusual. Nothing else gives them quite the same degree of satisfaction. They give little thought to the possibility of failure.

FINE FIRE FIGHTING

Not for a long time has Norwich experienced such a menacing fire as that which wrecked the building of the Norwich Grain company in Water street. This wooden, three story structure, sandwiched in between two brick buildings, was a veritable fire-trap. It had long been regarded as a serious menace should a fire manage to get a good start there. Thus though it was gutted, great credit belongs to the firemen for the manner in which they kept the fire within its walls and prevented its spreading in either direction.

Conscious of the difficulties involved, and fortunately escaping the detrimental effects of a windy morning, the department's equipment was admirably handled for most effective work. In view of the start which the fire had the surprise is that such an excellent stop was made.

It was a fire at which the public had an opportunity to witness the efficient work of the battery of motor driven pumpers and not only did they do most telling work in pouring a great volume of water upon the fire but they made a great impression upon all who had the opportunity to note the speed with which they were put into operation and the fine service which their powerful streams made it possible for the firemen to render.

In the destruction of this building Norwich loses one of its old landmarks, a structure which has been the center for the distribution of a vast quantity of grain and fodder for a long period of years, and it was most fortunate that its loss in this manner did not carry the neighboring blocks with it. Efficient fire service and brick walls are the answer.

AWARDING BUS LINE RIGHTS

There will be no surprise at the decision of the public utilities commission in giving the New England Transportation company, subsidiary of the New Haven road, the right to operate busses between New Haven and New York.

Here is a case where another line has sought to do business that would take part of the patronage that had been going to the New Haven railroad. It would be rendering a service along parallel lines and providing competition that would serve to decrease existing service. In view of the fact that the New Haven road has such a large investment in equipment for providing transportation for the public and is not only ready but desirous of changing the method so that busses may be provided for those who prefer them, its position in the field really entitles them to the decision.

In taking such a view the commission is on good ground. The New Haven is a system regulated by state law and it is proper that its business should get such protection as the state can provide, instead of permitting others to come in and take it away after large and permanent investments have been made.

The commission likewise has good reason for believing that there will be a well managed service by placing the bus line in the hands of those who have proved their ability in the field of transportation, and while it criticizes the character of some interstate bus lines and the consideration given the public it becomes apparent that public welfare and safety are guiding factors in awarding rights when applications are being considered for bus lines. The importance of this must be fully appreciated by the people to be served.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Apricot fritters are delicious served with powdered sugar.

Grapefruit, dates, nuts and marshmallows combine well for a salad.

There is no better cold-weather breakfast dish than fried cornmeal mush, served with syrup.

A wholesome supper for the small child is composed of soup, toast, applesauce and gingerbread.

When filling cracks with plaster of paris, mix it with vinegar instead of water, and it will not set so quickly.

When cleaning fish, do not let it soak in water or the flavor will be spoiled.

A bunch of bright bittersweet berries is a timely gift for the country mouse to make to her city cousin.

The ringing saucepan is a new invention. The secret is in the lid, which rings a bell when the boiling point is reached.

Prune tarts make the children's quota very desirable. Bake with a little custard over them.

In making sandwiches, first work butter until it is smooth and creamy, then spread it on the bread.

Don't neglect to give your house plants a little fresh air each day. They require air as well as water and sunshine.

Soiled dishes that have contained eggs should be first rinsed in cold water before putting into the hot soapsuds.

If your mahogany furniture gets scratched, paint with iodine until the proper shade is reached, let dry and polish until glossy.

A good way to prevent table doilies being wrinkled is to roll them around a cardboard tube that has been covered.

When making canapes or sandwiches, soften the butter by putting a few drops of boiling water into it and working until soft.

A few grapefruit, orange or date seeds, planted in some sandy soil in a fancy pot makes a soft, delicate bit of green for winter decoration.

LIME IN TEAKETTLE

A deposit of lime in a teakettle can be removed, if not too heavy, by using a hot solution of vinegar or commercial muriatic acid, one part to five parts of water. The acid solution must be handled carefully, says the New York Sun, for it is corrosive.

A NEW FIRE LIGHTER

An easy way to light a wood or coal fire is with a match at least 11 inches long. These matches come in a most decorative box that stands by the fire. They may also be used for lighting many cigarettes at a time.

STIR TO MAKE SMOOTH

When making sauces for puddings, always stir in the same direction. It makes no difference what direction as long as it is always the same.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Eating slowly and masticating thoroughly will help to reduce.

To preserve the complexion, all traces of soap should be immediately removed by rinsing. After gently drying the face, the blonde, whose skin is apt to be dry, should replace the depleted natural oil by rubbing in a very little cold or vanishing cream.

The scalp should be exercised daily by actually pulling the hair. Separate the hair into sections, twist a small section on your finger and pull gently away from the head several times, lifting the scalp. Just as daily morning exercises tone up the general circulation and strengthen bodily vigor, so this little exercise of the muscles at the hair roots invigorate them to greater vitality.

Naturally curly hair should not be brushed too much. A comb with teeth set widely apart and with a fine-toothed section may be used on such hair. Let the hair fall forward while bending towards the floor. When the hair is being arranged, be sure to place the waves by pushing the hair forward with the palm of the hand and pinching the natural waves in place with two fingers. Naturally curly hair should not be dried by the hot-air blower, for this sometimes stretches out the wave. Hand drying with a rough towel that is free from lint is best, both for curly and straight hair.

FOR BREAKFAST IN BED

There is a special tray for breakfast in bed that fits comfortably over the knees (and without jeopardy to the coffee) while one is propped up on a pillow. On the sides are two pockets—one for the morning paper and the other for the mail. It is a necessary accessory for the week-end guest room.

KEROSENE STAINS

If kerosene has been spilled on woolen clothing, cover the spot with a paste made of fuller's earth and let it remain on the stain for twenty-four hours. If the stain has not disappeared apply fuller's earth again.

FLOOR EREATMENT

If your floors are worn and will not hold wax, try touching up the worn places with white shellac and then wax. The floors will be much improved by this treatment.

ADDS ZEST TO MUSH

A porringer and small plate to match, made of peasant pottery, have much to commend them in the way of picturesqueness, especially if the porringer has the design upon the inside of the bowl.

ROASTING A TURKEY

When roasting a turkey do not add water to the pan until the flour with which the turkey has been brushed begins to brown. Then add water to baste the turkey.

DICTATES OF FASHION

A lovely bag, made of the finest needlepoint, is mounted upon an etched frame.

A red georgette frock uses pleats in pointed pattern for its yoke and on the skirt, flared godets for fullness.

A sport coat of delicate yellow is extremely chic for southern wear, particularly when the coat is made of thin leather.

New hats have brims that twist and turn in odd ways to get off the face. Feather brushes are apt to accentuate unusual angles.

The cares of the world will slip from the feminine shoulders that are covered with a robe of orange velvet, beautifully quilted.

Gloves grow longer as the days shorten. Slip-on suedes that cover the wrists well are perhaps the smartest interpretation.

A deep U-shaped plastron of dull green gives a charming yoke effect on a green satin dress and inspires an inverted U-shaped insert in the skirt.

A skiing or skating costume, practical as well as immensely becoming, consists of a brilliant indigo blue coat and long loose trousers, with gaily patterned cap, scarf, mittens and socks for contrast.

If you've a new angora costume for spring, and you're wondering whether to choose a felt or straw hat as a complement, why not instead choose something newer—the knitted hat of angora and visal. The angora and straw are knit as one, giving an allover effect of woolly straw.

VELVET YOKES

Whether or not a woman wears the yoke of matrimony, she is extremely likely to wear the yoke of velvet. Heretofore yokes usually have been of the same material as the dress. Now velvet yokes are made for voile or light crepe de chine dresses. The idea also is carried out in evening coats and capes.

SWEATERS AND SOCKS

The male of the species no longer is content to don dull and gloomy clothes upon all occasions. When he starts forth for the golf links one is quite likely to find him with a pullover sweater and golf stockings to match in some stunning color, such as blue, green or gray.

NEW CHIFFONS

The new chiffons for southern wear are most attractive this year. Many have bright colored backgrounds and small designs that are extremely wearable. These chiffons were designed by a famous French couturier.

POMPADOUR TAFFETA

An adorable little frock for dinner or dance is made of pompadour silk, with large buches of red and violet roses sprinkled over the surface. The skirt is extremely short, a few folds of the material hanging longer at the left side. The waist is cut surplice.

SEWING HINTS.

A convenient addition to the sewing room is a certain rod inside the scrap box on which are strung all the spools of cotton, silk and other thread.

Before mending a hole in gloves, buttonhole around it carefully with the finest needle you have. Then stitch together the button-holed edge.

If scallops are stitched around on the machine before being crocheted they will not fray.

The girls in their work in sewing have discovered little details that make sewing easier. They have found that shirring may be kept easily in place and also look well, if the portion gathered is basted to a piece of paper, then stitched between the rows of gathering. Then remove the original gathering stitches.

WEIGHTING CURTAINS

If the curtains are weighted at intervals along the hem line they hang better. Whether the curtains are lined or unlined, a piece of cheap cotton-wool cut the length of the curtains, rolled slightly, and stitched in the hem where they are drawn, or even done on both sides, if preferred, will help them to meet gracefully in the center when drawn. They will then appear to be very much heavier in texture.

TO CLEAN OLD FURS

You can readily clean your furs and make them look fluffy and new without difficulty and without injuring them in the least.

This is the way to go about it. Get some coarse bran and heat it in the oven in a casserole. Be careful not to burn it, but get it really hot.

When the bran is hot rub it into the fur thoroughly. The point isn't to get the bran next to the skin of the fur, but to rub it through all the hairs.

Let it stay in the fur for twenty minutes and then brush and shake it out. Use a clean, soft brush, as a stiff brush, though removing the bran, might break the hairs. A lot of the bran may be removed by shaking. When it is all out hang the furs on a line outdoors for an hour or so.

ELECTRIC FLASHES.

Never operate any electrical device or turn off or on a switch when the hands are wet.

Don't attempt to mend broken electrical appliances without definite knowledge as to what should be done.

Use only one hand in switching on or off electric lights. Keep the other hand free from any possible metallic contact.

Don't try to wire lamps with enormous lengths of wire tacked around doorways and surbases. It is cheaper to pay extra money and have the plug put where the lamp is desired. These long lengths of exposed wire are dangerous.

USE FOR MARBLE SLABS

The marble tops from old-fashioned bureaus and washstands make excellent slabs for bread and pies.

CONCERNING WOMEN.

Argentina is the only one of the South American countries employing police women.

Under the ancient law still operative in China a husband may divorce his wife for talkativeness.

A London woman, Mrs. Hanna Mendelssohn, has recently been appointed to supervise the management of more than 40 large restaurants located in the principal cities of England.

Among this year's "freshers" at one of the prominent English colleges for women is Princess Noy of Chanda-Buri, a niece of the King of Siam, who is studying for a degree in history.

Lady Blanche Beresford, whose wedding was a brilliant event in Westminster Cathedral the other day, evidently does not believe in the "unluckiness" of peacocks, for peacock brooches were worn by her nine bridesmaids.

LOOSE CASTORS

If your dresser or chairs keep losing their casters, remove them, dip in glue and replace. Do not use for 24 hours.

CLEAN VEGETABLES

Before cooking brussels sprouts, broccoli and similar vegetables, soak them two hours in cold water with two tablespoons of vinegar to remove all bugs.

RECIPES

Pepper Pot: 4 tablespoons each of chopped celery, green pepper and onion, 4 tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons flour, 1 quart chicken or veal stock, about ¼ lb. honeycomb tripe, 1 good cup potato cubes, ½ teaspoon pepper, salt, 1-3 cup cream. Fry the vegetables in part of the butter, slowly, for about 15 minutes; add the flour and blend well. Then add the tripe cut in cubes, and the remaining ingredients omitting the cream. Cover and cook slowly about one hour. When ready to serve add the cream and the rest of the butter.

Jellied Fruit Salad: 1 rounding tablespoon gelatine, ½ cup cold water, ½ cup lemon juice, ¾ quarter cup sugar, 1 cup boiling water, 1 cup sliced strawberries, 1 orange, 6 slices pineapple. Soak the gelatine in the cold water. Add boiling water and stir until dissolved. Add the lemon juice and sugar and set aside to cool. When just ready to set add the berries and the orange cut into cubes. Pour into individual molds and let set. When ready to serve, arrange crisp lettuce leaves on plate, put on a slice of pineapple and unmold one mold of jelly on each slice. Serve with fruit salad dressing.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Senator James E. Watson, one of the latest entries in the free-for-all race for the republican presidential nomination, has been prominent in politics in Indiana for 35 years. When only 30 years of age he was elected to congress to succeed the veteran legislator, James Holman, then the oldest member of the house. With an interval of one term, Mr. Watson remained in the house until 1906. In 1912 he was leader for the Taft forces at the Chicago convention and helped the steam rolling of Roosevelt delegates. In the closing years of the old Cannon regime he was known as one of "Uncle Joe's" staunchest lieutenants. In 1916 he made his debut in the senate. Mr. Watson was born in 1864 and is a native of Winchester, Ind. He studied at the Winchester High school and at De Pauw university and was admitted to the Indiana bar in 1886.

YOUR HEALTH

Sleep

By Charles D. Cleghorn, M. D., Miami, Fla. Member Gorgas Memorial.

Sleep has been a mystery of the ages, and upon the solution of dreams many a reputation has been made or lost. The exact nature of sleep and its causes are not yet thoroughly understood. The value and necessity of natural sleep for human beings is universally recognized. It was once an adage that the requirements as regards sleep were six hours for a man, seven for a woman, eight for a child, and nine for a fool. And someone has recently remarked, in referring to the modern youths, that they never want to go to bed the same day they get up. It has never been conclusively settled whether a man can constantly work by day and sleep by night to better advantage than sleep by day and work at night, but it is proven that only those animals that are naturally night prowlers can work by night to no disadvantage.

So many factors enter the problem as to the number of hours of sleep that no rule can be laid down which will cover all adults except this one—a sufficient number of hours of undisturbed sleep should be had to restore the energy expended during the previous waking period. If this is not had, the balance will be lost and, sooner or later, health will break down. In the case of children, growth enters the problem as well as expended energy, and this growth ratio must be reckoned with.

Something goes on during sleep which cannot be duplicated by food or rest, or any other method of restoration yet devised. Sleep may be extremely deep with one person and extremely light with another, yet the same number of hours in each may achieve the same results. A dreamless sleep appears to be most beneficial, but a dreamless sleep is not always deep. A fairly good guide in determining the hours of sleep which any person, young or old, should have is to give the person all the sleep he can use. Many children are allowed up until late at night and then have to be called and shaken to get up in the morning—a sure sign that they need more sleep. Up to the eighth year a normal child who is active all day can well use twelve hours of sleep. From this age on, the hours of sleep may be very gradually reduced.

Adults must work out their own schedules, but be sure to get plenty of sleep. Train yourselves to sleep when and where you will in spite of noises and distractions. Sleep in a well ventilated room. Sleep under lightweight covers, warm enough but not too warm. Use a moderately small pillow or none at all. Learn to sleep in different positions and always become fully relaxed. Never have on tight night clothing, and never have on a belt so tight that you can notice it.

All this is easier said than done. Perfection in anything is hard to attain, but that is no reason to stop trying. And, finally, sleep is the cheapest and most effective restorative known.

INCOME TAX TIPS

The vast majority of taxpayers are salaried persons and therefore are entitled, in addition to the personal exemption and a credit for dependents, to a further credit of 25 per cent. of the tax on their earned net income. Correctly to compute this credit, the taxpayer first must compute the amount of tax which would be payable without the earned income credit. From the amount of the tax 25 per cent is to be deducted, the balance being the amount of tax due.

Earned income is defined as "wages (salaries) professional fees, and other amounts received as compensation for personal services actually rendered." However, all net income up to $5,000, whether actually earned or not, is considered earned income for the purpose of the 25 per cent. credit. A taxpayer may have received in 1927 a salary of $2,400 and from a real estate transaction a net profit of $2,600. Nevertheless the entire $5,000 is considered as earned income. The tax payable in such cases is computed as follows:

Net income	$5,000.00
Less personal exemption	1,500.00
Balance taxable at 1 1-2 per cent.	$3,500.00
1 1-2 per cent of $3,500	52.50
Less 1-4 of $52.50, earned income credit	13.12
Balance of tax payable	$39.37

Other examples of how correctly to compute the earned income credit will follow.

IN DAY'S NEWS

Will Krakatoa Explode Again?

Is Krakatoa lighting the fuse for another explosion?

The tiny island volcano in Sunda Strait, between Java and Sumatra, already has tossed out another little land mass into the adjacent waters. The Dutch government, recalling the terrific eruption of 1883, has sent out radio warnings to both the Sumatrans and Javanese.

That explosion was the most violent in modern times, according to a bulletin from the National Geographic society's headquarters at Washington, D. C. It has been said that it "made the biggest noise" ever heard by the ear of man. Men and women still live in the Americas who recall the eruption, for, while they did not hear its record detonation, they saw the marvelous sunsets which its dust, circulating in the upper atmosphere, helped create.

The sound of the eruption was heard on Rodriguez Island, 3,000 miles distant, four hours after the catastrophe. It shot volcanic dust twenty miles high and it was this dust that was caught up in a lofty wind and whirled around the earth in thirteen days. It raised a tide in South America, 10,000 miles away, and, nearer by, it threw up a wall of water more than a hundred feet high which traveled 400 miles an hour.

Two months before it exploded in 1883 Krakatoa was regarded as an extinct volcano.

No person who saw the eruption lived to tell the story. It snuffed out 36,000 lives. A Dutch pilot who miraculously escaped death at Anjer, 25 miles from the volcano, supplies a vivid account of one effect of the disaster.

"About six o'clock in the morning I was walking along the beach," the pilot said. "Looking out to sea I noticed a dark, black object through the gloom, traveling towards the shore.

"At first sight it seemed like a low range of hills rising out of the water but I knew there was nothing of the kind in that part of the Sunda Strait. A second glance—and a very hurried one it was—convinced me that it was a lofty ridge of water many feet high and worse still, that it would soon hit the coast near the town. There was no time to give any warning, and so I turned and ran for my life. My running days have long gone by, but you may be sure that I did my best. In a few minutes I heard the water with a loud roar break upon the shore. Everything was engulfed. Another glance around showed the houses being swept away and the trees thrown down on every side. Breathless and exhausted I still pressed on.

"As I heard the rushing waters behind me, I knew that it was a race for life. Struggling on, a few yards more brought me to some rising ground, and here the torrent of water overtook me. I gave up all for lost, as I saw with dismay how high the wave still was. I was soon taken off my feet and borne inland by the force of the resistless mass. I remember nothing more until a violent blow aroused me. Some hard, firm substance seemed within my reach, and clutching it, I found I had gained a place of safety. The waters swept past, and I found myself clinging to a cocoanut palm tree. Most of the trees near the town were uprooted and thrown down for miles, but this one fortunately had escaped and myself with it.

"The huge wave rolled on, gradually decreasing in height and strength until the mountain slopes at the back of Anjer were reached, and then, its fury spent, the water gradually receded and flowed back into the sea. The sight of those receding waters haunts me still. As I clung to the palm tree, wet and exhausted, there floated past the dead bodies of many a friend and neighbor. Only a mere handful of the population escaped."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The First Stone

Mr. Editor: Mr. Ringland poses as a critic. Jesus went unto the Mount of Olives * * * The scribes and Pharisees brought unto him a woman taken in adultery. * * * Now Moses in the law commanded us that such should be stoned; but what sayest thou? He that is without sin among you, let him cast the first stone at her. Was not that Christ's meaning?

Like the Young Barrister's Advice

Mr. Editor: When this writer wrote his second letter to The Bulletin, he expected it to be the final contribution to the discussion. However as Bulletin Reader has suggested "To the law and the testimony, he has failed to produce either," it reminds me of the story of a young inexperienced barrister who, seeking instructions from a learned jurist in presenting a case to a jury, was told, "When you have the law on your side, extol the law; when you are in doubt, ask for latitude; when you have neither law nor evidence to support your claim, talk against time.

Little Talks on Thrift

Penny Saving

It is somewhat unfortunate that in much of the current discussions of thrift undue emphasis is placed on the function of penny-saving.

Certainly no criticism can be leveled at the doctrine of economy in little things. Most business failures as well as those which come to individuals are the results of small items of waste. However, true thrift only begins with small savings. If this were not true, one would be forced to commend the practices of the miser.

As the result of constant exhortations to save pennies, save nickels and save dimes, many persons receive such an erroneous impression of thrift, that they decide to have none of it.

Thrift should be emphasized as a practice which means real progress and rightful upbuilding. Of course, this includes saving little things. It is thrifty to save the pennies. It is just as thrifty to save the moments; to be careful of one's health; to store the mind with useful knowledge; to keep one's self sound mentally and physically as well as financially.

It is for this reason that in schools where savings banks are in operation, there should also be instructions given to the young on the true purposes and objectives of thrift. Continually harping upon the point of saving pennies is quite apt to have one of two major reactions: (1) There is danger that the student will develop a narrow, tight-fisted, mercenary, avaricious attitude. (2) There is danger that the whole subject of thrift will seem so trite and colorless that he will pay no attention to it.

Thrift does mean penny-saving but as part of the greater plan of eliminating all waste in order to promote the highest possible degree of personal efficiency and usefulness.—American Society for Thrift.

Rather than not get into it at all a woman is willing to get the short end of an argument.

WINS JUDGMENT FOR BILL FOR WALL PAPER

In a decision handed down by Judge Charles B. Waller of the court of common pleas he awards judgment of $128.24 to Philip S. Tashman of New York in his suit against Jacob Bucovetsky, alias Jacob Bokoff of this city. The defendant, a local merchant, refused to pay a bill of $132.10 on the grounds that wall paper sold him by the plaintiff was of inferior quality and not in accordance with the order he gave.

On Wool Institute Directorate

William G. Park of the Airlie Mills, Hanover, is one of the directors of the wool institute which was organized in New York city last week. It is planned to compile a wool weaving manual showing a uniform method of figuring costs on standard fabrics, equalize production activity, reduce the number of fabrics produced, publish figures monthly showing production in yards and billings in yards and dollars and semi-annually showing the stocks in yards, maintain prices and broaden the market for woolen and worsted piece goods.

The institute has absorbed the National Textile Research Office and shortly will open its own quarters, with a personnel of fifteen.

Judgment for Yantic Man

Judgment of $36 was awarded Peter Nawrocki of Yantic by Judge Charles B. Waller of the court of common pleas in the suit which Nawrocki brought against Walter Marek, farmer, residing at East Great Plain. Nawrocki claimed $40. Judgment was rendered on a bill of goods sold by the plaintiff to the defendant.

MARRIED

HANLEY-LYNCH—In New London, Feb. 3, 1928 by Perry J. Hollandersky, J. P. Thomas Hanley, of Fishers Island, and Miss Genevieve Lynch, of Stonington.

Dust Breeds Germs

Germs settle easily in rugs and breed by the millions, spreading disease. Sweeping doesn't banish or destroy them—just moves them around! The right way to clean hygienically is to use a Sylpho-Nathol solution. Add a tablespoonful of Sylpho-Nathol to every pail of water used for mopping, scrubbing and cleaning. Keeps whole house healthful. Get Sylpho-Nathol at all dealers.

WHAT UNIVERSALISTS BELIEVE ABOUT SIN

At the morning service at the Church of the Good Shepherd Sunday, the pastor, Rev. A. N. Foster, continued his series of sermons upon "The Five Points of Universalism Explained." He spoke upon the Universalist belief about sin, using the text "for God cannot be tempted with evil and neither tempteth he any man. Every man is tempted when he is drawn away of his own lust and enticed."

In part he spoke as follows:

The subject of sin has been so prominent in the history of Christendom that some persons have felt that the church would lose its function and religion would lose its prerogative but for the presence of sin in the world and in humanity. Calvinism portrays a sin cursed world and a sin smitten humanity. Sin entered life through the act of disobedience in the Garden of Eden and the fate of mankind is fixed by the decrees of the Almighty which are irrevocable. The vicarious sacrifice on Calvary made possible the salvation of the elect—the preddestinated elect only.

The first noble break in rigid Calvinism was made by John Wesley who insisted on the intervention of divine grace and declared it possible that whosoever wills to be saved shall be saved. The power of free will thus becomes decisive. The early Universalists did not change the method of salvation; they simply widened its scope so as to be universal rather than partial. They did so in protest against the awful doctrine of endless punishment. John Murray insisted that such teaching degrades the Almighty into a brutal monster and he quoted scripture to show that wherever sin did abound there grace did much more abound. Later, Hosea Ballou changed the method or basis of salvation from the vicarious or substitutionary to the ethical blending the testimony of the scripture and reason to show the nobility of human nature and to exalt the superiority of man over the wickedness of the world. Both these great leaders in theological reform in their day—Murray and Ballou—preached frequently in Norwich and their memory continues not without witness to this day.

The Universalist Profession of Faith as adopted at Winchester, New Hampshire in 1803 was revised and supplemented by the Declaration of Principles adopted at the general convention session in Boston in 1899 and in that statement, the fourth article reads: "We believe in just retribution for sin".

To say that sin entered the world through the reported connection with an apple and a serpent in an hour of primal temptation is to proffer an explanation that seems mechanical and toy-like and reflective of the childhood of the race; one that is scholastic and remote from the stress of our experience and one that baffles the research of our reason.

Press the question—What is sin? And reason answers—it is the brute inheritance from the past. In nature, we note the ferocity and the danger of the wolf. We note in community and domestic life, that the dog is dependable and helpful and companionable to man. Without him human society would have been so different And yet the dog came from the wolf How interesting the study of animal instinct as seen in the beaver and the telephant and the horse.

Through the stress of the years, man has acquired something more than instinct. He has gained knowledge! A knowledge which drives out ignorance and gives a greater measure of truth and freedom. Such attainment raises man above the beasts of the field. But the climax—the culmination of all the long stress and strain of the past is seen in man's power to know the difference between right and wrong; it is witnessed in man's power to choose between right and wrong; it is witnessed in man's power to choose good when evil is present!

It is man's sin to choose evil when good is present. O, the tragedy of the lives which yet show physical excellence and commercial prosperity and yet have lost all idealism and show moral decay; physically alive and wel, yet in morals they stagger about seeking expediency and craftiness and trickery to support and guide them as they are close unto moral death. Such decay and death is the price of sin; failure to use man's noblest prerogative—the distinction between good and evil—the power of such moral discrimination passes from us and we lower ourselves to the brute creation, for sin when it is finished is death.

If we postulate the universality of law, we may need to remind ourselves that the laws are operative seen and unseen, here and hereafter.

What we so often lament as death is not a moral judgment but simply a transition from one sphere or realm to another and all are within the range of the great laws of life—the laws expressive of the exactness and the care and the justice of the eternal.

This statement gives added significance to the belief in just retribution for sin.

NTL. W. C. T. U. PRESIDENT PLEADS FOR VOTERS TO SUPPORT VOLSTEAD ACT

Making a closing appeal that men and women should exercise their franchises to defeat any attempt to repeal the Volstead law and declaring that the eyes of the world are on America, which will grow greater and greater as she wins her fight against the now illegal liquor traffic, Mrs. Ella A. Boole of New York, national president of the Women's Christian Temperance union, stirred her audience to enthusiastic applause at the mass meeting Sunday evening at the Central Baptist church, which was held under the auspices of public meetings committee of the local W. C. T. U. An audience of between 500 and 600, which filled the body of the church, listened to Mrs. Boole with close attention.

Leaders of non-sectarian women's organizations of the city were seated upon the platform and Mrs. Boole was introduced by Miss Lucy B. Abbott, president of the Business and Professional Women's club. After the organ prelude, which opened the meeting, a hymn was sung by the congregation led by the quartette and a vested girls' choir directed by Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham. Responsive scripture reading was led by Mrs. Albert Boardman, prayer was offered by Mrs. David A. Pitt and an anthem was rendered by the vested girls' choir before the introduction of the speaker by Miss Abbott.

In opening her address, Mrs. Boole spoke of the organization of the national W. C. T. U. by 200 women at a convention at Cleveland in 1874 when the four planks adopted were reformation of those addicted to drink, education of the masses, organization of the children and the closing of all saloons by law. She described the steps taken along these lines, and went on to speak of her attendance at congressional sessions in 1917 and 1918, the first when the Hobson prohibition amendment was defeated and the second when it was passed. The senate added two amendments, one providing that the prohibition amendment should become effective when ratified by 36 states. Nebraska was the 36th state to ratify it, New York the 44th, Pennsylvania the 45th and New Jersey the 46th. Forty-six out of the 48 states ratified the prohibition amendment, which she declared, was not put over on the American people by the biggest majority for any amendment to the constitution. The Volstead act was passed by a two-thirds vote over the veto of President Wilson and more than 40 cases that have come to the supreme court have sustained the enforcement of the law. It is the duty of citizens to obey the law whether they like it or not, she said. "What can they do against it," she asked "They can work to get it repealed by the same way in which we got the law."

Mrs. Boole said she believed there was great exaggeration in the news of violations of the law. Fathers and mothers too often set a bad example to the young people who are reported to be violators of the law. Examples of the benefits of getting rid of the open saloon are to be seen in the increase in savings bank deposits and the better circumstances of the working people who own their own homes, own automobiles and have better food and better clothing. With better enforcement there will be even greatr benefit.

Enforcement of the prohibition law ought to be in the hands of its friends, declared Mrs. Boole. There is a movement to elect a wet president which has big financial backing from across the ocean. We want dry candidates all down the line.

Taking up the names of some of the candidates mentioned for president nomination, she said that Smith has a "wet" record that the democratic drys in the south will not stand for and they will not give him their support but will look for another candidate. Reed of Missouri will also not satisfy the southern drys. In the republican ranks, Wadsworth and Longworth are wet. Curtiss of Kansas is dry. Hoover is personally dry and has made no statement on the subject but will soon be heard from.

Urging that men and women should vote in the national election, Mrs. Boole said that many a good man has been defeated by the good people who stayed at home on election day. The bad people vote, the unfit people vote, but the good people don't vote. Christian people should catch the vision of their responsibility, but it is not all in voting. They should be identified and informed on prohibition matters to help America get the benefit of the prohibition law. The eyes of the world are on America.

During the taking of the collection, the girls' choir sang an anthem and after a hymn the benediction was pronounced by Rev. Dr. Pitt.

The collection amounted to $42 which will be used to defray the expenses of the meeting.

After the service in the church an informal reception for Mrs. Boole was held in the assembly hall. Receiving her were Miss Abbott and the other ladies who had been seated on the platform: Mrs. Henry D. Johnson, Y. M. C. A. auxiliary; Miss Audrey Gerson, League of Women Voters; Miss Marion L. Bishop, Woman's City club; Mrs. Luther W. Packer, King's Daughters; Mrs. Albert Boardman, W. C. T. U.; Mrs. Albert H. Chase, United Workers; Mrs. W. E. Tingley, William Backus Hospital auxiliary; Mrs. George A. Ashley, Daughters of the American Revolution; Mrs. Frederick J. Maples and Mrs. Pitt of the W. C. T. U. committee.

During the reception the Central Baptist orchestra led by Joseph S. Adams, played and light refreshments prepared by Mrs. Jennie Ravis and Mrs. Willis Hill were served by the Central Fellowship club.

WRITES OF EVENTS IN SEASON AT MIAMI

Herbert W. Lucas of this city, who is spending the winter at Miami, writes The Bulletin as follows of events this season in the Florida city:

January was ushered in by a cold spell. The thermometer got as low as 38 here in the city and on the outskirts it was as low as 36, being 16 at Bington, the five acre papaya tract on the exposition site, Little River valley near Aquiloka was saved by burning 350 oil heaters during the night. It lasted about a week, but being cloudy saved the truck garden vegetables from a freez. It has been a rather cool winter with some very fine days.

On Jan. 4 Coral Gables welcomed the first passenger train of the Seaboard Airline railroad. The rapid transit street railway service was extended to the new station today, Jan. 8, at 2.00 p. m., twelve hours after he left Bocha way naval station at New York. Harry Rogers, president of Rogers Air Lines, Inc., landed his Fairchild monoplane on the dark waters of Biscayne bay, heralding the completion of the first non-stop flight between the two cities. Miss Ruth R. Nichols, daughter of Erickson R. Nichols of Rye, N. Y., a young society woman, accompanied Mr. Rogers and Major M. K. Lee, retired business man and sportsman of New York and Washington. Miss Nichols is believed to be the only woman to hold an international hydroplane flying license, she piloting the monoplane for five hours and for several other short intervals. The 1,200 miles from New York was traveled at an average speed of about 100 miles an hour, excellent air conditions being encountered until the party passed over the Florida line where slightly rough air currents were experienced for 30 minutes. A northwest wind on their starboard quarter added to their speed. They came down in a graceful curve to the waters of the bay after circling for a short time over the city. A crowd of about 1,000 persons gathered to watch the craft taxi to the dock and to welcome the arrival of the first air passengers to make a non-stop flight between the two cities. They were given a great ovation. No one knew they were coming. Austin F. Bennett and Lieut. Leonard Flo, chief pilot for the Wisenbirds business organization in Detroit, were not so "lucky as Mr. Rogers and his party. They left Detroit Wednesday 10.40 a. m. for a non-stop flight to Havana but after 15 hours in the air were lost at sea on the Atlantic seaboard and made a forced landing at Paris Island, S. C., and then continued to Jacksonville. They had a six-passenger Stinson Detroiter monoplane.

In the week of Jan. 15 the American Federation of Labor held a convention at the Alcazar hotel here. Secretary Morrison discussed the aims of labor before a society here, as follows: In the post-bellum depression in this country when nearly 5,000,000 men and women producers were out of work, the federation was one of the great influences fighting to stop immigration into America. Mr. Morrison said that the federation has always been against the admission of Orientals, Chinese and Japanese especially. "I feel that our civilization cannot stand the influx of Orientals." He says that the labor movement in this country is an organized effort to secure shorter and better living conditions for the workers. The drastic changes in industry brought about by improved machinery, which reduces greatly the number of workers necessary to industry must be met by readjustment in employment conditions to provide employment for all. This has been accomplished through shorter hours of work. The union does not compel an employe to pay the same wage for a poor worker as for a good one. The union has simply established a minimum wage which it considers the least that a worker can support his family on. An employe is not required to keep a workman who does not satisfy. The union leaves it to justice and good will of the employer to establish his rate of payment above the minimum, according to a workers worth. One of the aims of organized labor is to foster education for children of workers and he hoped to see the day when no boy or girl would have to take part in the industrial life of this country until the age of 18.

President Coolidge and wife received a wonderful reception here, thousands were lined up all along the line. I was right out within two feet of their Pullman when they pulled out of the depot. Many thousands followed the train as it pulled slowly out of the depot and the President and Mrs. Coolidge stood waving until they had disappeared from view, Mrs. Coolidge still waving till out of sight. She made a big hit here by her very pleasing and courteous manner. It was the largest demonstration I ever saw in Miami, stores closed, schools closed, all the school children lined up on the line of march. It was the most wonderful reception I have seen in many a day. Well, they deserved it, as any president would.

Gene Tunney and Tex Rickard arrived at Miami Beach with Grantland Rice, the great writer. They were the guests of Carl Fisher at a dinner tonight. Tunney scared the sports writers and followers of boxing relative to his lack of "killer instinct" and those who insist he is not a real fighting champion. I took in the Stribling and Burke boxing match of 10 rounds. Young Stribling was too much for Burke. Tunney and Rickard were there. Since Young Stribling lost to Bertenbach Jan. 10, 1926, he has fought 21 times, winning 15 knockouts and the others on decisions. Martin Burke also has a fine record. The fight was under the auspices of the American Legion at Coral Gables.

This week I attended a great bootleggers case. It lasted over a week, the federal court room jammed every day. I would get in as early as 9 a. m. court opening at 10.30. A. M. Alderman was accused of killing three coast guard sailors. Mr. Alderman was on his way back from Nassau and the coast guard boat saw him out 30 miles from Fort Lauderdale. They fired a warning shot and got up side of them and when they found 29 cases of liquor on board they asked them to carry the liquor on board their boat. A Mr. Meech was with Alderman. The guardsmen were not armed when making the capture. Alderman ran up in the radio room and after a struggle Alderman shot Lamby and Webster, killing them both. He then told Meech to get gasoline and set fire to the government boat and burn them all up. The other six men seeing they were in a terrible mess said it was time to act. So a man named Candle dashed for Alderman who had two guns in his hands. Hollingsworth being wounded, he fell and Meech coming up from the hatch was attacked by Robinson armed with an ice pick and after a short fight he threw Meech overboard. Meech then swam to the coast guard boat and was pulled aboard. After Alderman and Meech had been secured, a review of the cutter showed Webster dead on deck, Lamby dead in the engine room and Sanderlin in the wheel house fatally wounded. He died in four days, making three men Alderman actually killed. At the trial marshals were continually required to instruct the audience against crowding the rails, one spectator being put out and several being told to leave the court room on account of being in their shirt sleeves. Alderman's defense was that he thought they were hi-jackers and he was fighting in defense of his life. Well, he was found guilty and has been sentenced to hang May 15.

The auto road to Key West was opened up today (Jan. 24). You can go on 40 miles of road, then ferries are used, having three automobile ferries, like the ones used in San Francisco bay. They have accommodations for 125 passengers and 35 autos. It is a beautiful trip over the keys. Between the Cudjoe and Summerland Keys there is a bridge 2,500 feet long, then comes 1 1-2 miles more of bridge, four miles of road connecting Torch Key and Big Pine key and then the highway comes up to the east side of Ne Name key. Contracts for construction of 14 miles will shortly be let by the county and then there will be 15 miles of road and water linking Long key and Grassy key before Lower Metacombe is reached. The Overseas highway has cost Monire county to date about $4,000,000. It is estimated it will cost ten to fifteen million to build concrete bridges over the big water gaps. Today the highway passes across the beautiful keys and islets to the greatest fishing grounds in the world.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mrs. Annie Kwinski of 838 1st Avenue, Milwaukee, Wis., writes that she became so weak and run-down that she was not able to do her housework. She saw the name Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the paper and said to her husband, "I will try that medicine and see if it will help me." She says she took six bottles and is feeling much better.

Mrs. Mattie Adams, who lives in Downing Street, Brewton, Ala., writes as follows: "A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and since taking it I feel like a different woman."

With her children grown up, the middle-aged woman finds time to do the things she never had time to do before—read the new books, see the new plays, enjoy her grandchildren, take an active part in church and civic affairs. Far from being pushed aside by the younger set, she finds a full, rich life of her own. That is, if her health is good.

Thousands of women past fifty, say they owe their health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

ACADEMY SHOWS IMPRESSIVE FORM IN TRIMMING DEEP RIVER HIGH, 23 TO 12

The Academy met Deep River with as neat an exhibition of fight and fine basketball as that team has had to contend with and won, 23 to 12, Saturday night at the Y gym. The Red and White made a runaway of it in the closing minutes after battling their opponents, rather heavy pre-game favorites a shade better than even for the preceding time.

There was no doubt that Saturday night's Academy team put up the greatest exhibition that any court outfit from the local school has ever shown. Playing hard, but very clean on both the attack and defense the locals sure deserved their win.

All Locals Play Well.

Practically all of the depleted squad of basketeers entered the fray and there wasn't one that didn't acquit himself nobly. Joe Viau led the scorers with eight points and played a bang-up good game but that much can also be said of the rest. Red Fagan, a little heard of substitute, it was that bolstered the team just when it needed it badly. A spectacular overhand shot while going at full speed from the side court seemed to spurt the locals in the third quarter and make a little safer the slender lead they had possessed for most of the previous part of the game. He left the game soon after and when he walked off the floor a great ovation greeted him. We could go on mentioning just each one did for this victory in five starts so well did the boys carry out their tasks.

This was Deep River's third defeat this year, in 18 games, winning 15. The other two were to New Haven Commercial and Chapman Tech while Tech also lost to this team.

At the end of the three quarters the Academy held a one-point margin. The locals took the lead in the first two minutes on Buck LaCroix's foul shot and Joe Viau increased it on another free throw. Welte also scored on a foul in this quarter and H. Mozzocki, the bespectacled part of this family had it tied right after the start of the second quarter. Deep River took the lead on Morrow's toss from the floor, the first field goal of the game, about mid-way in the second quarter but Tigar evened things up again with one off to the side. Joe Viau's field toss had the Academy in 5-4 lead at the half.

The Academy started to break away in the opening moments of the third quarter and soon were in the van by 9 to 4 but the Mozzocki boys each threw in a field goal and had the count at 9-8 at the conclusion of this period.

N. F. A. Scores Heavily.

In the last quarter Deep River held on for a few minutes but all the Red and Whitesters started to score, it seemed all at once and their defense also tightened even stiffer than it had been so that in the last half of the period the locals ran up 12 points on field goals without a return from the floor for the visitors, their remaining points being from fouls.

Deep River was held scoreless from the floor in the second and last periods while the Academy broke through their heralded defense successfully in every quarter but the first.

A much brighter hue is covering the Academy basketball situation this morning and playing their game of Saturday night the locals stand a good chance of copping three decisions this week. The Academy has won four and lost six now and this percentage stands for a bit of improvement.

C. F. C. Trimmed by Mebs

The C. F. C. furnished a big upset by getting a bad beating from the Mebs of the New London City league, 40 to 15, in a preliminary. The local boys, after winning twelve of their past thirteen games, were way off and fell easy prey to the alert quintet that the Whalers were Saturday night. This was the local's first defeat on the home court this year and also one of the worst defeats that they have ever suffered.

Emps Beat Noank Jrs.

The Y Emps heavily bolstered their claim to the eastern Connecticut junior title by trimming the Noank Juniors, 39 to 8 in another preliminary. The local five played good basketball all the way. Economous led in scoring with 13 points while also playing a strong floor game. In another game, a Junior Church league tilt, the Delta club of the Greek Orthodox church, beat the Brothers of Joseph, 16 to 13.

WINDHAM GETS A TRIMMING AT TORRINGTON

(Special to The Bulletin)

TORRINGTON, Feb. 19—Hooping 34 points in the third quarter during an outburst of scoring that appeared absolutely beyond checking, Torington High school came from behind in a fast game in the Torirngton armory Saturday night and swamped Windham High with a score of 37 to 19. During the first half Windham was playing up to standard and had Torrington trailing 9 to 5. When the second half opened Torrington went wild and the Windham players tried in vain to halt wholesale scoring. The final quarter was moderate but Torrington had already placed its victory on ice by a wide margin. Summary:

C. F. C. MEETS MERCURY OF NEW LONDON TONIGHT

The C. F. C. furnish local fans with another "come-back" attempt tonight when they tackle the Mercury Five of New London. Beaten bad Saturday night, the Baptists tonight can be expected to provide plenty of fight all the way against their Whaling City rivals.

The visitors played here earlier in the season, trimming the Y Seniors, so that will be another thing for which the C. F. C. will have to avenge for Norwich. This game is being taken with all the usual Norwich-New London rivalry and a large crowd is expected.

The C. F. C. will line up with Lambert and Leffingwell at the forwards, Neil at center and Brown, Ludlow, Davis and Moberg at the guards. The game starts at 8 o'clock.

MILLVILLE TOWN TEAM AT PLAINFIELD PROS WEDNESDAY

The Millville Town team tackles the Plainfield Pros Wednesday night at the Plainfield Community house for the second time this year. The Massachusetts team got the decision in the first meeting but the Pros will be out to even it up this time at all costs.

Both teams will have their strongest lineup. Millville's roster includes all well-known performers to local fans and they have beaten the Boston Whirlwinds twice this season.

18,500 SEE BRUINS BEAT RANGERS AT N. Y.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19—(AP)—The Boston Bruins stepped into undisputed leadership of the American group of the National Hockey league tonight by defeating the New York Rangers by 2 goals to 0 before a crowd of 18,500 in Madison Square Garden. It was the fourth consecutive game in which the Rangers, who have been setting the pace for the American teams most of the campaign, were held scoreless by the opposing sextet.

INTERNATIONAL DOG DERBY OPENS TODAY

QUEBECA, Que., Feb. 19—(AP)—Dog Derby "mushers" have been assigned positions and numbers for the sixth annual Quebec International Dog Sled classic scheduled to start tomorrow. Competing teams will start at intervals of three minutes.

BITGOOD BROS. NEXT IN "OLD TIMER'S" SERIES

The Bitgood Brothers, Voluntown strong men of a quarter century back, furnish the topic for this week's feature of The Bulletin's series of Glimpses of Sports of Other Days. The series will be published Tuesday, this week, and hereafter.

'BOUT SPORTS

Louis "Kid" Kaplan and Bobby Mays, of New London furnish the talk and action for a goodly number of local fans and others from many parts tonight down in the Arena at New Haven. The Meriden Buzzsaw is the favorite although the southpaw style of Mays should give him plenty of trouble.

With three games this week the Academy is facing a real chance to show their followers that Saturday night's work was not a flash in the pan. It is quite an innovation to play the same team twice in one week but against Bacon Academy of Colchester, that is what the locals will try within the next few days.

The C. F. C. defeat Saturday night was a real shock to many for the Mebs had not been even conceded a chance by many. This team appeared here earlier in the season and beat the Kappas, a much weaker team than the C. F. C. but even then they didn't look capable of downing the Davis-coached machine. Tonight the locals have a chance for retaliation at New London, anyway, in the Mercury five.

Warren Harding had quite a week end trip. After beating Chapman Tech and Stonington Friday, afternoon and evening, respectively, she swung over to Newport and beat the famed Rogers high quintet Saturday evening.

LATE BASEBALL NEWS

BRAVES ARRIVE AT ST. PETERSBURG GROUNDS

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 19—(AP)—The Boston Braves with Jack Slattery the new manager, and Judge Emil Fuchs, owner, but minus Rogers Hornsby, arrived here tonight and tomorrow will begin the training grind to build what Slattery terms "the greatest team since 1914."

PHILLIES LEAVE FOR WINTER HAVEN CAMP

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 19—(AP)—The first group of southward-bound Phillies, headed by Burt Shotton, their new manager, but with Frank Ulrich, first string pitcher, missing from the ensemble, left here today for the spring training grounds at Winter Haven, Fla.

In the party, besides Shotton, Business Manager Nugent and Coach Hunter, were Ferguson Mitchell, Walsh and Mails, pitchers; O'Donnell and Wheat, catchers, and Scout Joe O'Rourke.

TRAVIS JACKSON MAY BE GIANT CAPTAIN

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Feb. 19—(AP)—Travis Jackson, shortstop, will be offered the position of captain of the New York Giants when he arrives here tomorrow to enter preliminary training, John J. McGraw, manager, announced today.

McGraw, who arrived from Havana to take charge of the training of the Giants' squad here, refused to discuss the trade of Rogers Hornsby, whom Jackson may succeed as captain.

Jess Doyle, pitcher, has returned unsigned his contract from Toronto, McGraw said. The manager intimated he would try to adjust salary matters with Doyle, the only "holdout" so far as is known on the Giant list.

MCLARNIN-TERRIS N. Y. FEATURE THIS WEEK

NEW YORK, Feb. 19—(AP)—Jimmy McLarnin, Los Angeles lightweight, makes his eastern debut in a headline bout with Sid Terris, of New York at Madison Square Garden Friday night. The tussle will be over the 10-round distance.

McLarnin gained considerable notice several months ago by a knockout victory over Louis (Kid) Kaplan and a triumph over Billy Wallace, Cleveland battler.

In his home town, McLarnin who is 22 years old, is called "Baby Face" but in his recent engagements opponents have had more than looks to contend with.

McLarnin is working out at Orangeburgh, N. Y., while Terris is training in a local gymnasium. Both boxers have posted forfeits of $2,500 as guarantees that they will make the 135-pound weight.

Three eight-round events are on the same card. Chick Suggs facing Sammy Dorfman, Dominick Petrone, opposing Lew Perfetti and Willie Siegel clashing with Walter Babcack.

ACADEMY HAS THREE GAMES THIS WEEK

The Academy faces three games during the coming week with the majority on foreign courts.

Wednesday night the locals tackle Stonington in an important league game; Thursday night Bacon Academy is the opponent at Colchester and Saturday at the Y gym Bacon Academy finishes out the week.

NORWAY WINS OLYMPIC WINTER SPORTS

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland, Feb. 19—(AP)—American bobsleighers continued their great work down the chute in the finals today outclassing all other competitors in this thrilling series to land the United States in second place in the Olympic winter sports carnival. Norway was returned the winner of the meet for the second time while Sweden was third.

The Norwegians carried off the premier honors through brilliant efforts in the skating and skiing events even though they did not take part in the hockey competition.

Finland, which was second in the rankings at the last competition, finished fourth with Austria next and Canada, sixth. The Canadians captured the Olympic hockey championship by a victory over Switzerland by 13 to 0.

William Fiske of the United States captured first place in the bob sleigh finals with John Heaton second, Paul Kilian of Germany third. The Argentines, Gramajo and Hope, placed fourth and fifth while Ernest Casimir Lambert of Belgian was sixth.

Fiske Wins Sled Title

With all the Olympic sports events completed Norway stands at the top as she did at Chamonix in 1924 but the United States won second place in this year's competitions, displacing Finland which was second four years ago.

If official point scoring by the teams of various nations, such as was practiced at Chamonix, had been adopted here, the rankings of the events just completed would read: Norway 90 1-2 points; United States, 50 1-2; Sweden, 40; Finland, 39 1-2; Austria, 22; and Canada, 13 1-2.

Norway captured six first places in thirteen events, the United States, Finland and Sweden, two first places each. The other went to Canada in hockey.

Canada Hockey Champ.

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland, Feb. 19—(AP)—Canada today defeated Switzerland 13 to 0 to win the official Olympic hockey championship. Sweden defeated England 3 to 1, making the former European champions and giving them second place in the Olympics.

Seven thousand spectators standing on the slopes of the Alpine range watched Canada smother the Swiss rivals.

The Canadian goal posts have been inviolate throughout the Olympic hockey competition. Canada met the best of the amateur teams of Europe and scored 38 goals in all of their games. The name "Stonewall" has been given to Sullivan, the Canadian goalie, who permitted not a single puck to pass into his net.

Beatrix Loughran Winner

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland, Feb. 19—(AP)—Beatrix Loughran and Sherwin Badger of the United States took fourth place in the figure skating championship for couples today which was won by the French team, Mlle. Andree Joly and Pierre Brunet.

MALCOLM CAMPBELL SMASHES WORLD'S AUTO SPEED RECORD AT DAYTONA BEACH

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Feb. 19—(AP)—Capt. Malcolm Campbell, British ace, today established a new world's record when he drove his huge Napier Blue Bird special over the hard beach course here at an average speed of 206.95602 miles an hour.

Literally burning up the sands with his giant machine equipped with a powerful 12 cylinder motor of the British air service, Captain Campbell exceeded by 3.16 miles an hour the former record, of 203.79 set here last year by Maj. H. O. D. Segrave of England in his mystery Sunbeam special.

214 Miles On First Trip

Taking a four mile running start, Captain Campbell made his first run south with the wind, negotiating the official mile in 16.76 seconds for a speed of 214.79713 miles an hour, which was 11 miles an hour faster than Major Segraves' record. On his return trip north, made against a strong wintry wind, the Englishman covered the official mile in 18.03 seconds for a speed of 199.66722 miles an hour.

His averaged elapsed time, both ways over the course was 17.395 seconds and his average miles an hour was 206.95602.

Near Accident

Immediately after he had crossed the wire at the end of the official mile Captain Campbell narrowly escaped what might have been a serious accident when his huge machine struck a soft bump on the sand and for an instant the driver almost lost control of his car. Swerving dangerously at such a tremendous speed, the machine, for an instant, seemed to head for the soft sand dunes, which undoubtedly would have resulted in the death of the Englishman and demolishing the car.

Took Four Miles to Stop

The bump, which was located higher on the beach than the Britisher had intended to drive, threw him half way out of the seat and for an instant his feet bounced completely off the brakes and accelerator. His goggles slipped down over his eyes, obstructing his vision, but he righted the machine and it roared on down the course stopping near the end of the beach, four miles away. Mrs. Campbell witnessing the epochal run from the grand stand, gasped audibly when she saw her husband's car strike the bump, and she covered her face with her hands.

Fearing that a serious accident had happened, Mrs. Campbell did not look up until friends told her her husband had completed his run safely. On his second run north Captain Campbell drove his machine farther out on the beach where the sands were hard packed. The wind slowed him up perceptibly and he was able to average only 199.66 miles an hour over the official mile course. After he had completed his run, the Englishman drove his car back to the pit and was greeted with cheers from the grandstand.

About 5,000 saw the run.

Captain Campbell declared that the performance of his machine today proved to him that he would need a longer rolling start if he should decide to make another attempt later to better his own mark.

226 Miles at Finish

"I did not have my machine opened up at any time during the trial," he said. "When I entered the official mile stretch after taking a four mile start, my machine had not even started to pick up good, and I did not begin to pick up until I had covered half of the mile. Just before I crossed the final wire I glanced at my instruments and I was making 226 miles an hour. My instruments are accurate and I saw all during the runs just what speed I was making."

Asked if he intended to try to break his own mark during the speed classic here, which officially ends next Wednesday, Campbell said "I don't know for sure but I might." He said however, that if Frank Lockhart succeeds in breaking the record set today, he undoubtedly would make another trial.

Lockhart to Try Today

Shortly after Campbell had made his run, Frank Lockhart brought his Stutz "Blackhawk" special onto the beach for several test runs. On two trials, with and against the wind, Lockhart clipped off 181 miles an hour but said he would not attempt to set a new record before tomorrow. Lockhart's car, which weighs less than 3,000 pounds and is equipped with two eight cylinder Miller marine motors is said by racing officials to be the last word in racing car design. The motors are capable of developing 400 horsepower, and its cigar-shaped body has been designed to offer a minimum of wind resistance.

J. M. White, Philadelphia, who intends to establish a mark in his 36 cylindered triple machine, brought the creation onto the beach today but after Campbell and Lockhart had concluded their runs. The tide was so high he was not able to make a preliminary trial.

Tom Rooney, Chicago, in his "Blackhawk" Stutz, established the first stock car record over a mile straight away under revised rules of the American Automobile association, requiring strictly stock body and gears. His average time two ways, was 97.759 miles an hour.

HAHN ON WAY TO NEW YORK AFTER CONGER FUSS

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 19—(AP)—Protesting that he had been fouled by Ray Conger, who defeated him in a special 1,000-yard feature of the Kansas City A. C. meet here last night, Lloyd Hahn, Boston A. A. flier, hurried to New York today to compete in the Baxter mile in the New York A. A. starts, and cost him one of his four world's indoor records. Conger, Illinois A. C. star, won in the sizzling time of 2 minutes and 11 seconds, beating the old record of 2:12-4-5 set by Hahn in New York last year.

It was Hahn's first defeat in 32 games tomorrow night.

Hahn, finished in a walk, charging Conger fouled him on the final turn. He said he would lodge a protest with the A. A. U. Hahn led for six of the seven laps, but in the final back stretch Conger pulled along and Hahn seemed unable or unwilling to meet the challenge. Hahn claimed Conger elbowed him from the track as he passed, but Conger denied this.

In his dressing room later, Hahn was bitter against Conger, whom he said had been guilty of unethical tactics in former races. "I'll never race Conger again. He is not a sportsman," Hahn is quoted as having told friends.

DETROIT TIGERS SET OUT FOR CAMP

DETROIT, Feb. 19—(AP)—The nucleus of the Detroit American league baseball club left here tonight for the team's spring training camp at San Antonio, Tex.

The complete field, announced today, includes practically every prominent bike racer in the game, European as well as homebred. Among the Americans are Reggie McNamara, the "Iron Man", Bobby Walthour, Freddie Spencer, Charley Winter, Ernest Kockler, Eddie Merkner, Tony Beckman, Harry Horan and Dave Lands. The foreign entries are headed by Maurice Brocco, Franco Georgetti and Gaetano Belloni, of Italy; Alphonse Goosens and Gerard Debaets, of Belgium; Georges Faudet and Gabriel Marcillac of France; Kleas Van Nek of Holland; Otto Petri of Germany, and Cecil Walker of Australia.

MANDELL MUST POST FORFEIT OR FACE SUSPENSION

CHICAGO, Feb. 19—(AP)—The feature boxing match of the month in Chicago, scheduled to bring together Champion Sammy Mandell and Jackie Fields, coast 140-pounder, for ten rounds Thursday night, still had a question mark after it tonight. Mandell's manager, Eddie Kane, promised to visit the Illinois State Athletic commission tomorrow to learn why the lightweight king must post a $5,000 forfeit for his title match next June against Jimmy McLarnin.

Unless the forfeit is up before Thursday night, the National Boxing association has threatened to slap down the bars again and put Mandell under suspension.

This action by Thomas Donohue, president of the N. B. A., came when he found that McLarnin had not been signed yet. Promoter Jim Mullen had the challenger's promise to meet Mandell, but preferred to wait until after the McLarnin-Sid Terris match in New York this week, to see whether McLarnin or Terris, came out winner.

LOCKE AND HAHN ON NEW YORK A. C. CARD TONIGHT

NEW YORK, Feb. 19—(AP)—Six special races, drawing entries from some of the most prominent of the nation's tracks and field stars, feature the annual games of the New York A. C. at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

While principal attention is centered on the eastern debut of Roland Locke, great sprinter of the University of Nebraska, a host of other crack runners, among them Lloyd Hahn will compete to make the meet one of the most important of the indoor season.

Hahn is down for the Baxter mile against a field that includes Jimmy Connolly, New York A. C., S. B. Robinson, of Mississippi A. and M. J. J. Eliott, University of North Carolina and Bill Sullivan, former Georgetown university star.

DARTMOUTH TAKES LEAD IN COURT LOOP

NEW YORK, Feb. 19—(AP)—Dartmouth winner of the Eastern Intercollegiate basketball race last season, was out in front of the hoop pack today with the Princeton and Pennsylvania quintets locked in a tie for second place.

Bolstered by a 37 to 24 victory over Cornell last night at Ithaca, the Hanoverians rate in the standing at four games won and one lost, the lone setback being inflicted by Yale early in the campaign.

Schaaf, the star guard of the Penn five, has assumed the leadership of the individual scorers with a total of 61 points.

HAUGEN FALLS AND LOSES IN N. E. CHAMPIONSHIP

BRATTLEBORO, Vt., Feb. 19—(AP)—A fall on his second jump today cost Lars Haugen of the St. Paul Athletic club the New England ski jumping championship and his second leg on the Brattleboro Outing club trophy.

Haugen, who holds the national championship and recently won the eastern title, made the best distance of the meet, 162 feet, on his first leap, but took a spill after clearing 154 feet on his second try. He consequently finished sixth and first place went to Haldor Bjorngaard of the Aurora Ski club, Red Wing, Minn, whose jumps measured 143 and 151 feet.

Perfect Bowling at Chicago

ST. PAUL, Minn., Feb. 19—(AP)—A perfect score of 300 was rolled today by Frank Kartheiser, of Chicago, at the International Bowling association tournament. It was the first perfect game in the I. B. A.'s 29 years of existence.

BASKETBALL BRIEFS

The Academy is playing real basketball now.

The C. F. C. defeat was an awful surprise for they were big favorites over the Mebs.

They all have their off-nights however, and the locals should be thankful that it didn't come against the Hartford Central Baptists, their arch rivals.

The Baltic Independents would like to arrange a game with the Moosup Stars for Wednesday night at the Baltic gym. They would like an answer through this paper.

The Y Emps now have a real claim to the eastern Connecticut title for another year.

The Taftville Crescents are playing a night earlier this week, th change to tonight being necessitated by an entertainment at the hall on their regular playing night.

The weather cut in on the attendance quite a bit Saturday night at the Y. As it was, however, there were very few seats vacant.

Norwich won two of three games with intra-city rivals Saturday it will be noticed. Noank and Deep River fell to the Emps and Academy, respectively while New London got the decision over the C. F. C.

SPORTING NOTES

A new race course which is declared to be the finest in India has been opened by the Royal Calcutta Turf club.

Indications are that the east will be better represented at this year's tournament of the American Bowling congress than ever before.

The American tour projected this year by the Glasgow Celtics, the most famous of Scottish soccer teams, has been deferred until a later date.

The crowds attending football games in Madrid, Seville, Barcelona and other of the chief cities of Spain are now quite as large as those at bullfights.

Several European bicycle racers never before seen in America are to compete in the six-day race to be held in Madison Square Garden the week of March 4.

The University of Florida eleven will be seen again in the Harvard Stadium in 1929. Harvard met Florida in the Stadium six years ago and won, 24 to 0.

Babe Ruth at 34 says he is going to have the greatest season of his baseball career this year, and baseball fans everywhere will join in the hope that Babe has the right dope.

CRESCENTS MEET DUDLEY A. C. TONIGHT

Crescents	Webster
Normandin, lf.	lf., Kuyawski
Brown, rf.	rf., Ivazon
Harris, c.	c., Greb
Leonard, lg	lg., Wozwicki
Murphy, rg.	rg., Blesniak

The Taftville Crescents have another Webster team as the opposition tonight at Parish hall, one almost identical with the St. Joseph's Y. M. A. club, which they managed to beat last week only after 40 thrilling minutes. The Dudley A. C. comes to town with a strong cast, four of whom pastime with the Saints, and that they should give the Crescents a tough argument is taken for granted by the fans that witnessed last week's Webster-Taftville affair.

The Crescents will use their regular lineup that has suffered but one defeat on the home floor this year and that the first game, way back in December. The local boys are now playing a high grade brand of ball and a win tonight will give them even a bigger boost in the opinion of the fans.

A fast preliminary between the Taftville Whirlwinds and their old rivals, the Norwich Shamrocks, starts at 7:30 with the main game at 8:15. Bourden's orchestra will play for a confetti dance to follow the main game.

Nanny Won't Believe.

Pray always keep an open mind
That easy entrance truth may find.
—Old Mother Nature.

Nanny Meadow Mouse was trembling. Yes, sir, she was trembling all over. She wanted to run and she didn't want to run. She was afraid and at the same time she was very, very curious. Some one was going to break through into the little tunnel in which Nanny was waiting. It was very strange.

"It must be some other Meadow Mouse digging a new tunnel," thought Nanny. "Oh, dear, I wonder who it can be! My, if Danny were here how he would make that other fellow run! He wouldn't allow another Meadow Mouse in our tunnels. But perhaps it isn't a Meadow Mouse. I do hope it isn't Shadow the Weasel."

Now if Nanny had stopped to think she would have known that it wasn't Shadow the Weasel. Shadow doesn't go about digging tunnels. He uses the tunnel somebody else has dug. She really had nothing at all to worry about on that score.

Nanny moved a little farther from the point where that digging was going on. Then she once more sat down to watch, and she was all of a tremble with right and hope combined. Suddenly out into the little tunnel came a little paw. Then it was followed by another little paw and by a blunt furry head. Nanny gave a little gasp. She just had to. That little head was very, very like the head of her beloved Danny Meadow Mouse. There was a lot of snow in the fur, for you know that the stranger had been digging through the snow and more or less of the snow was in his fur and clinging to it. In a moment more he was wholly out in the little tunnel. He sat down back to Nanny and began to shake himself and to make his toilet.

"Oh!" gasped Nanny under her breath. You see even the back of this stranger looked like Danny. In fact, Nanny was having hard work to convince herself that it wasn't Danny. "It isn't," she said, over and over, "it isn't. It isn't Danny because it can't be Danny. Roughleg the Hawk caught Danny, so Danny is dead. I didn't suppose there could be another Meadow Mouse who looked so exactly like Danny. I wonder who he is. I wonder if he'll want to be friends with me. I wish he would turn around."

Just then the stranger did turn around. "Danny!" squeaked Nanny. And then at the sound of her own voice she turned and scampered as fast as her little legs could take her back toward home.

"Nanny! Stop, Nanny! Stop! Stop!" squeaked a familiar voice. It was the voice of Danny Meadow Mouse.

Nanny didn't believe it. She wouldn't believe it. She couldn't believe it. She knew that Roughleg the Hawk had caught Danny? Didn't she know that Danny was no longer alive. This stranger who looked like Danny and sounded like Danny she knew wasn't Danny. She glanced back. He was coming after her. He ran like Danny. Yes, sir, he ran exactly like Danny. She ought to know. Hadn't she watched Danny a thousand times running along their little paths and tunnels? No one else ran just like him. That is, no one did but this stranger.

"What are you running away from me for?" cried Danny, for you know it was he.

Nanny only ran faster. She was getting too short of breath to answer. She wanted to wait, but she was afraid to. She wanted to believe that this was really Danny, but she wouldn't. She wouldn't, because she couldn't! She knew this couldn't be Danny, so she wouldn't believe it was. People are that way sometimes. People who won't believe are the hardest people to convince.

WEEKLY REVIEW SHOWS PROGRESS CONTINUED BY AMERICAN INDUSTRY

NEW YORK, Feb. 19—(AP)—Quiet progress was continued by American industry last week with, however, a few discordant notes here and there. Iron and steel trades, which have been the recognized leaders of the business improvement to date, presented a somewhat less favorable prospect. Although operations were carried on at a rapid rate, and in some instances stepped up still further, the activity was based on fast orders. Current buying fell off considerably, the weekly trade reviews reported, because of stiffening prices and kindred factors.

Reports of unemployment, particularly in some of the larger manufacturing centers, caused considerable concern. In a large measure this condition has been blamed on unseasonable weather, which has slowed up winter buying in many lines, thus reducing manufacturing and distributing activities. Hope was held that continued expansion as spring approached would do much to alleviate the unemployment, which some observers declare, shows the largest percentage since the war.

A feeling that the output of some of the leading makers has failed to come up to early expectations accompanied reports of continued activity in the automobile industry. Lumber reports were cheerful, especially as concerned the situation in the Pacific northwest. Some of the producers of hard wood were less optimistic and complaints were heard that buying had not developed as rapidly as had been expected.

Fairly active progress was noted by the textile branch. Finished cotton goods were in better demand than in recent weeks, and a sudden growth of retail buying has called for quick deliveries in some sections of the country. In wool, there was some advance in prices with the opening of the fall lines of important manufacturers. Raw silk was in better demand, and prices were a little firmer.

Prospects of a good year in the building field were reported by some commentators on that phase of industry, accompanied by a few convincing predictions that activity will be greater this year than last, especially in structural and engineering lines. To this steel trade looks for a recovery from the present buying slump within a very few weeks.

The movement of crops to market, particularly corn, has been retarded by rainy weather which has brought the frost from the ground and resulted in bad roads. Corn prices, in consequence, rose rather sharply, and dollar corn became an actuality again in many sections. Wheat prices, on the other hand, sagged in reflection of improved condition of the growing crop. This tightening in quotations was in the face of a material increase in wheat exports.

Unseasonal cuts in mid-continent petroleum prices clouded the oil outlook. This branch of industry still confronts the vital necessity of stepping cautiously because of the large over-supply of its product resulting from the flood of crude oil last summer.

The credit situation showed only minor changes. A further stiffening of time money and commercial paper rates, was reported around the middle of the week. The Federal Reserve rediscount situation was virtually unaltered from the week before.

Bank clearings fell off from the preceding week, but this was due to the brevity of the period, due to the Lincoln birthday recess. A small gain was reported over the futures for the corresponding five days of 1927.
